GERMANS TRY DECISIVE BLOW AT RUSSIA

POLICE STILL BAFFLED OVER SLAIN PASTOR

Gary No Nearer Solution than When the Body Was Found.

WAR THEORY THE BEST

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Gary, Ind., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Four days have passed since the Rev. Edmund A. H. Kayser was found slain near his parsonage in Tolleston. Tonight the police are no nearer a full solution of the mystery, no nearer the capture of the murderer, than they were fifteen minutes after the German pastor's body was discovered by his parishioners.

Theories, which are about the only things that have been plentiful, are keeping the police busy, and even these have been eliminated by Chief Pontus Heintz until only the war motive theory remains. The woman angle was fathomed and disproved.

War Plot Theory Best.

Chief Heintz believes he has the man who wrote the threatening letters, but sees no connection between the letters and the murder.

Chief Heintz has eliminated the theory that the $1,800 mortgage figured as a possible motive.

"I am positive that the dissatisfaction among the property owners had nothing to do with the slaying," he said. "I am not quite convinced that the Saxon verein is not involved, although I have no evidence to hold any one on."

Coroner Frank M. Smith has been conducting an investigation also.

Saxon Verein Out of It.

"The Saxons had nothing to do with that murder," he said. "Two or three men entered the residence with the purpose to rob or torture. Kayser overpowered them and they had to resort to the use of weapons.

"Two revolvers were used. The fight started in the house and ended in the street. I am going to make a thorough investigation of this case. I have the power of sheriff and can make arrests, and I am going to go to the bottom of this.

"This investigation will go on regardless of whether it reflects on the United States Steel corporation or not.

Roumanian Women Questioned.

Two Roumanian women, who, it was learned, were taken into custody yesterday by detectives working under the direction of Chief Heintz, were taken this afternoon to the little parsonage in Tolleston where the Rev. Edmund A. H. Kayser was shot to death a few nights ago.

What connection the women are thought to have had with the minister's death is known only to the authorities. At the Kayser home State's Attorney Clyde Hunter and Chief of Detectives Fordis examined the women through an interpreter. They later were released.

It is not believed they were suspected in connection with the writing of the threatening letters as Chief Heintz says he is convinced that Lucas Hauptman, who is locked in a cell of the Gary police station, is the man who wrote the letters.

Chief Absolves Hauptman.

"I am positive that Hauptman wrote the letters," Chief Heintz said, "but I am also pretty sure that he didn't have

SON SUES WHEN FATHER WOOES

Arnold Gassman Asks Court to Enjoin $2,000 in a Safe Deposit Vault.

Eighty-three years have failed to dim the sparkle in Adam Gassman's eye. When he is feeling extra spry he can take his weight off his cane and twirl it around just as he used to do in his courting days—that is, his first courting days, for Adam Gassman has gone a-courting again.

Yes, sir, it was a case of love at first sight. It happened one day not so very long ago as Adam was leaving his home at 1930 Walnut street. Coming along Walnut street was Mrs. Josephine Schmidt, a widow of Rock Island, who was visiting friends close by. If woman suffrage had been the fashion sixty years ago, Mrs. Schmidt could have voted.

Adam's Winning Way.

Adam beamed. Mrs. Schmidt smiled. Adam's heart pounded as he raised his hat and spoke. And right there Adam showed he hadn't forgotten his way with the women. It is said Mrs. Schmidt actually giggled at his witty sayings, and before the white haired gallant had returned home the little fellow with the wings had twanged his bow and his aim had been perfect.

Adam's son, Arnold, noticed his father was unusually happy. Once he even burst into the lilting words of an old love ballad. But Arnold smiled and hoped it was not a bad sign, for the doctors had told him his father had only a short time longer to live.

But on Aug. 12 came a letter to Adam. He seldom received mail and Arnold wondered. The letter bore a Rock Island postmark. Adam read the letter with glowing eyes, but old age had made him careless. He left the opened epistle lying around, and Arnold read it. It wasn't necessary to read between the lines to find out that Adam was in love and that it was requited.

Seeks to Enjoin $2,000.

Arnold rushed into court with a petition to have a conservator appointed for his father's estate. The same day Adam packed his best suit and left. Yesterday the son applied in the Circuit court for an injunction to prevent the Prairie State Safe Deposit company at 641 Washington boulevard from giving his father or any one authorized by Adam from gaining access to the safety deposit box in which Adam has $2,000. His bill recites his father is under the influence of "some woman" who possesses the intention of marrying him for his money.

"Mrs. Josephine Schmidt admits she is 71," said Arnold's sister. "We don't know where father is now, but Arnold is going to Rock Island, where we think he has gone."

Triangle Tilt on Street Winds Up at Police Station

While Benjamin F. Henriquez, advertising man, was riding along Michigan avenue in his automobile last night he observed his wife at the Randolph street corner. Near her he saw a man.

Mr. Henriquez stopped the machine, stepped out, and walking up to his wife accused her of being with the man. Mrs. Henriquez denied the charge, and the man also declared the husband was mistaken. Neither, each maintained, had ever seen the other before. Mr. Henriquez, however, insisted he knew what he was talking about; and so noticeable did the discussion become that Officer Timothy O'Connell piled all three into the automobile and took them to the Central station.

Had Been Looking for Her.

There Mr. Henriquez and the other man, who gave his name as Charles Dawes of 2224 West Harrison street, were booked on charges of disorderly conduct and released on bail. According to O'Connell, Mr. Henriquez maintained that he had been looking for "the goods" on his wife and now had them. Mrs. Henriquez said that her husband had left their home at 5591 Lexington street, Austin, a week ago and that she was looking for him.

"Where are you going?" replied her husband as he handed over a roll of bills.

"I'm going home, but I bet you're not," answered the woman as she took the money.

All a Mistake, She Says.

And she did go home, for when THE TRIBUNE called the Henriquez home on the telephone half an hour later she was there.

"It was all a mistake," she said. "We have five children to be looked after, and I think my husband will come home all right. We just had a little quarrel. That's all."

Roosevelt Says Neglect Caused Ruin of U. S. Navy

Colonel Attacks Wilson Policy on Mexico, Germany and Haiti.

SLAP BY GARRISON

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 28.—Former President Theodore Roosevelt tonight issued another statement in reply to Secretary of War Garrison in the controversy brought about by Mr. Roosevelt's Plattsburg speech. Col. Roosevelt took issue with the secretary on the administration's attitude toward Mexico and Haiti. He also called attention to what he called the unpreparedness of our fleet, saying:

"I point out to Mr. Garrison that for nearly two years, in 1913 and 1914, the ships of the navy were never exercised in fleet maneuvering, and, as I am reliably informed, were never exercised in fleet or squadron gunnery. A moderately intelligent child of 6 knows that the failure for two years to undertake such maneuvers means a literally criminal deterioration in the fleet, and cannot possibly mean anything else. No expert knowledge is needed on this point; it is a matter of ordinary common sense.

"War During the Peace."

"As Mr. Garrison is engaged in an attack on me, I will point out to him one or two things he can himself afford to explain.

"During the time that I was president—seven and one-half years—not one shot was fired by American soldiers or sailors against any foreign foe, and not one sailor or soldier was killed by any foreign foe. During the time Messrs. Garrison and Daniels have served in the cabinet of President Wilson—less than three years—President Wilson has waged two small wars, one with Mexico and one with Haiti.

"I care for facts, not names. And if President Wilson and Messrs. Garrison and Daniels prefer that I should say that they waged peace with Mexico and still more recently waged peace with Haiti, I am content to substitute their expressions.

"Ultimatum to Germany."

"The administration of which Mr. Garrison is part has sent to Mexico, as well as to Germany, what any man accustomed to measure words by deeds would regard as ultimatums.

"In the case of this administration the ultimatum has usually been followed by a penultimate and then by an ante-penultimate, and so on in diminishing progression. Does Mr. Garrison not understand that it is exceedingly foolish to use strong words and yet be unprepared to back them up by deeds?

"Six months have gone by since the administration of which Mr. Garrison is part sent to Germany a note which was inexcusable unless it was meant as an ultimatum. In this ultimatum it was ultimatum. Between one and two hundred of our citizens have been killed and a number of our ships have been sunk, and we still are only in the conversational stages on the subject."

New Slap at Colonel.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—Secretary of War Garrison "came back" at Col. Roosevelt today.

He could not permit the colonel's championship of Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood to affect relations between Wood and the war department in any respect, he said.

"The case," went on the statement, "is closed and the verdict must stand.

"There is nothing in Mr. Roosevelt's plea to reopen the case that would make it proper to do so. The personal and official relations between Gen. Wood and myself concern us and do not concern Mr. Roosevelt. I do not require Mr. Roosevelt's assistance to determine what they are or should be, and I seriously doubt if the general does.

"As to his assumption that I object to the making of strong pleas for proper military preparedness, it would be impossible for him to entertain a more unwarranted one. I have gone to the limit of my vocabulary in an endeavor to make such pleas just as strong as words could make them.

"If he has found some stronger than I was able to find, he runs the risk that I will borrow them."

VIEW TAKEN BY BRYAN.

William Jennings Bryan paused long enough in Chicago yesterday on his way to Winona Lake, Ind., to slap Theodore Roosevelt for the latter's utterances on preparedness at Plattsburg, N. Y.

He likened the apostle of preparedness to a drunken man who is useful for citation as a horrible example of the results of intemperance.

"It is said to have been an ancient custom for parents to teach their children the evils of intemperance by taking before them persons in an intoxicated condition," commented Mr. Bryan at the University club. "It is possible that Mr. Roosevelt is serving a useful purpose in warning the public of the effect which the doctrine of preparedness may have on a man when he gives himself up to it as a regular business."

RESERVE CORPS OF ENGINEERS, NEW U. S. PLAN

American Societies Take Move Toward Preparedness for War.

TO CALL ON CONGRESS

A concrete result of the lessons of preparedness taught the United States by the European war was made public yesterday by Engineer Bion J. Arnold in an announcement that 30,000 American engineers are to be represented in the formation of an organized reserve corps of engineers for immediate service in the event of war.

Following a conference last spring between representative engineers and Secretary of War Garrison, the movement to form the corps was taken up by the American Society of Civil Engineers, the American Institute of Mining Engineers, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, and the American Institute of Consulting Engineers. Each of the bodies appointed committees, which now have consolidated in a joint committee to take charge of engineering operations in coöperation with the war department in case of war.

Draft Bill for Congress.

To legalize the formation of the corps a bill has been drafted for submission to congress. The details of the legislation to be asked are now being studied by the war department. It is considered that the European war in its utilization of fortifications, mechanics, the wireless telegraph, submarines, airships, high explosives, and other complex modern equipment has demonstrated that the desirability of large numbers of competent engineers is the first great need the government would feel should this country be attacked.

The individual capability of the regular army engineers—the builders of the Panama canal—is freely acknowledged, but it is as freely admitted that numerically they would be wholly inadequate to carry out the huge engineering operations that would be necessary to meet the emergency of war.

Accordingly the following committees have been appointed in line with suggestions concurred in by the secretary of war, the officers of the general staff, and the war college:

New York—William Barclay Parsons, chairman of the committee of the American Society of Civil Engineers and general chairman of the joint committee.

New York—William H. Wiley, chairman of the committee of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

New York—Ralph D. Mershon, chairman of the committee of the American Institute of Consulting Engineers.

Pennsylvania—Henry S. Drinker, chairman committee of American Institute of Mining Engineers.

Illinois—Bion J. Arnold, chairman of the committee of the American Institute of Consulting Engineers.

Appoint National Committee.

Chairman Arnold's statement, issued yesterday, contained the following explanation of the movement:

"Last spring the suggestion was made that the national engineering societies offer to assist the war department in the formation of an engineer reserve in the United States army. The suggestion was brought to the attention of some of the officers of the army, who commended it and confirmed the belief that the need of such a reserve was a real one; that the European war had distinctly shown that engineers in time of war are required on a scale never before realized and of great varieties of experience.

"In our own army no adequate provision is made for great numbers of engineers, for, although the corps of engineers is composed of men of the highest professional proficiency, in certain lines it is greatly short of the numerical strength that would be immediately required.

"Acting on this sugesstion, the American Society of Civil Engineers, the American Institute of Mining Engineers, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, and the American Institute of Consulting Engineers appointed committees authorized and directed to take such steps as might be advisable to urge the organization of such a reserve corps as part of the regular army, and so assist in putting the United States in a better condition of preparedness against war."

Thrilling Story of First Landing in Dardanelles

"HELL," OFFICER SAYS

New York, Aug. 28.—[Special.]—A letter written by a British officer, who now holds a prominent place with the forces at the Gallipoli peninsula, has been received in New York. It is published with the understanding that the identities of the men mentioned be not disclosed. The letter, with personal details omitted, follows:

"Well, by now you will have seen by the papers that we had a damned sight stiffer job to do than any of us thought. I will begin from the time we landed and tell you all we've been through.

Dublins Almost Wiped Out.

"On the 25th of April, Sunday, at dawn, the whole fleet began bombarding the end of the peninsula, where we were to land. At 7 a. m. we began landing. The Dublins were in open boats towed by launches from men-of-war. They practically were wiped out before our eyes, losing 560 men and twenty-one officers.

"We were in a flat bottomed collier and were beached on the sand. The Turks were heavily intrenched and had snipers in the gangway and boats and a machine gun playing on the water where we had to jump in. About one man in every ten got ashore without being hit.

"H's company went first. Every officer was hit and nearly all the men. G. went next and all the officers except W. were hit. J. and I went next, but only half our company was sent, as they decided to wait. J. got ashore all right swimming. I went down to the boats, which by now were full with dead and dying and was sent back.

"However, at midday I went ashore by myself to join the major and three men followed me. We lay all day under cover of a small tank about five feet high. At dusk J. and I collected all the men who were not hit (about forty out of 100), and we took up a kind of outpost position to cover the landing of the force by night. We landed the rest of the regiment and at dawn had what remained of us and one company of the Dublins and two companies of the Hants.

"We had orders to storm a castle at 8 o'clock. This we did with the bayonet but got hung up at a village which was full of snipers and machine guns. It took us until 2 p. m. before we captured the village, and we lost heavily.

"At 2:30 o'clock we held the far side of the village and were right under a hill with a redoubt on the top. The Turks were within ten to fifteen feet of us in a boat and we fairly let them have it. We were in full possession of the hill by 5 p. m., so took up an outpost position half a mile beyond it for the night. During the night 2,000 French troops arrived and the next morning relieved us.

Sent Ahead Only to Fall Back.

"The next morning we were sent on three miles to the trenches occupied during the previous evening, but on getting there we heard that there was no ammunition in the firing line, so we pushed on and reinforced them.

"At 4 p. m. the French troops on our right began to fall back, so that at 5 p. m. a general retirement commenced. It was hell.

"The next morning we advanced 1,000 yards and the whole division dug in a long line of trenches from the sea to sea with orders to hang on at all costs till reinforcements arrived.

"The next few days were damnable. The Turks knew we were waiting for reinforcements and attacked every night. We got no sleep by night and were heavily shelled by day. We killed thousands of Turks one night where they made an attack with 38,000 men.

Lively Bayonet Fight.

"On the night of May 1 I woke up and found the Turks right on top of us. We had a lively twenty minutes, with plenty of bayonet fighting. A great many of my company were bayoneted that night, and on the following morning I was the only officer left and thirty-two men of 240 which had left home. We fought from 9:45 until dawn the next morning, never stopping for a moment.

"The Turks shout 'Allah!' when they charge, and it is most blood curdling. They are very brave and come very hard with the bayonet. Many of them were stuck through but still came on and died on our side of the trenches. At dawn we saw them retiring in hundreds and simply mowed them down.

Ordered to Withdraw.

"The general realized that the position was an impossible one, so that evening the whole Twenty-ninth division were ordered back to the base for a rest after fifteen days' continuous fighting.

"We had a ration issued, the first for three days, and were told to eat and sleep. We are now four officers and 372 men out of thirty-one officers and 1,000 men—all killed or wounded."

TEUTONS SEEK TO BREAK UP SLAV ARMIES

Triple Attack Begun in Hope of Ending Russian Resistance.

PETROGRAD AT STAKE.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Germanic allies are continuing their efforts to smash completely the Russian army. While the Germans in the Baltic provinces under Field Marshal von Hindenburg have again become aggressive and are attempting to drive the Russians back to Dvina, the Austro-Hungarians with the assistance of the Germans have taken the offensive in southeastern Galicia and have succeeded in breaking through the Russian positions on the Zlota Lipa river, north and south of Brzezany.

Along the rest of the front the Germans claim to be gaining more ground.

Seek to Divide Slav Armies.

The Austro-German armies are attempting the greatest stroke of the war. By concentrating heavy forces against the weakest spots in the Russian lines the Teutons are seeking to split the Russian field forces into three armies before the arrival of winter.

Great masses of men and metal are being hurled against the retreating Slavs in the region of Vilna. Field Marshal von Hindenburg hopes to cut off the Brest Litovsk armies. In the southeast the Austrians are attempting a rush northward through Kovel. Their object is to throw another wedge between the Brest Litovsk armies and the Russians under Gen. Ivanoff, still holding a section of Galicia.

Aim Blow at Petrograd.

The heavier blow is being struck by von Hindenburg in the north. Dispatches today predicted von Hindenburg will be heavily reinforced if he has not been already. The belief in military quarters here is that von Hindenburg plans to gain a favorable position for a stroke against Petrograd.

The Russians, although hard pressed at many points, continue their orderly retreat. Their rear guards are being harassed by Field Marshal von Mackenson's armies.

The campaign now is converging toward Petrograd. Grand Duke Nicholas is directing the retreat from Brest Litovsk toward the Russian capital along an oblique line, with Minsk as the immediate objective. Here a union is expected to be made with the Russians based on Vilna.

Concentration toward the Vilna-Minsk line is being made by the Germans as well as the Russians, and the first struggle for the possession of Petrograd probably will take place here, 400 miles from the Russian capital. The week's developments suggest that the Russians are counting on holding the Vilna-Minsk line.

German Report of Campaign.

BERLIN, via London, Aug. 28.—The whole Russian line is again in retreat in the direction of Petrograd, after feeble attempts to check the Austro-German advance.

The Brest Litovsk armies are wheeling to the northeast, falling back so rapidly that the German infantry at certain points has been unable to keep in contact with the enemy. German cavalry is harassing the enemy's rear guards. Press dispatches received here today said the Russians have abandoned a large number of guns. The official statement reports the capture of 2,000 Russians.

Teutons Pierce Russian Lines.

In Galicia the new offensive inaugurated yesterday by the Austro-Germans is forcing the enemy back on the Brody-Tarnopol line, from which it seems probable they will be driven across their own frontier. The Zlota Lipa river, with its steep banks, was the last formidable barrier to the German advance. This afternoon's statement from the war office said this line had been pierced and the Russians were falling back through Brzezany. The Austrian official statement says 6,000 Russians were taken prisoners.

Russian Analysis of Fighting.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 28.—The Russian war office tonight admitted that the Austro-Germans, by heavy attacks against the Russian lines in Galicia, have forced a crossing of the Zlota Lipa river, the last line of Russian defense on enemy territory.

The war office also admitted that the Russian retreat continues through the whole region of the middle Niemen and on the Bobr and Pripet river fronts, but reported that Von Hindenburg's offensive movement toward Vilna was checked by the Russians in engagements on Thursday and Friday.

REDFIELD MAY QUIT CABINET

Secretary of Commerce Like- to Retire at Any Time, Capital Hears.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—There is a growing belief in Washington that Secretary of Commerce Redfield soon will end his career as a member of the president's cabinet.

For some weeks there have been intimations here that President Wilson has been dissatisfied with Mr. Redfield. This dissatisfaction, it is said, was tremendously increased by his manner at the inquiry into the Eastland disaster at Chicago. The secretary's collision with Federal Judge Landis was a distinct shock to the president.

Redfield Not in Capital.

It was recalled today that Mr. Redfield some time ago submitted a report on the Eastland disaster to President Wilson. At the time the White House had nothing to say concerning the report. It was made public at the department of commerce under a release which indicated that it came not from the department but from the White House. Since that time Mr. Redfield has not been in Washington and inquiries as to when he will return have been met with evasive answers.

Beyond writing a letter to Mayor Thompson, assuring the mayor that he will see that there is a proper investigation into the Eastland disaster from the federal government's point of view, President Wilson has had no comment to make upon Secretary Redfield's investigation.

Place Due to Speech.

Secretary Redfield owes his place in the cabinet to a couple of tariff speeches which he delivered in the Sixty-second congress while serving as a member from Brooklyn. President Wilson was greatly impressed by these speeches and during the 1912 campaign frequently referred to them or appropriated them in his own talks.

Since he has entered the cabinet, however, the president has felt that Secretary Redfield has not created a favorable impression in his public speechmaking.

The administration was greatly disappointed when the talks of its business man in the cabinet apparently failed to impress business men in the country.

BOY SCOUT SETS MAN'S BROKEN LEG IN QUICK TIME.

Puts His Training Into Practice Before Arrival of Ambulance Physician and Is Praised.

Boy scout training, put in practice by a 14 year old member of that organization yesterday, demonstrated the efficiency of such training and brought first aid to a man with a broken leg long before a surgeon could be called.

Leonard Fish, 5016 Vincennes avenue, was the scout, and Orent Utley, 4617 Evans avenue, colored, was the subject. Utley was thrown when exercising a horse, and his right leg was broken.

Fish hastened to his aid. He procured some strips of canvas and some thin pieces of board and set Utley's broken leg and bandaged it.

When Dr. Frank Rastall, ambulance surgeon, arrived, he approved the boy's work.

"There was no need for any further first aid attention," he said, "for the boy had done the job thoroughly."

OFFICIAL REPORT SHEDS NO LIGHT

Commerce Department's Eastland Figures Explain Little.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Reasons for increasing and lowering the licensed carrying capacity of the lake steamer Eastland from time to time, as shown by the official reports of the United States steamboat inspectors, were made public today by the department of commerce.

The licensed capacity was changed several times, ranging from 3,800 in 1903 to 2,000 in 1912. At the time of the accident it was placed at 2,500, having been increased from 2,183 in July of this year.

The inspectors' reports show that the Eastland was licensed to carry passengers as follows:

Year.	No	Year.	No.	Year	No.
1903	2,800	1907	2,400	1911	2,200
1904	3,300	1908	2,030	1912	2,000
1904	2,800	1908	2,300	1914	2,045
1905	2,907	1909	2,100	1915	2,183
1906	3,000	1910	2,300	1915	2,500

In 1905 the carrying capacity was raised to 2,907. The reason given in the report of today is as follows:

"The increased number of passengers allowed in 1905 was due to the fact that forty-nine staterooms had been removed from the promenade deck, thereby increasing the deck space sufficiently to accommodate the additional number of passengers with safety and comfort."

In 1906 another increase was made, the limit being placed at 3,000. "It was the judgment of the local inspectors at Chicago that the vessel could carry this number with prudence and safety, the vessel having been examined prior to or at that time."

Once Safe, Always Safe?

"On July 2, 1915," so the report says, "four additional life rafts of twenty-five persons capacity each were added to the equipment of this steamer. The inspectors deemed that a total of 2,500 could be carried with safety, especially in view of the positive knowledge that this steamer in 1906 had carried 3,000 passengers with safety, being equipped at that time with eighty-eight staterooms, which staterooms were all removed at the time they inspected the vessel on July 10, 1914."

Memorial to Colonial Women.

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 28.—The National Society of Colonial Daughters of America, at a meeting here, voted a memorial to be erected in honor of the women of the colonial period from 1607 to 1776. The location for the monument will be decided by a vote of the majority of members at a later date.

UNREST CAUSED BY LOW WAGES

Walsh Report, Citing National Peril, Blames Men Not Employers.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 28.—"We find the basic cause of industrial dissatisfaction to be low wages. Or, stated in another way, the fact that the workers of the nation, through compulsory and oppressive methods, legal and illegal, are denied the full product of their toil."

This sums up the report made today by Chairman Frank Walsh of the now extinct federal industrial relations commission. It comprises the personal findings of Mr. Walsh and is signed by Commissioners Lennan, O'Connell, and Garretson.

The report denounces big employers of great wealth who refuse to permit unionization of their employés and "who pay small wages to breadwinners of families, while they enjoy plenty, although they never even visit their shops."

No Blame on Employers.

"The responsibility cannot be held to rest upon the employers," says the commission's finding, however, "since in the maintenance of the evils of low wages, long hours, and bad factory conditions they have merely followed the natural bent of men involved in the struggle of competitive industry."

Responsibility for the condition under which workingmen live is placed primarily upon the workers themselves, who, "blind to their collective strength and oftentimes deaf to the cries of their followers, have suffered exploitation and the invasion of their most sacred rights without resistance."

The findings make the rather startling declaration that "unrest among the workers in industry has grown to proportions that already menace the social good will and peace of the nation."

State Militia Censured.

It condemns the employment of the state militia in strike situations, declaring that this method "has bred a bitter hostility to the militia system among numbers of labor organizations, and states have been unable to enlist wage earners for this second line of the nation's defense." The report declares employers "from coast to coast have created and maintained small private armies of armed men to suppress striking employés by deporting, imprisoning, assaulting, and killing their leaders."

The employer spy system is declared to be one of the greatest fomenters of suspicion and distrust among workers for their employers. Courts, legislatures, and governors, the report charges, have been rightfully accused of serving the employers to defeat justice and pervert the institutions of the country.

Age Long Struggle for Freedom.

"Citizens numbering millions," says the report, "smart under a sense of injustice and oppression. We find the unrest described to be but the latest manifestation of the age-long struggle of the race for freedom of opportunity for every individual to live his life to its highest ends.

"And while vast inherited fortunes, representing zero in social service to the credit of their possessors, automatically treble in volume, two-thirds of those who toil from eight to twelve tours a day receive less than enough to support themselves and their families in decency and comfort. From cradle to the grave they live in shadow of the fear that their only resource—their opportunity to toil—shall be taken away from them through sickness, caprice of a foreman, or the fortunes of industry."

Praise is given preachers, professors, journalists and others, many of them leaders of modern thought, who have, voluntarily and without prospect of reward, aided the cause of the workingman.

Defends Colorado University.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Gov. Carlson today issued a statement in answer to the Walsh commission's report that the financial power of Rockefeller, Carnegie, and others is being used to influence the teachings of various universities, among them the University of Colorado.

"I note with amazement," says the governor, "that the slandering Walsh and his puppets have not spared from calumny and false imputation the good name of Colorado's State university. Walsh's insatiable gluttony for cheap publicity has caused him to utter a baseless and wicked charge against an institution endeared to the entire state, and in total disregard for truth, easily ascertainable. Had he made an honest investigation he would have found that the charge had foundation only in the mind of a disgruntled professor who failed of appointment."

EXPRESS TRAIN HITS AUTO; THREE KILLED, TWO INJURED.

Women and Boy Meet Death Near Hamilton, Ontario, in Wreck of Touring Car.

Hamilton, Ont., Aug. 28.—Three persons were instantly killed and two seriously injured when a Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo express train crashed into an automobile near Hamilton today. The dead are Mrs. K. Heeton of St. Catharines, Mrs. Beach of Fort Rowan, and Mrs. Beach's son.

INCREASE PANAMA DEFENSE.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—The coast artillery force on duty at the Panama canal will be increased to full strength of twenty-eight companies, or about 2,000 men, it was learned today, the former policy of maintaining the big gun crews at about half strength in peace time having been abandoned. Fortifications of the canal zone are rapidly nearing completion.

URGES COLLEGES FOR SOLDIERS

Army Student Would Offer Higher Education to Attract Recruits.

BY OTTO M'FEELY.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—"How can military service be made more attractive to the enlisted man?"

This question was put to Capt. Collins, in command of the First battalion of student soldiers, at one of his lectures.

"That is a question we are considering," he replied.

I have questioned many enlisted men and have learned that they have duties far less than half the time, except during maneuvers. It is a fact that enlised men in the regular army at present are taught only military duties and are taught nothing designed to make them more efficient in the civil life to which most of them return.

Dawdle Away Spare Time.

During the long winter months in army posts in continental United States, private soldiers dawdle away the hours, according to the scores of soldiers to whom I have put the question. They have drill halls and gymnasiums and lead a more sheltered life than young men in civil pursuits. Army officers naturally think of their men as soldiers, and nothing else.

The post at Plattsburg has many buildings and acres of ground. Educators who have given the subject consideration, see in the young enlisted men, under discipline, and the post equipment, a great opportunity.

Ever since serving in the Spanish war I have thought of the possibility of making every army post a great university, a technical and primary school. In such a post the young men would find opportunity to acquire an education, from the three R's up to technical and professional courses.

Trade Education for Service.

In these schools the enlisted men would trade military service for an education. The most ambitious youths would be attracted by the service and they would be returned to civil life better prepared than when they enlisted.

If we are to have a professional army of 250,000 men, as Gen. Wood desires, something must be done to make the service of a private soldier distinguished. At present recruiting is done in city districts where the unemployed and floating population is found and enlistment follows discouragement and frequently is done in desperation. We must have a different motive and soldiers who are competent for civil life.

Capt. Collins said in one of his lectures that he could make a soldier out of a civilian in a year. Yet men must serve four years at a post, the time after the first adding but little to military efficiency.

Might Have Waiting List.

With the educational features suggested the army might become so attractive that there would be a waiting list and vacancies sought after as are appointments to West Point. Such an army would supply in the course of time a vast number of men competent to command in a volunteer army, and while on reserve they would be useful and distinguished citizens.

These army schools might be made so valuable that enlisted men would pay to serve in the ranks, as they now pay to go to state universities. Expense of such a military establishment could be reduced also by having the soldiers taking the agricultural and other technical and trade courses, produce food, clothing, shelter, and munitions of war for the army. As they would not be producing for the market their labor would not interfere with business.

"BLACK BEAUTY" LEADS BOOK RACE

Passes 'Pilgrim's Progress' in Popularity as a Story Every Boy Should Read.

"Black Beauty, or the Autobiography of a Horse" took the undisputed lead yesterday in the voting of TRIBUNE readers for a title to complete the list of books "every boy should read," compiled by Librarian Henry E. Legler of the Chicago public library.

"Pilgrim's Progress," tied with "Black Beauty" in the first day's voting, dropped to second place. Thomas Bailey Aldrich's "The Story of a Bad Boy" and "Hanna Brinker, or the Silver Skates" both gained enough votes to share third position with Mark Twain's "The Prince and the Pauper." "Midshipman Easy," by Capt. Marryat, sprang into sudden favor in the second day's voting but did not receive enough votes to place it up with the leaders.

The Twenty-four Selected.

Librarian Legler was asked by the New Jersey library commission to name the twenty-five best books for boys. He named twenty-four, as follows.

Mother Goose,
Andersen's Fairy Tales,
"Aladdin," Perrault's Tales,
"Pied Piper of Hamelin,"
"Rip Van Winkle,"
The Bible,
"Don Quixote," Boutet de Monvel's "Joan of Arc,"
"Tom Brown's School Days," Pyle's "Men of Iron,"
"Robinson Crusoe,"
"Treasure Island,"
Franklin's Autobiography,
"Hiawatha,"
"Tom Sawyer,"
"Oliver Twist,"
"Tales from Shakspeare," "Swiss Family Robinson,"
"Ivanhoe."
"Man Without a Country," Mallory's King Arthur,
"Jungle Book,"

What Do YOU Think?

THE TRIBUNE invites its readers to select the book which Mr. Legler omitted. Suggestions will be received until Sept. 3 and should be addressed to "The Twenty-fifth Book Editor, THE TRIBUNE, Chicago."

NO CASH BUT LOTS OF NERVE; TAKES GIRL AUTO RIDING.

Gerald Kiley Says He's Reporter on City Press and Displays Large, Impressive Star, Alas, Too Old.

In Evanston the police are waiting for Gerald Kiley of 5501 Lakewood avenue to show up with $5 and costs to settle a little fine for speeding yesterday.

Kiley was arrested in company with Miss Celia Doherty of 151 North Mayfield avenue, Chicago, and another young couple after he had tried to convince Policeman Staten that it was quite a mistake to arrest him because he was a reporter on the City Press association. Kiley also turned back the lapel of his coat and exhibited a huge reporter's police badge of ancient vintage.

When asked to give bail Kiley produced 35 cents, which caused the suspicion that perhaps, after all, he was a reporter. Being unable to give bail he was fined $5 and given an opportunity to go home and get the money. He evidently was a long way from home.

Entertain Poor Cripple Children.

The Regular Twenty-third Ward Women's Republican club, of which Mrs. Louise Osborne Rowe is president, entertained the destitute crippled children yesterday at 2935 North Clark street. Refreshments were served and souvenirs given to each child.

Accidents Lend Many Thrills to Lake Forest Society Fair

Mock Trial Also Held for Hobart Chatfield-Taylor, President of Grand Turn Out of Good Things to Eat and See.

Three accidents which just escaped being serious added to the general excitement of the Lake Forest country fair and gave just the touch of sensation that was needed to make the affair one of the most interesting and successful ever given by the Lake Forest Horse Show association.

Miss Florence Folds, in taking the hurdle with her favorite hunter, Peggy, was thrown over the hurdle, falling against it, but holding firmly to the reins until one of the groomsmen came to her aid. She was unhurt and rode her horse over the hurdle a number of times afterwards.

George Seaverns, Jr., had a like accident in the hunters' class. But he fell to the ground and rolled several times while his horse was caught by some of those in the ring. Mr. Seaverns, however, sprang to his feet unhurt and made the horse take the jump before he left the ring.

Little Girl in Peril.

But the third accident was one that brought many of the box occupants to their feet. Little Marie Suzette Dewey, daughter of Charles S. Dewey, after driving her pony about the ring started to step out of her runabout and missed the step, falling between the wheels.

The pony started, while every one gasped, but Miss Dewey, who barely reached the top of the wheel herself, had lighted on her feet, and she walked along between the wheels for a few steps until Prentiss Coonley, who was watching for such an event, rescued her and stopped the pony.

Trial of President.

Perhaps the greatest fun of the day came when Hobart Chatfield-Taylor, president of the association, was arrested for mock trial by William E. Clow Jr. and taken into the Midway zone, while all the barkers, including Billy Gamble as Aunt Jemima, called in the crowd.

There were law books and a legal setting for the affair, with J. S. Miller for judge. Colin Fyffe, Mason Mills, Kay Wood, and Kellogg Fairbank were the lawyers.

Mr. Taylor was charged with the crime of keeping on his hat and was searched for cigars.

"Are they loaded?" thundered Judge Miller while Kellogg Fairbank gave an address of some length to the jury concerning "this contemptible court" and other Malaprop appellations, which greatly delighted the assembled crowd.

Decorated Vehicles Liked.

Every one liked the decorated vehicle class, which was in charge of Mrs. Ezra J. Warner Jr., Mrs. A. A. Sprague II., and Mrs. George McLaughlin, and in which the children of Lake Forest's first families took part.

"I didn't think I would get it," said little Josephine Munroe to her father, Charles A. Munroe, as she drove her little pony out with a bright blue ribbon on his bridel, looking for all the world like a pale green fairy riding on soap bubbles.

The cart was a most novel picture, for Mrs. Munroe had garbed her little daughter in pale green with green and gold butterfly wings. The cart was decorated in green and white and pink, asters being used with dahlias and ferns. From the little girl's shoulders floated a cluster of a dozen or more white balloons, which had been painted with lavender and green and which swayed with every movement of the cart or the wind.

Marion Warner, who drove with her sister, Jane, came second, with their cart gayly trimmed in golden zinnias and goldenrod. And Lydia Hibbard won third with her cart trimmed with pink asters and asparagus fern.

All the children who entered received silver cups and were presented with their trophies by the women judges of the class. The little people were Dexter Cummings, Clarissa Donnelly, Narcissa Swift, Glee Louise Viles, Ruth and Helen Voltz, and Frances Heyworth.

Fish Brings $5.

Mrs. Chatfield-Taylor breezed into the tent of Allied Domestic Arts and demanded attention of the dusky Lillian who, in spotless white cap and apron, "ran" sales, exhibits, exhibitors, and judges.

"Put a 'sold' ticket on my fish timbale right away. Sold to Mr. Gerstenberg for $5. What do you think of that?"

Then Mrs. Chatfield-Taylor paid $3 for an exuberant duck-in-aspic.

Mrs. Frank Letts had a marvelously constructed Russian salad on view that had a blue ribbon laid across it, and deserved it, if points count for anything. For its container, half a watermelon rind split the long long way, was pointed all the way around, with a huge stuffed olive impaled on each point, with each olive topped by a huger maraschino cherry. Green grapes and red plums were also present, and within reposed, under a golden pall of mayonaise, the Russian salad.

"Erika Is Some Cook."

"Dear me, dear me," sighed one roseclad spectator of another wondrous mound of asparagus points, pimentos, green peppers, and mayonnaise, "that Erika is some cook. Her name is on everything about the place. Mrs. A. Watson Armour's cook, is she? Some people live high, don't they?"

"Lillian," asked another prospective purchaser of the guardian of the goody tent, "what are these whopping big cakes selling for—O, they are? Well, save me two, anyway." And a ten dollar bill finished that bit of business.

By the middle of the afternoon almost everything in the domestic arts line had gone, from hand made chocolate creams to sandwiches, from brandied peaches to cookies. Everybody had seen the remarkably embroidered baby dress, the chair upholstered in tapestry cross stitch, and Mrs. Chatfield-Taylor's own chef d'œuvre in needlework—an embroidered linen tablecloth as big as a small front lawn.

Iron Cross for You.

The refreshment tent staff deserved collectively and individually, "for bravery under fire," blue ribbons and the iron cross. The tent was in range of the sun's hottest rays all afternoon, but Mrs. W. P. Martin, Mrs. Orville Babcock, Mrs. A. Watson Armour, and Mrs. Charles Dewey never flinched. When the ham sandwiches ran out they disregarded the pleas of the advancing enemy and fired angel food, currant jelly sandwiches, and all sorts of cookies into its protesting midst, and took tribute just the same. Late in the afternoon they smiled triumphantly on those who ordered white grape juice:

"We're out of white—the red is just as good."

Directly within reaching distance of the advancing stream of spectators stood all afternoon a reasonably small yellow car, and beside it a long table at which sat the Honoré Palmers, the Ray Athertons, and the Francis Jewett Johnsons, selling sealed tickets from 1 cent to $6. Mrs. J. Ogden Armour presented this little car on which the chances were sold.

Mrs. Cudahy's Flower Girls.

Mrs. Edward I. Cudahy managed a bevy of program and flower girls who could be discerned as far as the eye could reach by their rose flowered skirts, rose coatees, and heaped baskets. They included Mrs. A. Rosecrans Baldwin, Mrs. Bruce Borland, Mrs. Dekoven Bowen, Mrs. Charles Counselman, Mrs. Paul Gardner, Mrs. Donald Ryerson, Mrs. Frank Wilhelm, Miss Emily Russell, Miss Margaret Thompson, and Miss Grace Tuttle.

Billy Gamble wandered about all afternoon in the comfortable makeup of an old "mammy" who held no briefs against pipes for women. His skirts trailed here and there, and now and then wavered from their visible moorings, but his corncob pipe, except for refilling, was anchored firmly against his left cheek. His mekaphone was left over from the days of giants in the land, and he "barked" early and late and indiscriminately for all the sideshows in the "zone."

J. Allen Haines Busy.

J. Allen Haines, as manager of the executive committee, was everywhere at once, giving directions to the policemen, the barkers, the orchestra men, the ring men, and the fortune teller, who was Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, wondrously gowned in rose and purple and green chiffon veils and many chains of beads and jewels.

Mrs. Lewis told fortunes with care, but necessarily with haste, for long before noon she had stopped taking engagements until after 5 o'clock, and her tent was one of the most attractive centers of the "zone."

A little after 4 o'clock, to hectic music from the busy brass band, a number of two legged horses cantered on to the center green, and with the appearance of banderillos, picadors, and an animal constructed of a bull's skin and four unmatched human legs, the bull fight was on. The band played everything it knew from the "Spanish Fandango" to any dead march, and the final event of the afternoon closed in a delirious march of toreadors' horses, whose bodies were wrested from Lake Forest nurseries, and a Spanish bull.

Congratulate Miss Cudahy.

Miss Helen Cudahy and Austin Niblack, whose engagement was an announcement of the week, were there holding a court of their own, for everybody was about them tendering congratulations.

Miss Cudahy, who is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. James Ward Thorne over the week end, wore a charming hat with her white suit and green silk sweater. It was a broad brimmed affair of white felt, edged with green and trimmed with a single cluster of pale green grapes.

Mrs. A. Watson Armour's hat bore a trimming of fruit, too, for about the crown was a wreath of Chinese kumquats and their shining green leaves.

Mrs. Frank Hibbard, who was with Miss Lolita Armour and Mrs. Laurance Armour in their box, wore an unusual hat of white felt with a double rim, topped by a cluster of small pink roses, that were fastened in the center of the crown.

White Bordered Parasol.

Mrs. James Ward Thorne's parasol was one of the most beautiful features of the horse show ring. It was a Japanese design, with a white border about a deep blue center, dotted here and there with pink chrysanthemums.

Miss Lolita Armour drove her own exhibit, wearing a white serge coat suit with a wide brimmed hat of rose pink silk.

Mrs. Philip D. Armour II. was there in a white summer suit, over which she wore a green coat, and her hat was green straw.

Among the interesting visitors was Mrs. Robert S. Hunter, who was formerly Gwendolyn Mitchell and who is visiting her mother, Mrs. John J. Mitchell, at Lake Geneva.

U. S. OFFICIAL AROUSED OVER LAKE FOREST FAIR.

Live Stock Men Fighting Foot and Mouth Disease Would Close It if Possible.

Federal officials were aroused yesterday over the opening of the Lake Forest country fair at Onwentsia in the face of the close foot and mouth disease quarantine in Lake county. They asserted they would order the fair closed immediately if they had the power to act.

According to Dr. U. G. Houck of Washington, supervising inspector in charge of the work of stamping out the epidemic, the opening was in flagrant disregard of the advice of government authorities and a defiance of state officials.

"We have not authority to close the fair or we'd do it at once," said Dr. Houck. "We understand the state has no authority in the matter, but I have communicated with State Veterinarian O. E. Dyson and he has promised to take immediate steps to close the exhibition.

"Any attraction that draws that neighborhood together at this time is dangerous to the stock industry. Dr. Dyson saw the directors on Thursday and when he left Chicago yesterday he told me he had assurances the fair would not be held.

BLOW AT NATIONAL GUARD.

Indiana Judge Grants Writ of Habeas Corpus to Soldier Sentenced by Court Martial.

Warsaw, Ind., Aug. 28.—National guard discipline was given a stiff blow when Acting Judge A. G. Wood granted a writ of habeas corpus to George Mowery last night. Mowery did not attend the encampment at Fort Harrison, pleading sickness. A court martial sent him to jail for eight days. Because the guards' discipline would be disorganized if this ruling held, the state has taken an appeal to the Supreme court and it was stated today the test case will be prosecuted vigorously.

BANKERS TO TOUR WEST.

New York, Aug. 28.—[Special.]—More than 300 eastern members of the American Bankers' association left New York in three special trains today for the bankers' convention to be held in Seattle Sept. 6 to 10. Arrangements have been made for a tour through Glacier National park, the Canadian Rockies, the Grand cañon, and Salt Lake City.

KANSANS CLANNISH FOR DAY.

Members of the Kansas society, 800 strong, with their Chicago friends will hold their annual picnic this year on the grounds of Judge and Mrs. John S. Goodwin at Naperville, Ill. An invitation is open to all Kansans to attend. The committee on entertainment has been at work behind closed doors.

AEROPLANE RAID ON PARIS FOILED; AIR DUEL FOUGHT

French Defenders Bring Down One Machine; Kill Crew of 2; Prepare for New Attack.

PARIS, Aug. 28.—The French flying squadron guarding the city of Paris today frustrated an attempt by a flotilla of four German military planes to raid the city and in a skirmish which ensued in midair shot down one of the machines.

The pilot and observer of the wrecked machine were killed and their charred bodies were found in the wreckage of the machine, which had caught fire.

The French defense squadron sighted the Germans as they approached the northern limits of the city, flying at a great height, and rose to meet them.

One Machine Shot Down.

Sighting the defenders, the invaders turned back toward the German lines, one branching off at Montmorency and dropping several bombs which did no damage. One of the machines lagged behind the others and was overtaken by the pursuing Frenchmen. The French aviators opened fire on the laggard machine with rifles and rapid firers.

The machine soon was ablaze and dropped, comet fashion, into the forest of Halatte.

The other two machines got safely back over the German lines.

French aviators were again active last night, bombarding the railway station at Chatel, in the Argonne.

Paris Takes Precautions.

Unusual precautions were taken tonight to guard Paris against a second invasion by German air forces.

This morning towards 10 o'clock, according to an official report, three German aeroplanes started from the region of Soissons and three from the region of Compiegne, heading for Paris. They were unable to reach their goal and only dropped a few bombs on Nogent-su-Marne, Montmorency, Montfermeil, Ribecourt, and Compiegne. The hostile aeroplanes, promptly detected, were shelled at various points and chased by French airmen.

The commander of one of the French aerial squadrons chased one of the aeroplanes at a height of nearly 11,000 feet and brought it down to the north of Senlis. The pilot and his machine were found incinerated.

AUSTRIAN AVIATOR HURT.

Allentown, Pa., Aug. 28.—Lieut. Baron von Figyelmessy, the noted Hungarian aviator, was badly injured here today while demonstrating the possibilities of the aeroplane in war times. He had ascended about 700 feet and was in the act of dropping bombs on an improvised fort when his engine stopped.

Failing to start his engine, he tried to volplane to the earth, and in an effort to avoid striking a big crowd of spectators he struck an electric light pole when within thirty feet of the ground.

GERMANY CANNOT DELIVER CHRISTMAS GOODS TO U. S.

Orders Totaling $50,000,000 Held Up by British Blockade—Loss Will Be Heavy.

BERLIN, via London, Aug. 28.—American business men in Germany are taking the gloomiest view of the fate of great quantities of goods ordered in Germany for the American Christmas trade. They say that the loss of these goods will amount to millions.

Orders totalling about $50,000,000 for such wares as toys, Bohemian glassware bronzes, Christmas cards, and optical specialties had been placed, mostly last autumn, for summer delivery, it is stated this being the usual practice in order to give American wholesale dealers an opportunity to place the goods.

The articles are all of a seasonal value and become virtually valueless unless delivered immediately. However, the British order in council, although not effective when the orders for the goods were placed, prevents such a delivery.

OPPOSES WASTE IN DRESSES.

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, Aug. 28.—The German government is now censoring women's dress. A semi-official warning has been issued, directed mainly against wide skirts, because of the waste of material.

REVIEW OF WAR FOR THE LAST WEEK.

Following is a general survey of the developments on the various battle fronts in the eastern war:

ON THE EASTERN FRONT.

The past week witnessed the successful completion of the second stage of the stupendous Austro-German drive through Russian Poland. Only Grodno, with its flanking armies, along the Niemen, remains of the magnificent double line of strongholds to oppose the Teuton armies. It is only a question of a few days, perhaps hours, before the last Slav fortress on the eastrn Poland frontier is occupied by the Germans. Its evacuation is reported to have begun already.

All reports at the close of the week indicated that the Austro-German armies will not be content to rest within the fortress ring they have taken, but are vigorously continuing the pursuit of the retreating armies under Grand Duke Nicholas.

The present battle line in Russia proper has been straightened out so that it is more nearly north and south than at any time during the war. From a point about twenty miles west of Riga on the gulf of the same name it swings in a wide arc to the southeast, following the direction of the Dwina river to the district west of Dwinsk and Novo Alexandrovsk, whence it bends slightly to the southwest, following the courses of the Swenta and Niemen rivers to Grodno. Further south, to the east of Bialystok and Brest Litovsk, the Russians are retreating on the Bialowies forest and the Pinsk or Pripet river marshes. On the southern end of the line in Russia proper, east and southeast of Kovel, the strongholds of Lusk, Rovno, and Dubno bar the Germans' advance.

That the Russians have prepared a new line of defense is certain, as their retreat has been handled in a masterly manner under the most terrific pressure. The reports of destruction and panic in connection with the capture of some of the fortresses are only the expected rush by the rear guard to get away by direct flight after their work of delaying the pursuing enemy has been accomplished.

Where will the Teutons strike next has been the chief subject of conjecture by the leaders of the allies during the week. Moscow, Petrograd, and the Dardanelles are the chief guesses as the next objectives of the Teuton armies in the east. Grand Duke Nicholas is reported to have concentrated large forces along the Dwina to stop any advance on the Russian capital. The naval forces of the czar are depended upon to protect the right flank of these armies resting on the gulf of Riga coast. If this defense holds it would be extremely hazardous for the Austro-Germans to advance very far into central Russia towards Moscow with this large force on their left flank being swung farther to their rear as they advance to the south of it. The lateness of the season and the approach of winter conditions only a few months off also are considerations that confront the German general staff.

In the center of the line, especially to the south, the forest of Bialowies and the Pinsk marshes will be stupendous barriers for the Germans to fight their way through. The Russians are spreading desolation in the wake of their retreating armies, and the invaders will find their difficulties from now on increase as they penetrate farther into the enemy's country.

As to the losses of the Russians in their recent retreats there are no definite figures. German claims put the number of prisoners captured since the fall of Warsaw in the neighborhood of 200,000. The guns taken are estimated at 2,000. A large percentage of this armament is undoubtedly of the heavier caliber employed in the defenses of the fallen fortresses. The lighter field artillery the Russians have conserved, as the retreat of their main armies has not been so hurried as to indicate the enforced abandonment of this class of guns. In the rear guard actions the czar's forces have been forced to sacrifice large numbers of machine guns, of which they had only too few compared to the vast equipment of the Austro-Germans.

In spite of their continued retreat, there is an apparent air of optimism or stoicism pervading the reports from Petrograd. The fact that the main armies of the Grand Duke Nicholas have been extricated from the Teuton trap apparently compensates the Slavs for the loss of Poland and its great chain of modern defenses.

Further, it is announced from Petrograd that the raising and equipment of a new force of more than 2,000,000 men goes on steadily back of the fighting lines.

If there was any panic in the camps of the allies in the west over the developments on the Russian front it was not apparent. France sent messages of confidence to the Grand Duke Nicholas. Apparently the future plans of the Teuton allies is of more concern to Paris and London than the retreating Russian lines.

There have been persistent rumors that the Austro-German forces would swing to the southeast through Galicia into the Balkan peninsula in an effort to pound their way to Constantinople. England was reported to be sending heavy reinforcements to the Gallipoli peninsula, and during the week 200,000 Italian troops left Adriatic ports supposedly for the same destination.

As far as Russia is concerned, the Germans are now in possession of a vast territory, and as much of the Slavic empire as they could expect to permanently occupy in the event of dictating the terms of peace. They have all of Poland and the greater share of the Baltic provinces of Kovno and Courland, in which German influences have been dominant for generations. But past experiments of occupying conquered territory is against permanent occupation, especially when the lost provinces were taken from still first class powers. Constantinople is not in this class, however, and it is beginning to loom more and more as the great glittering prize of the present world war.

ON THE DARDANELLES.

Reports from the Gallipoli peninsula during the last week were meager. There was no official confirmation of the report of the new British expeditionary force landed further up the northern shore of the peninsula cutting the main line of communications of the Turkish force along the narrows and at Krithia and Achi Baba. There are 100,000 Turks opposing the French and British along this front. The hilly formations of the country have been made the most of by the defenders and every foot of the advance is costing dearly. Perhaps the best barometer of what is really transpiring along the Dardanelles is the developments in the diplomatic game as played at Bucharest, Athens, Nish, and Sofia. As long as the Turks are able to hold their own on Gallipoli peninsula there is every prospect that the political status quo will be maintained in the Balkans. Only the prospect of early victory by the allies will force the hands of Roumania, Greece, Serbia, and Bulgaria. It will depend then for the most part what Austria and Germany will attempt to relieve their ally guarding the channel to the Russian Black sea ports. Victory by the allies, resulting in the forcing of the Dardanelles and an advance on Constantinople by land and sea would produce an even more important effect on the European political and military situation than the present victorious sweep of the Austro-German armies through Poland into the interior of Russia.

Italy's entry into the campaign against the Turks is expected to result in important developments. The force of 200,000 reported to have sailed from Italy to Ægean waters should soon be heard from. The declaration of a new blockade zone along the Turkish Mediterranean coast as far south as Egypt would indicate that this new force will be landed on the south shore of the Dardanelles. The announcement of the blockade might also be a blind to cover a surprise landing further north, as was done recently by the British at Suvla bay.

During the week there were combined attacks by the allies' army and navy. Gains are claimed on the Suvla bay front by the British and on the southern front by the French. Battleships again entered the straits and bombarded the forts on the narrows. A British submarine sank a Turkish transport. Russian aviators are reported to have dropped bombs on Constantinople, while warships shelled the Bosporus forts.

ON THE WESTERN FRONT.

The British fleet attacked the German positions along the coast of Belgium early in the week in an attempt to wreck the submarine base at Zeebrugge. Berlin claimed that no material damage was done.

Mine conflicts, artillery exchanges, and aeroplane raids marked the fighting on the western front. Two French air squadrons bombarded the Saar valley in an effort to wipe out the German asphyxiating gas factory at Dernach. Paris reported ten shells had damaged the plant. Muelheim in the Rhine valley was also bombarded. These raids came in reprisal for aero attacks on Nancy and Clermont. The Champagne district, the heights of the Meuse, the Vosges, the Argonne near Verdun, and in Artois north of Arras were all scenes of activity. No engagements of importance developed.

ON THE AUSTRO-ITALIAN FRONT.

Italy's advance into Austria made no appreciable progress during the fighting of last week. The official reports from both Rome and Vienna indicated that the Teuton defense is being vigorously maintained, strongholds are withstanding the constant hammering of the Italian artillery.

Three months have now elapsed since war was declared by Rome and the Italian army has made little or no appreciable advance since its first rush across the Isonzo and Trentino frontiers. Along the Isonzo river Goritz and Tolmino still bar the way toward further invasion.

The entry of Italy into the campaign against Turkey is expected to bring Germany's forces against its former ally in the Drei Bund. The victories in Russia should bring about conditions where both Austrian and German troops can be spared for service on other fronts. There were reports that a large concentration of both Austrian and German forces was taking place at Innsbruck in the upper Tyrol. This is the chief military base of the Austrians operating in the Trentino and Carnic fronts, and would indicate that Vienna had decided to press the fighting against Italy.

VON BESELER RULES POLAND

German General Reported Placed in Charge of All Conquered Russian Territory.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 28.—Word was received here today from Berlin that Gen. von Beseler, conqueror of Antwerp and Novo Georgievsk, had been appointed general of the entire occupied Russian territory. This announcement is credited to the Posen Tageblatt, which also says the civil administration of Russian Poland, heretofore at Kalisz, has been removed to Warsaw.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 28.—William Howard Taft pleaded today the cause of the American Red Cross at exercises celebrating "Red Cross day" at the Panama-Pacific exposition. He urged a membership of millions, more funds, and neutrality in giving.

GERMAN PAPERS URGE AN AIR RAID AGAINST LONDON

Declare Destruction of Capital of England Will Alone Satisfy Teutons.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Aug. 28.—A decided campaign in favor of more air raids on England is being carried on in the latest copies of the German newspapers just arrived. The leading Berlin journals urge the government to turn all attention possible to attacks on the British people in their homes and openly declare that nothing less than the destruction of London will satisfy Germany.

The leaders of this propaganda call on the government to send the entire fleet of air planes to the heart of England to create havoc and ruin that cannot soon be forgotten. Perhaps the most fiery and furious demand upon the government in this respect is printed in the Taglische Rundschau.

London Called Good Target.

"Justice, every element of human justice," says this paper, "demands the destruction of London. There is in the whole world no better target for aerial attack than the city of London, that gigantic, complex assemblage of lofty ancient warehouses with their enormous stores of all descriptions and their inviting situation in narrow and tortuous streets. If only such raids can be repeated again and again the result will be assured."

This paper makes the somewhat astounding assertion that France and Russia will share Germany's joy when London is destroyed and England is pierced to the heart. The suffering entailed in such destruction, the paper continues, would not compare for a moment to the misery in invaded East Prussia, Belgium, the northern departments of France, and the Polish provinces.

Claim London Partly Destroyed.

The Nueste Nachrichten encourages its readers by asserting that London already has been partly destroyed by the Zeppelin raiders and declaring that the remainder is soon to go.

"Our brave air heroes," says this paper, "are not inspired by blind hatred or raging anger, but by a solemn and religious awe at being the chosen instruments of a divine wrath. When they see London breaking up in smoke and fire they will live through a thousand lives of immeasurable joy which all at home must envy."

FEAR MINERS OF BRITAIN MAY JOIN WELSH BROTHERS.

Officials View Coal Situation, as It Affects Manufacture of Ammunition, with Alarm.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—The strike situation in Welsh coal mines became grave this afternoon and gave evidences of spreading to the English mines.

First intimations that the English miners may join their Welsh brothers in a general walkout that would tie up England's munitions plants came when the Northumberland miners' council at a meeting this afternoon voted unanimously to seek an early meeting with the owners.

Speakers addressed the men, claiming that substantial advances in wages are due the men from the recent arbitration award. Officials view the situation with apprehension.

A deputation of coal miners' representatives conferred with President Runciman and Lloyd-George. The conference was inconclusive, and was adjourned until Monday.

Runciman and Lloyd-George will also confer with representatives of the coal operators on Monday.

BRITISH WARSHIPS AGAIN BOMBARD BELGIAN COAST.

Ostend, Bruges, and Middelkerke Attacked, but Little Damage Other than Starting a Few Fires.

BERLIN, via wireless to London, Aug. 28.—British warships have again raided the Belgian coast, bombarding Ostend, Bruges, and Middelkerke.

The war office reported this afternoon that no important damage was done.

The British admiralty report on the bombardment said several fires were started, but no important damage done.

Germany Slaps at Liquor.

BERLIN, Aug. 28.—The sale of whisky to German soldiers has been entirely prohibited and the president of police in Berlin soon will issue an order prohibiting the sale of whisky after 7 o'clock in the evening, on holidays, and on Saturday and Sunday.

KAISER AGAINST VON TIRPITZ IDEA OF SUBSEA WAR

Joins Hollweg in Effort to Retain Good Will of U. S. and End All Friction.

BY CARL W. ACKERMAN.
[UNITED PRESS STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]
[Copyright: 1915: By United Press.]
[Copyrighted in Great Britain.]

BERLIN, via The Hague, Aug. 28.—With the support of the kaiser, the German chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg, is expected to win the fight he is now making for a modification of Germany's submarine warfare that will forever settle the difficulties with America over the sinking of the Lusitania and the Arabic.

Both the chancellor and Foreign Secretary von Jagow are most anxious to end at once and for all time the controversies with Washington, desiring America's friendship. The United Press is able to state this tonight on the best of authority.

Von Tirpitz to Oppose Plan.

The marine department, headed by Grand Admiral von Tirpitz, creator of the submarine policy, will oppose any disavowal of the action of Germany's submarines. But the kaiser is expected to approve the steps the chancellor and foreign secretary contemplate taking, swinging the balance in favor of Von Bethmann - Hollweg's contention that ships in the future must be warned before they are torpedoed.

Because of this internal discussion the Arabic crisis may be said to be in Germany—not in America. The foreign office, strongly against the sinking of passenger ships, under the circumstances unofficially reported in the Arabic case, made immediate representations to Ambassador Gerard. The nature of these representations are still unknown to the German public.

Would Have Germany Obey Laws.

The chancellor desires to place Germany on record as an observer of international law. There is considerable discussion in government circles as to whether the step he contemplates will create a precedent for the future. If it does it probably will end completely the controversies with America, including the difficulty over the sinking of the Lusitania.

If America approves the present attitude of the chancellor, it will materially strengthen his position and that of Foreign Secretary von Jagow in the furtherance of their policy for establishing the most cordial relations with America.

SPEEDY END OF FRICTION.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, will leave Washington tomorrow for New York to await instructions from his government, which he confidently expects will lead to negotiations that will bring a speedy and wholly satisfactory conclusion to the entire controversy between the United States and Germany over the question of submarine warfare. He believes he will be authorized to reopen informal discussions with Secretary Lansing to the end that a note may be framed by the German government entirely satisfactory to the United States.

Dispatches from Berlin tonight said the report on the Arabic might be made any day or might be delayed a fortnight. The dispatch of the German note depends on the time the submarine commander's report is received.

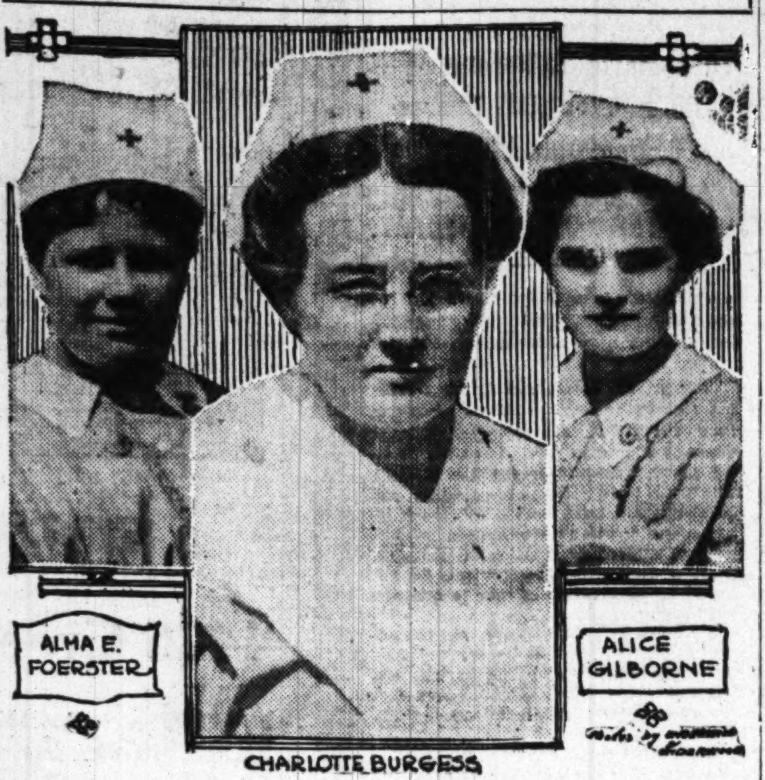
Berlin Anxious for Peace.

In German circles here it is firmly believed that the Berlin government is anxious to bring to a quick and friendly termination the whole discussion over the submarine campaign. As to the Arabic case, it was positively stated today that whatever the German admiralty report might be, the Berlin government would give assurances that its submarine commanders had received explicit instructions that no passenger ships be attacked without warning.

Even should the submarine commander attempt to justify his action or should no report ever be received from a German commander as to the Arabic, it is believed the German government will seek to make it clear that as a national policy the warfare against passenger ships has been suspended.

Already offers of reparation for American lives with the ship have been taken informally, and Ambassador Bernstorff feels that barring adjustment of minor details the friction between the two countries is at an end.

Chicago Nurses Back from War Tell of the Horrors in Hospital.



CHARLOTTE BURGESS

ALICE GILBORNE, 5323 Winthrop avenue; Alma Foerster, 5946 East Circle avenue, Norwood Park, and Charlotte Burgess, 426 North Pine street, Austin, members of the Red Cross contingent which sailed from New York on the steamer Red Cross Sept. 13, 1914, arrived at New York Tuesday from Piraeus, Greece. They will reach Chicago next week. The nurses have been serving at the American base hospital at Kiev since last October.

"There was considerable difficulty in distributing the American units, but they were finally sent to Kiev, where they established a base hospital in conjunction with other base hospitals," said Miss Gilborne to a TRIBUNE correspondent.

"The wounded came in endlessly, trainloads every day. They stayed with us a few days or weeks, and then we passed them on to other hospitals farther from the front. At first most of the wounded came from around Lemberg. Later they came from the Warsaw front.

"In the early months of the war the Russians were brought in not so badly wounded, suffering mostly from rifle fire. Then came a change. The Russians began retreating, and great numbers of the men brought to us were suffering from shrapnel wounds, not in one place, but all over the body. Some of them were literally hacked to pieces by the flying shreds of metal."

INDIAN PRINCE, ON WAY TO BRITAIN, FEARS SUBMARINES

Takes Precautions to Keep News of Voyage Secret—Thinks Germans Might Hold Him.

New York, Aug. 28.—The steamship Rotterdam is nearing the British isles tonight with an Indian prince aboard whose chief apprehension is that he may be captured by the Germans and held for ransom. He is Jagatjit Singh Bahadur, maharajah of Kapurthala, one of the wealthiest and most powerful of Indian rulers. He sailed secretly from this port on Aug. 21 on his way back to his kingdom after a two months' tour of the United States and Canada.

With the maharajah are his queen, his secretary, M. Roy, an American girl, Miss Maggie Cullen, to whom the maharanee took a liking while in the west, and a retinue of servants.

Friends of the royal couple are much afraid that German submarine commanders may capture and hold him for ransom. To make certain that no one save a few close friends should know of his plans, the maharajah and his party boarded the Rotterdam two days before it was due to sail and remained aboard in seclusion.

To allay any suspicion of the maharajah's departure an interview was given out in his name four days after he had sailed.

Arrangements, it is reported, were made for a British cruiser to meet the Rotterdam off Falmouth and convoy it to port. A special train will take the maharajah to London from Falmouth, and at the British capital a special guard of his own Indian troops will be assigned to him as an escort.

BRITAIN SEEKS GIANT AEROS.

Ten Triplanes Capable of Crossing Atlantic and 250 Biplanes Sought in America.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—The British government is negotiating with Stanley Y. Beach of Stratford, Conn., for ten powerful triplanes, capable of crossing the Atlantic at 100 miles an hour, and 250 biplanes, fireproofed, and capable of 120 miles an hour.

Mr. Beach, who is president of the Scientific Aeroplane Company of New York and aeronautic editor of the Scientific American, must have the first triplane ready for shipment within eight weeks of the receipt of the order.

The British government, he says, is to decide whether it shall fly across or be shipped, but he believes the autumn cold will prevent the flight.

British Cruisers Off New York.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—A three funneled British cruiser appeared at the Sandy Hook lightship today. At the same time a British cruiser of four funnels was sighted fifteen miles southeast of the lightship.

PART OF AUSTRIAN FORCE ANNIHILATED, ROME SAYS.

Italian Artillery Plays Upon Marching Foe on the Carso Plateau with Deadly Effect.

ROME, Aug. 28.—Italian artillery has played upon marching columns of the enemy on Carso plateau with deadly effect, Gen. Cadorna reported to the war office tonight. Part of an Austrian force was annihilated; the survivors retreated in disorder.

The Austrians continued their bombardment of Borgo and attacked several Italian positions in the Trentino, but without result.

In the region of Plezzo Italian gunners drove off a squadron of armored automobiles with which the enemy was conducting raids along the Isonzo roads.

The Italian front has been divided by Gen. Cadorna, the commander in chief, into two wide sections, each conducting a vast enveloping movement. Triest is the objective in one case and Trent in the other.

Austrian War Reports.

VIENNA, Aug. 28.—An official war report on operations in the Italian theater says:

"On the coastal front the enemy last night and at daybreak attempted an attack at several points, but was repulsed everywhere, especially east of Polazzo, San Martino, and the plateau of Doberdo, and near our positions north of the bridgehead of Tolmino. In the Flitsch region the fighting continues.

"In the Tyrol the Italians are approaching our positions north of Lugano valley."

CORNER DYESTUFF MARKET.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Speculators, quick to take advantage of the dearth of dyestuffs caused by the European war, have cornered the bulk of available color materials in America and raised the prices to such prohibitive figures that the cost of dyeing has advanced more than 500 per cent, it is claimed here.

BRITISH TROOPS MEET SLAUGHTER TURKEY REPORTS

Abandon 3,000 Dead on Field After Futile Attack, Constantinople Claims.

CONSTANTINOPLE, via Berlin Wireless, Aug. 28.—Two British regiments were cut to pieces, leaving 3,000 dead on the field, in an attack by the allies in the Suvla bay region at the Dardanelles, it was officially announced today. The Turks took much booty.

"The enemy on Aug. 22 attempted another attack against our positions at Kanlisirt," the official statement said. "Our counter attack destroyed a large part of the enemy's troops, the rest fleeing. On the following day similar attacks were made near Yechiltepe and Sungubair, but in both cases the enemy returned to its trenches."

SIX TAKEN AS SUSPECTS IN FIRING OF ALLIES' SHIPS.

Prisoners Admit Thefts of Sugar Cargo, but Deny Plot to Blow Up British Vessels.

New York, Aug. 28.—[Special.]—As a result of seven months' investigation into the theft of sugar from vessels in this port and many mysterious fires, six men were arrested today by detectives. They are charged with grand larceny.

Deputy Police Commissioner Guy Scull announced that some of the men are believed to be implicated in a conspiracy to fire ships leaving this port with cargoes for the allies. While they are said to admit the sugar thefts, all deny that they had anything to do with the fires.

The police are renewing inquiry into the finding of two bombs aboard the steamer Kirkoswald and fires on the Knutsford, Cragside, and Bandale.

The Devon City also took fire while it was tied to a pier, and it is said sugar was missing from its cargo.

The Kirkoswald sailed May 2 and arrived at Marseilles on May 26, where nine bombs were found among the cargo.

The fires on the Knutsford and Cragside were near the sugar cargo.

MORE GOLD FROM BRITAIN BEING RUSHED TO NEW YORK.

Special Train Carries Fortune Estimated to Range from $12,500,000 to $25,000,000 Total.

New York, Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Another large shipment of gold to strengthen British credit in this country is on its way here from Halifax aboard a heavily guarded train. The amount is variously estimated in Wall street at from $12,500,000 to $25,000,000. Both the express company in charge of the shipment of the precious metal and officials of J. P. Morgan & Co. refused to discuss the transaction.

The train carrying the treasure passed through Vanceboro, Me., this afternoon. It consisted of six steel express cars, a dining car, and a car that carried thirty-eight express guards.

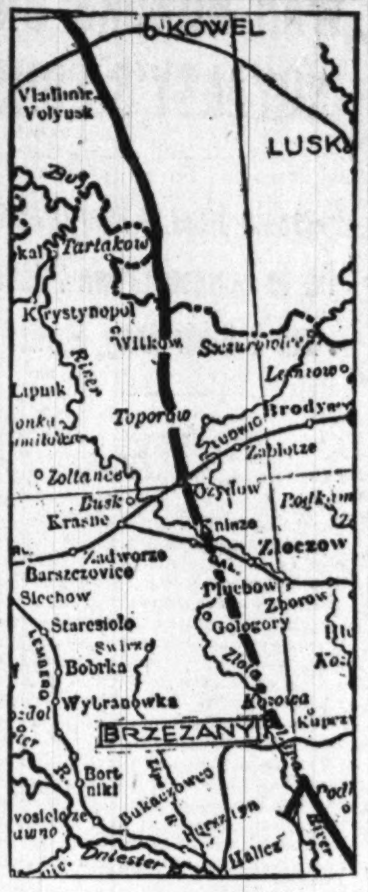
The gold was being shipped in much the manner of the first consignment on Aug. 10, when $52,000,000 in gold and securities were sent from London and deposited in the subtreasury here to the account of J. P. Morgan & Co., the fiscal agents of the British government.

DENIES AVIATOR SUNK DIVER.

Berlin Asserts Submarine Attacked by Pilot Off Ostend Returned to Base Undamaged.

BERLIN, via Wireless to London, Aug. 28.—Official denial was made by the admiralty today of the claim by the British admiralty that Aviator Bigsworth sank a German submarine off Ostend. The U boat was attacked by the British aviator, but returned to the harbor undamaged.

Southern End of Russian Battle Line



Renewed activity is reported on the eastern battle front in Galicia, following the victorious German drive through Poland. The Russians still occupy the section of Galicia east of the Zlota Lipa and north of the Dniester rivers. Berlin reports success along this front near Brzezany.

WAR ORDERS FROM ALLIES BOOMING STEEL INDUSTRY.

August Export Wire Contracts Aggregate 100,000 Tons—American Roads Also Buying Rails.

New York, Aug. 28.—Independent manufacturers of wire products have taken contracts for about 20,000 tons of barbed wire for the allies in the last few days. The United States Steel Products company also sold about 10,000 tons additional. August export wire contracts to date aggregate 100,000 tons.

Munitions manufacturers are in the market for flat steel for diaphragm fuse sockets for shrapnel shells in lots of 1,000 tons each, but find it difficult to place orders, as domestic bed manufacturers have taken up most of the present mill capacity for several months, and the price has been advanced to 3 cents per pound. Contracts for 45,000 tons round steel shell bars were placed for France and Russia and 800,000 tons more for this and next year's shipment are under negotiation. Steel output and shipments generally have steadily increased.

Rail orders last week aggregated 30,000 tons, making total since Aug. 1 67,000 tons for domestic shipment. August pig iron sales are estimated at 800,000 tons. Prices advanced $1 to $1.50 per ton.

MANY CANADIANS IN ARMS.

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 28.—One hundred and fifty thousand Canadians are on the battle line in Europe or are being trained for the war, according to Sir George E. Foster, acting premier of Canada and minister of trade and commerce. It was the first official announcement concerning the contribution of men Canada has made to the allies cause.

BATTLE BREWING BETWEEN MEXICANS AND U. S. CAVALRY

Detachment of Regulars Sent to Aid in Roundup of Outlaws Fifty Miles from Laredo.

Corpus Christi, Tex., Aug. 28.—A detachment of United State cavalry, under orders from Gen. Funston, reached Hebbrenville tonight, prepared to engage a large band of Mexicans said to be terrorizing the residents of Jim Hogg county.

According to a telephone message, the Mexicans drove the foreman and several cowboys from the Edds ranch this week and are now in possession.

The soldiers, aided by posses of cowboys, will attempt to round up the bandits tomorrow, and a battle is expected to be staged at the Edds place, which is fifty miles southeast of Laredo.

WILL INCREASE RANGE OF GUNS ON U. S. BATTLESHIPS.

Naval Experts Decide to Elevate Cannon to Higher Angle—Will Make Fire More Accurate.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—Main batteries of American battleships hereafter will be given an elevation of thirty degrees, practically doubling the present angle of fire, according to a decision reached by navy department experts, it is said, after close study of all available information on naval engagements of the European war.

Wherever possible ships now under construction and those already in commission, it is understood, will be similarly fitted. The effect of the change will be to increase materially the range of the navy's 14 inch guns and also make gunfire more accurate in rough weather.

The guns now have sufficient range to reach anything within the limit of vision at sea, and the added elevation will enable them to hurl shells at objects far beyond the horizon or over hills of considerable size in bombarding land fortifications.

NEW ISSUES RISE TO FACE AMERICA IN EUROPE'S WAR

Complaints of Shippers Against British Blockade One of Main Problems.

New York, Aug. 28.—[Special.]—With the submarine warfare crisis considered settled, financial and commercial questions growing out of the European war come again to the front for discussion in both business and government circles. The new problems now are:

Increasing protests of American shippers against the British blockade of commerce between neutral ports.

The rapid approach of bankruptcy for the nations at war under the daily drain of unprecedented expenses.

Germany to protest if the United States finances Great Britain and the allies with loans.

Claim made by Germany that, having made concessions and modified her submarine warfare in response to United States demands, this country must demonstrate its neutral attitude impartially by forcing modification of the British blockade which damages neutral commerce.

Complaints Grow Steadily.

Complaints are increasing from American ship owners, shippers, and merchants against British interference with commerce consigned to Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Holland, and other European countries not involved in the war. The endeavor of the British to strangle Germany at all costs has led to practical blockades of every port in European waters against shipments that are merely suspected of eventually reaching Germany and Austria.

In the world of high finance the Germans assert that unless England obtains financial assistance from the United States, allied finances will collapse before the end of the year.

The Teuton experts argue that England is being drained of her resources, both in financing the allies and in making purchases in the United States; that despite international trade and heavy taxation the daily outgo is double the inflow.

England must keep Russia from bankruptcy in order to protect the enormous investments of the French in Russian securities. She has to play banker for all the allies and is being called upon to make tremendous contributions.

English View of Germans.

On the other hand, English bankers say that German finance is like a balloon inflated so that it is near the bursting point. Being surrounded on all sides, Germany's export profits are cut off, but she has the advantage of no outgo of the wealth. All her expenditures are made at home and the money is kept going round and round in a circle.

The English say that every day, as the volume of money increases and the circulation gets whirling faster, the foundation of real values gets weaker and raw materials scarcer, so that some day soon there will be a collapse. The German financiers answer that their paper money is accepted by the people at par value; that all expenditures being made at home, industry is fostered, and that Germany is in far more sound economic condition than England.

The next few months will witness a war of finance. Germany is seeking to prevent England from getting money in the United States, and points to President Wilson's prohibition early in the war against foreign government loans being floated in this country.

EXPORTS OF U. S. PRODUCE REACH NEW JULY RECORD.

Shipments Valued at $267,978,990—Balance of Trade Nearly $1,000,000,000 in Favor of America

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—Exports of the products of American farms and factories in July—valued at $267,978,990—were the greatest ever recorded in that month, the department of commerce announced tonight. The nearest approach to the new record was made in July, 1913, when American shipments abroad reached $160,990,778.

Exports for the first seven months of the year—valued at $1,969,787,495—gave a balance of trade in favor of the United States—only a little short of one billion dollars. The total was $960,878,054, compared with $60,388,789 in the first seven months of 1914.

German Penal Code Used as Threat, World Charges

The New York World today continues the publication of the mass of evidence—documentary and otherwise—which it has collected bearing on German activities in the United States since the beginning of the war.

The evidence as collected by the World is being published in a new series of articles which are fully protected under the copyright laws, and republication without permission is forbidden. "The Tribune" presents herewith for the information of its readers the sixth article of the new series as the World has formulated it.

A reply to the charges from competent sources will be published.

[Copyright: 1915: By Press Publishing Company (New York World).]

New York, Aug. 29, 3 a. m.—The promoters of the Amerikanischer Technikerverband [the German-American technical societies] frankly admit that the purpose of the organization of its labor and employment bureau, with offices at 136 Liberty street, is to insure the application of the strafgesetzbuch—the German penal code—in the United States.

The purpose of the bureau is stated clearly in the minutes of a meeting of the New York Technische verein held at Terrace garden Aug. 5 last, in which is found the following paragraph:

"The employment bureau of the Technische Verein of New York is directed to conduct its affairs during the war in such a manner that above all things Germans should be warned against violations of the German penal code. (In English: 'Our intention is to prevent the commission of a crime.')"

Not Applied to Americans.

George A. Sonderhof, president of the New York Technische Verein, which is one of the largest members of the Deutsch-Amerikanischer Technikerverbund, told a World reporter that his organization desired it made plain that while German-Americans in this country did not question the right of the German government to apply the German penal code to unnaturalized Germans in this country, he and his associates took the position that it could not apply, and that the German government had no intention of attempting to apply it to Germans of American citizenship.

His attention was called to the opinion of Dr. Stobbe, German imperial consul general at Philadelphia, that the Orenstein-Arthur Koppel company, which has many branches incorporated under the laws of the United States, would be held accountable by the German government for violating section paragraph 89 of the Strafgesetzbuch should it fill an order for railroad supplies for the Russian government. Correspondence regarding this the World has published.

Pledges Loyalty to U. S.

"That is his interpretation," Mr. Sonderhof replied; "it is not mine. The German penal code applies only to German citizens in this country, and it is to save them from punishment for treason should they return to Germany and from the confiscation of any property they may hold or inherit in Germany that we have organized this bureau and are soliciting funds.

"We feel we are entirely right in trying to supply Germans with work, the performance of which in this country would not violate paragraph 89 of the German penal code and cause them to commit a crime. But if it came to war we Americans of German descent and origin would line up solidly with our new country. Naturally our sympathies are with Germany in this war as against the allies, but should there be war between the United States and Germany, which we pray will not happen, you will find more than 90 per cent of us fighting for the United States."

Officials in the Membership.

The Deutsch-Amerikanischer Technikerverband is composed of the German technical societies of the United States, including the Technische Vereine of New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Pittsburgh, Chicago, Newark, and Brooklyn.

The Washington Technische Vereine includes in its membership many German officials holding responsible governmental positions in the various departments. The offices of the New York Technische Verein are at 140 East Fifty-eighth street.

The minutes of the executive session of this verein held Aug. 5 last, as reproduced in the official publication of the Deutsch-Amerikanischer Technikerverband, contain the following:

"Dr. V. Oefele formulated the following resolution, seconded by Mr. Hoffman, and unanimously accepted by the eight general committeemen present:

"'The employment bureau of the Technische Verein of New York is directed to conduct its affairs during the war in such a manner that above all things Germans should be warned against violations of the German penal code. (In English: "Our intention is to prevent the commission of crime.")'

Friends of Peace Society.

"After that Dr. Oefele offered a further resolution as follows:

"'The delegates to the Technische day in Baltimore are instructed to induce either the entire Technische Verband or separate Verband-Vereine to regard the matter in like manner.'

"The proposition was seconded by Mr. Wiegand and adopted unanimously by those assembled.

"The result of all this has been communicated to our manager, Mr. Liebau.

"Dr. E. Kessler reports concerning the efforts on the part of the Friends of Peace society and their convention in Chicago. The presiding officer is requested to address a letter to our branch organization in Chicago, in which he states that we indorse the efforts of the Friends of Peace society and beg the T. V. Chicago to represent the T. V. N. Y. by large numbers."

Germans Warned About Work.

There follows in this publication, the Technologist, an article by Hans Liebau, the manager of the employment bureau, in which he calls attention to the warning of the German government directed especially to Germans in the United States. This warning is summarized as notice to German subjects in America that should they work in factories in which war munitions for the allies are being made, they will be prosecuted under the provisions of German criminal law for the crime of treason.

Mr. Liebau's article contains an appeal for funds and positions to enable Germans here to live without violating paragraph 89 of the Strafgesetzbuches. It contains the following:

"A notice of the imperial government, as stated several days ago by telegraph, calls the attention of Germans residing in foreign countries, and especially those in the United States, to paragraph 89 of the German penal code. German citizens who knowingly aid or assist a foreign power at war with the German empire, or who do anything which may injure the (German) government or its allies, are by this paragraph threatened with state prison at hard labor up to ten years, or with imprisonment in a fortress on the charge of treason.

"With heart and hand for the Fatherland. HANS LIEBAU."

German Paper Aids Campaign.

The New York Staats-Zeitung supplemented the appeal of Liebau by printing on Aug. 15 an appeal to all Germans and German-Americans in the United States to help the German working people by getting them positions in "neutral" trades and providing the money which it stated was so earnestly required.

Hans Liebau informed a World reporter at the offices of the employment bureau that the "warning" of the German government was intended only for German subjects living in the United States. Any of these, he said, who aided in the manufacture of war munitions for the allies would undoubtedly be tried for treason whenever they returned to Germany.

Efforts to secure a copy of the warning of the German government to its subjects in foreign countries, especially those in the United States, failed yesterday.

The German consulate, 11 Broadway, referred a World reporter to the Staats-Zeitung, sending word that "the German consul general does not wish personally to have anything to do with this matter."

The Friends of Peace society, indorsed by the New York Technische verein, issued a statement on Aug. 2 last in which it made a bitter attack upon Secretary of State Lansing. It has opposed the exportation of arms and other war munitions.

HEAVY ARTILLERY DUELS ALONG FRENCH FRONT.

Paris Claims Shells Have Badly Damaged German Positions—Silence Foe in the Argonne.

PARIS, Aug. 28.—The following French official statement concerning the progress of hostilities was given out here tonight:

"In the region of Nieuport, Hetsas, to the north of Arras, and to the east of the road to Lille, the German trenches have been violently and effectively bombarded. A fight in which bombs and mortars were used has taken place in the Quennevieres sector.

"Artillery fighting is reported in the Argonne, where our batteries have silenced the enemy's attempts at bombardment, at La Fille Morte, at Marie-Therese, at St. Hubert, and at Four de Paris.

"Artillery fire is reported at Le Pretre wood, in the forest of Parroy, and in the sectors of La Chapelotte and Launoisse, in the Vosges."

Hospital-Infirmary Ball Game.

One hot time is expected at the Cubs' ball grounds this afternoon when the county hospital and Oak Forest infirmary baseball teams clash for the championship. It is to be a classy contest, with Cook county officials present, as well as those of the hospital convalescents who are able to visit the grounds. Warden Clayton F. Smith of the hospital will champion his men, while Warden Harry Bailey of the infirmary will captain his team. The game will begin at 2:30 o'clock.

KAISER CONFERS WAR HONORS ON ROYALTY'S SONS

Presents Order of Pour le Merite to German Crown Prince and 2 Other Army Chiefs.

BERLIN, via wireless to Sayville, Aug. 28.—Kaiser Wilhelm has conferred the Order of Pour le Merite on the German crown prince, the crown prince of Bavaria, and the Duke of Würtemberg.

In awarding these honors the emperor sent each of the recipients a telegram. The telegram to the crown prince of Germany read as follows:

"This week occurs the anniversary of the battle of Longwy, by which the Fifth army under your leadership opened the way into the enemy's country. Success followed success until the task was fulfilled, establishing the connection between the western army and the home frontier.

"In the district north of Verdun your army has fulfilled its task in a manner creating the foundation for our victories in the eastern theater of war. During the long wait imposed upon your army the idea of resuming the aggressive did not affect you.

"Nowhere was tenacious bravery, inflexible determination to conquer the enemy, or consideration for your subordinates displayed more splendidly than during the tedious and heroic battle of the Argonne. I cannot refrain from expressing recognition of your achievements and those of your army by outward symbol. I therefore confer upon you the Order Pour le Merite."

Recalls Battle of Lorraine.

The kaiser's telegram to the Bavarian crown prince recalls the battle of Lorraine, "where your royal highness at the head of an army composed of the sons of all German states drove back the invaders of German territory.

"This brilliant victory was followed by a long, onerous period in which it was necessary for you to face repeated assaults by a numerically superior army in order to create conditions for our operations on the eastern front. You and your army performed this difficult task in a manner to be written forever in the pages of German history. In grateful recognition of your services to the German cause I confer upon you the Order Pour le Merite."

Praises Duke's New Army.

In his telegram to Duke Albert of Würtemberg the kaiser said:

"'A year has passed since the Fourth army under your excellent leadership opened the way far into the enemy's territory by victorious engagements at Semois and Maas. At the head of a newly formed army, composed of young and untrained troops, filled, however, with splendid spirit, you succeeded in frustrating the attempt of the enemy to encompass our northern flank and also got a footing on the coast of blood soaked Flanders.

"Despite floods and bitter struggles with superior forces you nobly achieved the task of protecting our rear while we were engaged in decisive actions. As a last recognition of your work I confer the order Pour le Merite upon you."

Honors Gen. Von Sanders.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 28.—The Berliner Tageblatt says it learns from Dresden that Emperor William has conferred the decoration of the Order Pour le Merite on Field Marshal Liman von Sanders, commander of the Turkish forces in Europe.

To Be Counsellor of State Department.

FRANK L. POLK

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—The selection of Frank L. Polk, corporation counsel of New York City, to be counselor of the state department was formally announced tonight by Secretary Lansing.

Mr. Polk will succeed Mr. Lansing, who became secretary on the resignation of William Jennings Bryan last June. The counselor's office has been vacant since Mr. Lansing took his place in the cabinet and there has been much gossip as to who would fill it.

While John Bassett Moore was counselor he acted for the secretary in all matters in the latter's absence from Washington, and the rule continued in effect while Mr. Lansing held the post. While it has not been definitely decided, it is virtually certain that the rule will continue in effect after Mr. Polk takes office.

GERMANS DENY HUGE LOSSES

Story That Fifty Submarines Have Been Destroyed Declared False by Berlin.

BERLIN, Aug. 28.—German officers say that the statment made in an American publication that Germany has lost fifty submarines is ridiculous, as also is the statement credited to British sources, placing the number at thirty-eight. The naval men do not deny that the British have had successes againt the submarines, but say that they have been nothing like such figures.

GREEK AND TURK DRAW NEAR WAR

Diplomatic Relations Will Be Broken Off Unless Demands Win.

STORIES OF CRUELTY.

ATHENS, Aug. 28.—Greece's threatened embroilment with Turkey overshadowed other news from Balkan capitals tonight.

Premier Venizelos held informal conferences with members of the new ministry today. It was reported that the draft of a note protesting against Turkish outrages against Greeks in Asia Minor was gone over. The note probably will be dispatched next week. If Turkey ignores the Greek representations, severance of diplomatic relations in probable. That a diplomatic break would be followed by declaration of war is almost a certainty.

Venizelos is said to have told his advisers that he desires Greece to maintain its neutrality and that he will first exhaust every effort to gain satifaction from the sultan through diplomatic channels.

In the last three days the persecution of the Greeks has been openly practiced in Constantinople, according to reports received here tonight. Press dispatches say that Greek women were insulted in the streets and no longer dare to venture out of doors. Circumstantial stories that Greek girls in Asia Minor have been carried off to Turkish harems continue to circulate here and tend to fan the war flame.

MANY AMERICANS ON SHIP; H. H. KOHLSAAT AMONG THEM

Philadelphia Sails from New York Carrying Thirty-nine Citizens of This Country in Cabins.

New York, Aug. 28.—[Special.]—The Philadelphia of the American line steamed for Liverpool today with 137 first class passengers, 39 of whom were Americans; 175 second class, and 275 third. Of the latter only about half a dozen were Americans.

On board were Alfred E. Anson, an actor, who is going to star with Doris Keane in the London production of "Romance," and Lieut. Philip Arthur Curry of the Fifth Oxford and Bucks regiment.

Herman H. Kohlsaat of Chicago also was on board. He arrived just as the ship was about to leave and was almost left behind, as his passport was locked up in his dispatch box, which was on board. Finally he explained the situation, was properly vouched for, and was permitted to embark.

Cadillac Eight-Cylinder Limousines

Beautiful lines, superb finish, rich upholstery fabrics in wide variety, perfect appointments, unusual comfortableness—everything that makes for your enjoyment of a fine enclosed car has been thought out and worked into the designing of the new Cadillac Limousines. While exquisite in artistic detail, they are also of the most substantial and enduring construction, in harmony with Cadillac ideals of engineering.

But the genuine comfort you enjoy in a Cadillac Limousine is not wholly a matter of good coach work. It is the performance of the wonderful Cadillac chassis which gives our enclosed cars their chief distinction. Their utter quietness is amazing. You do not hear the dull rumble and grinding which you have supposed is associated with every enclosed car. The car just seems to be flying through the air—so effortless and smooth is its movement, so easily is it handled.

As for dependability, the Eight-Cylinder Cadillac you buy today has nearly 14000 twin brothers, who have so thoroughly proved their dependability that practically the whole industry has started imitating them. If the Cadillac "Eight" is good enough to compel such widespread imitation by other manufacturers, it is certainly a safe car to buy.

DRY PLANK WILL GO IN PLATFORM, MOOSER AVERS

Progressives Will Be Live Party in 1916, Says Leader from New York.

Three P's—"Prohibition, Protection, and Preparedness"—loom up as a slogan for the Progressive party in the 1916 campaign, following an announcement yesterday at the Blackstone hotel by Frank G. Curtis, an attorney of Jamestown, N. Y., ardent Bull Mooser and confidant of George W. Perkins, chairman of the Progressive executive committee.

To indicate the probability of a prohibition plank being adopted, Mr. Curtis made public a letter he had written to Chairman Perkins Aug. 12, and Mr. Perkins' reply to it. In his letter to Mr. Perkins Mr. Curtis said:

Letter to Mr. Perkins.

"My Dear Mr. Perkins: Your staunch position to keep the Progressive organization going is very gratifying to me. Mr. Perkins, we should adopt a prohibition plank and join the movement to enroll 5,000,000 voters and amalgamate with the Prohibition party. I believe the movement that is well under way, to enroll 5,000,000 voters in the United States before November, 1916, pledged to vote for no party, excepting one having a prohibition plank, will be a success, and I believe that every day that the Progressive party delays coming straight out for state and national prohibition of the liquor traffic, is a daily mistake. With the aid of the Progressive organization to enroll that 5,000,000 votes it would surely be a success. Then what would happen?

"The traffic in liquor furnishes the greatest social and economic questions before the American people. All that the Progressive party lacks now is a prohibition plank. I am greatly pleased to note the observations of George von L. Meyer, in the Metropolitan, that the expenditures of the people of the United States for liquor and tobacco are $3,200,000,000 per annum. The latter figure is far too small, at that, for after that $3,200,000,000 is spent the cost to our people has only just begun. Then begins directly and indirectly ten or fifteen times that amount to take care of the victims of the liquor sold. Legitimate property interests have to carry the load. The liquor traffic never has borne and never will bear or be able to bear the expenses that it creates. Very sincerely yours,

"FRANK G. CURTIS."

Mr. Perkins Replies.

"My Dear Mr. Curtis: Thanks for yours of the 12th. Personally I am and have been all my life strongly in favor of getting rid of the liquor habit. I have fought it in season and out from boyhood and for a number of years have fought it on the ground that it is an economic necessity to get rid of it.

"What Russia has done in the last year shows clearly that we have moved on from the time when the plea was 'Father, O father, come home with me now; the clock in the parlor strikes 9' to the time when the plea is based on its necessity on purely economic grounds. Sincerely yours, GEORGE W. PERKINS."

HUSBANDS GONE, SHE SUES MOTHER TO RECOVER $12,000

Parent Is All to Blame for Trouble and Took Her Money Besides, Says Daughter.

Mrs. Marie Welgen filed suit yesterday against her mother, Mrs. Marie Dolejs, to recover her share in a $60,000 estate left by her father, who died six years ago.

According to Attorney Robert Clarke, Mrs. Welgen's counsel, the mother refused to give her daughter her share in the estate unless she took a husband suitable to her.

"Mrs. Welgen has had two husbands," said Mr. Clarke, "and both have been divorced because of the mother's interference. Shortly after her father's death the daughter married Joe Kugligowski.

"Mrs. Dolejs claimed Kugligowski was after the $12,000 which was her share of the estate. The mother induced the daughter to deed her share to her, and when Kugligowski found this out he left.

"Then Mrs. Kugligowski married Frank Welgen without consulting her mother. Mrs. Dolejs said she was going to look him over. She did, and when she left the bridegroom had two black eyes, a torn shirt, and numerous minor injuries.

"Weglen decided married life was not for him and left. Mrs. Dolejs told her daughter that when she picks out a husband who meets with her approval she will give back the $12,000. Meanwhile part of this money has been used to buy machines for the two boys, Frank and Andrew, both younger than Mrs. Welgen, who is 22."

Mrs. Welgen lives at 2121 West Nineteenth street and her mother resides at 2049, a block away.

ARCHITECT FREED AS FLIRT.

Woman Who Charges Man Pinched Her Late in Court and Case Is Dismissed.

Judge John K. Prindiville in the South Clark street court yesterday dismissed the case against Meyer Kaerzon, an architect, accused of annoying Mrs. Marie Bushman, 1356 Monroe street. Neither was in court when the case was called. Kaerzon was accused by Mrs. Bushman of pinching her while sitting next to her in motion picture theater. She arrived nearly an hour late and appeared much incensed to find that the case had been dismissed.

BOX OF THREAD 'FIRE BOMB' CAUSES 'INVENTOR'S' ARREST

Julius Kaplan Recommends Package as Infernal Machine to Get Insurance Money.

Trying to palm off a box of thread as an infernal machine cost Julius Kaplan of 950 North Clark street $200 and costs yesterday in the Chicago avenue court. Lawrence Janicki, a candy dealer, 2404 Fullerton avenue, complained that Kaplan had tried to sell him a device which would destroy his store and enable him to collect the insurance.

L. W. Gertenrich, a candy manufacturer, 3242 Archer avenue, happened to be in Janicki's store when Kaplan was recommending his little invention. He called the police. The "machine" was a box of spool thread.

Ira Fogle, attorney for Kaplan, in attempting to have the sentence set aside, accused Judge La Buy and his court of miscarrying justice in fining an innocent thread salesman and was evicted and barred from the courtroom for his pains.

PLAN A NEW HIGHWAY.

Will Go Through Southeastern Cook County and Connect Two Main Thoroughfares.

A beautiful highway connecting Western avenue with the Lincoln highway through the southeastern portion of Cook county is proposed by the Chicago and Joliet Good Roads association in the purchase of the old Wabash right of way from Worth to Orland. If this purchase is made the new drive through the proposed 10,000 acre addition to the outer park belt, will extend from Western avenue at Ninety-fifth street, west to Harlem avenue, south through Worth to One Hundred and Nineteenth street, and then west through Palos Park and Orland to the Lincoln highway.

LET REITMAN ALONE, BUT ARREST MEN HE DEFENDS.

Police Listen Silently to Fiery Denunciation After Locking Up Three Other Street Orators.

A denunciation of the police by Dr. Ben L. Reitman, the anarchist, followed the arrest of three men who were locked up at the South Clark street police station on a charge of speaking in the streets without a permit at the corner of Congress and State streets last night.

The three speakers arrested were Charles Kruse, J. F. Howland, and George Duval. Dr. Reitman was in the audience and immediately went to a nearby telephone and called up Assistant Chief of Police Herman Schuettler and told him that he would speak at the same corner and voice his protest. This he did, and in no uncertain manner, despite the fact that two uniformed policemen stood one block away. He was not arrested.

"Gentlemen, you have just witnessed the arrest of three peace abiding citizens," said Dr. Reitman, "and why? Because they wish to assert their constitutional rights by free speech.

"What is going to happen to these men on Monday morning when they are arraigned? I'll tell you. The police will take the witness stand and trump up a lot of false charges against them. They always do in this city.

'The police are a bunch of perjurers and liars, and I only hope they are right here now to hear me say so. I expect to be arrested and I don't mind if I am."

THRONGS VIEW GERMANS IN WAR ON 'TRIBUNE' FILM

Thousands Cheer the Kaiser's Army as It Sweeps Through War Scenes.

Chicago's center of population yesterday was 410 South Michigan avenue, the Studebaker theater, where the congestion all day long was as great as the law allowed and sometimes but for the intervention of guards and reserve police would have been greater.

THE TRIBUNE's battle pictures, "The German Side of the War," drew the throngs the nine times the clock allowed of the film's unreeling, with every seat occupied practically continuously.

Outside a long line waited persistently the day and evening through. As the minutes passed one or two or three would be let through the doors as similar numbers left through other doors.

Marked Contrast Inside.

There was a marked contrast between within and without. Whereas without quiet patience ruled, within electric enthusiasm prevailed. It was no quiet, inert crowd that traveled pictorially from Berlin to the Tyrolean Alps, through the steps of marching, gun firing, wound mending, all the procedure of warfare.

Alert attention greeted every foot of film. When the kaiser briefly walked the screen applause swept the house. But that was not the only time. Handclapping outbursts punctuated the showing at intervals of every five minutes. Every thing seemed to strike some chord dictating active sympathy, from the ranks swinging off in the goose step to the throngs in the market place.

Tears Come to Many.

And in the semi-silences were heard tokens of other emotional expression. Sniffs and sighs spoke of tears, and handkerchiefs were often in request. Many of those filing out, when they had seen the cycle, went, with red rimmed eyes.

And so more than 10,000 of them saw across the seas into Germany and Austria and Galicia, and the Alps, and wept and applauded as they watched.

Edwin F. Weigle, the photographer who gathered the celluloid experiences from the front, talked in connection with the pictures, supplementing the subtitling with descriptions gleaned from first hand contact with the woe of war.

PIGEON FLIES 2,000 MILES.

Carrier Bird Found in Chicago Bearing Tag of San Juan, Porto Rico.

John Gapinski has a pigeon loft in the rear of his home at 1518 Elk Grove avenue. Yesterday he found a carrier pigeon among his pets. He picked up the bird and discovered a tag attached to its right leg. On it was this inscription: "R. Capifall, 22 San Juan, Porto Rico, July 10. There is no doubt that it made the journey of 2,000 miles from Porto Rico to Chicago, as it was completely exhausted.

CLOTHING TRADE PLANS A STRIKE

Chicago's 50,000 Workers May Go Out in Next Six Weeks if Ordered.

ASK FOR 48 HOUR WEEK.

Strike of 50,000 clothing workers in Chicago may be called in the next six weeks unless a demand for a 48-hour week and higher wages is met by the manufacturers.

This is the verdict of the executive council of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America now in session in Baltimore and transmitted to Chicago yesterday.

The Chicago workers have been authorized to demand the shorter hours and increased pay with the backing of the general official body. It was predicted that this decision will be ratified at a mass meeting in Baltimore today.

Plan General Strike.

The action of the executive council of the clothing workers contemplates a general strike of the trade over the United States comprising more than 200,000 persons.

The strike, which it is predicted will be called at the opening of the busy season, will affect workers in Chicago, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Boston, Rochester, St. Louis, Cincinnati, and Milwaukee.

At present, according to advices from President Hillman of the clothing workers, it is proposed to call the strike in only the leading centers of the country.

Prepared for Refusals.

If there should be trouble in gaining the demands it is said it may be considered necessary to extend the strike to the smaller cities and make it a general tieup.

New York originally was on the list which called for a demand for better conditions, wages and shorter hours, but a report was received and concurred in that an agreement had been reached among the manufacturers and workers of that city favoring arbitration, and New York was given a clean slate for the time.

COURT DECISION TIES UP FINANCES AND STATE JOBS

Extra Session of Legislature May Be Needed to Solve the Problem Faced by Illinois.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Illinois financial affairs are caught in the tightest jam in the history of the state barring, possibly, the period following the internal improvements episode of many decades ago.

Circuit Judge James A. Creighton handed down his decision this morning in the Fergus-Munro injunction suits—to which the Citizens' association of Chicago became an impleaded party—which sustained some of the contentions made by the complainants and upheld many of the actions of the late legislature, defended by the attorney general and attorneys representing some of the affected state departments.

Judge Creighton held that the mileage bill, by which legislators attempted to pay themselves for twenty-one round trips to and from Springfield, is unconstitutional and void.

Knocks Out 106 Jobs.

His written opinion knocked out 106 separate jobs provided for in the omnibus appropriation bill, carrying a total of $262 348 in salaries, for the two year period beginning last July, thereby crippling, as it is claimed at the state house, the state grain department, the fire marshal's department, and the executive heads of the state board of health, the state civil service commission, and the state board of pharmacy, aside from a group of lesser commissions created by the last general assembly.

The opinion sustained the appropriations to the attorney general to prosecute the Illinois Central cases; the appropriations to the Curran home finding commission, the commission to codify the building laws, and to the Illinois centennial commission.

It is held that the insurance department, rivers and lakes commission, and state board of pharmacy may use its own attorneys and the appropriations made therefor to prosecute violations of department laws, and that the $13,000 appropriation to Gov. Dunne for the care of the executive mansion was warranted by law.

Power of the Governor.

Judge Creighton declared that the assumed right of Gov. Dunne to "slice" appropriations was of the gravest import, and for the purposes of the present suit declined to hold the big supply bills unconstitutional because of the "slicing process."

He upheld the right of a taxpayer to bring such a suit as the Fergus-Munro-Citizens' association case in a nisi prius court.

Immediately following the announcement of the decision Attorney General Patrick J. Lucey served notice, on behalf of all of the state officers and departments involved, that an appeal will be taken to the Illinois Supreme court at the October term, in an effort to secure an opinion from the high court on all of the points decided adversely to the state, both as to the mileage bill and as to the omnibus bill.

May Need Special Session.

State Treasurer Andrew Russel declared that not a cent will be paid out to any of the departments, persons, or boards involved in the original bill of complaint, pending a Supreme court decision.

The financial crisis which the state administration and the state employés affected creates remains and the general opinion is that an extraordinary session of the general assembly will be necessary.

Mr. Munro and associated counsel made the agreement with Attorney General Lucey and former Senator Logan Hay representing State Treasurer Russel, that within ten days they will indicate those items, upon which they were defeated today, upon which they will press an appeal.

The decree is to be entered formally Monday morning, and Attorney General Lucey will start the appeal proceedings on behalf of the state at once.

Other Actions Come Later.

At the October term of the Sangamon Circuit court, by an agreement reached today, the parties at interest will argue the three bills not touched upon in today's decision. These apply to the deficiency appropriation bills, the bills for appropriations for private relief, and the appropriation bills for the payment of committee expenses, including the bills for the O'Hara vice commission investigation.

Judge Creighton did not touch specifically upon the disputed question of the right to appropriate $50,000 for the preliminary expenses of the Illinois deep waterway commission, which is to build the Lockport-Utica channel. Nor did he refer in terms to the appropriations for the public utilities commission.

A blanket clause in the opinion denied the requested injunction as to these and many other of the major boards and departments involved in the original complaint.

Will Not Collect Mileage.

Pending the decision of the Supreme court on the mileage bill, State Treasurer Russel will make no effort to collect any of the mileage from legislators, who lost no time in cashing their vouchers.

"I have been advised by many of the members that they wish to return the money to the state treasurer, if the court decision is antagonistic," Mr. Russel said. "I have no doubt that all of them will return the money in that event."

The original bill was amended by the attorneys so as to eliminate the demand for restitution which was a part of the first bill, directed against State Treasurer Russel and State Auditor Brady on their official bonds.

Opinion on Omnibus Bill.

The opinion in the omnibus bill case follows:

"The constitution provides that 'bills making appropriations for the salaries of the officers of the government shall contain no provision on any other subject,' and counsel for the complainant contend that the items challenged in this division of their client's bill are for salaries of officers of the state government and that inasmuch as the 'omnibus bill' in which these appropriations appear does contain provisions on other subjects, these appropriations are in defiance of the constitution and void.

"This brings us to the controlling question with respect to this feature of the case. What positions in the service of the state are offices of the state government, within the meaning of the language of the constitution?

"The constitutional definition of an office is: 'An office is a public position created by the constitution or law, continuing during the pleasure of the appointing power, or for a fixed time, with a successor elected or appointed.'

Items Which Are Held Void.

"The court finds that the following items, challenged in division 1 of complainant's bill, are unconstitutional and void (the salaries indicated are 'per annum' and were made for the usual two year period):

1—Assistant attorney general [inheritance tax]	$ 5,000
1—Clerk in said office	1,800
14—Deputy grain inspectors	25.200
4—Deputy grain inspectors	5,000
1—Registrar of grain	2.200
3—Members board of grain appeals	3,800
1—Deputy grain inspector, East St. St. Louis	2 400
4—Deputy inspectors	6,000
1—Secretary state board of pardons	750
1—Executive officer state board of health	3,600
1—Secretary state civil service commission	3.500
15—Extra game wardens	15,000
3—Members examining board of architects	2,000
1—Secretary architects examining board	1,900
1—Secretary board of dental examiners	1,200
3—Members board of dental examiners	2,000
3—Members board of barber examiners	2,400
1—State examiner apiaries	614
3—Members state board of pharmacy	4.500
1—Deputy state fire marshal	2,000
6—Deputy state fire marshals	9,000
18—Deputy state fire marshals	21,600
3—Members board of registered nurses	800
1—Secretary board of registered nurses	1,800
1—Secretary stallion registration board	100
3—Members stallion registration board	300
1—Secretary state industrial board	2,500
1—Secretary board of examiners of horseshoers	360
3—Members board of examiners of horseshoers	700
1—Secretary of state optometry board	1.500
5—Members state optometry board	1,750
106	$131,174

Injunctions Granted on All.

"With respect to the above noted positions, the court is of the opinion that they are each and all offices within the meaning of the constitution and that the attemtp to provide for payment of salaries or compensation for the incumbents by an appropriation in the 'omnibus bill' is unconstitutional and void.

"Injunction is granted as to each and all of said items.

"As to the other positions specified and challenged in division 1 of complainant's bill, many of them are clearly not offices of the state government within the meaning of the constitution, and, as to others, they are so far in the field of doubt as to restrain the court from interfering with the interpretation placed upon the constitution with respect to them by the legislature and executive branches of the state government in the enacting and approval of the act in question—the 'omnibus bill.'

Grant Fund to Governor.

"Division 2 embraces the item of $13,000 to the governor for the care of the executive mansion. The contention is that this item is in effect an allowance of 'perquisites or benefits' in excess of the fixed salary of $12,000, 'together with the use and occupancy of the executive mansion.'

"When we consider the language, 'use and occupancy of the executive mansion' in the light of its history and purposes in this and all other countries, we see that it includes much more than a private domicile or place of abode. It is an institution and includes the proper equipage and upkeep to make and maintain it in condition and at all times fit for the purpose of its existence.

"What items constitute proper equipage, upkeep, and maintenance are for the legislature and not for the court to determine. This appropriation is not made to the governor for his own use or benefit, but to him as trustee for the public—for the state—to be used only for the purpose specified. Injunction denied.

Cuts Off Travel Pay.

"Division 2 item: 'To the lieutenant governor for traveling expenses, $2,000 per annum.'

"By the fees and salaries act the compensation of the lieutenant governor is fixed at the sum of $2,500, 'in lieu of all other salaries, fees, perquisities, benefit, or compensation in any form whatever.' Injunction granted.

'Division 3, item: 'To the secretary of state $2,500 for telephone calls for members of the general assembly.' It is contended that this item is in effect the allowance of 'perquisites or benefit' to members of the general assembly. The court is of the opinion that this item may fairly be held to be an expense incident to the proper transaction of the business of the session. Injunction denied.

Grants Railway Case Fund.

"Division 4 challenges the lump sum appropriation to the attorney general for prosecuting the litigation of the state of Illinois against the Illinois Central railroad to recover back fees. It is contended that this appropriation is not constitutional because it is not itemized. The amount is distinct and certain and the court is of the opinion that the objects and purposes, as stated in the act, embrace only one subject matter so compact and so involved and related as to warrant the holding that the appropriation is a distinct item with the constitutional requirement. Injunction denied.

'Division 5, item: 'To the state treasurer, such sum as may be necessary to refund the taxes on real estate sold or paid in error and for overpayment of collectors' accounts, etc.' The objection interposed is that it does not appropriate any definite sum, no maximum sum, nor any sum or sums specified. Injunction granted.

'Division 6, item: 'To the secretary of state, $2,000 for editing the state blue book.' The objection is that the item constitutes an increase in salary. The appropriation is not made to the secretary of state for his own use or benefit, but in trust for the particular purpose specified to be expended for and on behalf of the state. Injunction denied.

School Funds Not Tied Up.

"Division 6, item: 'To the state superintendent of public instruction, for preparing papers and conducting examinations.' The court finds no basis for assumption that these appropriations are an increase of salary to the incumbent, but in trust, to be used and expended on behalf of the state. Injunction denied.

"Division 7 challenges the appropriations to the insurance department of $15,000 for expenses of violations of the insuranace laws; of $4,000 for legal services, and of $2,000 a year for traveling expenses of attorneys, etc. This appropriation is claimed to be unconstitutional because the insurance superintendent is not authorized by law to prosecute violations; the right to do so is in the attorney general and not in the insurance superintendent.

"Whatever may be the scope of the attorney general's rights and powers, inherent in the office, or conferred upon him by the constitution, the court is of opinion that the legislature is not inhibited by the constitution from creating an agency and clothing it with at least auxiliary powers and duties with respect to instituting and prosecuting violators of the law, with respect to any particular branch or department of the government. This the legislature has done in the case of the insurance superintendent. Injunction denied.

Denies Rivers Injunction.

"Division 7, on the same ground as above, challenges the appropriation of $2,500 to the rivers and lakes commission and of $3,000 to the state board of pharmacy, for prosecutions of violations of the law. Injunction denied.

"Division 8 avers that senate joint resolution 40, house joint resolution 21, and senate joint resolution 29 are illegal, and that each and all of the appropriations for them are illegal and void. This averment is based on the assumption that no joint resolution creating a committee or commission can have force or effect after the adjournment of the body which created the committee, and upon the admitted facts that the resolutions were not read three times, nor an aye and nay vote taken as in the case of bills.

"The court is of opinion that a committee or commission may be legally created for certain purposes by joint resolution of the two houses of the legislature to continue its labors after the adjournment of that body and until the convening of the next regular session of the general assembly, and that the legislature creating such committee or commission is not prohibited by the constitution from making an appropriation in the 'omnibus bill' for the expenses of such a committee or commission. Injunction denied.

Power of Governor's Veto.

"Division 9 contends that the governor has no power under the constitution to veto a part of an item and 'it is contended that by the veto message of the governor, the governor failed to approve the items, and that, considered in the light of the constitution, said attempted approval was in fact a veto' of the whole item—that the attempt to veto a part of the item nullifies the whole of the item.

"House bill 931 is cited as an example which was cut by the governor from $3,873,036 to $3,541,036 and house bill 975 also is cited, cutting out the words 'per annum' in the item of $1,400 for conducting examinations of medical colleges.

"'Complainants' contention, if sustained, would nullify the whole of these two items, and a very large number of other items similarly dealt with by the governor in his veto message. The question here raised is exceedingly grave. The court has given to it all the consideration possible under the circumstances and has reached the conclusion that whatever the courts of this state may ultimately decide with respect to the right or power of the governor to effectively veto a part of an item, the action taken by the governor as evidenced by his veto message with respect to the items in question here does not render the whole of such items void. Injunction denied."

Eight Organizations Requested to Name Auditors to Investigation Management.

Presidents of eight organizations were again called upon yesterday by Michael J. Collins, president of the board of education, to select auditors to investigate the management of the schools. Letters calling attention to a previous request of the board in this regard were sent to the presidents of the Citizens' association, the Chicago Bureau of Public Efficiency, the Association of Commerce, the Commercial club, the Illinois Manufacturers' association, the Chicago Federation of Labor, the City club, and the Woman's City club. The letters urge the necessity of immediate action in order that the survey may be ready for the Baldwin senate investigating committee when it meets Sept. 8.

EUGENIA E. KELLY ASSERTS SHE WILL NOT WED DAVIS.

Heiress Denies She Is Even Engaged to Man—Girl's Mother Corroborates Daughter's Statement.

New York, Aug. 28.—[Special.]—I positively am not engaged to Davis and will not marry him."—Eugenia E. Kelly.

The above is the reply of the heiress who on reaching 21, a few months hence, will come into possession of $3,000,000. A telegram apprised her of the reports circulated concerning her and Davis.

The telegram sent by Miss Kelly was followed by another which read:

"My daughter, Eugenia E. Kelly, denies that there is any truth in the report of her marrying Davis and says that she is not even engaged to him."—Mrs. Howard Kelly.

This is the first declaration of her intentions in regard to the man with whom her name was linked that Miss Kelly has made since she left the city.

LONG TRIP FOR OPERATION.

Missionary Brings Baby from India for Treatment at Sheridan Park Hospital.

The Rev. F. C. Aldrich, who had charge of the Methodist Episcopal mission in Rajputana province, India, brought his 5 months old boy, John Paul, 13,000 miles to be operated upon by Dr. T. W. Brophy at the Sheridan Park hospital. The operation, a delicate one, was successful. Mr. Aldrich's three children, Herschel, 13 years; Jeanette, 9, and Virgil, 12, who returned with their father and mother, have learned the Hindustani language from a native teacher. The province over which Mr. Aldrich had charge has a population of 10,000,000. The missionary family will go back next year.

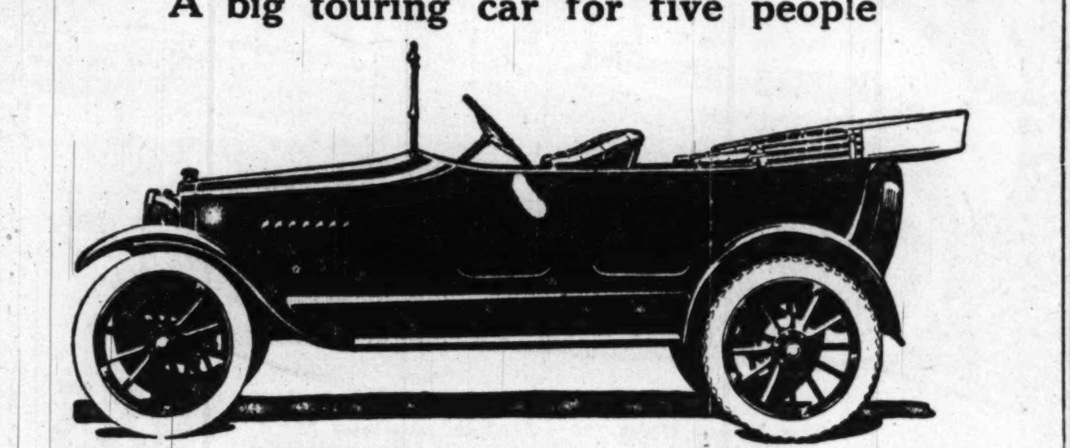
SAXON SIX $785

A big touring car for five people



Four New Ideas

Today there are four new ideas in motor car design:

Light weight
High speed motor
Yacht-line body
Increased riding comfort for all passengers

All four of these modern ideas you find incorporated under the Saxon "Six."

Light weight comes from right design and right materials. Nickel steel in axles, steering gear and other vital parts is lighter and stronger than ordinary carbon steel. Vanadium steel not only makes better springs but reduces their weight.

Saxon high speed motor design gets more power with less gas out of a small motor than men used to get out of big heavy motors. Besides, this is a six-cylinder motor—with the even pull and marvelous flexibility that only a "Six" can give.

The yacht-line body of Saxon "Six" exemplifies the latest motor car fashion. Its very lines suggest swift, easy motion.

Riding comfort for all five passengers is found in the exceptional roominess of tonneau and driving compartment. Long resilient cantilever springs make rough roads easy.

If you seek speed—Saxon "Six" has it. This car ran 490 miles from Los Angeles to San Francisco in 13½ hours—15 minutes faster than the "Lark," the Southern Pacific's fastest train.

If you seek power—Saxon "Six" has demonstrated it on every famous testing hill in the country.

If you seek economy—Saxon "Six" has it. 105 "Sixes" driven home from the factory by dealers covered 26,360 miles and averaged 21 miles to the gallon.

Today in your touring car of course you want a "Six." Don't try to be content with less, when you can enjoy "Six" luxury in a well-proved Saxon for $785.

Electric starting and lighting; demountable rims; Timken axles; 112" wheelbase; 32x3½" tires, non-skid in rear.

Triangle!

Four weeks ago I printed an advertisement headed: WARNING.

In it I told of some of the plans of the Triangle film corporation and intimated that I expected large profits.

But I was so afraid that there might be exaggerations and overstatements by persons without authority to speak that I made very plain the fact that anything that promised so very much in profit necessarily entailed some risk of loss.

I said we had got together the greatest organization of moving picture producers the world had ever known, great actors and actresses, great executives and

> Griffith, producer of "The Birth of a Nation," Ince, famous for the "Battle of Gettysburg," Sennett, Master Laughmaker of the world, creator of Keystone Comedies.

Buy my belief that the theatre managers of this country would be willing to pay big weekly rentals for fine pictures was only belief. Now it is a FACT.

THE BEST THEATRES have written, telegraphed, telephoned offers of weekly rentals equaling my estimates.

The ablest executives in the film business have joined us. For "nothing succeeds like success." Actors and actresses who have hitherto found the pictures below their dignity have come to us eagerly.

Those who appear in the first Triangle plays will give you a pretty good idea of the calibre of the rest.

Raymond Hitchcock
Douglas Fairbanks

all in one evening's entertainment—think of it.

And then there will be Billie Burke, DeWolf Hopper, Joe Weber, Lew Fields and a host of others.

Four weeks ago Triangle Film was unknown to the New York stock market. It came out at par—$5.00 per share. As I write it is selling there for $6.50 or more a share.

I cannot control the price.

Many big men are buying Triangle Film. I appreciate their interest and support.

But the man I want is the ten-share man, and the man who owns fifty shares. For he is the man who most appreciates his monthly dividend check.

It is he who goes regularly to the theatre that shows Triangle Plays, and tells his friends to go.

I want you who read this advertisement to own stock enough to laugh the heartier at a Keystone Comedy because you are part owner of it.

Just ask a good stock broker or your banker to get some shares for you—while the market is low.

I am president of Triangle Film Corporation. I believe it will earn large profits. I believe that the company's interest will best be served by having the largest possible number of stockholders. Hence this advertisement. It tells the truth as I see it, avoiding overstatement and avoiding equally understatement, for understatements may be as misleading and unfair as overstatements.

Very soon after September 20 Triangle plays will appear in the Studebaker Theatre in Chicago.

The best players in all the world, working under the supervision of the world's greatest directors, must produce the best pictures.

And the best people will see them in the one best theatre in each locality.

O'HARA DOUBTS REPORT COURT HIT HIS TRAVEL BILLS

Tells How Duties in Dunne's Absence Require Trips on State Business.

Lieut. Gov. Barratt O'Hara, who had just returned from Springfield, was inclined last night to question the accuracy of reports that his traveling allowance of $2,000 had been killed with other items in Judge Creighton's decision. The question of calling a special session of the legislature was a matter for Gov. Dunne to decide, he said.

"We are preparing now a list of other items in the omnibus appropriation bill which Judge Creighton approved," Mr. O'Hara said. "If the decision has been correctly reported, we shall, of course, test it in the Supreme court, and I am confident the traveling allowance for my department will be upheld. If it should develop that we should lose on appeal, however, we shall insist that the precedent be followed in all other state departments allowed an appropriation for traveling expenses, including the governor's fund and the Supreme court allowance as well as the secretary of state and the auditor's offices.

Why He Needs Travel Expense.

"It is unreasonable to contend that a state department having business in another city should not be allowed traveling expenses. Personally, I have had to make several trips over the state. In Gov. Dunne's absence it has devolved upon me to inspect state troops and to perform other duties which would occupy his attention were he here. I have advanced this money from my own private funds, though the trips were of an official nature."

Mr. O'Hara, with his aids, was busy preparing a statement on the subject of state appropriations. This, he said, probably will be followed by other statements.

Denies $10 Tip Yarns.

Incidentally, he took occasion to deny emphatically that he ever approved vouchers for $10 and $25 tips, as intimated in connection with published charges of legislative extravagance.

"I have just returned from Springfield, where I investigated the subject at first hand," he said, "and I can say positively that no voucher of this sort was ever approved by me. The vouchers in question are all on the other side of the legislature. They are initialed 'D. E. S.,' for David E. Shanahan, speaker of the house. Not one bears the signature of the president of the senate.

"Attorney for Mr. Fergus in preparing their suit did not charge that I signed these vouchers. The inference, however, has been permitted in newspaper stories published all over the state. There is absolutely no foundation for it so far as I am concerned."

Extra Session Talk.

It was suggested by Cook county politicians that it would be a wise political move for Gov. Dunne to call an extra session of the legislature at this time, and that the action of the court in the injunction suit gives him a "good excuse" for doing so.

It is pointed out that the waterways bill was the only measure of importance fathered by the governor which passed the last legislature, and that an extra session might afford him an opportunity to submit various items of legislation which would reflect credit upon his administration.

The opinion was general in political circles, that if a special session is called by the governor, it will not be convened before Oct. 1.

Grain Inspection to Continue.

Grain inspection will not stop because of the annulment of the $25,200 appropriation for this purpose. This statement by State Grain Inspector John P. Gibbons allayed fears that the injunction would tie up board of trade transactions and halt grain shipments.

"Judge Creighton's decision practically gives legislative powers to the governor," David E. Shanahan, speaker of the house, said when informed of the action. "If the governor can veto parts of appropriation items without vetoing the entire item, or, in other words, if he can say just what amount each department shall receive, what is the necessity of having the legislature enact appropriation bills?"

"I was astonished at the court's failure to go into details or give any logical or legal reason for the decision," said John T. Denvir, state senator from the Nineteenth district. "The fact that the judge apparently sustained Gov. Dunne all the way through is also rather astonishing. It raises the question of the need of a legislature."

John A. Swanson, Republican senator from the Thirteenth district, said:

"There were logical grounds for question as to some of the items, but many of the appropriations declared invalid were approved as a matter of routine. They have been allowed for years."

"MOUNTAIN NYMPHS" ENJOY SOCIETY DANCE AT CAMP.

Girls Spending Summer in Colorado Entertain "Mere Man"—Chicago Woman Leader of Party.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 28.—Up in Colorado's Mountain Parnassus at Dixie lodge tonight man had a chance to peep at the "esthetic camp" where naught but girls in Greek robes—flowing, filmy ones—have dwelt this summer.

But the filmy robes were packed away and the mountain nymphs were garbed in the raiment of civilization. After indulging in esthetic thoughts and classic dances all season, they came back to earth, so to speak, and had a real modern society dance.

The leaders of the camp were Miss Charlotte Perry of Denver and Miss Portia Mansfield Swett of Chicago, and the members included: Misses Bernice Han of Maine; Margaret Miller, Grace Andrews, Ruth Sargent, Melvina Scoville, and Mrs. E. F. Andrews, Chicago; Marjorie Swett, New York; Charlotte Wheden, Lincoln, Neb.; Gladys Van Santf, Mildred Rogers, Omaha; Marion Crozier, Brookline, Mass., and Lucy Barber, Polo, Ill.

MAN WHO ATTACKED BISHOP WORRIED OVER KIN AT WAR.

Priest Had Lost Brother Who Was Serving as Private with French in Flanders.

Winona, Minn., Aug. 28.—Loss of his brother in the fighting with the French army in Flanders caused Father L. M. Lesches to worry and lose his health, causing him to fail on several appointments in the Winona diocese, according to Catholic circles here today.

The priest's brother was shot while serving as a private, which he became just a few months after being ordained a priest. The Winona priest brooded over that loss, his friends say, and his failures resulted in his shooting Bishop Patrick R. Heffron of the Winona diocese of the Roman Catholic church while the bishop was completing his chapel mass yesterday.

Father Lesches today was more composed. He said that he did not remember the events leading up to the shooting. Bishop Heffron was slightly improved today.

BEST RIFLE SHOTS TO COMPETE FOR 'TRIBUNE' TROPHY

Tenth Annual Shoot of State Association Will Be Held on Sept. 4, 5, and 6.

The Illinois State Rifle association will hold its tenth annual rifle and revolver matches in conjunction with the competition of the Illinois national guard on the state range at Camp Logan, near Zion City, commencing Saturday, Sept. 4, and continuing over Labor day.

The feature event will be THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE match, consisting of twenty shots at 1,000 yards. This event was won in 1914 by Capt. Edward Bittel of the First infantry, who will defend his title to the trophy in this competition.

The cup was presented to the Illinois State Rifle association in 1914 as a perpetual trophy for competition. The winner each year receives a gold medal and holds possession of the cup one year, and his name and score are inscribed on the trophy.

Other Trophies Offered.

Among the other trophies to be competed for in the various matches is the Col. S. E. Bliss trophy, valued at $1,000 and presented by Col. S. E. Bliss of Chicago. It is now held by the First infantry, I. N. G., and represents the regimental championship of the state.

The company team championship trophy, known as the Dieges & Clust trophy (bronze), is a set of figures representing the pioneer riflemen defending a stockage against Indians. This trophy is held by company D, First infantry, I. N. G., and represents the company team championship of the state.

The matches scheduled for competition are the Peters Cartridge company Tyro team match, open to teams of three men from any civilian rifle club or company of the national guard.

Match for Teams of Five.

A five-men company team match is scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 5, and teams of five men from each regiment in the state, selected by competition to represent their respective organizations, will compete for the state championship.

The regimental team championship will be held on Monday, Sept. 6.

The individual championship of Illinois is held by Maj. John V. Clinnin of the First infantry.

OPERA SEASON TO OPEN OCT. 4

Many Noted Singers Will Appear in Eight Performances.

TWO NEW OFFERINGS.

Chicago will have its grand opera, despite obstacles of the European war, for a short season beginning Oct. 4 at the Auditorium theater. Many of international renown will again be heard, despite heavy inroads made on Europe's galaxy of singers.

For the first time in twenty-six years America will be offered "mimo-dramatic" opera, the leading pantomimist being Pavlowa at the head of her imperial Russian ballet.

Only Eight Appearances.

The operatic schedule of only eight performances will be an engagement of the reorganized Boston Grand Opera company in conjunction with the famous Pavlowa organization. Among the illustrious names in the list of first principals who will be seen and heard in Chicago are Giovanni Zenatello, Felice Lyne, Ippolito Lazzaro, Gaudio Mansueto, Elvira Laveroni, Maria Gay, Maggie Teyte, Riccardo Martin, Jose Mardonnes, Luisa Villani, and George Baklanoff.

Chicago will have the distinction of witnessing the first performance of the much discussed opera, "L'Amore dei tre Re" ("The Love of Three Kings"). This was disclosed as part of the general plans on which Managers Wessels and Voegeli and Managing Director Max Rabinoff of New York are now at work.

To Hear New Opera.

In this city also will be introduced the remarkable, if unfamiliar, "mimo-dramatic" grand opera by Auber and Scribe, "The Dumb Girl of Portici."

SUFFRAGISTS TO PARADE NEXT SATURDAY—IN AUTOS.

Will Assemble at Grant Park and Then Drive to Mrs. Trout's Vote Garden at Oak Park.

A suffrage auto tour is planned for Saturday afternoon, Sept. 4, starting at Grant park. Owners of automobiles have been requested to donate their machines for the occasion and suffragists have received invitations to ride in them at a dollar a head. Chief Healey has promised a motorcycle guard.

After a tour of the parks and boulevards the passengers will assemble in Mrs. Grace Wilbur Trout's suffrage garden in Oak Park for coffee and sandwiches and a summer reunion.

MINISTERS HEAR BRYAN DELIVER PLEA FOR PEACE

Nebraskan Flails Preparedness for War; Speaks at Winona Lake, Ind.

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

Winona Lake, Ind., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Williams Jennings Bryan aroused a packed tabernacle tonight by his address on "The Causes of the War." In the audience were Dr. A. C. Dixon of London, Mme. Schumann-Heink, and "Billy" Sunday.

Dr. Dixon spoke yesterday with enthusiasm over England's intention and ability to carry on, if necessary, a fifteen year war. Mme. Schumann-Heink had intended to leave this evening for Chicago, but remained over expressly to hear Mr. Bryan.

"I have two enthusiasms," she said; "they are peace and my grandchildren."

Mr. Sunday made the prayer, in which he prayed for peace.

Bryan Fears Preparedness.

"Both sides in this war are violating our neutrality," Mr. Bryan said. "Neither is doing it to injure us, but the injury is incidental to their war on each other.

"The people of the United States will not bear the expense of preparation for war unless they think some nation is preparing to attack us. The preparation will stimulate a spirit of unfriendliness which in itself becomes a cause of war.

"Annihilation of either side of the combatants in the European war is neither probable nor desirable.

"The unwisdom of our going to war with either of the contending nations at this time would be the necessity of consulting other nations than the one directly involved before peace could be secured. We could not fight Germany without being involved in the terms of peace with her supporters. The same would be true if we fought England; we would have to consult her allies in making terms of peace.

"There is no difficulty in waiting for a peaceful adjustment of our difficulties until the war is over.

"If you want to know what would happen if we prepare for war imagine what would happen now if we had a jingo president in the White House. We ought to be thankful we have there a president who desires to keep us out of war."

Ministers Revel in Epigrams.

A grist of epigrams was uttered by the ministers at the Bible conference this morning. The Rev. James Whitcomb Brougher, pastor of the Temple Baptist church of Los Angeles, Cal., said:

"The difference between spurious and true religion is the difference between being whitewashed and being washed white."

"Some persons are so pious they wouldn't black their shoes on Sunday, but on Monday they go out and blacken some one's character. They won't shave themselves on Sunday, but they will shave a neighbor's note on Monday."

"Reputation is the glove, character is the hand; reputation is the clothes, character is the body. You can soil a person's reputation, but you cannot soil one's character."

It was announced by the Rev. S. C. Dickey, director of the conference, that the management would close the season free from debt as to current expenses without a public appeal for funds except the usual Sunday offering.

Why Should You Buy Ashes?

Every time you buy a ton of coal you waste a lot of money on material that will not burn up—that goes up your chimney in the form of soot, smoke or unburned gases, or is left in your firebox as ashes.

Why should you pay for this waste material—when there is a fuel which is practically 100% pure carbon, which burns up clean, making no soot and no smoke, thereby making it unnecessary for you to spend your Sunday mornings carrying out ashes, but leaves only a sprinkling of ashes, which you can carry out once or twice a year?

This remarkable fuel is called

PETROLEUM CARBON
THE ASHLESS FUEL

It is a solidified by-product of filtered crude oil. It is hotter than hard coal, cheaper per unit of heat, and leaves no ashes to bother with.

We suggest that you investigate Petroleum Carbon at once and get your supply before the fuel-buying rush starts. If you delay you may not be able to get your share.

POLICE UTTERLY BAFFLED IN CASE OF SLAIN PASTOR

No Nearer a Solution than They Were an Hour After the Body Was Found.

anything to do with the murder of Father Kayser.

"I don't believe that the man who wrote the letters committed the murder. I started into this case to eliminate one theory as the motive at a time. I eliminated robbery early. The woman story didn't stand up long. The Saxon Verein differences looked good until yesterday, but my investigations and the questioning of practically the entire parish has convinced me that the murderer of Father Kayser was a fanatic on the war question."

While the chief was questioning Hauptman today more light was thrown on the operations of the German secret agents in the United States by Otto Kraemer, an employé of the Ætna Powder company at Ætna, Ind., a few miles east of Gary. He told a story that involved indirectly the Rev. Mr. Kayser with the operations of the German propaganda in the United States.

Powder Mill Man's Story.

Kramer's story was first told several weeks ago and resulted in the increasing of the guard at the Ætna works and the erection of barbed wire entanglements which were charged with electricity. Kraemer, who is a German, told the following, but the powder works management looks on him as a loyal employé. He told the following story of the operations of men he believed were secret agents of the German government in the United States:

"I am in charge of the beater mill at the plant. Several days ago I came out of the plant one night and a man met me. I was carrying a German newspaper, and the man spoke to me in excellent German. He asked me about my opinion of the war. I am a German by birth and I told him that my sympathies were naturally with the German people. 'The German armies will never win this war unless we stop the exportation of explosives,' he said to me.

Comes a Second Time.

"He left, but the next day as I came out of the mill the same man met me and asked me to come and see a friend of his. He took me to the railroad depot in Miller, half a mile from Ætna. Here he joined a younger man, to whom he paid marked deference and who seemed to be some sort of a nobleman. This second man took no part in the conversation, but stood aside and listened.

"'I am a married man and have a family of children,' I told him. 'I could not go to fight even if I wanted to.'

"'We don't want you to go and fight. You can do more right here,' he said.

"'What do you want me to do?' I asked him.

"'We want you to stop the exportation of explosives by planting bombs in the Ætna Powder plant.'

Would Furnish Bombs.

"I told him I didn't know anything about bombs or how to set them off. 'That will be all right,' he told me. 'We will furnish the bombs and will show you how to use them.'

"'Who sent you to me,' I asked.

"The man winked. 'You know him; he is a friend of yours,' he said.

"I asked him what friend and he said: 'Your friend in Gary.' The first man I thought of was the Rev. Kayser. I knew he was connected with the German propaganda work and I have known him intimately for a long time. I did not ask the man's name, as I thought of no one else. The man continued:

"'Never mind. You do not need to know. We have the authority to make you this offer. We do not expect you to do it for nothing. We will give you $500.' I turned and started to walk away and the man called after me: 'Wait! We will give you $1,000.'

"I told the men to beat it," Kraemer continued. "Then they drove toward Gary in an automobile. The machine had an Illinois tag on it, but I couldn't make out the number in the dark. It was about 10 o'clock when they came. I have sympathies for Germany, but I wouldn't take part in anything like they suggested."

Kraemer's story was told to Chief Heintz when the incident occurred and several detectives were rushed to the powder works neighborhood, but no trace of the men was found. Since then Charles Martin, engineer in charge of the plant, says that precautions have been increased to safeguard the plant.

Victim of the Allies?

Some residents here frankly assert it as their belief that Kayser was the victim of a plot carried out by secret agents of the allies in the United States.

In proof of this assertion, Germans in Gary produced clippings from newspapers printed in Germany which told of a plot among the allied nations to silence pro-German agitation throughout the world. One clipping stated that $25,000,000 had been set aside to finance their political propaganda throughout the world. It further asserted that Count Witte, the Russian, was poisoned by agents of this organization. Jaures, the French Socialist, also was a victim of the system. Sir Roger Casement, the Irishman, has been marked for death.

The same persons who were in the Sarajevo plot, which resulted in the war, are said to be a part of the system.

Assassination of pro-German agitators in the United States is a part of the scheme, according to the article.

This information was supplied to THE TRIBUNE tonight by a man whose life has been threatened. He refused to permit the use of his name for fear he would be killed.

View of Former Mayor.

Former Mayor "Tom" Knotts of Gary, who knew Kayser quite well, said he believed that if the parson thought he could help the German cause in the United States by being a part of a spy system he would gladly join the movement.

Deputy Prosecutor Clyde Hunter said that he is still conducting a private investigation, but has not uncovered anything that will throw any light on the identity of the murderers or the motive.

He visited the residence and extracted the bullets from the wall. They were fired from a .38 caliber revolver and were lead, indicating that the weapon was not an automatic. Coroner Smith, however, contends that the bullets which were taken from the body were fired from a .32 caliber revolver.

The statements of the two officials indicate that at least two revolvers were brought into play.

It is pretty well established that the minister did not have a revolver in his house. Chief Heintz is convinced that he didn't. When he made application for a permit to carry a revolver he told the chief that he had not purchased one.

Gary is thick with private detectives. The offer of a reward by the German societies of Hammond and Gary brought all the rubber heel boys from Chicago to the mill city.

John Palandech, a Serbian editor of Chicago, came to Gary and started an investigation to determine if Serbians could have anything to do with the assassination of Parson Kayser.

"It is impossible to believe that the murder was committed by Serbians," he said. "The Serbians are peaceable and not inclined to murder or violence. They never would kill any one."

"Wasn't the grand duke of Austria killed by a Serbian?" he was asked.

"Well, they only go after the big ones."

RYAN WILL NOT SUSPEND HONOR SYSTEM AT JOLIET.

Acting Warden Declines Advice of President of Illinois Civil Service Commission.

Acting Warden Lawrence Ryan of Joliet penitentiary will not accept the advice of James H. Burdett, president of the Illinois civil service commission, which is to suspend the "honor system" at the prison until "things have quieted down."

"I do not propose to abolish the system," said Mr. Ryan over the telephone last night. "It is not the fault of the system that prisoners have escaped. The honor camps are as orderly as ever."

The civil service board will meet in Joliet on Monday to consider the case of Guard Schwartz, who was in charge of the squad from which two convicts escaped more than a week ago. It is regarded as probable that an inquiry may be made into the later escapes.

The prison commission, composed of Congressman Ira C. Copley, Col. John Lambert, and James A. Patten, has decided that the 500 honor convicts shall be employed in the construction of the new penitentiary buildings, which are to cost $3,500,000.

ANOTHER CRIME MYSTERY STIRS POLICE AT GARY

Baker Now Believed Murdered Who Was Thought Victim of Drowning.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Gary, Ind., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Another murder mystery confronts the Gary police tonight.

Detectives, both professional and amateur, who have labored in vain since Tuesday night for a clew as to the identity of the slayer of the Rev. Edmund A. H. Sayser, have set to work on a new case that promises as many sensational disclosures and puzzling features as that of the slain German pastor.

Theodore Rocoff, a wealthy Macedonian baker and real estate owner of Gary, was the victim. According to a story told the police by Mrs. H. H. Ballard of 3900 Washington street, Rocoff was strangled by three men in the lake at Miller beach before a crowd of 3,000 bathers on Aug. 1. The coroner's records show Rocoff was drowned.

Story of Rocoff's Death.

This is the story as gathered from Mrs. Ballard, friends of the supposed victim, and court records:

Rocoff was one of the wealthiest foreigners in Gary. He came here seven years ago and built up a successful bakery business and more than doubled his profits by investing them wisely in real estate. About two months ago the baker was sued in the Superior court of Lake county for $50,000 damages for alleged alienation of the affections of the wife of Daniel Sterljk. Rocoff claimed Sterljk had come to him and demanded money before the suit was filed and claimed that the court action was an attempt to extort money from him.

On Aug. 1 Mrs. Ballard and her 22 year old son, Hugh, were bathing at Miller beach. They saw Rocoff in the water nearly shoulder deep. Young Ballard saw three foreigners approach the baker and begin wrestling with him. At first he thought they were playing, but then he saw one of the men clutch Rocoff by the throat and thrust him under the water. Another of the trio kicked him.

Goes to Rescue Too Late.

Young Ballard swam to where the struggle was taking place and was attacked by Rocoff's assailants. He managed to push them aside and dragged Rocoff unconscious from the water as the three fled out on the beach. With the aid of other bathers Ballard carried Rocoff to shore, where 3,000 bathers gathered around the body. Rocoff was dead. It was testified at the inquest that his face was black and that his tongue protruded. Strangulation was given as the cause of death, but no one testified that human hands and not water had choked out his life.

Young Ballard did not tell his mother of what he had seen until they reached home. If any of the other bathers had witnessed the struggle they kept silent.

The young man's story was told in the presence of his mother and his sister, Mrs. Jessie Lambert. The next day he left Gary to go to work in the steel mills at Duluth, so he was not present at the inquest. Mrs. Ballard also left the city to visit friends. She did not return home until yesterday. Then she learned that a verdict of accidental death had been returned. Believing that justice should be done she came to the police with her story.

Carried $15,000 Insurance.

It was learned that Rocoff carried $15,000 in insurance policies. They were found in a strong box following his death and turned over to his brother, Janko Rocoff.

As Miller Beach is not in the jurisdiction of the Gary police, Chief Pontus Heintz has turned the investigation over to Sheriff Henry Whitaker of Crown Point, who tomorrow will question members of the Ballard family. In the meanwhile the police here are keeping certain persons who may prove valuable witnesses under surveillance. It is possible the body may be exhumed. At any rate, the inquest probably will be reopened. An attempt will be made to bring young Ballard from Duluth to testify.

RICE ABOARD BRIDAL LINER ENOUGH TO FEED BELGIANS.

Panama-Pacific Steamship, Laden with Honeymooners, Leaves Amid Kisses, Embraces, and Tears.

New York, Aug. 28.—[Special.]—The Panama-Pacific liner Kroonland carried so many bridal couples when it set out for San Francisco this morning that enough rice was wasted on the pier to have fed eight Belgian families all winter. Such blushing, giggling, kissing, and weeping as went on at the gangplank has not been observed around there for months, nor so many bridegrooms looking foolish and trying to make it appear that they were enjoying the sendoff.

There were 175 cabin passengers aboard and 150 intermediate. The Kroonland will go by way of the canal.

Miss Florence Redfield, the 16 year old daughter of the secretary of the interior, is making the trip alone to take in the fair.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 28.—Announcement was made today of the sale by Frank A. Munsey of the Baltimore News and the Munsey building to Stuart Olivier, who has been general manager of Mr. Munsey's Baltimore interests for the last eight years. It is understood that the transaction involved an amount in the neighborhood of $4,000,000.

DRIVE MEN FROM MARIETTA.

Citizens of Town Near Which Frank Was Hung Suspicious of Strangers—8 Forced to Leave.

Marietta, Ga., Aug. 28.—Feeling against strangers who cannot give a satisfactory explanation of their presence here reached a high pitch today, and several strangers were warned to leave.

Eight men, who were unknown to the residents, were escorted to the railroad tracks late last night, put into a box car, and advised not to get out until they had left Marietta far behind. They didn't.

OPPOSES "TRIBUNE" STAND ON THE FRANK LYNCHING.

Memphis Real Estate Association Says Paper Has Been Unfair to People of South.

THE TRIBUNE yesterday received the following telegram:

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 28.—President Chicago Tribune Company, Chicago, Ill.: The following is transmitted to you for your consideration and is self-explanatory:

Whereas, A recent notorious outbreak of lawlessness in a southern state on the part of a few men, which action met with the stern condemnation of the south as a whole, has given excuse to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for a vituperative attack on the people of the entire south; and,

Whereas, This attack is malicious, uncalled for, and totally without sense or reason; and,

Whereas, The south shares with the state particularly unfortunate in having this crime committed within her borders the deepest regret that such an outbreak took place, and believes that Georgia, even as her northern sisters have done under circumstances equally as distressing, is utilizing her best efforts to vindicate her good name; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the members of the Memphis Real Estate association, condemn this unwarranted attack on the part of the newspaper on our neighboring city and express to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and to the Chicago public our strong condemnation of this wanton slander, knowing as we do of the desire of this section for obedience to the law and its wish for natural resultant moral, educational, and commercial growth; be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be transmitted to every real estate board in the national association, to the owners and to the editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and to the Chicago real estate board with the request that the members of the Chicago real estate board, being so closely affiliated with the southern boards in the national association, personally express to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE their disapproval of such unwarranted methods.

Adopted at special meeting Friday, Aug. 27, 1915.

EDWARD MCCORMACK,
Executive Secretary.
JOHN M. DEAN,
President.

MOOSE MAKE FIRST ANNUAL TRIP TO MOOSEHEART TODAY

More than 10,000 Members and Families Will Attend Pilgrimage and Hear Mayor Speak.

The Loyal Order of Moose will make its first annual pilgrimage to Mooseheart, on the banks of the Fox river, today. It is estimated that 10,000 or more members with their families and friends will attend the event.

Edward McGuire, chairman of the general committee, stated that the attendance will exceed expectations of the committee in charge.

Mr. McGuire, with Edward A. Denney, Dr. Harrison G. Champlin, E. W. Ryan, Deputy National Director W. F. Gailing, J. M. Ames, and Lieut. A. W. Soukup, have completed all arrangements.

Mayor Thompson will be among the speakers, invitations also having been extended to Lieut. Gov. Barratt O'Hara, County Treasurer Stuckart, County Clerk Sweitzer, Sheriff Traeger, Mayor Jones of Blue Island, and Rodney H. Brandon, secretary and treasurer of Mooseheart.

FACTORY
PIANO SALE

Through our UNLIMITED CAPITAL and RESOURCES we are ONCE MORE able to announce to the PUBLIC ONE of the GREATEST and MOST GIGANTIC PIANO SALES in the HISTORY of CHICAGO. The FACTORY HAD the PIANOS. WE HAD the MONEY and it was PRACTICALLY IMPOSSIBLE for them to FURTHER CONTINUE the OPERATION of THEIR FACTORY on account of the PRESENT WAVE of FINANCIAL DISTURBANCE in AMERICA, which, WE think, is caused by the European war. NOW you can IMAGINE what a PRESSURE WE were able to put on THIS FACTORY. WE BOUGHT PRACTICALLY the ENTIRE OUTPUT at OUR OWN PRICE, and, as the OLD saying goes, "WHAT is ONE MAN'S LOSS is another MAN'S GAIN," which you KNOW is ABSOLUTELY TRUE. We cannot quote the maker's name in this advertisement. It would positively ruin them.

NOW the FACT is, that OUR STORE is PRACTICALLY FILLED with OUR REGULAR STOCK, and, BEING OPTIMISTIC, we TOOK this GREAT SAVING CHANCE BELIEVING that the PRICES and TERMS will DISPOSE of this MAMMOTH STOCK IN A VERY SHORT TIME.

DURING THIS SALE you can save from $100 to $150 on a MEDIUM GRADE PIANO and from $150 to $250 on a HIGH GRADE PIANO.

Enger Twin Six

12 Cylinders

$1095
12 Cylinders

Here is a twelve cylinder motor car for only $1095!
It has a 2⅝ inch bore by a 3½ inch stroke.
It is of the highly efficient valve-in-the-head type.
The cylinders are set at an angle of sixty degrees.
It has an unusually long wheelbase—115 inches.
Demonstrations are going on at the factory now.
Come down and drive the Enger Twin Six yourself.
Wire, without further delay, for your appointment.

We Want Dealers Everywhere

Here is undoubtedly the world's nearest approach to perfect efficiency in an automobile.

Pick out the smoothest and most quiet car that you have ever driven, and against it the Enger Twin Six is better than twice as smooth; better than twice as quiet.

Here you have a faster pick up; greater flexibility and a more perfectly balanced flow of abundant power.

Step on the throttle and instantaneously you sail from a standing start to racing speed.

All vibration and noise have been completely eliminated.

In short, here is a degree of silence, speed and power which cannot be obtained in anything but a Twelve Cylinder car.

And the price is only $1095!

Understand, when we put a car on the market we stand behind it just as Packard or Ford would. We have the financial strength to back this up. We have just as much at stake. Our reputation is just as valuable. Refer to Dun or Bradstreet and you'll probably be surprised to find that we have the same rating as Packard and Ford.

This model is the direct result of a long period of careful preparation, designing, testing and experimenting.

Nor are we announcing a car, as many other manufacturers have done, that is only in the blue print stage.

Production is already under way.

We are tuned up and tooled up to do business.

Material has been purchased for a large production.

Demonstrators can be delivered to dealers in a few weeks. Cars in quantities will follow shortly.

Price $1095 f. o. b. Cincinnati

But first we are allotting territory. We want substantial and financially sound dealers in every city.

We have a marketable product, which we can start deliveries on shortly and are in a position to do immediate business with responsible men.

We start allotting territory Monday, August 30th. So immediate action on your part is essential.

Nor is the sole feature of this car the twelve cylinder motor. We have not taken an old chassis and body and dropped a new motor in it.

This model is a brand new design from start to finish.

The body design is patterned after the $3000 designs. Here you have real stream lines—no sharp edges—every corner perfectly rounded. Taste, grace and harmony is displayed throughout.

This smart model is finished in dark Brewster green.

It's a beauty!

Remember—a thoroughly high grade twelve cylinder car for only $1095!

Come down and drive this car yourself.

Quick action is imperative if you want early deliveries. Telegraph us now.

50% of the Proceeds From These Films Will Be Given to the Blinded and Crippled Soldiers' Fund

Official agreement to this effect was made and official permission then was granted to Edwin F. Weigle to accompany the German-Austrian armies to the Russian, the Italian and the French frontiers.

FIVE REELS OF SENSATIONAL MOTION PICTURES

Taken by Edwin F. Weigle, Tribune Staff Photographer

These superb films follow hot on the heels of news dispatches. They are brought to Chicago by Edwin F. Weigle, who has just returned from war-swept Europe, where he spent months with the vast Teuton armies. Mr. Weigle's films are masterpieces of motion photography. They go "close up" to the troops and the Kaiser himself.

Intimate views are presented, showing how Germany's war machine copes with its enemies—how deadly machine guns fire 600 shots a minute—how huge 30 centimeter pieces are dragged into position. See these guns discharged! See the havoc they wrought at Przemysl. See the complete advance and the recapture of Przemysl.

Then You Are Transplanted to the Italian Frontier

—to the Austrian fighting men pulling the terrible guns up into the mountain fastnesses—to a machine gun battery stationed on one of the perilous peaks of the Tyrolean Alps.

Here the photography is at its best—the pictures clear as sunlight—the views of tremendous scope and power. The long-distance views were taken with The Tribune's Special War Camera, equipped with powerful telephoto lens, bringing happenings a quarter of a mile away up close—seemingly at a distance of only a few feet!

'BIG BUSINESS' IN TEACHERS' FIGHT, SAYS LABOR MAN

Secretary Nockels of Federation of Labor Attacks Senate Inquiry and Loeb Rule.

MAYOR STANDS BY THE BOARD

Denunciations and replies are becoming so numerous in the battle between the Chicago Teachers' federation and its enemies that they attract little attention. Edward Nockels, secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor, started the ball rolling yesterday by declaring that the Loeb resolution and the state senate committee investigation were both intended as attacks on organized labor.

"Members of the Baldwin committee are holding secret meetings daily," declared Mr. Nockels, "and are laying their plans and conferring with future witnesses in their campaign against the Teachers' federation and organized labor. If the Loeb rules pass there will be a lockout of those teachers who refuse to surrender their memberships. The attack on the Teachers' federation is being directed by the interests of big business."

"Untrue," Says Attorney Stein.

Jacob M. Loeb, author of the proposed rules, refused to comment on Mr. Nockels' remarks, but Myer J. Stein, attorney for the Baldwin senate investigating committee, issued this formal statement:

"The charge has been made that the committee is holding secret sessions for the purpose of 'framing' against organized labor and the Teachers' federation. This charge is made by one of three men who attempted at one time to browbeat the committee and intimidate the senators in order to accomplish certain ulterior purposes.

"Nothing can be further from the truth. It is true that some twenty detectives, half a dozen auditors and efficiency experts, and a legal staff are working to secure facts relative to the management of the public schools. These men are conferring daily at the committee's headquarters. Obviously, from their nature, these conferences are private; but every bit of evidence obtained will be made public at the proper time."

Thompson for Board Rule.

Mayor William Hale Thompson arrived in Chicago yesterday morning and again announced himself as strongly opposed to "the Chicago Teachers' federation or any other organization that interferes with the education of the children of Chicago."

"The Teachers' federation most certainly has interfered with the education of the children," declared the mayor. "Let me say right here that the matter is one for the school board, and that I am opposed to any interference in school matters. As long as I am mayor, however, I shall do my best to see to it that the money appropriated by the taxpayers for education is expended for education, and not for the benefit of the teachers' federation. The school board, not the teachers' federation, should run the schools."

When told that the Chicago Federation of Labor and President John Walker of the Illinois Federation of Labor had declared their intention to support the teachers in the fight, Mayor Thompson said:

"That doesn't frighten me a bit. I am a strong believer in labor union principles; but the conduct of the teachers' federation, or rather of its leaders, is not to be tolerated."

Whom Mayor Thompson will appoint to occupy the seven positions on the board to be refilled still remains a mystery. Despite the mayor's announcement that he opposed the activities of the federation, it is believed that John A. Metz, recognized as the labor member on the board and an enemy of the Loeb measure, will be reappointed.

Mrs. Severin Gives Views.

Mrs. William Severin, who has been mentioned several times as a possible appointee to the board, declared yesterday that she was oposed to the teachers' federation as at present organized.

"The federation was organized to inspire the teachers to better work in the educational field," said Mrs. Severin, "and it did its work years ago. I am sorry that the federation has become so closely allied with the labor party. It seems to me that the board of education should shield the younger teachers from the intimidation practiced by the federation. It is not healthy to have these new instructors in fear of any organization."

Peterson for Loeb Idea.

Another vote was added to the list of those who are expected to vote for the Loeb rules yesterday. Charles S. Peterson, chairman of the finance committee, announced that he was opposed to the federation.

"I believe in labor unions," said Mr. Peterson, "to protect the employé from the unfair employer, but in public business this is not necessary. The Loeb resolution is rather sweeping, but I believe in its substance and will vote for it."

Supporters of the Loeb measure now claim eleven sure votes, with three doubtful. Of these three they expect to secure at least one.

Miss Haley to Speak.

Margaret Haley will break her period of silence this afternoon at a meet- of silence this afternoon at a meeting in the labor hall at 175 West Washington street. The meeting will be one of delegates from Chicago unions, and it is expected that these delegates will formally announce themselves supporters of Miss Haley and her organization.

Boy Attempts to Take Auto.

Frederick Thunberg, 19 years old, 4328 North Central Park avenue, was taken to the Central station yesterday after he is said to have attempted to steal an automobile owned by Edward Rosenthal from in front of 211 West Randolph street. Mr. Rosenthal said he saw the youth get into the machine and try to start it. The boy left the Elgin Asylum for the Insane a month ago.

Auto Takes Look at Police Feet and Stampedes

Evanston Assistant Chief Shafer Has to Go Back to Pounding Pavement.

SQUAD RESCUES HIM

A couple of weeks ago or so Chief of Police Charles W. Leggett of Evanston sat in his official chair thinking.

"Fred," finally said the chief, "its pretty slow work covering the city on foot isn't it?"

Assistant Chief of Police Frederick Shafer laid down a handbill advising all policemen to be on the lookout for "Sandusky Red."

The Light Roadster.

"I have been thinking," began the chief again, "that it would be to the mutual advantage of the chief and assistant chief, if the police department were supplied with a light roadster."

The assistant chief looked down at his feet. He thought of the nights that were long and dismal when he was compelled to trudge from one end of Evanston to the other men to keep tab on the patrolmen. to the other to keep tab on the patrolmen.

The Roadster Arrives.

WHERE'LL I PUT IT CHIEF?

Yesterday came. So did the roadster. Shafer saw it before he had hardly turned the corner at Davis street. There it stood—glossy as ebony, garnished in glittering brass, and as proud as a sore thumb.

Shafer immediately appointed the roadster the patron saint of feet.

"Can you run her all right, Fred?" inquired the chief.

"Sure," said Fred.

The Climbing Roadster.

The story that a sneak thief once tried to steal one of Shafer's feet under the gentle misapprehension that it was a suit case probably is not true.

He stepped into the car, sat down, and took hold of the wheel. The motor was buzzing busily and the assistant chief pressed down on the clutch with his foot. There was a temporary lull of creaking machinery, an ominous groan of gears, and the roadster stood straight up on its hind legs and clawed wildly at a tree just over the curb.

Mr. Shafer hung on for dear life. The chief and a squad of men came running.

"Hold her!" yelled Shafer.

They eased the panting brute down to the street, and the chief made an examination. Then he let loose of a startled exclamation.

Feet Cover All.

"Lift up your foot, Fred," he commanded.

The assistant chief did so.

"Good Lord!" exclaimed the chief. "I thought so. Your foot's so gosh darn big you pressed down all the levers at once. Wonder it didn't climb a tree."

Fred got out and looked down at his feet. He's using them now for the purpose for which they were created.

ADMIT NEGRO TO CAMP.

Col. John R. Marshall Will Attend Fort Sheridan Army School.

Col. John J. Marshall, negro officer formerly in command of the Eighth regiment, Illinois national guard, will be a member of the Fort Sheridan army camp. His application, along with nineteen others, was approved yesterday by Col. D. A. Frederick.

A movement begun last spring to form a reserve corps of engineers to be available in case of war has assumed definite form, according to an announcement made by Bion J. Arnold. The members of the committee are William Barclay Parsons, New York; Henry S. Drinker, Pennsylvania; William H. Wiley, New York; Bion J. Arnold, Illinois; Ralph D. Morshon, New York.

MASON TO HEAR SHIP CLAIMS

U. S. Commissioner to Decide on Legality of Petitions for Eastland Damage.

Judge Landis appointed United States Commissioner Lewis F. Mason yesterday a commissioner to hear all damage claims against the St. Joseph-Chicago Steamship company arising out of the listing and overturning of the Eastland at its dock July 24. It will be Mr. Mason's duty to listen to all claims, decide upon their legality, and report to the District court. Judge Landis' appointment of a commissioner is the result of a petition filed Aug. 17 by the steamship company asking that its liability in connection with the tragedy be limited.

Runaway Boys Caught.

Raymond Buskirk, 16 years old, and Charles Oesterle, 15 years old, who ran away from their homes in Jackson, Mich., were taken to the annex of the Stock Yards police station yesterday when found on the Grand Trunk railroad tracks. They said they rode to Chicago on the "bumpers" of a freight train.

JOHN D. LONG, M'KINLEY NAVY CHIEF, IS DEAD

Sea Secretary Who Directed U. S. Fleets in the Spanish War Succumbs in East.

FORCED TO RETURN HOME.

Hingham, Mass., Aug. 28.—John D. Long, former secretary of the navy, and former governor of Massachusetts, died at his home here tonight.

Mr. Long's death was generally unexpected. He returned from a trip to Maine two days ago, suffering from an intestinal trouble with which he had been afflicted for several years. He was ordered to rest by his physicians, but reports that his condition was critical were denied.

Sent Dewey Into Action.

John D. Long was secretary of the navy during the Spanish-American war. It was he who is on record as having dispatched the famous message of April 25, 1898, to Commodore George Dewey, commanding the Asiatic squadron, then awaiting orders at Hongkong. The message read:

"War has commenced between Spain and the United States. Proceed at once at the Philippine islands. Capture or destroy the Spanish ships. Use the utmost endeavor."

It was on the sixth day after the receipt of these orders that Dewey reported his great victory in the battle of Manila bay. As to the message which had thus sent the fleet into action Secretary Long once said:

"My name was at the bottom. Glorious dispatch! I should rather like to have the credit of it. But it was not mine.

Written by Obscure Subordinate.

"I directed Chief Crowninshield of the bureau of navigation to have such a dispatch made ready. But Crowninshield did not write it. Who prepared it? Some subordinate clerk in his bureau. Who? God only knows. As for me, I should not have used the word 'commenced.' I should have said 'the war has begun.' Aside from that, it is a mighty good message. I think we can pardon that word. The dispatch came in to me. I took it to the president, saying to him: 'Mr. President, I think this ought to go.' He said: 'All right. Sign it.'"

Mr. Long was called to head the navy department when President McKinley took office in March, 1897, and also served a year in the cabinet of President Roosevelt.

Barred Beer in Navy.

In addition to directing the navy during the war with Spain, the official acts of Secretary Long included the placing of thousands of navy employés under the civil service rules and the prohibition of the sale of beer on naval vessels.

Mr. Long was born in Buckfield, Me., in 1838, the son of a prosperous business man, but his own predilection was for law and politics. Settled in Boston after his graduation from Harvard, he served four terms in the state legislature; was three terms speaker of the house; was lieutenant governor, and in 1879 defeated Gen. Benjamin F. Butler, the Democratic candidate for governor, by a plurality of 13,000. He was twice reëlected with large pluralities, and sent to congress for three terms. There he formed a warm personal regard for McKinley.

SWEDEN SENDS DELEGATES TO ENGINEERS' CONVENTION.

Following Meeting in Chicago Next Month Many Visitors Will Make Trip to Panama Canal.

Engineering problems will be discussed at the first convention of the Swedish Engineering Association of the United States at the Hotel La Salle, beginning Sept. 9 and closing with a banquet on Sept. 11. A large number of the leading engineers of Sweden will be delegates and guests.

The association has 400 members, 300 of them in Chicago and the middle west. There will also be a large eastern delegation. Mayor Thompson has been invited to make the address of welcome. An informal dinner will be given the delegates at the Swedish club.

During the convention the delegates will visit the Gary steel works, the stockyards, large electrical plants, and other places of interest to engineers. A. P. Rissler of Chicago is president of the association and W. A. F. Ekengren, Swedish minister to the United States, is honorary president.

At the close of the convention a large number of delegates, including visitors from Sweden, will leave for a visit to the Panama canal.

REGAINS SIGHT, HEARING, AND SPEECH IN STATION.

"Lock Him Up" Order Acts as Wonderful Cure in Case of Structural Iron Worker.

A supposed deaf, dumb, and blind man was made to hear, talk, and see by the Central police yesterday. He is Charles Clark, Cleveland, O., a former structural iron worker. Policeman Frank Weimer saw Clark feel his way along State street with a cane and stop at Madison street and blow a whistle. He motioned for the policeman to assist him across the crowded street. Weimer assisted him to Central station. There a card which read, "I am deaf, dumb, and blind, please help me," was found inside his hat.

When Sergt. Patrick Brady shouted "lock him up," he heard. Then he opened his supposed sightless eyes and spoke.

"Be easy on me," he said. "I can see, and I'm not deaf and dumb. I've been sick and I had to quit the structural iron work."

A Stove, a Wallop on Head, Lost Case; A Constable Quits

Mr. D. Cohn of Maywood Does Not Admire Militant Women.

HE MEETS A COUPLE

A woman yesterday caused the resignation of the Maywood canstabulary.

The constabulary is David Cohn, and when he isn't constabling he's getting members for suit clubs.

Her name is Mrs. Mary Perrin of 215 South Ninth avenue, Maywood, and she lambasted his head with a club.

Cohn and A. Freed, a Maywood furniture dealer, clattered up to the Perrin home in Freed's van. On the sidewalk stood a stove.

Beside it were Joseph Mandalee and Jacob Goldschmidt, movers. Their van was at the curb waiting for the Perrin household goods which burdened the sidewalk.

And the Row Starts.

"Mr. Freed has obtained a replevin writ for that stove; he says you haven't paid for it," spoke Constable Cohn.

"You have no right to take it away without giving me a trial in court," asserted Mrs. Perrin.

Cohn moved towards the stove. Mrs. Perrin bent quickly and lifted a baseball bat from a pile of clothing. She raised it on high and let it fall on low—the bent head of Constable Cohn.

He sprawled on the walk. Then he raised himself to a sitting position, his eyes wide. Suddenly he threw himself flat again and rolled over into the street, where he jumped erect.

"Go for the chief, Freed!" he cried.

The Chief Arrives.

Freed jumped into his wagon and giddapped his horse. A few minutes later the vehicle galloped back with Chief of Police Louis Sweeney. The furniture dealers had gone.

"Has he the right to take my stove?" asked Mrs. Perrin.

"He has," said the chief. "Mr. Freed has a replevin writ. You'll have your trial later."

"All right. They can take the stove."

Freed beckoned to the constable, who recrossed the road and helped the furniture man hoist the stove into Freed's van.

"You're not a gentleman, constable," remarked Mrs. Mary Poule, next door neighbor to Mrs. Perrin.

He Arrests Woman.

Constable Cohn immediately arrested her for disorderly conduct.

In the afternoon Mrs. Poule was arraigned before Police Magistrate Fred W. Seymour. Chief Sweeney testified in her favor.

"The defendant is discharged," said the magistrate.

Constable Cohn raised himself erect.

"I get a dollar every time I serve a writ," he announced to the courtroom. "I serve about two or three writs a week. It doesn't pay to get beat up by them Amazons. Here and now I resign."

BILL ALLEGES MOORHOUSE IGNORED A LOWEST BIDDER.

Seeks to Restrain City from Proceeding with Contract for Pumping Machinery.

A bill for an injunction restraining the city of Chicago from entering into or proceeding with a contract with William A. Pope for the furnishing of machinery for the Sixty-eighth street pumping station was filed yesterday by Jean A. Johnson as a tax payer. The bill sets forth that when bids for this machinery were submitted they were as follows:

William A. Pope	$85,955
William A. Pope [alternate bid]	84,325
A. S. Cameron Steam Pump Works	92,106
Allis Chalmers Manufacturing company	86,250
De Laval Steam Turbine company	80,000

It is asserted that the bid of the De Laval Steam Turbine company was the lowest and best bid submitted and that the contract should have been awarded to it. However, according to the bill, the bid of this company was marked "informal" by William R. Moorhouse, commissioner of public works, who therefore refused to consider the proposal.

TRAIL MAN WITH AD FOR GIRL

Government Agents Unable to Locate Contractor Who Wants "Companion for Daughter."

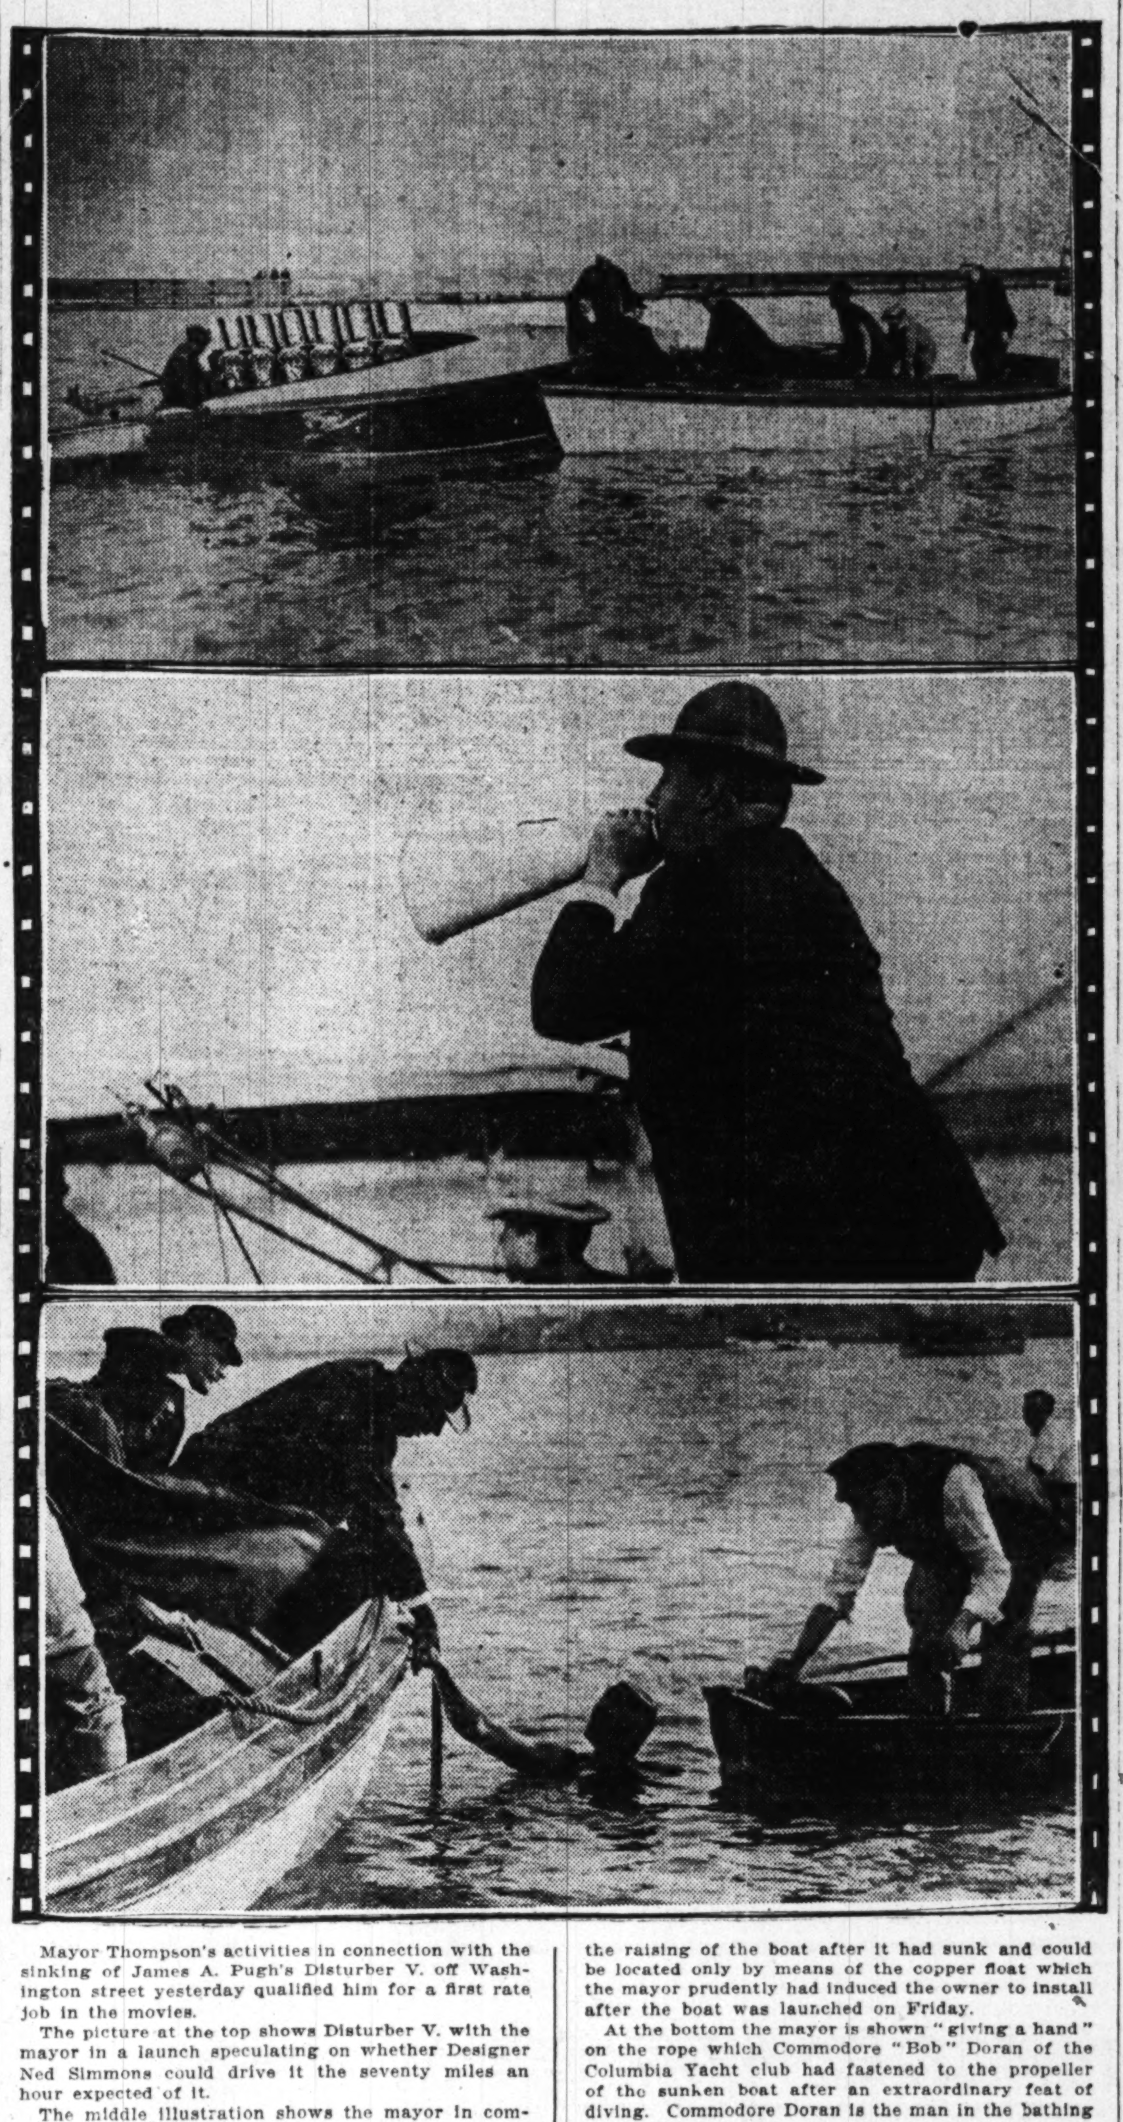
The government is on the trail of a man who advertises for a young woman companion for his invalid daughter. Complaints have been made to District Attorney Charles F. Clyne by three girls who answered the man's advertisements. He is said to be Edmond L. Burleigh, a contractor, living in Austin. Women detectives and special agents of the bureau of investigation working on the case reported yesterday they have been unable to locate Burleigh in that suburb. His scheme is, according to the complainants, to induce the applicants to travel with him to Denver or some other remote point from Chicago, where his supposed invalid daughter is represented to be sojourning. Burleigh is said invariably to meet the applicants in some downtown hotel lobby.

SCHWAB TO MAKE "DIVERS?"

Becomes Interested with Submarine Boat Makers, Is Report—Has $75,000,000 Order.

New York, Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Charles M. Schwab, according to a statement made in Wall street today, has become identified with the submarine boat corporation which is to be successor to the Electric Boat company, and will turn over the contracts for the $75,000,000 submarine order from China to that corporation. The boats will be constructed under the Holland patent.

MAYOR THOMPSON REAL MOVIE HERO.



Mayor Thompson's activities in connection with the sinking of James A. Pugh's Disturber V. off Washington street yesterday qualified him for a first rate job in the movies.

The picture at the top shows Disturber V. with the mayor in a launch speculating on whether Designer Ned Simmons could drive it the seventy miles an hour expected of it.

The middle illustration shows the mayor in command of the volunteer rescue fleet giving orders for the raising of the boat after it had sunk and could be located only by means of the copper float which the mayor prudently had induced the owner to install after the boat was launched on Friday.

At the bottom the mayor is shown "giving a hand" on the rope which Commodore "Bob" Doran of the Columbia Yacht club had fastened to the propeller of the sunken boat after an extraordinary feat of diving. Commodore Doran is the man in the bathing suit in the water.

JAIL MAN WHO CAN'T PAY DEBT

Court Invokes Old Law in Case of Chicago Contractor.

"Imprisonment for debt!" exclaimed Nels Neilsen, who is a building contractor and lives at 5940 Broadway. "Imprisonment for debt. I can't believe it."

"Tonight at midnight, Friday, Aug. 27, 1915," persisted the deputy sheriff. "Just get into your clothes and come to the county jail. I've got a capias ad respondem."

So Nielsen spent the night and part of yesterday at the county jail, until somebody put up a bond for $1,900.

Attorney Invokes Law.

It was Attorney Cameron Latter who caused Neilsen's arrest. As counsel for Mortensen and Mickelsen, a building material firm at 1343 East Seventieth street, he sued Neilsen for $1,854.98.

Then Mr. Latter went before Judge Stough in the Superior court and showed a petition setting forth that Neilsen had obtained goods from the material company by fraud and misrepresentation.

Mr. Latter asserted he believed the man would be unable to pay a judgment if one were returned, and therefore he asked that a capias ad respondem, as provided by common law and the Illinois statute, be issued.

Second in Five Years.

"This is the second time a capias ad respondem has been taken out in five years," said the attorney.

"Imprisonment for debt is wrong where the debt has been incurred honorably, but it is right where goods have been bought by misrepresentation."

Michael Mickelsen, a member of the material firm, went to the county jail yesterday and paid $3.50 for a week's board for Neilsen.

"He won't be able to pay the judgment which we're sure to get," Mr. Mickelsen stated, "and for six months after the judgment is returned I'll be paying my 50 cents a day to keep him locked up. That's the term of the sentence."

BURNELL, AFTER OPERATION, NO LONGER WANTS TO DIE.

Man Found Smoking After Desperate Suicide Attempt Goes Under Knife for Chronic Melancholia.

John Calvin Burnell, the aged advertising manager of the American Brewers' Review, who tried to end his life a week ago last Thursday and was found calmly smoking and reading the next day with three bullet wounds in his head, doesn't want to die after all—and doctors say he won't.

A few days ago Dr. Gilbert H. Wynekoop made an examination and discovered a chronic ailment whoich had caused melancholia. An operation was performed on Thursday, and Burnell is now able to sit up.

"I want to get well now," said Burnell. "I'm thankful that twentieth century medical science has given me a new lease on life. I feel like a different person."

GET LICENSE; DENY WEDDING

Son of Wealthy Milwaukeean Finds Bride Whose Name Is Not in Blue Book.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Larence R. Adams, 22 years old, and Miss Lillian Zunker, 18 years old, who obtained a license to wed in Chicago today, were back in Milwaukee tonight and each denied the marriage had taken place. The young man is the son of William R Adams, auditor of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company. The name of the girl does not appear in Milwaukee's blue book. Her father is Gottlieb Zunker, a laborer. Silence was maintained by the families. Young Adams was at the home of Miss Zunker tonight. Her trunk is all packed for the honeymoon and this is to be spent in Chicago next week with her relatives, it was said.

Alleges Subway Damage.

Charging that their property had been damaged by the construction of a subway under the tracks of the St. Paul railway, the Runzel-Lenz Electric Manufacturing company, 1751 North Western avenue, filed suit in the Circuit court for $20,000 damages against the city of Chicago.

INQUEST ON BOY; POISON, RUMOR

Coroner Stirred by Gossip Enemy of Charles Daley Took Revenge on Son.

Gossip, it was said yesterday has been the means of upsetting Melrose Park to the point where a post-mortem has been ordered to dissipate the rumors that 5 year old Jack Daley was the victim of poison at the hands of "an enemy."

The boy's parents denied there was any enemy of the family whose malice resulted in the child's death.

"Little Jack came home in the afternoon feeling badly," said Mrs. Daley. "He had been eating green apples. His symptoms grew worse, and I summoned physicians. They diagnosed the case as that of cholera morbus. Jack passed away in terrible agony."

The body was placed in the family vault at Mt. Carmel on Aug. 6. Later ugly rumors floated about that some enemy of Mr. Daley's had been seen to give the lad some candy which, it was suspected, was poisoned. This was denied. H. P. Weismann, a Melrose Park undertaker, asked Coroner Hoffman to make an investigation to silence the rumors, and in compliance with this request an inquest will be held at the cemetery on Tuesday. Meanwhile Dr. William D. McNally, coroner's chemist, is making an analysis.

QUAKER TROOPS HERE TODAY

For the first time since the civil war, armed troops of another state will parade the loop district today, when the Second regiment of the Pennsylvania National Guard will march from the La Salle Street station at 12:30 p. m. to the Union station, where they take a Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul special train for San Francisco. It was necessary to get state and city permission. Chief Healey assigned a detail of mounted police to escort the visitors.

PUGH'S NEW FAST BOAT CAPSIZES; 3 BARELY ESCAPE

Swimmer Is Overwhelmed by Wave of Disturber V. Off Washington Street.

MAYOR QUICK TO THE RESCUE

While Commodore James A. Pugh's Disturber V., believed to be the fastest hydroplane in the world, was making sixty miles an hour yesterday afternoon under the guidance of Ned Simmons its designer, it swerved from its course, turned turtle, and slid stern foremost to the bottom of the harbor half a mile off Washington street in twenty-five feet of water.

Designer Simmons and Mechanician Charles Swanson, the only occupants of the boat at the time of the accident escaped with a ducking, but the big wave made by the boat, which was being tried out in an effort to attain the seventy mile an hour speed of which it is believed to be capable, submerged Frank Westerlund, a crack swimmer, who was in the water nearby. Westerlund was rendered unconscious. He was rescued and taken to the Columbia Yacht club, where doctors effected his resuscitation.

Have Narrow Escape.

Mr. Simmons and Mechanician Swanson had a narrow escape from being pinned under the heavy boat as it sank, but owing to life preservers, which both of them had donned as a precaution before starting on the trial spin, they found no difficulty in keeping afloat after they came to the surface. Commodore "Bob" Doran, on board the cruiser Catherine, fished them out of the water and hung blankets over their shoulders.

Then began a remarkably efficient job of retrieving the sunken boat, valued at $20,000, from the harbor bottom. Mayor William Hale Thompson, Commodore Doran, Commodore Pugh, John G. De Long, and other notables of Chicago marinedom took horny handed parts. They were aided by Capt. Charles Carland of the United States coast guard service, who saw the boat sink and at once made for the scene of the disaster with a life saving crew of his brave lads in white.

Mayor's Device a Winner.

They were able to locate the position of the sunken boat immediately by means of a device of which Mayor Thompson proudly admitted he was the adapter. It was a copper ball attached to a long line, so arranged that it would rise to the surface should the boat sink. Commodore Pugh had installed the device upon urging by the mayor several days ago.

Another piece of forethought which proved valuable was the insistence by Commodore Pugh that everybody who rides in one of his hydroplanes wear a life preserver. Mechanician Swanson was wearing one for the first time in his life, having donned it with expressions of amusement, despite the fact that Commodore Pugh was wearing a life jacket as an example.

At 4 o'clock, when the accident occurred, Mayor Thompson and a group of friends were sitting on the veranda of the Chicago Yacht club, at the foot of Monroe street, watching Designer Simmons trying out Disturber V. and speculating whether it would prove speedy enough to win the motor boat races which are to be held Sept. 7-15. The boat was built in Commodore Pugh's own warehouse and was launched on Friday.

Pugh in Wake.

Commodore Pugh, in Disturber IV., was in the wake of Disturber V., in company with a Japanese photographer bearing the nautical name of Togo, taking pictures of the tryout.

Commodore Pugh was smoking a cigar at the time, an incident worthy of note for the reason that he kept on smoking it calmly for the minute and a half that it took Disturber V. to disappear entirely under water.

In the meantime Mayor Thompson and John De Long were speeding seaward from the clubhouse in the club's launch.

"It seemed to me that a wave slapped the boat, throwing it out of its course, and that another wave followed the first one and keeled the boat over," was Commodore Pugh's explanation, given ten minutes later as he sat in Disturber IV., smiling a real smile and finishing his cigar while he watched the copper ball that had been wished on him by Mayor Thompson. A stranger would not have suspected that Commodore Pugh had $20,000 worth of boat tied to the copper ball that was floating lazily on the surface.

Just a Fault.

"The boat simply swerved to the west and didn't swerve back in response to the steering gear," explained Designer Simmons from the folds of his blanket on board the Catherine. "There seem to be rudders enough and I think the fault is one that can be corrected."

"Let's get the boat up," roared Mayor Thompson through a megaphone from the club launch.

A heavy rope was unwound from the winch of the Catherine and the boat was raised.

STOLE FROM "DEATH AUTO."

Advertisement Shows That Thieves Took Advantage of Accident to Steal Suitcase.

$10 REWARD FOR BLACK SUITCASE AND riding boots stolen from automobile on Tuesday afternoon in front of Lincoln park sanitarium, where accident occurred, or for any information. Address 2808 Sheridan-pl., Evanston.

This want ad is an aftermath of the accident which occurred on the Lake Shore drive last Tuesday when an automobile bearing Miss Jean Hippach ran down and fatally injured eight year old John Dredling. The suitcase was in the machine at the time of the accident, but was taken out by somebody in the crowd. Louis A. Hippach, Miss Hippach's father, declared last night that there was nothing of particular value in the suitcase.

REALTY MEN SEE SPEEDY CHANGE FOR BETTER.

OUTSIDE MARKET FURNISHES MOST OF WEEK'S DEALS

Dearth of Big Transactions, Although the Total Makes Good Showing.

LIKE that of the preceding week, last week's real estate market was of a rather commonplace character, so far as regards the character of the properties represented in the week's business. As was the case the week before, the aggregate movement of property, as indicated by the figures of the recorder's office, was large, and an encouraging feature is the fact that it shows a gain over the same week a year ago. But, as was also the case during the preceding week, there was a noticeable scarcity of really noteworthy transactions in any class of property.

There was absolutely nothing doing in the downtown district in the way of sales or ground leases. The outside market, as has been the case for a long time past, had a mononoly of the business, with the Stony Island avenue district, as it has come to be called, furnishing the most important transactions in the sale by Harry C. Edmonds to Edward I. Bloom of the property at the southeast corner of the avenue and Sixty-seventh street.

South Side Furnishes Bulk.

In fact, the bulk of the week's business in the more important class of properties was furnished by the outlying south side, the north side falling much below its usual showing. The same is true of the northwest and western parts of the city, and it serves to emphasize the fact that just at present there is something of a slump in the movement of improved properties.

This is a subject of much complaint among brokers. One of the largest operators in the city in discussing market conditions remarked that he was having a good demand for high class vacant in the more attractive outlying parts of the city, but that his improved properties are moving slowly.

There is considerable encouragement, however, in the fact that as a whole brokers report more or less improvement as compared with two or three weeks ago, and this is quite pronounced in some localities. One operator in the more outlying western part of the city reports a noticeable inquiry for houses, and he is planning the construction of a dozen or more to sell at from $5,000 to $7,500.

Southwest Showing a Spurt.

The same report of improved conditions is heard in connection with the outlying southwest parts of the city, which, in the estimation of shrewd observers of conditions, from a development standpoint, is thought to have an exceedingly promising outlook in an industrial way.

Probably the most significant feature of the market just now is its very evident trend toward what might be termed a legitimate demand; that is, elimination of the speculative feature and acquirement for living and business needs and for investment purposes.

To those familiar with the operations of the market during the last few years it is well known that the speculative element has entered largely into its activities, and in all parts of the city.

Of course, it has been more pronounced in certain parts of the city, and in connection with certain classes of property, but it has been on a much wider scale than has generally been known.

Cloaked Under Other Names.

Much of it has been cloaked under the label of "investment" buying, when as a matter of fact it was speculative buying pure and simple. That is, properties were acquired not because of their merits as investment propositions but because of the belief on the part of the purchasers they could be turned, probably, in a comparatively short time, at a satisfactory profit.

The movement showed a particular partiality toward prospective transfer corners and business sites, and among big speculators a most attractive field was the downtown district, particularly in the way of long term ground leases.

Fever Hits Subdivisions.

Acres and lots also fell under its spell, and the result was seen in a period of feverish activity in acres and subdivision property which carried with it a strong reminder of the stirring period about world's fair time.

Not all was speculative, of course. Far from it, because as a matter of fact it had its beginning in a period of substantial and legitimate development, born of a demand for the more wholesome surroundings and the newer, more modern, convenient, and attractive buildings in the outlying parts of the city, made accessible by improved and extended lines of transportation.

The enormous advance in land values which followed, however, opened up a new and most inviting field for the speculator which he worked to the full. Like the measles and the chickenpox, a movement of this sort has to run its course, and it was not until values had been carried to a point which rendered an adequate return to the investor out of the question that there was any abatement.

Only a "Trace" Remains.

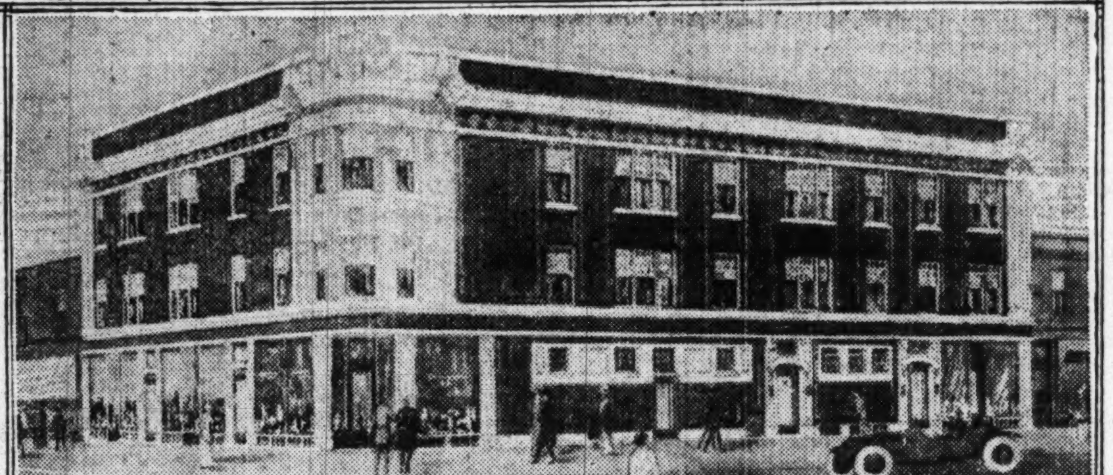
This process of adjustment to legitimate conditions, an inevitable sequence to all such movements, naturally has not encouraged the speculator, and the result is he has been a gradually diminishing quantity in the market, until at the present he might be said to constitute only a "trace."

While this adjustment process has been anything but agreeable to many, it is clearly for the best, as no sustained or healthy market can rest on any other foundation than the actual legitimate living and business needs of a community.

Accordingly, the present trend of the market is both significant and encouraging, for, with the continued rapid growth of the city it is certain to be the forerunner of a strong, healthy market, evidence of the coming of which is already in the air.

New Flat and a Business Block for the Northwest Side

JOHN HULLA, ARCHT.



DAVID SAUL KLAFTER, ARCHITECT.

AN exceedingly attractive apartment building is being erected by Architect John Hulla at the northwest corner of Racine and Montrose avenues. The building, which is practically completed, occupies a lot 98x150 feet and is attractively screened by a number of trees, an unusual feature in connection with an apartment building. The building, which will cost about $100,000 and will have an annual rent roll of about $10,000, will contain nine apartments of five rooms and nine of four rooms, the latter to rent at from $40 to $45 a month and the former at $55. The apartments will have sun parlors, fireplaces, etc., and the building will be managed by Lamont & Clasen.

An attractive addition to Lincoln avenue's business structures is a three story and basement store and office building now in course of construction at the southwest corner of Greenview avenue. It will occupy a lot 100x125 feet and will cost about $90,000. The first floor will be occupied by the owner, Jacob Gordon, with a buffet and restaurant, with a stage for entertainments, while the second and third floors will be occupied by offices. David Saul Klafter is the architect.

UNION STATION COMPANY ACQUIRES MORE PROPERTY.

It was officially announced during the week that the Union Station company had closed the purchase of the Commonwealth Edison company's plant at West Harrison street and the river and had placed under contract the Anheuser-Busch company property across the street to the south. It is stated that $1,300,000 was paid for the Commonwealth Edison company's property, Mr. Seeberger saying the sale was on the basis of $20 a square foot for the land and $270,000 for the improvements. It is stated no agreement has been reached regarding the acquirement of the Marshall Field & Co warehouse property and that it may be necessary to institute condemnation proceedings to secure it.

PERMITS SHOW BUILDING PLANS ON LARGE SCALE

Stony Island Avenue Project and Sheridan Road Hotel Leaders for Week.

Building operations, as indicated by the announcement of new projects in this field, together with permits of an important character taken out, were on a large scale again last week. The largest real estate deal of the week, the purchase by Edward I. Bloom of the property at the southeast corner of Stony Island avenue and Sixty-seventh street, involved a big building project, while in the way of permits taken out special interest attaches to that taken out by the Edgewater Beach Hotel company for the ten story fireproof hotel to be erected at 5345-49 Sheridan road, between Berwyn and Balmoral avenues. Marshall & Fox are the architects and the cost of the building, which is to be a concrete and tile structure, is placed at $600,000. Much interest attaches to it for the reason it is the final materialization of several proposed big hotels in this part of the city during the last few years, all of which fell by the wayside. Another important permit was that for the Y. M. C. A. hotel at 618-26 South Wabash avenue, the cost of which is placed at $750,000.

Bloom Pays $145,000.

Mr. Bloom's purchase, in which Harry C. Edmonds was the seller, covered a frontage of 297 feet, the 147 at the corner having a depth of 251 feet through to Cornell avenue, while the 150 feet adjoining on the south has a depth of 111 feet. A reported consideration of $145,000 is given, the purchaser giving back a part purchase money mortgage for $85,000.

It is stated Mr. Bloom plans to improve in three sections. The first section is to be erected at the corner of the avenue and Sixty-seventh street, to cost in the neighborhood of $200,000, and to contain a hotel, stores, theaters, offices, and lodge halls. Plans for this building, it is stated, have been prepared and work is expected to begin in the near future. The erection of the other sections, which will carry the cost to about $500,000, is somewhat dependent upon the showing made in a rental way by the first section. Frank H. Lang and P. J. McShane were the brokers.

Another important south side building project is the fireproof three story and English basement thirty-six apartment building which William T. Woodley will erect at the southwest corner of Harper avenue and Fifty-second street on 50x150 feet of ground. Each of the apartments will contain two rooms and kitchenette and the cost of the building is placed at about $127,500. In connection with its construction S. W. Straus & Co. have underwritten a $70,000 serial 6 per cent bond issue.

Plans North Side Apartment.

Axel E. Anderson, the builder, will erect a high grade twelve apartment building on 47x140 feet of ground at the northwest corner of Oakdale and Pine Grove avenues, which he purchased last week from Dr. Frederick Mueller for $12,000, which is at the rate of $255 a front foot, said to be a record for the frontage between Sheridan road and Broadway. The apartments will contain four and five rooms, and the building is expected to cost about $70,000. H. W. Croxton represented the purchaser and Paul Steinbrecher & Co. the seller.

In connection with the announcement of the construction of a one story white tile front building at the southwest corner of Glenwood and Ridge avenues by Mrs. Winnis White, wife of Charles T. White, to contain six stores and to cost about $13,000, it is stated that Mrs. White purchased the land in question last September for $5,000 and refused an offer of $10,000 for it last month, an increase of only 100 per cent in ten months.

Big Flat to Go Up.

The estate of Henry L. Hughes sold to Christ M. Damascus of Evanston the 178x150 feet of vacant at the northwest corner of Sheridan road and Pratt boulevard for an indicated consideration of $31,000. It is said Mr. Damascus will improve with a big high grade apartment building.

It is stated a modern store and office building will be erected at the southwest corner of South Chicago avenue and Seventy-ninth street by Mark P. Bransfield and Thomas F. McFarland in the 159x177 feet of ground, the leasehold interest in which they recently acquired from William F. King, who previously leased for ninety-nine years from John H. and Mortimer T. Sullivan at an annual rental of $3,600. The lessors are connected with the Auburn State bank. The lessees have an option to purchase for $50,000. There is much activity in this part of the city.

COOK COUNTY BOARD TO HOLD ITS BANQUET DEC. 4.

The annual banquet of the Cook county real estate board will be held at the Hotel La Salle Saturday night, Dec. 4, and the committee having the matter in charge is working on some ambitious plans. The committee is hopeful that President Wilson will be able to be present, as he promised he would if official duties did not prevent. Other prominent speakers are under consideration, and the indications are the banquet will set a new high standard in the history of these functions. The committee includes Charles Adelman, president; R. W. Wolfe, Paul Kraemer, Mark Levy, William M. Lawton, C. T. A. Anderson, Spencer Ward, W. D. Kerr, Arthur Lueder, R. G. Badeaux, M. C. Koebl, Charles F. Durland, and John V. Fox.

181 PERMITS FOR BUILDING.

The present boom in building operations is shown by the fact that 181 permits were issued by the city building department last week with a total estimated cost of $2,435,100, as compared with eighty-eight permits to cost $873,900 for the corresponding week a year ago.

Leases and Loans.

THE week was an exceedingly uneventful one as regards leases of building space and loans, no transactions of any particular importance being reported in either field. While the market for business building space continues dull, there seems to be a more optimistic feeling regarding the future outlook, both on the part of owners and brokers.

Conditions in the mortgage loan market have undergone no perceptible change during the last two or three months, save that borrowers are becoming steadily more insistent on a 5½ per cent interest rate where the security offered is of an extra good character. Building loans are numerous and 6 per cent continues to be the prevailing rate.

Lee J. Lesser & Co. report two interesting leases of store space in the downtown district. They have leased for Daniel J. Schuyler Jr. and George Lytton to the American Tobacco company the store at 166 West Washington street, to be occupied for a premium distributing depot. The lease provides for a term rental of $21,000.

The same brokers have also leased for the estate of Levi Z. Leiter to Julius Goldberg the store at the southwest corner of West Madison and Clark streets for a term at a reported annual rental of $7,200. It is to be occupied as a clothing and men's furnishing store.

Record has been made of the lease by the Chicago Title and Trust company and Mabelle Sebree, trustees of the estate of James K. Sebree, to Conrad Spoehr of the store at 15 South Dearborn street, and also part of the basement for a term of ten years from Sept. 1 next, at a minimum term rent of $75,300, with provisions for a percentage on gross sales. Mark Levy & Bro. were the brokers.

Greenebaum Sons Bank and Trust company is trustee in a bond issue loan of $30,000, two to five years, at 6 per cent, to Anton E. Sward, secured by the property at the southwest corner of Ridgeland avenue and Sixty-eighth street, lot 60x125 feet, with high grade twelve apartment building.

FLAT PROPERTY IN GOOD DEMAND

Medium Price and Cheap Apartments Active All Over the City.

As in the case of outside business property, flat property made a decidedly better showing last week than during the previous week. There were no particularly large deals, the top figure of the week being $70,000, but there was a really good showing in the way of medium to what might be termed cheap properties.

One of the biggest deals of the week was the sale by Mrs. Dora C. Williamson to Ruby R. Leffinger of the fifteen apartment building at the northeast corner of Sheridan road and Windsor avenue, about 200 feet south of Wilson avenue, for an expressed consideration of $70,000 cash, subject to an incumbrance of $25,000. The lot is 95x125 feet and the building, which was erected about five years ago, contains fifteen apartments of four to seven rooms, having a gross annual rental of about $9,000. The sale was negotiated by Thomas E. Sullivan.

Good Sale on South Side.

A good sized south side deal was the sale by H. W. Bryan et al. to Victor Thorsch of the flat building on 100x177 feet of ground, northwest corner of Greenwood avenue and Sixty-second street, for an indicated consideration of $50,000, subject to $25,000 incumbrance.

J. H. Hibben sold to Rachel L. Branton the flat property, lot 50x150 feet, west front, Woodlawn avenue, 200 feet north of Sixty-first street, for an indicated $31,000, subject to $16,000, the grantor conveying Vincennes avenue property valued at $12,000 in part payment.

Thomas A. Collins sold to Edward F. Herhold the high grade six apartment building on a lot 55x150 feet at 3651-53 Pine Grove avenue, between Gary place and Waveland avenue, for a reported consideration of $43,000. Mr. Herhold conveyed in part payment the property at the northwest corner of Erie and Morgan streets, with business and flat improvements, at a valuation of $15,000. O. P. Curran Jr. represented Mr. Collins and Mr. Klein represented Mr. Herhold.

24 Flat Sells for $40,000.

The twenty-four flat building at 6647-53 Maryland avenue, on a lot 125x125 feet, has been sold by Daniel A. Harney to Leslie J. and Minnie G. Robb for a reported consideration of $40,000, subject to an incumbrance of $20,000. In part payment Mr. and Mrs. Robb conveyed the twelve flat building at the northwest corner of East avenue and Randolph street, Oak Park, at a reported valuation of $35,000, subject to an incumbrance of $23,500. W. E. Meyers & Co. were the brokers.

The property at the southwest corner of Hermitage and Berteau avenues, lot 40x164 feet, with apartment house improvements, has been sold by Henry Stolley to Simon P. Linehan for an indicated consideration of $35,000, subject to an incumbrance of $22,500. The property was later conveyed by Mr. Linehan to Susan M. Belcher at a nominal consideration, subject to an incumbrance of $26,000.

Numerous Small Sales.

A noteworthy transaction on Sawyer avenue, 141 feet north of Lawrence avenue, was the sale by J. F. Hogan to Reinhard Liefkens of the apartment house property on a lot 120x125 feet, east front, for an indicated consideration of $58,500, subject to an incumbrance of $45,000.

CLARK AND SCHILLER CORNER BRINGS GOOD PRICE IN SALE.

An interesting transaction in North Clark street property was the purchase by William M. Hoyt of the fee in the 100x150 feet at the northwest corner of Clark and Schiller streets, improved with a four story brick building containing stores and flats. He purchased from William Waller for an indicated consideration of $70,000, which makes the sale, it is stated, on a 5½ per cent basis. The property was leased in May last by Mr. Waller to Roy B. Tabor for a term of ninety-nine years. In the present transaction this lease, which was assigned to Mr. Waller by Mr. Tabor, was canceled and another one made to him, the terms being similar except for the ground rent, which was decreased from about $6,000 a year to $3,850. White & Tabor represented both parties to the transaction.

BUSINESS SITES IN THE OUTSIDE SECTIONS BRISK

Good Run of Fairly Large Transactions Marks the Week's Trading.

There was much doing in outside business property last week, the showing made offering a most favorable contrast to that of the previous week, which had but few transactions, and they of a generally unimportant character. None of the deals put over last week was of special importance, but there was a good run of fairly good sized transactions, in which the different parts of the city were represented.

Sixty-third street furnished two interesting transactions, one a long term ground lease involving the proposed construction of a $70,000 building. It covers the 100x117 feet at the southeast corner of Kimbark avenue, which was leased by Chester A. and Raymond C. Cook to James G. Barsaloux, a real estate dealer, for seventy-three years from Aug. 1 at a straight annual net rental of $1,500. Capitalized on a 5 per cent basis, this gives a leasing value of $30,000, which is at the rate of $300 a foot. The lessee will, it is stated, improve next spring with a three story store and office building to cost about $70,000.

Rhodes Avenue Deal.

The other Sixty-third street deal covers the property at the southwest corner of Rhodes avenue, 200x110 feet with business improvements, which was sold by Louis Morris et al. to Harry L. Harris and Hyman J. Hoodwin for an indicated consideration of $41,000, subject to $25,000 incumbrance. The grantees conveyed in part payment flat property in Cullom avenue 30 feet west of Campbell avenue at $28,400, subject to $16,000, and other flat property in same street at a valuation of $32,400, subject to $18,400.

An interesting north side deal was the sale by Kusel & Harris and W. H. Morse, formerly of Marquette, Mich., to W. L. Lincoln of the leasehold in 100x206 feet of ground northeast corner Sheridan road and Broadway with two story building with six stores on ground floor, offices and billiard room on second floor, and garage on Broadway front, for a reported consideration of $65,000, subject to $32,500 incumbrance. The ground is under a lease for ninety-nine years at $3,000 annual rent for first ten years, $4,000 for second ten, and $5,000 for rest of term.

Sale on Montrose Avenue.

The property at the southeast corner of Montrose and Kenneth avenues, lot 150x123 feet, with a one story building containing seven stores and a theater, has been sold by Mrs. Julia Taken to Harry Weymouth for an indicated consideration of $28,500, subject to an incumbrance of $21,500. Mr. Weymouth gave in part exchange the property at 2357 Milwaukee avenue, a two story and basement building with a theater on the ground floor and loft above; also fifty feet of residence vacant on Avers avenue at the northeast corner of Addison avenue. Herman E. Simons & Co. represented both parties.

Mrs. Taken also sold through the same broker to Harry A. Sultan the business property at 1524 Milwaukee avenue, between Girard and Robey streets, improved with a four story and basement building containing one store and four flats, for a reported consideration of $30,000, subject to an incumbrance of $20,000.

Apartment Building in Deal.

In another transaction Mr. Sultan conveyed through Simons & Co. to Hendrica Von de Logt the property at the southwest corner of Willow and Orchard streets, improved with a building containing fifteen apartments and three stores, for a reported consideration of $35,000, subject to an incumbrance of $24,850.

The property in Halsted street, eighty-five feet north of Maxwell street, lot 36x107 feet, east front, with store and flat improvements, has been sold by Solomon Cohen to Henry Wolf for an expressed consideration of $37,000, subject to an incumbrance of $15,500, there being $22 worth of revenue stamps on the document.

HOW REDMOND AND IRISH PARTY WERE VINDICATED

O'Connor Tells How Public Opinion Supported Home Rule Leader.

BY T. P. O'CONNOR.
[FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT OF THE TRIBUNE.]

[Copyright: 1915: By Central News.]

LONDON.—[Special.]—I have neglected Ireland lately owing to my absorption in the war. It is time I should notice more than I have done, the very remarkable movement now on foot and in full swing, as I have already cabled, for the substitution of the coalition ministry, especially with Carson in its ranks, for a home rule ministry. This gave all prophets of evil, who here, as in America, have dogged every step of Redmond on the road to that winning of home rule which he has now accomplished, an opportunity for once more raising his voice.

It was declared that home rule was lost and lost through Redmond's folly and timidity and the faction proclaimed its belief that Mr. Asquith in the British Liberal party would betray Ireland. Everything was for the worst in the worst of all possible worlds.

Redmond, Devlin, and Dillon at once resolved that this campaign should not be neglected, that public opinion in Ireland should be fully challenged and their verdict on the party invited, whether favorable or unfavorable.

Conventions were summoned in every county in Ireland, whereof nearly a dozen have taken place. These conventions were addressed by Redmond, Devlin, and Dillon, and the factionists showed their helplessness and insignificance by hiding away, while the gatherings were enthusiastic in the support of the Irish party and boundless in their expression of affection and confidence in Redmond.

Convention at Donegal.

One of the most remarkable of these conventions took place at Donegal. Dr. O'Donnell, bishop of Raphee, one of the most powerful and popular bishops in Ireland, sent a letter wherein one sentence sums up his attitude. He wrote: "The generals in the theater of war have more difficult strategy on hand than the Irish leaders have had for years, but none have such a record of achievement to their credit."

I make two extracts from the brilliant speech of Mr. Devlin for they epitomize his attitude in vindication of the Irish party on the war:

"It is fortunate in this war that Ireland has chosen the part which sentiment as well as honor and self-interest dictate. She has always been on the side of oppressed, struggling nationalities, even when her own fortunes were at lowest ebb and her flag down in the dust. If her position and prospects today were the very reverse of what they are she would be found enthusiastically on the side of Belgium, Poland, Alsace, and Lorraine; little nations of oppressed peoples which have struggled manfully against oppressors, which see today in the standards of the allies the symbol of their triumph and guarantee of their liberties. The force and materialism of Germany is the very antithesis of our Celtic genius, which is spiritual above all things. In opposing Prussianism we are obeying the strongest instincts of our nature."

Adopted as Vindication.

Redmond, Devlin, and I are ready to adopt these words as the vindication of our action. One quotation more from Devlin, wherein he deals with the prospects of home rule, concerning which there is entirely unnecessary and often entirely dishonest apprehension.

"Does anybody imagine what Ireland has done will be forgotten when the cannons cease to roar and the battle flags are furled? Does anybody imagine Belgium's scrap of paper will be honored and Ireland's solemn treaty be repudiated?

"Why, if such a thing happened, England would go down to infamy worse than that of Germany herself. Every self-governing nation within the empire would revolt against such an act of treason. But I have no fear that any such thing will happen."

These also are my views.

Opinion on Bonar Law.

Bonar Law, now that he has exchanged the position of leader of the opposition for that of a cabinet minister in an administration still mainly Liberal, must be judged with more charity than in his old fighting days, and people are beginning to appraise his gifts in the dry light of parliamentary reputations.

There are few men who have quite such a different manner in private and public. In public he has been notable for some rather rasping speeches, especially in the days when the difficulty with Orange Ulster was at its height. Then he surpassed in violence every advocate of that side with the exception of Sir Edward Carson, and now and then his utterances were so vehement that he excited strong dissension on the Liberal side.

Many Liberals regarded him as a venomous man. Yet all the time those who met him in private were aware that he was genial, unpretentious, even broadminded, and that he could understand and, up to a point, sympathize with views quite in conflict with his own.

The vehemence with which Bonar Law spoke was due largely to the fact that he is in essence an Ulsterman, for he is the son of an Ulster clergyman, and his atmosphere in his native Canada was probably much the same as if his family had never left Ireland; and that, as we know, is a narrow atmosphere, both from the religious and political point of view.

Law's Gift of Speech.

The first thing that brought Bonar Law into notice was his very remarkable gift of ready and appropriate speech. In a few speeches he had made his position so strong in the house that he got office much earlier than most members of the house and after less achievement. His gift of speech was the only reason he was able to reach the position of a leader before he had ever reached cabinet position; for both his rivals—Walter Long and Austen Chamerlain—had precedence of him in this respect, both having held high office before the struggle for the Unionist leadership came. Bonar Law never had anything higher than an undersecretaryship.

The remarkable thing in Bonar Law, a point which marks him out from all other prominent speakers of the house, is that he never reads from a note, he never even prepares a note. A short time ago he gave a long, detailed, and at times a picturesque and moving account of all the military and naval events in our dominions, and although the tale was long, varied, and intricate, he gave it all standing simply at the box on the speaker's table and without ever looking at a note—in fact, there were no notes.

Everybody was surprised, but Bonar Law made light of the performance, thinking it quite an easy task in comparison with others that he had performed already; much easier, for instance, than delivering without a note a speech which onsisted of a long and closely knit argument on a serious political controversy.

Even Gladstone, with his more than 60 years of parliamentary life, never came to the house when he had a big bill to propose or a serious speech to make without notes.

Only Note a Quotation.

The only note Bonar Law ever has is of a quotation, and this he draws out of his pocket at the proper moment, generaly in a little book like a penny diary or on a scrap of paper. I am told by his friends that his method of preparation is to sit in a chair, alone in the room, of course, for a couple of hours. By the time this silent and lonely sitting is over his speech is complete. It is a curious example of how brain labor affects the physical system, for I have been told he feels quite exhausted after he has gone through these two hours of concentrated thinking.

In his speeches you find the traces of Mr. Law's methods. First, of course, there is the great advantage that he has by these methods made himself one of the readiest debaters in the house of commons. Men with the different methods of Sir William Harcourt or John Morley—both sticklers for the fully written out speech—found themselves always at a disadvantage when they had to reply impromptu. Neither was ever at his best when he had to debate without notice. Bonar Law is never taken at a disadvantage in that way; he is always ready to make an impromptu and an effective reply.

On the other hand there are disadvantages in this method. Often Bonar Law has said things which appeared rather indiscreet. Ofter they were indiscreet, not because what he said was not true, but because they were things which, though true, had better be left unsaid.

My explanation is that his methods give him the habit of thinking aloud; and, whatever a politician should do or may do, he should not and he may not think aloud.

Carolyn Wilson Describes French Plans for Big Movement Against the Germans

BY CAROLYN WILSON.
[Correspondent of The Tribune.]

[Copyright: 1915: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Aug. 9, 1915.—Whether it is in preparation for or against a big offensive movement, I don't know, but there are ardent activities going on behind the whole French line.

These days when permissionaires are as plentiful as dandelions in spring time, one hears much more of actual hopes and prospects than ever before. Not that what these men tell are confidences, but by piecing together a bit here and a bit there, one makes almost a straight narrative, and nothing has been clearer to discern during these past two weeks than there is about to be "something doing" on the French front.

One tells you of the towns toward the east, which have been cleared of civilians; he tells you it is because the spy question was becoming so difficult to handle, but his "copain" contradicts him and says it is because there are to be big movements that way and the army needs free scope and can't be troubled by the presence of civilians. And a third says it is just because during the bombardments so many of them were getting killed that it is for their own good that they have been sent away.

Guns Every 25 Feet.

"You ought to see the cannons at one place I might mention, but I won't," says a husky zouave. "Why, they've crowded up so many 120's in just one section that they've got 200 of 'em along a stretch of 1,700 meters." Now as that is only a mile, and that would mean one every twenty-five feet, I may have looked incredulous, but he gave me no time to express my doubts. "And the new mitrailleuses! If they are pretty! American, you know, and wonders. O, they'll make some nice little presents to the Boches!"

Another man told me of the splendid new motor lorries for transporting the heavy cannon over bad roads. They are simply enormous, fill the whole street as they lumber by, and have rear wheels with about an eighteen inch rim which is perforated again and again to let the mud pass through when they are hauling over bad roads.

Or there is the other kind, the wheels of which rather resemble those of some of our farming machines—flexible bands held in place by other light cross bands.

You hear that there are new railroads being built everywhere. "What have you been doing lately?" you ask a man from a certain section.

"O, digging, mining, and clearing beds for new railroads."

Sometimes he tells you that he has been dyeing horses, and his description of the poor dazed things as they contemplate their erstwhile white or black chums dyed with henna to a luscious khaki is too amusing.

Frenchman Defends British.

"Sure and I'll apprentice mesilf to a hairdresser when I'm through with the war," said a blue eyed Irishman to me. "'Tis a fine touch of red I'd be givin' to the ladies' hair, what with me knowledge of mixing the stuff, be it for blondes or brunettes or snow whites."

The English are said to be coming over in tremendous numbers. And to a rather slighting remark on the part of a civilian about their fighting qualities a French soldier spoke up very quickly.

"There isn't a French soldier who has seen the new men who are coming over today—those who have had the full training—but admires them," he said. "Most of us Frenchmen had three years' training, and now a year which is better than all the training in the world. But these boys at best haven't had but eight months or so—some of 'em ten. And yet they fight with an enduring power and patience and stoicism which leaves nothing to be desired. The right characteristics are there; the experience and tactical education for the officers will come in time. I don't know that I am very proud of the way I behaved the first month of the war. There certainly wasn't much intelligence in it. So why expect them to come over here perfect?"

"My God, we'll fight, don't worry about that," said a man in khaki who had come up during the preceding speech. "They'll all fight. When any one has seen what my regiment saw ten days ago there is no thought for anything but fighting and killing in his mind. It's war to the knife now."

"I should say it was," took up a French soldier. "Do you use knives, too? We all have them, and I tell you it's grewsome after the bombarding when you go into the trenches and the few living are hiding perhaps and you go forward with your bayonet and a short knife. O, there's nothing better in that sort of work than a short daggerlike knife with a firm handle. You see," he went on cheerfully, "you're apt to ruin your bayonet, break it off in a body or something, and you hate doing that; we are all devoted to our 'Rosalie.' But a knife is much better, and though it went against the grain to use them at first, the other side has them, too, and they are much fairer than either poison gas or the flame."

Anticipation Ends Anxiety.

This spirit of anticipation of big things is a very good thing just now, for it completely carries the people over any anxiety that they might have had over the turn affairs have taken in Russia.

Personally I can't understand the calm acceptance of the loss of Poland. I have yet to find the Frenchman who is at all perturbed by it, or who sees in it a menace. The fact that the Germans will now be free to send huge numbers of troops to this frontier doesn't seem to worry them at all. In fact they scarcely admit that it is possible. And to the statement that the Germans have gained many material things by taking Poland, they say that that is possible, but no matter how long the war goes on, the French will be the last ones out of it.

FUNERAL OF C. G. ROSE, LAWYER, HELD TODAY.

Veterans' Association to Have Charge of Obsequies of Attorney Who Died While on a Vacation.

Charles G. Rose, Chicago lawyer, who died after a brief illness Aug. 26, when on a vacation at Pine Lake, Wis., will be buried at Graceland this afternoon following Roman Catholic services at the home, 4174 Clarendon avenue, at 3 o'clock. Mr. Rose was born at Elmira, N. Y., in 1862, and came to Chicago in 1881. Surviving him are his widow, formerly Miss Emily N. Holstein of Baltimore, Md., and three children, Mrs. Alfred N. Sommer, Miss Helen Rose, and Charles G. Rose Jr.

OBITUARY.

SIDNEY T. EMERSON, widely known throughout the United States as a civil engineer in railroad construction work, died yesterday at 3744 Elmwood avenue. He was a native of Saratoga county, New York, where he was born eighty-eight years ago, and first came to Chicago in 1869, when he identified himself with the Illinois Central railroad. He has been consulting engineer for the Pennsylvania company, the Missouri Pacific, Northern Pacific, St. Louis, Kansas City and Colorado, the Erie canal, and also the government in townsite plotting in Indian territory. He is survived by his widow and two children. They are Dr. Charles B Emerson and Mrs. D. C. Jackson.

MRS. HELEN ELIZABETH DUNHAM HAWES, who died last Wednesday night at her summer residence at Les Cheneaux club, near Mackinac island, Mich., will be buried today. She was the eldest daughter of the late John H. Dunham and the widow of Judge Kirk Hawes. She had lived in Chicago all her life. She is survived by four children, Mr. John D. Hawes of Palms, Cal.; Mrs. A. J. Chivers of London, England; and Miss Levanche D. Hawes and Miss Fannie V. Hawes of 2235 Calumet avenue.

MRS. FREEMAN GETS DIVORCE

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 28.—Mrs. Freeman today obtained a divorce from E. R. Freeman, who recently accused her of having kissed Richard Yates, former governor of Illinois, "in every tunnel between San Francisco and Eureka." Freeman's charges were recently declared unfounded by a jury at Eureka, which refused to grant a divorce.

3 great new reasons why you should buy a 1916 Chicago Electric

Price The substantial growth of Chicago Electric sales this past season has convinced us that these new prices will make possible a most decided increase in our production for the coming season—and that's what we want. Heretofore price alone has prevented greater sales of Chicago Electrics—now the bars are down.

Upkeep The prices quoted above do not include batteries, thus giving the purchaser an opportunity to use the new rental battery system, which provides the proper battery at a minimum cost per month, covering all battery repairs and upkeep. You know exactly what your battery cost will be—whether you run 50 or 1000 miles a month—in either event the cost will be decidedly low. Those who do not desire rental batteries and prefer a battery with the car, add $270.00 to the prices given above. And remember that even with this addition the Chicago is the lowest-priced, high-quality Electric on the market.

$500 Payment The strong financial standing of this company makes possible our deferred payment plan. You can now—if you so desire—secure a Chicago Electric by paying $500 cash—then take your time to pay the balance.

Easy to Buy—Easy to Maintain—Easy to Pay

THESE lower prices, together with the sustained high quality of the car itself, are our strongest bids for your interest—the most substantial reasons why you should buy this electric, which is setting new standards, making new prices and offering the greatest possibilities to electric car owners.

No radical changes have been made in the 1916 models over those of the past season, but numerous desirable refinements and improvements have been added. For example:

A New Painting Process provides the deepest finish and luster with greater wearing qualities than ever before attained in the art of motor car painting.

A Self-Oiling Steering System adding greatly to the ease of driving—the more extensive use of aluminum throughout the body construction—new designed fenders and many other refinements will be found.

In order to appreciate the luxury and up-to-the-minute completeness of these models, make a personal inspection of the cars themselves at our salesrooms display, 2700 Michigan Ave. Always remember that the Chicago Electric can be stopped the quickest, handled the easiest, turned the shortest, run the speediest and can travel the farthest.

"Our Country! In her intercourse with foreign nations may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong."
—Stephen Decatur.

GERMANY'S NEW MOOD.

President Wilson's success in handling the very grave issue with Germany has been conspicuously revealed at the most solemn moment. Unless every present indication of Germany's intent be misleading, he has forced a modification of the German naval operations and has made the sea safe for passenger ships.

It is true that if Admiral von Tirpitz could have maintained his position in the German councils, and if the German chancellor had not been able to overturn military opinion, the United States and Germany would have broken off relations and war would have been the probable consequence.

The United States does not want war with Germany. It is not prepared for war with any strong nation. It is not prepared for war at all, and the thought of the American people is not belligerent. But the nation could not continue to permit its citizens to be killed on passenger ships when the government of the nation assured them they were within their rights in traveling on those ships. Much as the American people wanted to avoid war, they could not permit a controversy with Germany to be prolonged while Americans were being killed.

So long as our government declined to accept any terms proposed by Germany it was necessary for the United States to impose its will upon Germany, with or without fighting.

When the third note went to Berlin the policy therein declared became the policy of the American nation. Argument was closed. Germany had to choose whether it wanted the friendship of the United States or accepted its hostility.

Unless the German decision has been utterly misrepresented, President Wilson has made his policy effective.

EXTENDING TRADE WITH RUSSIA.

The agitation for forming an association of American manufacturers to extend Russian trade offers a simple and approved method of procedure. It takes the whole movement, which was started by THE TRIBUNE'S Petrograd correspondent, out of the talking stage and into practice by the most direct route. An organization similar to the Hudson Bay company, managed by experienced salesmen, with intimate knowledge of Russian customs and conditions as well as the selling power of their American employers, with the lowest possible operating costs, and home banks interested to the extent of providing credit facilities, should prove attractive to even the most timid traders.

An initial outlay will be required and there is always the possibility of losses through keen competition. But the Americans have contended with the same situations in domestic trading with less of a prize at stake. The German middleman has been making a commission of from 20 to 25 per cent on American goods going to Russia and on Russian goods coming to America, as much because of favorable treaty relations as any natural superiority. The war has upset these arrangements and Germany is not likely to receive any favors at the hands of neighbors at the end of the present war, much less so if the American merchant is willing to divide this 25 per cent commission that has been going to the retailer with his Russian customer. In other words, whether it is put down in paper form or not, the American manufacturer will work under an advantage which Germany has worked under up to the present time, if only the direct connection can be effected before the old channels are again opened up.

The meeting that will be held in Chicago represents the first concerted action. The two manufacturers that have been approached to send representatives might truthfully be said to hold the future in their own hands. The Russians have already issued an invitation, the organization is at hand, but there is no time to be lost in getting the new connections established.

IMPROVING STATE GOVERNMENT.

The governors' conference meeting at Boston points to the lack of a centralized executive power as the deadliest enemy of efficiency and economy in state government. There can be no doubt by this time that it is an outgrown system and fundamentally more menacing to our democracy than the possible evils the attitude was to protect against. We have been so afraid of bad officialism that we have made it unnecessarily difficult for good officials.

The progressive element in the New York state constitutional convention is convinced that not only does the American fear of officialism express itself inadequately under the repressive ideal, but at a terrific cost. It is working for, if not toward, an appointive governor's cabinet, a budget system of appropriation, and the short ballot in county and municipal government.

Both these instances are noteworthy signs. Worthless men, who never will have any trouble outwitting even a well intentioned public opinion, and inefficient government are just beginning to get attention. The agitation is general and soon will become popular, because rising taxes "demand action." If it is successful we will find our states building their government more around the governor's chair, under the assumption that a good man will occupy it, and yet with practicable restrictions if the ballot should accidentally slip up and let an unworthy one in. But every ounce of strength will be thrown toward getting good candidates in the primary and later electing them. In trying to protect ourselves against bad officials by strangling their powers we have restricted the efforts of good officials and lessened the possibility of attracting able officials by making an executive position routine. If we want more good leadership we must offer good leadership more activity and continued activity through reëlection.

OUR NATIONAL ABSORBING POWER.

Many Americans regard our national policy of the open door as one of the sacred principles of the republic. Proposals for restriction of immigration have been met with arguments begot of outraged conviction. Our country is a haven of refuge for the oppressed. The policy is cited as an example of American altruism, a quality which we do possess and which we are not modest about.

America has a right to be proud of its hospitality, but for reasons other than altruistic. Our ancestors, except at a few periods, like that which produced the know-nothing party, were not averse to the arrival of sturdy individualists. For the country at that time attracted only the adventurous of the other nations. Those who came were drawn hither because they were too vigorous for their environment. They felt stifled by the fairly rigid old world civilization. They came not to get gold easily but to wrest a livelihood from the rock bound resources of this continent.

Of course the result was startling. The pioneer spirit of our first English arrivals showed a tendency to work itself out. Many of their children are still tilling farms in New England. The newcomers spurred them on. They became a part of the people, vigorous and adaptable. This theory of new blood worked so admirably that many of us have adopted it as a part of our religion.

We say that this theory worked, but it may not always work. The nation is on the whole not inclined to be too worshipful of tradition. In spite of our love for this one we are beginning to challenge it. Some of us are willing to experiment at least in the direction of restriction.

The European war, which has shed light on various problems for us and brought to light hitherto unsuspected complexities in our national life, offers firm ground for speculation upon this question. Are we sure that our present hospitality will help us? If we revert to our altruism will it help the immigrant?

The value of this new blood has always been that it has helped us with our problems. These men have fought with us in the conquest of the soil. We have absorbed them. We had no rigid civilization which they had to conform to. They have with us made our system.

The situation now is different. The continent has been fairly well exploited. Pioneer conditions do not obtain. Our nation has developed a point of view. It has habits which, like those of a man of middle age, cannot easily be changed. The immigrant carrying with him as he does beliefs and habits of an older civilization, finds that he must adapt himself to a new. He does not understand us, and there are at present few agencies for his enlightenment. He no longer battles the elements with us. He is confronted with a crowded industrialism, to which he has no key. The pioneer days are no more.

And the immigrant, too, has changed. He cannot expect unlimited opportunity. Opportunity may be just as great in these days, but it is more sophisticated. Success is based more upon a knowledge of national habit. The other kind of immigrant who comes with more cultivated powers comes with the intention of making money. He is no longer compelled by distance to adapt himself to us. Communication is so good that he may remain an Englishman, a Frenchman, or an Italian. If he succeeds he often goes back to a more advanced social position. If he fails he is not of much help to America. It is still easier to adapt one's self to American life than, for instance, to Prussian life. But it is no longer easy.

We may well ask these days whether we have absorbed all who have come here. There is some ground for the assertion that we have not. It is the war which has provided this ground.

Our national policy has not been to crush out the old world habits the newcomers have brought. When they have formed societies—and they have by thousands—our politicians have recognized them. They have been recognized in our diplomacy. We have endeavored rather to engraft their strong qualities upon our own.

But the war throws suspicion upon our success. We may ask ourselves whether or not this country is not saturated, whether our nation is capable of absorbing more diverse ingredients. The war heat has precipitated many of the elements in it. Our civilization shows signs of breaking up into its constituent parts. Will our statesmen find it expedient to pour more into the melting pot?

Editorial of the Day.

A COUNTRY DRIVE AT NIGHT.

[From the Columbus, O., Dispatch.]

You are losing a lot of life if you do not drive along the country roads at night. Beautiful as is the country during the day, it is more beautiful at night. There is a weirdness about it, an inspiration, as one drives through the country after dark that does not come when the sun is shining.

The road opens up before you like a great fan, tinged with darkness. You are plunging headlong into a gigantic tunnel of night. The trees are seen only in outline—fantastic shapes form and reform before your eyes and fade into a mystery of awe. The fences wiggle in the shadows like things of life. The cattle in the fields beside the road become the goblins of the night, and from afar there beats upon the scene a flickering light in farmhouse for all the world like the single eye of Cyclops.

The light from the car brings out the defects of the road and magnifies them. A billowy path, indeed, according to the lights and shadows. Yet the machine takes the rippling waves of the road with never a complaint, and the sweet, cool breath of night instills a courage into the soul that is enchanting.

Sailing upon the lakes at night is pleasant. There is the silvery wake trailing behind the boat, and the distant lights along the shore are charming. But the nighttime upon the lake is different from the drive at night through the country. There is not the rolling changes every second; not the pictures in the dark; not the ghostly charm of mystery which one beholds when riding along the country roads when the stars are twinkling. There is nothing comparable with the country ride at night.

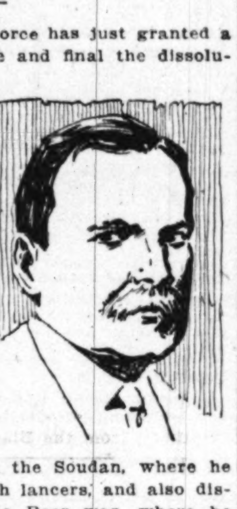
KING GEORGE'S appointment of his brother ruler of Belgium to the colonelcy in chief of the Fifth Dragoon guards serves to recall the fact that this famous corps, which so distinguished itself under the first Duke of Marlborough at the battles of Blenheim, Ramillies, Oudenarde, and Malplaquet, afterwards under the great Duke of Wellington at Salamanca and Vittoria, then in the Crimean war at Balaclava in the charge of the heavy brigade, and fifteen years ago at the siege of Ladysmith, formerly bore the title of Princess Charlotte of Wales' dragoons.

Its colonel in chief at the beginning of the nineteenth century was Princess Charlotte of Wales, the only daughter and heiress of King George IV., and whose premature death in childbirth had the effect of bringing her cousin, Queen Victoria, to the throne.

On the demise of Princess Charlotte the command of the regiment was bestowed upon her widower husband, Prince Leopold of Saxe-Coburg, who had become to all intents and purposes an English prince and who was treated by his father-in-law, George IV., as a member of the British reigning family. It was as such that he becaame the guardian and afterwards the chief mentor of his niece, Queen Victoria, his sister having become the wife of the royal Duke of Kent.

In 1830 Prince Leopold of Saxe-Coburg was elected by the Belgians as their king. He retained the colonelcy of his English cavalry regiment until his death more than thirty-five years afterwards, and its command has now been bestowed upon his grandson, King Albert of Belgium, by George V. of England.

The only other foreign rulers who now hold colonelcies in the British army are King Alfonso of Spain, who is colonel in chief of the Sixteenth lancers, and Czar Nicholas, who is colonel in chief of the Royal Scots Greys. The remaining monarchs formerly possessed of English colonelcies, namely, the kaiser, Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria, and the Duke of Saxe-Coburg Gotha, have all been deprived thereof as enemies of Great Britain in the present war.



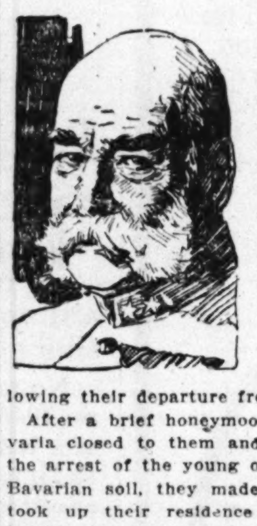
England's Court of Divorce has just granted a decree rendering absolute and final the dissolution of the marriage of Col. Sir Horace Proctor-Beauchamp and of Lady Beauchamp, who is an American and a daughter of the late Henry M. Leavitt of New York, the co-respondent in the case being Capt. Harry Francis Darell, formerly of the Rifle brigade, who, I understand, is now about to marry her.

Sir Horace is a soldier, who was one of Lord Kitchener's men in the Soudan, where he commanded the Twentieth lancers, and also distinguished himself in the Boer war, where he won the Order of the Bath.

Sir Horace bears an extraordinary resemblance to Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood of the United States army, and on the occasion of his several visits to America—he has been very fond of spending the winters in Florida—has usually been addressed as "Gen. Wood" on landing in New York by the newspaper reporters and by the custom house officers, who were convinced that they had the officer commanding the division of the east before them.

Sir Horace has no children, and the heir to his baronetcy is his brother, Montagu Beauchamp, who is a missionary out in China. Sir Horace inherited nothing with the baronetcy, his elder brother, the late Sir Reginald Beauchamp, having left his estates in Norfolkshire, and all his property, to his married daughters.

Count Otto von Seefried, who has just been promoted by the emperor of Austria to the rank of lieutenant colonel, has married one of that aged monarch's granddaughters. Twenty-two years ago Princess Elizabeth, daughter of that Prince Leopold of Bavaria commanding the German-Austrian forces that took possession of Warsaw recently, eloped from her home at Munich with a young lieutenant of Bavarian infantry, Baron Otto von Seefried, who in addition to being penniless suffered from the additional disadvantage, in the eyes of the reigning houses of Bavaria and of Austria, of being a Lutheran. Princess Elizabeth, whose mother, Archduchess Gisela, is the eldest daughter of Emperor Francis Joseph, had fallen in love with the young officer at a court ball, and when her parents had, too late, become aware of her infatuation they secured his transfer to a regiment stationed at Metz. But it was without avail. He came home to Munich on leave, got into communication with his royal sweetheart, and induced her to run away with him. They were married at Genoa on the day following their departure from Munich.



After a brief honeymoon in Italy, finding Bavaria closed to them and a warrant issued for the arrest of the young officer if he set foot on Bavarian soil, they made their way to Vienna, took up their residence in a small suburban hotel under an assumed name, when the princess drove in a cab with her husband to the palace. She left him in the cab, sought her grandfather the emperor, threw herself at his feet, and implored his good will and assistance.

Both the emperor and the empress had always been particularly kindly disposed to this their eldest granddaughter, and, being still overwhelmed with grief through the tragic death of their only son two years previously, whose life had been marred by an unhappy marriage, they took her to their hearts. In the first place the husband was sent for and looked over. He met with the approval of the emperor, who then and there undertook to provide for the future of the young couple and to endeavor to straighten out things for them at Munich.

He began by securing the permission of the late regent of Bavaria to transfer the young baron from the Bavarian to the Austrian army, and assigned him to duty as first lieutenant of the Ninety-ninth infantry regiment, stationed in the quiet little garrison town of Groppau,

CARE OF WAR WOUNDS.

IN the last week of July, 1914, a great surgical congress was being held in London. The leading surgeons of the world were expected. The greatest single attraction was to be Von Eiselsberg. When the congress opened it was noticed that German and Austrian surgeons were not in attendance. Few present inferred that this meant that war was a practical certainty.

On the last day of the congress came the first of a series of declarations of war. The congress was held without its stellar attraction—the clinic by Von Eiselsberg. There are those who hold that the opinion of Von Eiselsberg on a surgical subject is the best to be had in the world.

The chance that Germany and Austria have to win this war depends very much upon the care taken of their men. The best minds in sanitation are engaged in protecting the soldiers against all forms of preventable disease. Rubner is settling all questions as to food, drink, and clothing. In addition, there is need that the wounded shall be well cared for and returned to the ranks at the front with the greatest possible haste.

The greatest surgical genius of his country, Austria, Von Eiselsberg, has drawn up a series of directions for the care of the wounded in this hour of need for Austria and Germany. Most of what he says applies to the treatment of ordinary wounds among people engaged in the ordinary duties of life. Those that do not apply to the ordinary accidents of the ordinary man do apply to the men who handle heavy machinery or use high explosives in the very large manufacturing plants and big mines.

Surgery, Gynecology, and Obstetrics for June publishes the following ten commandments for the military surgeon:

"1. The fresh wound must not be touched with the finger, and no antiseptics must be applied to it. As soon as possible the fresh wound is covered with a piece of dressing without the wound or tissues around it being washed or irrigated. The dressing should be sterile white hygroscopic gauze—if possible, prepared beforehand as an individual dressing. This sterile dressing is fastened with a bandage—if necessary with adhesive plaster. Care should be exercised in using mull bandages, for if they are applied a little bit too firmly they may cause constriction.

"2. The treatment of primary hemorrhage, if local compression with dressings is not sufficient, is to be accomplished with elastic bandages or tourniquet. Hemorrhage from large arterial trunks may be controlled by pressure with the finger, wrapped, if possible, with sterile gauze. Hemostasis with instruments (ligation) should be deferred so far as possible until a stationary hospital is reached.

"3. The canal of the bullet should not be probed, either with a sound or with the finger, nor should it be tamponed with a piece of dressing, even if it is sterile. The rule holds, too, in general for the later treatment of wounds. The sound, dressing forceps, or finger can be introduced for the sake of orientation only immediately before or during the opening of a wound for suppuration.

"4. Fractures should be immobilized by fixing both the neighboring joints. In the first dressing at the front it is not so important to produce accurate coaptation as to see that the bone fragments do not rub against each other or exert pressure upon neighboring soft parts. This fixation may be accomplished by means of a plaster dressing, if the material is at hand and the physician is a master of the technic. Generally he only applies splints. The wire splint in different sizes is an excellent splint for universal use. The fixation of the broken femur is the most difficult, especially if the fracture is above the middle, as the ordinary Petit's boots are not adequate. For transportation I would recommend a modification of the splint which has two lateral wings to inclose the thigh and pelvis. In the final treatment of fractures of the long bones, especially the femur, I use extension as much as possible, and finally get the patient on his feet again by the use of plaster or mull dressings.

"5. The extraction of projectiles is a pressing operation only in very rare cases, and even secondarily should only be performed when there is some special indication for it, as when the bullet is causing serious symptoms or can be felt immediately under the skin. The desire of the patient to have the bullet removed should not influence the physician to remove it. The Roentgen picture makes the diagnosis of the location of the bullet easier, but should not lead the surgeon to perform an operation that is not indicated. It almost looks as if Roentgenology had brought about dangerous attempts at extraction, by which patients have been injured.

"6. In all painful operations, even painful changing of dressings, where injection of morphine is not sufficient, ether should be resorted to. Ether vapor and slight ether anæsthesia are often a failure, especially in phlegmonous processes.

"7. In suppuration the secretion should be emptied out by incision and counterincision along the dressing forceps introduced into the wound, and then—always under anæsthesia—a drainage tube inserted. Tamponing of the opening should always be avoided. Changing a tampon and applying a fresh one are not only painful, but directly injurious.

"8. In every swelling that is at first diffuse and then gives the impression of an abscess and causes fever, one should think of the possibility of an arterial hematoma-aneurism.

"9. For the sake of maintaining asepsis at every stage in the treatment of wounds the use of strong rubber gloves that can be easily washed without any special care is earnestly recommended.

"10. Extensive operations should, as far as possible, be put off until the hospital is reached, where all aseptic precautions can be taken for aftercare. In severe injuries of limbs, extensive suppuration, gas phlegmons, or threatened gangrene with septic fever, amputation should not be too long delayed, and the life of the patient endangered too much for the sake of preserving an injured limb.

"The most important of these ten commandments is: Dressings must be aseptic, and military surgery as conservative as possible."

The more important of these recommendations are as follows:

It is very important that wounds be not tampered with. The authority is so anxious that the wound shall not be washed out that he says neither the wound nor the tissues around it are to be washed or irrigated.

Bullet wounds are not to be probed. Even when the bullet has been located by an X ray and its removal seems easy it is not to be removed. When an abscess is being opened it is proper to go into the wound with the forceps or finger, but not under other circumstances.

Suppurating wounds are not to be filled with gauze tampons.

In fracture cases the most important point is to see that the jagged bone ends do not cut and tear the nearby tissue. This is more important than getting the ends of the bones together.

In his treatment of gas infections, tetanus, and gangrene he depends more on extensive operations, such as amputation, and less on oxygen injections, exposure to the open air after free incisions, than do the other war surgeons who have been recently quoted in this column.

There are some people who insist on the removal of bullets; many who want wounds probed. There are many people who want to have their wounds cleaned up and all torn shreds clipped off. The majority of people want their suppurating wounds filled with gauze tampons. Such people will gain from reading the surgical precepts of Von Eiselsberg, the greatest Austrian surgeon of his day.

The reports that come from the front are to the effect that the proportion of wounded soldiers who recover and return to the colors is greater in this war than in any previous conflict. This is true of the French, Russian, German, Austrian, and English armies. It is too early for any reports from Italy.

The Journal of the American Medical Association tells us that of the wounded in German hospitals in April, 1915, 91.2 per cent have been returned to their regiments, 7.4 per cent have been discharged as unfit for service, and 1.4 per cent have died. There has been a steady rise since August, 1914. During that month the returns to service were 84.8 per cent, the discharges as unfit 12.2, the dead 3 per cent.

The proportions for the German army during the first nine months of the war were: Discharged, fit for service, 88.5; discharged, unfit or on furlough, 9.6; dead, 1.9.

In the American civil war, of those who reached the hospital, 12.27 per cent died and 87.73 survived.

The proportion of the troops killed on the field of battle is greater than in any previous war. The figures are not available, but the authorities from the different armies are agreed that this statement is true. The reason is that in this war military and other high power weapons are being employed as never before.

Not only is there better provision for sanitation and hygiene, public and personal, and better care of the sick and wounded in this war than ever before, but we are hearing for the first time of systematic efforts to retrain those disabled by war to the end that they shall be able to take care of themselves.

Boards pass upon the soldiers made unfit for war through wounds, decide what they should be able to do in spite of their permanent disabilities, and arrange for work through which they will be trained for the new toil.

TOBACCO HABIT TREATMENT.

J. F. J. writes: "Will you please publish a cure for the tobacco habit? Does high blood pressure have any relation to insomnia? Did any one to your knowledge ever succeed in growing hair on a bald head through the use of the oil of capsicum remedy you published last year?"

REPLY.

1. The remedy which we publish about once a month is to paint the interior of the mouth with a weak solution of nitrate of silver. This is to be repeated several times. Its only purpose is to produce a metallic taste which interferes with the taste of tobacco while the system is cleaning itself and the man is developing the grit to quit.

2. Yes, some.

3. The physician who furnished the details of the method had grown hair on his previously bald pate. I do not know any one else who has succeeded with it.

DIET FOR BABY.

L. S. writes: "Will you publish a balanced diet for a baby boy of 22 months? I live in a malarial country. Should he be given calomel often? How can I give him quinine, and what kind? Would old potatoes be likely to disagree with him?"

REPLY.

1. He should have four meals a day. During the day he should have one pint and a half to two pints of milk, the juice of one orange, a baked apple or a saucer of prunes without skins, some vegetables, such as well cooked spinach, turnips, and carrots; some baked potato with butter or gravy, a dish of cereal, a tablespoonful of scraped beef, or its equivalent.

2. No.

3. When he needs it, give him some tasteless form of quinine. In giving tasteless quinine give about one-third more than you would give of quinine in a more active form.

4. No.

CLIMATE CURE A GAMBLE.

C. C. writes: "I am a woman of 40, in not very good health. My ears roar often without any apparent cause. Is it a sign of coming deafness? If so, can anything be done to avoid this? After hay fever has got a start is there any advantage in going away from central Illinois?"

REPLY.

1. It does not necessarily mean on-coming deafness. It does mean trouble with your hearing nerves, or internal ear, or both.

2. In some cases, yes.

3. Yes, in some cases. The climate cure of hay fever is a good deal of a gamble.

SPREAD BY NOSE SECRETIONS.

B. S. writes: "A friend has cerebro spinal meningitis. How did he get it? Does any doctor in America use the treatment discovered by a doctor in Melbourne, Australia, to cure a person with this disease?"

REPLY.

1. The coccus which causes this disease is spread by the nose secretions. It is found in the nose secretions of those who have recently had the disease; also of those who have been in contact with infected individuals.

2. There is nothing in this treatment for the case you are interested in.

NO SCIENTIFIC FOUNDATION.

Mrs. L. F. F. writes: "Can you tell me anything of palmistry?"

REPLY.

Palmistry is without scientific foundation. While on the subject of frauds, I will add that phrenology is also without scientific foundation.

CITY WILL TRIM TREES.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—[To the Friend of the People.]—On the west side of Ada street, between Sixty-ninth and Seventieth streets the branches on the several trees hang so low that a person cannot pass along the walk without stooping. This is very annoying at all times and we would like to know what can be done to have the same trimmed by the city forester.

SEVERAL SUFFERERS.

We have a gang of tree trimmers now working in the south end of the city, and I hope they will soon cover the territory referred to in your letter. They are now working north through Washington Heights.

J. H. PROST,
Superintendent of Parks and City Forester.

CONCERNING FIFTY-NINTH STREET LIGHTING.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Permit me to say that Fifty-ninth street, between Fifth and Princeton avenues, is poorly lighted, and I am writing to find out whether or not we can have a few more lights. A READER.

A careful survey of the lighting on Fifty-ninth street from Fifth to Princeton avenues has been made. I wish to advise that the lighting on this street conforms to the standards of this department for street lighting, and therefore no additional lighting equipment can be installed at present.

WILLIAM J. KEITH,
Commissioner of Electricity.

WIDTH OF RIVER.

Manchester, Ia., Aug. 18.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Please tell me what is the width of the river at Clark and State streets. F. C. EOLTS.

The width of the Chicago river between docks at and just west of Clark street is 269 feet, and at and just west of the bridge at State street the width of the river between the dock lines is 235 feet.

JOHN ERICSON,
City Engineer.

IS A NATIVE.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Is a woman born in America of foreign parents, who have never been naturalized, a citizen of America, and entitled to all rights as such?

A SUBSCRIBER.

A native of the United States is a citizen, without regard to the status of the parents.

CAN PROBABLY FORECLOSE.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—[1] I borrowed money on my furniture a little over three months ago and I have been notified to pay the same under threat of foreclosure. Can the loan company foreclose on me and how much interest am I obliged to pay them? [2] Also kindly inform me whether the company is compelled to give me any time before the sale of the furniture.

R. A. R.

1. The loan company probably can foreclose, unless there is something in your agreement with them that would forbid it. Whatever interest you agreed to pay up to 7 per cent. If no interest was mentioned you must pay 5 per cent.

2. The company need give only three days' notice prior to the sale. You will receive notice through the foreclosure proceedings before the mortgagee can take possession of your household goods.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FOREIGN POWERS HAVE POWER.

Forest Park, Ill., Aug. 21.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Kindly inform me whether the foreign governments have power to recall their citizens who have come to the United States in case such citizens have not resided in the United States long enough to have become naturalized. G. K.

Foreign powers have the power, such people being still their citizens. Practically, however, the power can not be exercised while the foreign citizens are within the territorial limits of the United States, but if such citizens should ever come within the jurisdiction of their native countries, they would be subject to punishment for disobeying the order of recall.

AUNTS WILL SHARE IN ESTATE.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—My nephew was married and died within a month's time, leaving no will. The members of his immediate family had died and there remained but his wife, three aunts, and his grandfather. Kindly inform me if the grandfather and aunts will share in his estate or whether the wife inherits the entire estate. M. M.

The wife inherits all the personal property and one-half the real property. The other half is divided among the aunts.

AN EX-GOVERNOR ON FRANK AFFAIR.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I am a reader and admirer of your paper, but your editorial of Aug. 18 on Leo M. Frank is wholly unworthy. To seize an opportunity to indict the people of a whole section as ignorant, uncivilized, and in sympathy with an act of barbarism is a reflection on your own intelligence and breadth of vision.

I am a southern man, and fairly typical, but you do not believe any stronger than I that the lynching of Frank was unspeakably cruel and cowardly. Horrible and inexcusable as it was, the participants, when discovered, will be found to be men who are not representative of the intelligence or character of the citizenship even of their own communities, much less do they represent the sentiment of the southern people as a whole.

Let it be hoped that your intelligent northern readers no more approve of the collective mob spirit of your editorial than decent southern men do of the Frank atrocity. The lawless spirit is unfortunately confined to no section of our land.

Last week, according to newspaper reports two mobs were pursuing two men in two northern states, charged with offenses against females, with the avowed purpose of killing them when caught; and when the other day your editorial on Frank appeared, the news columns of THE TRIBUNE carried the story that a citizen of Chicago, after being liberated by a court on the charge of taking liberties with young girls, immediately fled to another state to escape the vengeance of vigilantes.

Lawlessness is not peculiar to the south. There is as much of it in the north as there is in the south—and there is too much of it everywhere. It is our national sin, and we must learn as a people that we cannot do as we please. Better organized government, self-restraint, and respect for law, either voluntary or by force, is the hope of our democracy.

M. R. PATTERSON,
Ex-Governor of Tennessee.

LUNACY IS THE WORD.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Cannot commend too highly your editorial of this morning. "Lunacy" is the word, and it is glorious, indeed.

HARRY S. MECARTNEY.

BLOCK BLOCKS IT.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Ald. Block is well named. Instead of work being begun on the free bathing beach, everything is at a standstill because he has some other plan up his sleeve. He says the property will cost too much to purchase. Will he kindly tell us what it is estimated at? Will he also tell us what the contractors will charge to build two piers and to make the new land between them? What is his plan, really? What will it cost and how long will the private beaches be allowed to run and charge, while his plan is being carried out? BATHER.

HE UPHOLDS IT.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Your editorial sounds like the crying of a spoiled child. What's wrong? Are you peeved because yours and other northern papers can't dictate to the south what shall be done with a convicted man whose conviction was upheld in the highest court of the land?

Because a few hot-blooded men did what the court decreed you yell as if you were hurt; or is it a play for more Jew advertisements?

Ignorant politicians, rotten social ideas, industrial conditions, etc. Can Chicago hold its head up?

How about your esteemed philanthropists who rob the workers first so they may donate large sums to the uplift of mankind with the advertisements that goes with it?

"Infusion of better blood." There's as good blood South as anywhere, and we certainly would not look for better blood in a state which permits women to be murdered and children to be insulted and the guilty persons go unpunished. Clean up home before trying to clean up places where the money aristocracy isn't all powerful. L. H. LONG.

"WE" WHAT?

Chicago, Aug. 24.—[Editor of the Tribune.]—German inconsistency is best illustrated in the columns of the German newspapers. Just one instance within two editorial articles, the editor of the Chicagoer Presse, (Aug. 19,) refers to "we American citizens," "we Americans," "we German-Americans," and finally, "we Germans"! The first two expressions are used in criticizing our attitude to Germany. GEORGE LICHTENSTEIN.

THE SICK MAN OF EUROPE

By Alcibiades De Ángell.

WHEN the late Mr. Gladstone, the great statesman of England, referred to Turkey, in the house of commons, as "The Sick Man of Europe" he left to the world a whole volume in one sentence. History knows how long the incurable illness has been devouring the system of Europe's illustrious patient. An organism weakened by centuries of mismanagement, cruelty, and suppression of its own members is bound to succumb. It is a natural law, applicable to individuals as well as to a community, a state, a nation, or a world.

For many a year the jealousies of the European powers and the expectancy of each one to gain privileges over the other in the land of the Osmanlis only prolonged the life of this continually failing nation. The European attitude acted sometimes as a hypodermic. Occasionally the patient would feel these invigorating draughts of pretended servility on the part of the one or the other European power and imagine himself a great factor in the destinies of Europe. Overexertion followed and then, as a consequence, another collapse of the patient.

To the careful observer the tracing of the diplomatic duels in Turkey during the last years of Sultan Hamid's reign was amusing, as well as interesting. One could follow the trend of the pourparlers and diplomatic affections by reading between the lines in the columns of the daily press. The arrival of a man-o'-war or a squadron of one or another power; the appointment of a grand vizier or governor whose politics were favoring one or another group; the exchange of royal presents—for Abdul Hamid knew how to turn a tide—sometimes by simply presenting a pair of valuable Arabic horses; the exchange of decorations; the presenting of memorial fountains, and last, but not least, the strategic movements on the pretense of sudden vacations on the part of one or another ambassador in Constantinople. All such events were so well linked together that one needed not a yildiz spy system to follow the continual struggle in diplomatic conquests between England, Germany, and Russia primarily.

When, however, Emperor William II. made his grand coup by visiting personally the land of the prophet, the observer knew that England had played her last card and lost all possibilities of further diplomatic triumph. Then the German railway interests spread in Asia Minor, the Turkish soldier learned the German goose step and the hammal began climbing on the railings of the maneuver grounds at the barracks to watch the German goose steppers drill, and chuckle a "Mashallah!" with a "sieker loukoum," contentment when his eyes would rest on Gen. "Von So-and-So," who was the directing spirit, perspiring under the protection of a heroic fez and the glistening of the Turkish "pasha style" epaulettes.

THERE was never a time in the history of "the sick man" so critical as the present. The many amputations of the recent Balkan wars left him even the weaker, and now Charon is delivering his powerful blows at the gates of Hellespont and Bosporus. The great sea monsters and the powerful armies of the allies are opening their way with flaming steel. The "sick man" is struggling with the despair of one desperate, but his blows are growing weaker and weaker. A few more weeks or months and "the sick man" may breathe his last.

What ails Turkey?

Turkey as a nation resisted persistently the law of evolution. It stands now exactly on the same spot on the road of evolution as where it stood when Mohammed, the conqueror, established himself on the seven hill city of the Golden Horn, the picturesque Constantinople. This, of course, applies largely to principles and partly to improvements.

The nations of the world kept marching on their way, climbing hills of progress, crossing valleys of achievements, but the descendants of the Ottoman were too self-confident, apparently, of their own views of life and their pursuant policy. They have persisted in retaining principles of the dark ages.

Somewhere, hidden back of the thick veil of the centuries, a man of more than the higher intelligence of his time, or a body of men, or even a community, evolves a principle or principles, a law or laws which is probably fit to govern the people of that particular age, climate, and environment. Then the principle or law will travel its way through the first century, thereafter always open to criticism. However, by the dawn of the succeeding century the principle would become more revered, owing to the growing distance of the time of its adoption and the consequent misconceptions of the original reason, which caused the birth of such principle or law. The originators are already enveloped in a brilliant mist of superexistence, heavenly inspired, selected ones, etc. The addition of one or two centuries more completes the hallucination. The principle becomes supreme, the law sacred, and the originators undiscussably superhuman. Other people readjust and continue to readjust themselves and their principles from time to time to meet the necessities and demands of the progress of the world. Turkey is among the ones that did not.

A telling contrast to the Turkish sluggishness and indifference which led into decay is the vivacity of the Yellow Man of Nippon and his admirable advancement. He rightfully bears the name of the rising sun, for its sun of progress sets not on his domain. Lacking the advantages that Turkey had, owing to her nearness to civilization, Japan rode the space to meet its heralds. While the former made use of all means of coercion on all progressive tendencies of her non-Mohammedan subjects in an endeavor to eject civilization from within her doors, the latter lost no opportunity in following its banner. Slowly and silently the yellow man of the far east, with the keenness characteristic of his race, adapted himself to the progress of the world.

What others found to be an insurmountable barrier, the yellow man did not. He did not discard his religious ideals, but devised a way to adapt them to the general progress of the world. This same world woke one day to the realization that Japan was demanding her place as a civilized nation. I do not refer to the militaristic progress as commendable. Japan on adopting our present standard of civilization was by necessity bound—even if not unwilling—to adopt its faults also.

IT is really significant that of all the men of Turkey—and I refer to the Mohammedan race—there was not one who dared or even attempted to awaken his countrymen to a realization of the pending doom. I remember now the words of a worthy member of this race. He was a professional man, very quiet and possessing gifts which attracted respect beyond the average. We were becoming intimate to the extent of daring to express our opinions rather freely when by ourselves.

Under the régime of the deposed sultan, Abdul Hamid, a slip was oftentimes followed by very uncomfortable results. "Ghiavroum," he said, "we are on the downward path." I had ventured an opinion previously, never expecting to receive such a surprising admission. "I see where we are going; don't you think I do?" he continued. "But who, on earth, can deliver us; who has the power to utter a word against superstition and live to tell the tale?" Such a summary statement, even coming from the lips of a progressive Turk, created such an impression on me that on returning home in the evening I entered the whole sentence in my diary and his words now stare at me, while I write, from the yellowish and time worn page. I am sure he is one of the most unhappy men of his country, if he is alive now.

Abdul Hamid, the deposed Sultan of Turkey, was not only a remarkable man but a genius of diplomacy. I cannot agree with those who claim that he could not see far into the future; that he could handle only the problems of the immediate present. He won the disfavor of the civilized world as a red handed oppressor, a murderer, and a coward, it is true. He will probably be known in the history as the Nero of the twentieth century, but nevertheless, he succeeded during his long reign in holding back with his weak and blood stained hands the progress of the world through the backwardness of his domain.

Undoubtedly, if he has been informed of the events of latter years—since he was led out of the "Yildiz kiosk"—he must be smiling now contentedly in his exile. He ascended the throne accompanied by the reticence of an oppressor while surrounded by numberless enemies, but he was not responsible for the long and continual slumber of the peoples of his race over whom he assigned himself to rule. He was not responsible for what transpired during the centuries previous to his reign. His marvelous system of espionage was not a device of his own. He simply developed and improved a system which existed previously and flourished under the reign of many of his predecessors. He ascended the throne by treachery, and it was only natural to his treacherous character to protect himself from the treachery of others.

SUCH events cannot be avoided in the life of imperialistic nations. A glance at the tumultuous history of the nations of the world will bring one to the realization that Abdul Hamid was a genuine product of his environment, a product of a decaying system. If he himself did not ascend the throne of the Osmalis, treachery or not, some one else would have been elected or would have elected himself, only to follow the paths of cruelty and suppression that this wizard of diplomacy did.

The old man was aware of the great and puzzling dilemma confronting his reign. He knew that the moment the intrigue and tactics, the course of which he had so perfectly established, would have been overthrown, it would sound the beginning of the end. He also knew that his own cunning system of tactics was by no means capable or turning or even arresting the downward path of his nation.

He was well aware that such a system would undoubtedly lead to the ultimate extinction of the "Sick Man of Europe," but the advance of the decomposition was so slow in its progress that it seemed ample ease and safety for the present.

A promise here, a consent there, a refusal, a threat, and then a prolonged diplomatic fusillade, to be followed by the unavoidable backward step. Such a step would be in the form of a railway consent, a "firman" for a mine, a resignation of a right, or a new national debt. His ways were so perfect that he occasionally insisted on retaining something he actually did not have. This was his master stroke of diplomacy. The case of the Island of Crete, for example. It is admitted by all cognizants that Crete was always a cancer on the body of the great patient. An open and incurable wound he was, out of which he was slowly but surely bleeding to death.

In the times of Sultan Mahmud Crete was gone by forever. When Mahmud frowned—the mountains of Crete were shaking, but when Abdul frowned—only [illegible] of his part of this reign—the military bands [illegible] mountains and valleys with the famous island were thrilling the old melody, [illegible] of the Cretan anthem. Sultan Mahmud once became so enraged over the chronic Cretan revolution that he ordered his vizier to show him on the map the little strip of land that dared to oppose his majestic rule. The vizier pointed in great confusion to the historical island, anticipating a thunderstorm. The thunderstorm came, because the ruler frowned. "Go," he said, "and have this thing tied and towed here." The vizier bowed himself in great haste out of his thundering majestic presence.

Old Hamid knew that such ropes of sultanic imagination that were once intended to tow Crete were parted forever. He knew well that he was allowed no right, he had no way, no authority left to impose his sovereign will and power on the brave people of the land of Minos. The only vaporous thread connecting his domain with the long lost land was a nominal title of suzerainty and a small Turkish flag, one only, flapping on the breezes on a twenty or thirty foot flagpole somewhere on that vast drilling ground, Crete. He preferred the gradual but slow bleeding, rather than to renounce that imaginary suzerainty, that vaporous thread. In fact, he persisted so long that his attitude on this question lasted long enough to be undertaken and continued by his successors, the Young Turks, until the recent Balkan wars, at the close of which the mourning of material losses was timely and not imaginary. But did not Abdul Hamid's persistence keep the beast of diplomacy busy for many a year? Did it not probably avert many a loss in the form of additional territorial amputations? Such was the man who smiled and grinned, patted and cursed, but succeeded up to the last moment of his reign in averting what the Young Turks did not.

THEN the old wizard was led out of his stormy life of Stamboul and into obscurity. He wiped his blood covered hands, with a grin on his face. He may have asked himself in his monotonous life since then many a question. Are the Young Turks going to perform the miracle of transforming a Turkey of the sixteenth century into one of the twentieth? Will his once Mohammedan subjects be drawn into the arena of the European civilization? Who was to be the leader of such an impossible undertaking? How would the subjected Christians, who for centuries were taught by subjection and tyranny to despise and hate the oppressors, how could they contribute to the welfare of the country and how could they be trusted?

These were the questions that might have also stood unanswerable to the minds of the far reaching thinkers when, in the din of the new anthem strains and the cheering of a hypnotized crowd, several years ago, the Turkish constitution was proclaimed. No one seemed to have attempted to answer the questions then, no one did afterwards, and none of the Young Turkish zealots even answer them now.

The great European holocaust, the demolisher of life and achievement, results of centuries of painstaking endeavors, is at the zenith of its murderous course. When, however, in the end, sorrow will lean over to count and weep over her millions of slaughtered and devastated, the map of Europe may be altered, but no European nation is apt to be extinguished. The condition, however, of the "Sick Man of Europe" is such that few are the hopes for his survival.

What the French Think of the English.

The following editorials translated from French publications, are significant:

BY GABRIEL HANOTAUX.

[In the Revue Hebdomadaire.]

From England there have come illusionary catchwords on which we have lived for months, and which, after benefiting us for a moment, have ended by doing us hard. Was it not the English press that invented for the Russian armies the famous name of "steam roller"? Was it not Lord Kitchener who coined the no less famous phrase about "the irresistible factor"? Did he not evolve also that other formula, so pregnant with hope but so tardy in delivery: "Our forces will continue to expand unceasingly, while those of the enemy will unceasingly diminish"? We believed in an easy entry into Constantinople. We announced victory as certain for the spring, etc.

A blind faith in the offensive kept us back with regard to the manufacture of munitions. Days and weeks passed. The English ministers were prodigal of magnificent phrases, but their workshops were idle.

BY GEORGES CLEMENCEAU.

[From Le Homme Enchaine.]

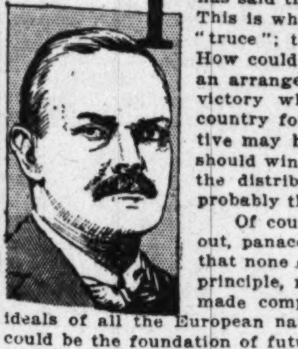
It is an insular outlook that prevails in England. The danger that is imminent, that is red-hot, so to speak, still seems a long way off to them. After all, Calais is in France. The statesman whose duty it is to look ahead does not always do so. Too often the public only reproaches him when it is too late. And still oftener the public turns away from him if a clear foresight into the future obliges him to call upon his fellow citizens for any effort over and above the mediocre calmness of the least exertion necessary to secure the satisfaction of mere words.

[From the Paris Matin.]

The idea of national safety has not entered into the core of the English soul; the occasion for the formation and development of this notion has never arisen.

PEACE PANACEAS

By Edward Goldbeck.



IN a telegram to the United Press the German chancellor has said that Germany is fighting for a "lasting peace." This is what all the countries proclaim; they all scorn a "truce"; they want peace for at least one generation. How could this praiseworthy aim be attained? Only by an arrangement which would satisfy everybody or by a victory which would establish the hegemony of one country for the next thirty years. The second alternative may be eliminated. It is impossible that Germany should win a victory like that. And if the allies conquer, the distribution of the booty will be so difficult that probably the era of good will would be short.

Of course, on both sides theories have been worked out, panaceas have been discovered, but it seems to me that none of them promises well. Up to now there is no principle, no doctrine the exigencies of which could be made compatible with the wants, the pretensions, the ideals of all the European nations. A majority thinks that "nationality" could be the foundation of future Europe and that the map of the continent ought to be changed according to this standard; a minority claims that "internationalization" is the key to the problem.

NATIONALIZATION.

THE practical difficulties of such an undertaking would be immense and it could not be effected without acts of arbitrariness which would shock legitimate aspirations of the single nations. Take the question of Alsace-Lorraine! The Frenchmen say the Germans tore these provinces from France in 1870-'71. The Germans answer that Louis XIV. "stole" this thoroughly German dominion, that the French always despised the Alsatians, scoffed at their clumsy pronunciation, and only discovered their love for them when Germany had reconquered the provinces. In a once famous correspondence two theologians, David Strauss and Ernest Renan, discussed these questions, and when Strauss had asserted the German character of Alsace and its historical connection with Germany Renan pertinently asked how far one should trace the path of history.

It certainly is rather difficult to draw a line in these investigations. It was the same in a poetical duel between a German and a Frenchman. Nicolas Becker wrote a song: "They shall not have it, the free German Rhine!" ("Sie sollen ihn nicht haben, den freien, deutschen Rhein!"), and Alfred de Musset answered: "We have had your German Rhine, it has been in our glasses!" ("Nous l'avons eu, votre Rhin allemand, il a tenu dans notre verre!")

Problems like this will turn up by the dozen. There are about 11,000,000 Germans living in Austria. Shall they be united with Germany? The Baltic provinces have been German for a long time; Mitau, Libau, Riga are German towns; the higher classes, the land owners and the professionals, are German in origin and culture. Three millions of Roumanians live in Hungary, 1,000,000 in Russia. About 3,500,000 of Serbians live in Austria, 500,000 in Montenegro.

If the principle of nationality is going to obtain, what will be Finland's, what Ireland's situation? Will this doctrine rule the whole world with the exception of English possessions; for instance, India? What shall be done for Poland? I doubt very much that Germany would like to have an independent Poland with 12,000,000 of Catholics in her eastern flank, and it is very unlikely that—as the papers had it—a scion of the Saxon dynasty would be allowed to ascend this throne. The current of German public opinion is entirely antagonistic to an increase of "particularism" (you would say state power); and William II. is the last man who would like to enhance Saxony's influence. But even if Poland could be satisfied, what about the Ukraine, or "Little Russia"?

THE 22d of February, 1914, the Russian paper Kiewlanin said: "The agitation in the Ukraine is more dangerous for Russia than all the other nationalistic agitations." The Ukraine—the country north of the Black sea—is a sort of Russian Ireland. Czar Peter the Great in 1720 forbade the use of the Ukrainian language as a literary language. Catherine II. fobade the Ukrainian language in public life and destroyed the autonomy of the country. In 1876 Ukrainian literature was prohibited by a ukase all over Russia, and the most famous poet of the Ukraine, Taras Schewtschenko, spent the best years of his life in prison and exile.

The Ukraine has been an independent state for five centuries, and in our era of national renascence the memory of long gone splendors has awakened here, too. Some German historians think that it would not be impossible to conquer the Ukraine, to render her the old independence, and so to exclude Russia entirely from the Black sea and the Balkans. The Russian Balkan ambitions would be frustrated then for good. The Ukraine has about 32,000,000 of inhabitants. Odessa, Nikolajew, and Cherson, the great seaports at the Black sea, would soon develop immensely. The Ukraine is the agricultural reservoir of Russia, its production a third of the whole Russian output. In minerals, coal, and naphtha the Ukraine is almost inexhaustible; it produces 50 per cent of the Russian salt.

The historian of the Russian revolution, Thun, states that every rebellion against the Muscovite czardom has started from the Ukraine. The rebellions of the Black sea fleet in 1905, 1912, and 1914 were due to the Ukrainian propaganda. When the war broke out not less than 600 Ukrainians were arrested in one day. All the Ukrainian papers were suspended, all the clubs and associations dissolved. No wonder that the Germans expect some support from this part of Russia and that they think of lessening the Russian danger by resurrecting the Ukraine to political independence. For the moment, of course, this is nothing but a suggestion from some irresponsible German theorists. If it will crystallize into reality depends on the Ukrainian population, on the progress of the German operations, and many other factors.

Some people think of plebiscites and probably Americans favor this idea, as they are bound to believe in the wisdom of the masses. But this, too, is a difficult way of settling the nationalistic problem. Shall the people in Belgium say whether they consider themselves Walloons or French or Flemish? Shall the same decisions be made in Corsica, Nice, Egypt, Cyprus, and so on? The result would be chaos. And would all the inhabitants accept the decision of the majority? Certainly not; many of them would rebel, arms in hand. Germany would not lose very much by the application of this principle; even if Danes, Lorrainese, and Poles were freed from the German yoke the bulk of the country would remain untouched, but England and Russia could never accept an arrangement of this sort. And—last but not least—can a country like the United States take her stand for the principle of nationality and would not this be a rather dangerous precedent?

INTERNATIONALIZATION.

THE other principle could be called "internationalization." This principle could only be adopted in case of Germany's victory. "What are England's aims?" Germany asks, "and what are the means of crushing the English imperialism?"

The aims of England are four. At first the closer connection in a "greater Britain," with Canada, Australia, and South Africa. Secondly, the establishment of a great African empire from Egypt to the Cape of Good Hope: this was the plan of the late Cecil Rhodes, and combined with it is the idea of a tremendous railroad from Cairo to the Cape. Thirdly, the establishment of a second Indian empire made of Burma and the Malayan peninsula. England's fourth and most important aim is the connection by land between Egypt and India.

To effect this last England needs the control of Arabia, southern Persia, and the territories of the lower Euphrates and Tigris . . . the Turkish village of Bagdad. This, the Germans says, has been England's leading idea since the end of the war against the Boers. The gigantic plan aims at the establishment of a compact British dominion which is to stretch from the Nile, the eastern Soudan, and the Victoria-Nyanza over Arabia, Mesopotamia, southern Persia, Afghanistan, and India to the straits of Malacca and which, together with South Africa and Australia, shall reduce the Indian ocean to an English lake. This is the idea of the famous engineer Willcocks, the general manager of the Egyptian irrigation works, and of Lord Curzon, the ex-governor of India.

These plans could never be realized, they could not even be conceived, without the possession of all the strategical points at the straits which English statesmanship seized when the other nations were too weak to grab them or not wide awake enough to see their importance. The mere enumeration will show what British power means. There is the canal, the main stake of the present war; then Gibraltar at the entrance of the Mediterranean, Malta in its western, Cyprus in the eastern part, Port Said and Suez as doors into the orient, Aden at the southeastern end of the Red sea, then Ceylon and the Palk straits between the Arabian and the Bengalian gulfs, then the Straits Malacca with Singapore, in eastern Asia Hongkong, and at last, in front of the Panama canal, the island Jamaica and some of the small Antilles. These vedettes on the seas and straits are, of course, of the greatest value.

LET us take the case that England should have to accept Germany's conditions. Would Germany try to annex her colonies? That seems madness pure and simple. But German politicians have proposed another arrangement as follows:

Sovereignty of Canada, Australia, and southern Africa.

Annihilation of the British imperialistic projects in Africa and farther India.

Internationalization of the British strategical points above mentioned.

The first and the third points ("internationalization") are the most interesting. Germany will always be a continental power. She must always be ready to defend herself on land, and she has not the natural advantages of an island nor England's long colonial tradition. If she tried to succeed England she would but overburden herself and alienate herself from her natural mission. It would only be possible to reach a higher condition of international harmony and safety by connecting the interests of all the European-American nations. The more countries the peace favors the more lasting it will be. The emancipation of Canada, Australia, and South Africa is bound to come anyhow; why not accelerate it? The market of these colonies must be opened to all countries.

The strategical points could be administered by European-American boards. As a model the municipal European administration of Shanghai could serve. There the town is protected against non-Europeans by a European militia, in which Germans and Englishmen stand in rank and file in spite of the war. I cannot enter into the details of such an arrangement, but it seems to contain a sound idea.

NOBODY can say today who will be the victor in this murderous struggle. Germany is in the advantage now, but the question is whether she will be able to keep up her tremendous effort. Italy may send half a million men to France, the Balkan states may enter the war on the side of the allies, the Dardanelles may yet be taken. England will be able to draw upon her men to a much greater extent than she has done up to now. America may be Morganized. If a few Americans who are foolish and unpatriotic enough to travel on ammunition carriers should be killed the president will have to make good his threat to consider such an event as a "decidedly unfriendly action." But in case the allies should win the question of the Dardanelles and Constantinople alone would prove to be a Gordian knot of difficulties. Who can hope for a lasting peace under those circumstances? A series of wars, as Moltke predicted them, is much more likely. The iron age begins, and once more "readiness is all."

THE CITY OF THE LIVING DEATH

By Anonyma.

A CITY of beautiful buildings, of wide and shining streets gleaming white in the sun, and a deadly quiet hanging over all—a calm which is uncanny, which makes you want to hold your breath, and fills you with a nameless sense of longing while half forgotten memories steal over you, memories of days long ago when this city was one of the gayest and richest in the world. You wonder why this deathly breathlessness today. Listen to a tale of truth almost incredible because of its cruelty. Listen to a tale of twentieth century barbarity you will not want to believe.

You waken to a beautiful day; one of those days created for this part of the world alone, a day of glorious sunshine with a touch of coolness which makes the warmth spicy, a day which makes you glad you are alive; but you wonder why the unearthly stillness? Why is Mexico City so quiet? There are no street cars, no automobiles, only a few wagons passing now and then. What has happened in the wonderful old city of a hundred kings, of a civilization as ancient as the Aztecs? On this typical Mexico City morning, what has happened to make the very air still?

And then you remember. And anew the spirit of desolation settles down on your heart and brings pain with it. For Mexico City, beautiful city of palaces, as her citizens fondly speak of her, has been stricken, has had sentence of living death passed upon her for an unknown crime. Her people are condemned to starvation; she is cut off from the outside world, and the home of Mexico's wealth, talent, and education is silent under the condemnation of her unworthy sons.

Mexicans seldom rebel; there is a resignation in their characters which we call fatalism for lack of a better name and because we cannot understand this heroism; but working among them, we catch glimpses sometimes of the soul beyond and we call it faith and bow our heads before such faith as this, infinitely beyond us in its strength, a faith held against all odds; the faith of their Spanish conquerors held with the stubborn endurance of their Indian fathers.

You arise; it is too beautiful a day to stay indoors. You wander into the street. The Zapatistas have left during the night and the Constitutionalists have not arrived. Still there is no disorder; the people are waiting uncomplainingly for the next trial which is to be placed upon them by the men who call themselves patriots, who are saving Mexico from nobody knows what or cares to know now; everybody is too hungry!

There is a placard on the corner; not many people around it. It is in Spanish and denounces the revolutionists, calling on the people to defend themselves and prevent the entrance of the rebels. It ends as follows: "Mexican people, thou hast no maize, water, charcoal, milk, bread, nor work to secure them with. To whom dost thou owe this? Are these the good things they have done for thee? Reflect the state of misery in which thou dost find thyself. It is that brought about by those who, with the pretext of being saviours, have converted themselves not only into tyrants but into traitors as well. Ay! that we might all comprehend that Carranza is a second Santa Ana with the iniquitous labor of treason to our beloved country! Signed. M. M. C. L."

How do people take it? You don't know; they read it and say nothing. They dare not!

You go into a little restaurant (which has stayed open) to get something to eat; a hungry dog slips under the table to catch any scrap you may drop; starving women with wan looking babies in their arms stand outside and mutely beg for "cualquier cosa" (anything). Do you eat? Yes, you do; with a shiver of dread that soon your turn may come and that you must eat while you can. When you come to pay, they will not take your money; it is not good; the Zapatistas used it, but Carranza may not recognize it. Today there is no circulating medium and there may be none for some days. You are well known, you open an account, but all unwelcomed is the thought, "If I have to open an account, what do the poor do?"

Wandering forth again, you walk rather quickly so as not to see too many starving people. At the corner of one of the principal streets there is a corn line; the international relief committee is giving out food. Among the men distributing the corn are some of Mexico's most prominent residents. You stop for a chat; you hear with what difficulty the corn has been procured, of the hindrance of the authorities; that there are ten such stations of only the international relief; also that in one of the first scrambles for corn there were several births in the line.

This is enough; you wander away, down towards the center of the town. Where is Mexico City? There is nothing here but the shell. Hardly a store is open and the few that are are lifeless and deserted. You stray in; a nightshirt costs 15 pesos; very cheap, you figure—only 75 cents American money—but you do not buy it. Your mind goes back to the poor, to the man a landowner in the southern state now residing in the city, who confessed to you yesterday that he has only two pesos a day with which to maintain ten people—that is a cent American money apiece—and food is scarce and high. You think of the man who has been judge of the Supreme court fifteen years, who went to Red Cross headquarters last week and asked to be allowed to buy supplies, and in spite of you your heart begins to ache.

You decide to go out to the "rasto" (slaughter house) and see the "blood line." Usually fertilizer is made of the blood of the slaughtered animals, but on account of the food scarcity it is now being given to the poor; they cook it about four minutes and mix it with a little ground corn or flour, if they have any, and eat it in place of the meat they cannot get. Great care is taken to keep it sanitary and clean, but you feel queazy when you think of eating it. When they first started the line there were some two hundred came for the blood; today there are four thousand or more. Roberts has put the women with babies in their arms up near the head of the line, so they can get their portion and get away out of the sun. One woman has a very sick baby in her arms; he moves her up, too. When he leaves the line those behind break ranks and try to get it. Great shrieking and howling and altogether a most pitiful sight.

Soon an employé brings out a woman with the end of her finger torn off; it happened in the scramble for places. And you learn that often women and children are prostrated and the ache in your heart begins to protest against the men responsible for the suffering in this garden spot of the world. What good have they done their nation that will ever wipe out the memory of such suffering as this? Why should these poor people suffer so? You cry out with the smarting, hurting pity of the futility of it all. But there is no answer.

It is noon. Memories of Mexico's principal street at this hour guide you towards it. You half expect to see the beautiful automobiles, the elegant carriages with their graceful, glossy horses. It is deserted. Then you remember that Carranza took all the machines and Zapata and Villa got the remains and the horses. You hire a carriage, but when you look at the two bags of skin and bones that expect to draw it, you wish you weighed less! True, the teams are gone and the equipages. Where are the people, the wealthy, cultured people of Mexico? And then you remember every prison in Mexico is full; you remember the "committee of public safety," modeled after the one of the French revolution of the same name, and that it has executed from thirty to a hundred and fifty "enemies of the revolution" every day; you remember the exiles in foreign lands, and you choke back a sob; you can't help it. The greatest crime of most of the absent ones was their wealth.

You ride through the deserted boulevards, out the Paseo, famed for its beauty; out to Chapultepec, a marvel of parkland, with a right royal castle poised on the rocks above. You feel like "One who treads alone some banquet hall deserted, whose lights are fled, whose garlands dead, and all but him departed." You turn and tell the driver to take you home.

The sky is cloudy now; the veil of depression seems to enshroud the city; a mourning veil, covering all the misery, all the sorrow, all the heartache. It is much more appropriate than the sunshine, and when the heavens above indulge in a very torrent of tears you join in. You can't help it. Even the blue sky which in the morning tried so hard to be bright is overcast. Even the sun acknowledges his defeat, and the heavens weep over the crime and sorrow below them, over the ruin accomplished in the beautiful city by wicked ambitions and passions! A city done to death through the savage cruelty of man.

And again comes the thought in spite of you. What is the rain going to do to the poor suffering humanity in this city? They are all human beings just like you. Suppose it was little sister who cried with hunger tonight; suppose it was beloved little William wanted "just anything"? And your heartache grows into a passionate protest of pain, and then indignation, and then anger at the lack of necessity of it all.

Something could be done somewhere to stop it! As if in answer to your very thought, the rain stops; there is a rift in the clouds and you see the blue sky. Some one below is calling. You leap out the window to hear the news: "The Constitutionalists have arrived, and there is word from Vera Cruz the United States has decided at last that some definite action must be taken." You rejoice; then further details come: "They have given the revolutionists sixty days," and you close down the window; you do not care to hear more, your hope has faded.

The little sunshine dies out of the day; the sky is leaden and heavy; and out of your intense misery comes the cry, "Father in heaven, have mercy; sixty days more!"

Detroit Electric
$1975 to $2275

The car for all the family all the year

The enclosed car is steadily and surely becoming the preferred type of motor car. Its obvious advantages are winning more buyers each year.

And the modern Detroit Electric is easily the first choice in the enclosed car field. Each member of the family can drive it safely and expertly because of its simplicity and the positiveness of the control system. On hot days—with windows down—you enjoy open car coolness. On cold stormy days—with windows raised—you have closed car comfort. And the Detroit Electric is perfectly silent in operation—it is always clean and there are no fumes or odor of gasoline about it. It has plenty of power and all the speed you need. And because its mechanism is so simple and of such high quality it is always dependable and available. There are some points about the Detroit Electric you will only fully appreciate after a demonstration—when will you have yours?

SHORTS COVER; WHEAT RALLIES

Weather a Bullish Influence; Corn Firmer; September Oats Are Weak.

There was sufficient covering by shorts who oversold on Friday to cause a fair rally and firm tone to a comparatively tame wheat market Saturday. Closing prices ranged ¼c lower to ⅛c higher. The weather developments were sufficiently bullish to cause the fractional gains to be fairly well maintained. Early prices were [illegible] lower, but the declines were brief. There were reports of rain in eastern Minnesota, which helped the prices some at Minneapolis, and rains in central and western Iowa created a nervous feeling in the trade here in view of the weather vagaries of the last four months, the Iowa rains giving the downfall a more general aspect than was indicated by the official forecast.

Premiums Breaking Away.

Despite the strength shown in the futures at the northwestern terminals, the cash premiums seem to be breaking away. This was the cause of the expectation of a liberal run of wheat to the northwestern markets this week. There was no indication of export business in American wheat, but the indications are that there is a little speculative buying at Winnipeg in anticipation of a highly probable large export trade in Canadian wheat later. Millers were again large buyers of futures at Minneapolis, though cash prices there were quoted as much as 6c lower relatively to the futures, with a decrease in stocks of 30,000 bu for one day. Kansas City showed a heavy tone, with car lots unchanged at 2c lower, while prices were steady at St. Louis. The seaboard reported slight injury for durum wheats, but little or none for other grades.

Primary Arrivals Lighter.

Primary receipts this week show the effect of the recent storms and total 7,813,000 bu, as against 9,178,000 bu the preceding week and 9,343,000 bu a year ago. Receipts at these points for the season since July 1, to date, total 49,208,000 bu, against 99,944,000 bu the corresponding period last year and 79,101,000 bu two years ago. The weather, price, and disposition to hold wheat in stack was shown by the movement. The disposition to stack wheat is probably the greatest and most general among farmers than has been seen in twenty or thirty years. Cash sales were 30,000 bu. Clearances were 1,009,000 bu. Receipts were 345 cars, with 300 cars estimated for Monday. Charters for vessel room for 250,000 bu were made at 1⅛c to Buffalo.

Corn Values Firmer.

Corn showed considerable firmness, especially for the September delivery. Last prices were ¼@⅜c higher. Despite the current high premiums for spot corn, as compared to the futures, there is very little movement from the country. About all the activity in the way of shipments of grain, appears to be centered principally in oats, with wheat second. There were predictions of unsettled weather with frost in some portions of the northern belt, and this, coupled with the early strength in wheat, caused an upturn of about ½c, part of which was lost before the close. A cargo of Argentine corn was sold at New York at 72¾c c. i. f. shipment, the latter part of September. This makes cheap corn as compared with anything the west can do.

The week's shipments of corn from this center were 734,000 bu, against receipts of 908,000 bu. Primary arrivals for the week were 2,728,000 bu, as against 2,891,000 bu last week; 6,611,000 bu a year ago, and 3,486,000 bu two years ago. For the season to date, the arrivals were 220,726,000 bu, against 202,112,000 bu a year ago, and 212,855,000 bu two years ago. Cash sales were 20,000 bu. Receipts were 85 cars, with 82 estimated for Monday.

Oats Are Heavy.

Oats prices were heavy all day, although there was a momentary period of strength shortly after the opening, chiefly in sympathy with the other grains. The closing range was ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher. The September delivery showed the greatest weakness, although the deferred months were helped some by the changing over of longs to the more distant months. Cash grain handlers were the principal sellers of futures, and reported a poor call for the cash grain. The best buying of futures came from the shorts. Cash sales were 165,000 bu. Car lots were steady to ½c lower here, with Peoria showing a decline ranging from ⅜c to 2½c; St. Louis 1c to 2c lower, Kansas City unchanged. Weekly primary receipts were 9,555,000, compared with 8,220,000 bu last week, 7,895,000 bu a year ago, and 7,866,000 bu two years ago. Primary receipts for the season were 23,993,000 bu, against 38,574,000 bu a year ago. Receipts were 575 cars, with 426 cars estimated for Monday.

Provisions Easier.

Provisions eased off a little under further selling by September longs and changing was the principal feature of the trade. Prices ranged 2½@5c lower at the close. There was a larger trade in the January deliveries, with the chief selling being credited to the packers, who were said to be attracted by the prospects of another bumper hog crop, an unusual forage supply, and the prospect of a big carry-over of old product into the winter season. Hogs receipts west, for the week, were 329,000 head, against 346,000 last week, 361,000 a year ago, and 401,000 head two years ago. The cash trade was rather dull and packing hogs sold 5@10c lower. Estimated receipts for Monday, 34,000 hogs, and 110,000 hogs for this week.

Rye Prices Are Lower.

Rye was 1c lower, with sales of No. 2 at 97@98c; No. 3, 94½@96c, and No. 4, 92c. Receipts, 31 cars.

Barley ruled steady. Malting sold 60@61c; feed, 53c, and screenings, 51c. A lot of 50,000 bu of malting to arrive sold on p. t. Receipts were 11 cars.

Timothy seed was firm. September closed $8.25 bid; October, $7.50 bid and $8.00 asked; March, $7.65 bid and $8.00 asked. Cash lots were quoted $5.50@7.00 nominally. Cloverseed easy, with country lots $8.35@13.25 nominal.

Flaxseed at Duluth closed 2½c higher. Cash on track, $1.64¾; September, $1.64¼; October and November, $1.65½; December, $1.65. Receipts, 2 cars. Minneapolis was 2½c higher, with cash on track $1.68¼@1.70¼. Receipts were 2 cars. Winnipeg closed 2½c higher, with October $1.44½ and December $1.44. No receipts.

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF BOARD OF TRADE.

September will open with a storm period, characterized by thunder, hail, rain, and possibly inland tornadoes, according to Hicks' forecast for the month, which is now to hand. After these storms may be expected very cool nights, with frosts in the northern parts. A short storm period is central on the 9th, and this will probably bring disturbances of a dangerous kind. There is probability of killing frosts following after these storms. On or about the 12th the weather will become decidedly warmer, and this will culminate in rainstorms, lasting to about the 17th. Cool weather, with frosts, will follow for two or three days. Another storm period will continue from the 19th to the 21st. These storms will be attended with high temperature, and on until practically the end of the month. The month will close with cool, autumnal weather, which suggests an unusually early fall.

B. W. Snow says: "The government report Aug. 1 indicated on basis of average experience an oats crop of 1,402,000,000 bu. I have now sufficient thrashing returns to warrant the belief that the yield is overrunning the indication sufficiently, in spite of bad weather conditions, to carry the total final crop estimated above 1,500,000,000 bu. The same increase in the actual yield over the Aug. 1 indication occurred in 1912, the previous record crop, and practically always occurs in years of heavy production."

W. L. Gregson & Co. say: "New business in provisions centered in the January pork, lard, and ribs and forced a higher range in them in spite of the depression in the nearer deliveries. The domestic trade is fair and should get much better from now until the middle of November, but European exchange difficulties are hurtful to a large business from that part of the world at present, and we need trade from there to make a favorable market movement even after such severe declines."

Le Count wired following from Conception, Mo., dated Friday night: "All the corn seen today on high land is splendid. Many fields will make 60 bu. Some is getting hard, but greater part just in roasting ear. Another month without frost will make a mammoth crop here. Thrashing is general again, mostly oats, and they are badly colored. Was at one machine today where oats were turning out 40 bu. Clear, hot today."

"The amount of wheat remaining on farms now is enough to give us receipts of more than three and a half million bu for each business day until the next crop is ready to come and wheat is raised to sell," according to J. T. McLaughlin & Co. "We can expect no great amount to go abroad until Canada has disposed of her surplus, and as the market has declined over 14 cents in as many days on good weather in the northwest, what will it do when the wheat is being hedged in volume?"

T. A. Grier of Peoria was at the board of trade Saturday in the interest of the national grain dealers' convention, which will be held in Peoria, Oct. 12-13-14. A special train will take Chicago members to the convention.

Broomhall says: "United Kingdom weather fine, new crop wheat arriving freely and of good quality. The crop from all accounts is much larger than earlier anticipated. The government will shortly issue an official report, and it is believed by best authorities here that the crop will show a yield of 72,000,000 bu. This compares with about 54,000,000 last year. This will in a measure explain indisposition to purchase foreign wheat."

Bartlett Frazier & Co. say: "With the danger of frost eliminated for the present by the favorable change in weather, with the corn crop well advanced toward maturity upon nearly 75 per cent of the area, and with a crop of above three billion bushels easily in sight if present prospects shall be matured, it would seem that the situation now warrants the conservative sale of distant corn futures."

Fargo wired Sincere & Co.: "This is the largest distributing point for farm machinery direct to dealers in the United States, and the principal houses here are working full force night and day shipping threshing machines and engines. They complain it is impossible to get enough to fill orders. Farmers are trying to beat their neighbors to market in fear of a price decline."

Clement Curtis & Co. say: "Our reports on corn show a gain in condition in Missouri, Nebraska, Kansas, and Oklahoma. Loss in other states, which are the states of large yields, equal the condition gain. Cotton states are reporting decline in condition, as result of drought in latter part of July and first half of August."

The determined holding off attitude on the part of the foreign buyers, with the immense movement of new spring wheat right on the market, both American and Canadian, seems to be considerably demoralizing the market situation.

Export demand for wheat quiet. There was a little inquiry for spot wheat. Foreign demand for oats seems to be improving, and some business is expected soon on account of the better quality of northwestern oats available.

The ocean freight situation appears to be developing more firmly, and further advance in rates is looked for, particularly as soon as the real pressure to move the Canadian wheat crop develops.

Estimated receipts: Wheat, 300 cars; corn, 82 cars; oats, 426 cars; rye, 31 cars; barley, 11 cars; hogs, 34,000 head for Monday and 110,000 head for all next week.

The new low record in exchange further disconcerts the export situation, and seven day grain bills last night closed at 4.62, a new low record.

Argentine Corn.—It is understood that a cargo may be sold at New York on Saturday at close to the lowest prices thus far.

Minneapolis wired local and country mills will continue to absorb wheat offered here. Cash market strong and higher.

Situation in corn unchanged, improved weather and more favorable crop advices from the southwest bear factors.

COFFEE AND SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—The market for coffee futures was less active today, sales being reported of only 5,000 bags, while prices showed a tendency to sag off in the absence of any important support. The opening was four points lower to two points higher, with late months relatively steady, but there seemed to be some trade selling of December and March, which eased off to 6.34c and 5.61c respectively, with the market closing quiet at a net loss of 2@3 points. August, 6.15c; September, 6.17c; October, 6.28c; November, 6.29c; December, 6.35c; January, 6.40c; February, 6.45c; March, 6.51c; April, 6.56c; May, 6.62c; June, 6.66c; July, 6.70c. Spot, quiet; Rio No. 7, 7c; Santos No. 4, 9¼c. Few cost and freight offers were reported from Brazil with prices about unchanged. Rio exchange on London was 3-32d lower, with milreis prices unchanged. Brazilian port receipts, 60,000 bags; Jundiahy, 42,000 bags. Santos cleared 6,000 bags for New York. The weather was fine in all districts of Sao Paulo, with temperatures ranging from 50 to 88 degrees. SUGAR—Futures—September, 3.64c; December, 3.21c; March, 3.13c; May, 3.17c.

A good shipping demand for lightweight hogs at Chicago yesterday held that grade steady, but the heavier kinds started out 5c lower and late sales showed as much as 10c decline from Friday's basis. Packers took hold sparingly and the receipts of 13,000 proved too liberal. Friday's top of $8.05 prevailed again, but the bulk of sales were at $6.80@7.50. The average price was $7.20, compared with $7.23 Friday, $6.60 a week ago, and $9.09 a year ago. Pigs ruled steady.

Hog receipts for the week were moderate and sharp advances in prices were scored, particularly on the heavy kinds, which are 50@60c higher than a week ago. Lightweight hogs were 30c higher for the week, while pigs advanced 25@50c. Packers were active buyers during most of the week, the cooler weather evidently having increased consumption of pork. The average price for the week was $7.05, highest since July.

Hog purchases for the day: Armour & Co., 2,000; Swift & Co., 800; Sulzberger & Sons, 800; Morris & Co., 800; Anglo-American, 1,000; Hammond company, 500; Roberts & Oake, 200; Western Packing company, 300; Miller & Hart, 400; Independent Packing company, 700; Brennan Packing company, 600; butchers, 500; shippers, 2,500; total, 11,100; left over, 200.

CATTLE.

With close to 50,000 cattle received at Chicago this week, the heaviest run since last January, prices naturally suffered, although the prime steers held up well. In spite of the big run there was a comparatively small quota of finished steers, and the common to medium grades of natives came into sharp competition with range steers, which declined 25@35c for the week. The bulk of the native steers selling below $9.00 were about 25c lower, and the trade expects no improvement here, for the reason that a big run of range stock is due in the next few weeks, and the best western steers will be favored as against short fed and grass fed natives. Cows and heifers dropped 50c@$1.00 below the level of a week ago, this kind being much neglected. Canner and cutter cattle were off 25@40c, while bulls showed as much as 50c decline. Increased receipts and the fact that high prices cut consumption caused losses of 50@75c in calves from best values last week.

Cattle at six western markets for the week, 143,600, against 142,000 the preceding week, 141,300 a year ago, and 199,300 two years ago. Total for 1915 to date, 3,952,000, against 3,785,000 for same period last year.

SHEEP.

Under moderate supplies sheep and lambs did much better this week, with the latter generally 75c higher and in some instances showing gains of 85@90c or better. Ewes were 40@60c higher and prime stuff brought $6.10, while yearling sheep and bucks gained 25c over last week's close. There were not enough wethers available at any time this week to make accurate comparisons. Native lambs topped the market at $9.55 for prime stock, while the western offerings could do no better than $9.50, although a large proportion of the latter sold around the high figures. Rangers were largely from Idaho and sold mainly above $9.00. The short supply caused active buying among the packers.

BANKS' DEPOSITS SHOW INCREASE

Money Continues to Pile Up in New York; Local Clearings Again Improve.

The New York bank statement showed a fair expansion in loans and a large increase in deposits, the latter about $26,000,000. The gain in cash was such that the surplus reserve increased over $12,000,000.

The figures for the week do not afford much promise of increase in interest rates. The "actual" statement follows:

ACTUAL STATEMENT.

Case preferred is in good demand at 80, an advance of 5 points. United States Gypsum common is somewhat easier, being offered for sale at 39; the preferred is quoted 114 bid, 116 asked. Inland Steel is quiet around 250 to 260. Kellogg Switchboard and Supply has been inactive around 320 to 325. Some inquiry has existed for Oxweld Acetylene around 100. Goodyear Tire and Rubber preferred has been strong at 108 to 110.

Grain in Local Clearings.

Local bank clearings for the week again showed an increase compared with the corresponding period last year. The gain was $16,359,551, or 6.3 per cent. The exchanges of the local banks seem to indicate an upturn in business activity in Chicago territory.

IN FOREIGN STOCK MARKETS.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Money and discount rates were inclined to ease off today owing to the superfluity of funds. The stock market displayed a good tone, though the dullness in gilt edged securities was accentuated by the understanding that the committee has shelved for the time being the question of a reduction in minimum prices. Argentine rails were strong, while the shortage of stocks in the American section raised values when buyers appeared. Bar silver, 22 15-16d per ounce. Money, 3½@4 per cent. Discount rates, short bills and 3 months, 4⅞@5 per cent.

FAIR TRADING IN N. Y. MARKET

War Shares and Coppers Active and More Variable; Tenor Optimistic.

Total sales of stocks, 345,000 shares.

Total sales of bonds (par value), $1,320,000.

New York, Aug. 28.—Moderate activity with the usual week-end irregularity of prices were the principal features of today's stock market. The bulk of the trading was in war shares and coppers, both groups displaying variable tendencies, probably as a result of contract settlement.

Tennessee Copper was again the chief feature among the metals, declining almost at the outset to 55⅝, 8¼ points from yesterday's close, and making only fractional recovery. Other coppers were consistently strong, but showed few material changes at the end.

There was again heavy trading in Pittsburgh coal common and preferred, the latter making a net gain of 5½ points to 105 on persistent reports that plans have been completed to pay back dividends.

Range Within Narrow Limits.

Other stocks, including fertilizers and chemicals, rose and fell within two to three points limits. United States Steel repeated yesterday's high quotation of 77, but yielded slightly at the close on further profit taking. In the final dealings there came a demand for such obscure stocks as Western Maryland and a few other minor railways. On a single sale of 100 shares Bethlehem Steel preferred dropped 9½ points, to 140.

Weekly trade reviews were again of optimistic tenor, with a broadening of demand in mercantile lines. Bank clearings at leading centers confirmed this improvement.

Interest was manifested in the further imports of British gold by way of Canada, but bankers identified with the transaction declined to disclose the amount of the gold and securities involved.

Exchange Rates Drop Further.

Demand sterling broke to the new low record of 4.62½, or ⅝ of a cent to the pound under the low record established yesterday. Rates on Paris and Rome also were weaker.

Bond dealings were light, with a lower tendency. All United Stats bonds and Panama 3s wr lowr by ¼@½ per cent on call during the week.

Insurance Stock as an Investment.

Six or more projected life insurance companies are now engaged in selling their stock in Chicago and the country around. In so far as they have among their organizers men of ample experience in the business, who are conducting stock selling campaigns merely as the necessary preliminary to writing insurance, they are legitimate business ventures deserving of every encouragement.

The enormous profits that were derived from life insurance companies thirty or forty years ago are no longer possible because strict laws in all states now limit their sources of gain. There is still, however, plenty of opportunity for reasonable returns. But a new company faces severe competition and it cannot gain a foothold without energy, skill, and integrity.

A person of some means who can afford to wait a few years before getting returns on his investment and to run a business risk of never getting dividends is justified in buying the stock of a company in whose organizers he has confidence. But for a widow with a meager competence or a wage earner with a few hundred dollars saved by long self-denial to hazard money in such a venture is exceedingly imprudent.

Eager stock salesmen are telling these people of small experience in finance that such and such companies (all organized a half century ago) are paying dividends of 25 or 50 per cent a year; that the life insurance business is a certainty because no legal reserve company has failed in the last twenty years. It is true that a number of old companies now pay enormous dividends as the result of money accumulated and invested in the old days of little legal restriction. It is not true that no company has failed in the last twenty years, and the persistent circulation of such a bare faced falsehood tends to cast discredit on a legitimate business. Anyone can learn by inquiry that several companies have been liquidated by receivers in the last decade and that a large number have given up the struggle and have been liquidated under the supervision of state insurance officials, with heavy loss to their stockholders. Several such liquidations are in progress now.

United Railways of St. Louis.

I. S.—The United Railways of St. Louis had a steady increase in gross earnings for some years up to 1914, when a decline was shown. Operating expenses had been increased faster than earnings, so that beginning in 1912 there has been a decline of net earnings. In 1914 gross earnings were $12,538,826; net, $3,126,296; interest, $2,618,255. The margin of earnings over interest was about 20 per cent. No dividends have been paid since 1910, surplus being accumulated. The surplus on Jan. 1 last was $2,735,244. The city of St. Louis has been trying to collect a tax of 1 mill per passenger from the company and has won the case in the lower courts. The company has taken an appeal to the United States Supreme court, and this is pending. The amount at stake was $2,500,000 in May, and of course is greater now. The position of the general mortgage bonds and junior issues seems to depend somewhat on the outcome of this suit.

Holland-St. Louis Sugar.

F. T. K., Lowell, Mich.—The Holland-St. Louis Sugar company has outstanding $1,500,000 common stock and $135,340 7 per cent cumulative preferred. The preferred is subject to call from 1917 to 1927 at par. There were as of Jan. 1 last $400,000 first mortgage 6s and $396,800 second mortgage 6s outstanding. The second mortgage bonds were sold to stockholders last year at 80. The company makes public no reports of its operations. A dividend of 7 per cent on preferred and 5 on common was paid in 1912, but no later reports are available.

Goodyear Tires Now on 500.000 Cars

There are now two million users of automobile tires.

Figuring four tires yearly to a car, we are now supplying 500,000 cars. That means about two million tires this year. Goodyear tires are gaining new users faster than ever before in their history.

Tires Not Alike

Goodyears are Fortified tires. They have five exclusive features, each of which combats a major trouble. These and other extras are costing us millions of dollars. They are saving our users ten times as much, perhaps.

Yet note how many users still buy tires without them. They are not opposed to Goodyears, we are sure. But they believe—most of them, probably—that standard tires will average much alike.

Worth Will Tell

But Goodyears outsell any other tire. Every month they are winning armies of new users. And they will win you if you'll let them.

Some may meet with mishap and misuse. But a Fortified tire will, on the average, outlast a tire that isn't. A double-thick tread, like the Goodyear All-Weather, will outlast a thin anti-skid. Extras in size, strength, features and fabric are bound to mean extra service.

We urge you to try the Goodyear tire as we are building it this summer. We have added $500,000 in new extras this year.

These are the best tires built with fabric. Not a single rival approaches them in some important ways. Let them prove how they save trouble, how they save money. Their super-quality has won a half-million users. Give them a chance to win you.

25 Cash Prizes

For True Stories of Success Achieved Through Advertising Under the Classification of "Business Chances" in The Tribune

1st Prize . $150 2nd Prize . $100
3rd Prize, $50 4th Prize, $25
5th Prize $10
20 Cash Prizes of $5 Each

We want true stories of success from the thousands of men and women who have made successful deals, raised capital, sold businesses, or made advantageous transactions of any kind through advertising in the "Business Chances" Columns of the Classified Section of The Tribune.

You may have sold a business to good advantage at a time when every dollar received meant many times its actual value. You may have turned a deal that was the starting point of a big success. You may have raised capital that put you on your feet and laid the foundation of a fortune. You may have made a successful trade that has meant comfort and happiness to you ever since.

Whatever your successful transaction was, and no matter whether it was big or little, if it was brought about by a "Business Chance" Ad in The Tribune, we want you to tell us about it. We want you to tell us plainly and frankly just what the advertisement did for you in meeting your wants, making you happy, realizing your ambitions. We would also like to have you tell us what kind of an advertisement you used, how long you ran it, and approximately how much profit you made.

We will, therefore, pay the Cash Prizes named above for the 25 best letters received by Sept. 13th, giving true accounts of your actual experiences with "Business Chances" advertising in The Tribune. We don't care how you write the letter—all we want is plain, honest statements, in your own language, of whatever success you achieved through a Tribune "Business Chances" Ad.

Sit down and write your letter today. Write it with a lead pencil, pen, or typewriter. There are 25 Cash Prizes and for the writing of a simple but truthful story of a success which you have had you may receive a cash prize of anywhere from $5 to $150. The prizes will be awarded and paid not later than October 5th. Be sure your letter reaches The Tribune not later that Sept. 13.

SAWYER TIES D. HERRON FOR U. S. GOLF PRIZE

Chicago and Pittsburgh Players Share Honors with 73 Cards.

BY J. G. DAVIS.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Chicago and Pittsburgh shared the low scoring honors of the elimination round of the national amateur championship at the Country club of Detroit today. Ned Sawyer of Wheaton came home with a card of 37—36—73 and Davison Herron of the Oakmont club of Pittsburgh reported with 38—35—73.

Sawyer played the steadier golf, Terron, who is a student at Princeton, owed his place to a freak shot at the thirteenth hole, 380 yards. His mid iron second shot from 180 yards landed on the green and ran a few feet into the cup, giving him a record for that hole. Sawyer and Herron each equaled the par of the 6,615 yard course, which is 36—37—73. Howard B. Lee of Detroit holds the record at 72, made last year, since which time many more traps have been added.

Byers and Allis Also Tie.

E. M. Byers of Allegheny and Ned Allis III. of Milwaukee tied for third place with 75s. Ruben C. Bush, the New Orleans star, and Charles Evans Jr., broke even at 76. Chick started with three putts at the first green and a bad approach at the second green cost him a stroke. Three putts on the third green added another. After that he was normal.

It was an ideal day, the sun breaking through about midday and visiting the rest of the afternoon. Chicago landed nine players in the list of 73 who will continue on Monday in the thirty-six hole qualifying round, Frazer Hale just getting in bounds with a card of 85.

Ouimet Weak on Greens.

The star players drew good galleries. Francis Ouimet and James Standish getting the biggest. The amateur champion was not at his best, his work on the greens being mediocre. Jerome Travers, the national open champion, was weak from the effects of a cold and looked overdrawn. He forced his shots and made a number of poor ones from the tee. His mashie also lacked its usual cunning. The course was fairly fast and the players found the greens speedy enough to bother them on their approaches.

Tomorrow morning Max Marston and E. C. Vanvleck will play off their tie with Tom and Sherrill Sherman for the American Golfer trophy.

Notes of Golf Tourney.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—The best ball of all the contestants was 27—26—53, and the worst ball 66—68—134.

There were 120 starters and 115 returned cards. Seventy-three qualified at 85 or better.

Charles L. Dexter, who withdrew, is southern champion. He defeated Chick Evans in the Houston, Tex., tournament last spring.

Joe Le Duc of Chicago broke his driver on Friday, and yesterday the head flew off his spoon and he had to finish with his irons.

A. V. Lee, formerly of Chicago, made a wonderful finish. He went out in 46, took seven for the tenth hole, and then had 5, 4, 4, 3, 3, 4, 3, 3.

E. H. Brown of Detroit, Mich., champion in 1914, who got an 85, was penalized two strokes on the sixth hole, when his ball hit his opponent's caddy. He played out of a bunker and was within the twenty yard limit.

Raymond Russel of Detroit had a novel alibi. Each contestant was given a medal when he started. Raymond got one of the women's national championship, and solaced himself with the fact he played well for his class.

FABRE FIRST IN MARATHON RACE

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 28.—"Be sure to have dinner ready for me when I am dressed" was the first thing Eduard Fabre of the Richmond Athletic club of Montreal, Canada, said to his trainer here today as he broke the tape and won the Amateur Athletic union national championship in the full marathon race of twenty-six miles 385 yards.

H. Honahan of the New York Athletic club, despite a sore foot, stuck gamely to the grind and finished second. Oliver Millard, the Olympic club long distance runner, placed third.

The following were the times of the first four men to finish out of a field of fifteen starters:

E. Fabre, Richmond A. C., Montreal	2:56:41.1
H. Honahan, New York Athletic club	3:01:22.2
O. Millard, Olympic club, San F'cisco	3:11:36.3
Manuel Cooper, Chicago Hebrew Instit.	3:17:57.1

MOTORCYCLISTS FORM CLUB.

West side motorcyclists have organized the Chicago Excelsior Motorcycle club, with headquarters at 1111 West Jackson boulevard. The new club will hold its first run today, an endurance test to Ottawa, Ill., and return race being carded. The distance is 182 miles. The race will start at 8 a. m. from the clubroom. Information concerning the run can be secured from Mr. Snooks, Calumet 5185. A campaign for members is being conducted by the organization and the trip to Ottawa will be held in an effort to interest riders.

DE PALMA VICTOR IN 100 MILE RACE; BURMAN SECOND

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Ralph De Palma won Kalamazoo's second 100 mile race this afternoon in 93:31 2-5, the time being a few seconds faster than last year. Bob Burman was second, finishing two laps back of De Palma. The two ran neck and neck until the twenty-eighth lap, when Burman was forced to change tires. The two mile lead gained at that time by De Palma was held by the latter until the finish.

Chandler was third and Patrick finished fourth, Ball being in fifth place at the finish.

Soon after De Palma and Burman had finished the race it was necessary to end the event without letting all of the drivers go the 100 miles, because of the immense crowd which ran across the track. Over 15,000 were present and police were powerless to handle the crowd.

Kline driving a Cornelian went through the fence in the forty-fifth lap, but escaped injury. The accident happened on a turn when a tire blew up. This was the only accident of the day.

Secretary William Engleman announced tonight that another auto race meet would be held next year and that the event would probably be for 300 or 400 miles with much larger stakes.

OAK PARK HAS AUTO CLUB; FIRST RUN DOWN FOR TODAY.

Oak Park automobile owners have formed the Oak Park Automobile club. The requirements for membership are: Residence in Oak Park, good moral character, and the ownership of a car. The first run will be to Crystal Lake today. The officers are:

President, Frank Doyle; vice president, Axel Christensen; secretary, A. T. Sear Jr.; treasurer, William J. Gibbs; captain, C. P. Powers.

HARRISBURG CANS THORPE.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 28.—Jim Thorpe was released this afternoon by the Harrisburg Internationals. He will return to the New York Giants, his owners, with whom he has a $6,000 yearly contract still good for two years. Thorpe's place in left field will be taken by Bill Tamm, who has been playing the left position for several weeks. It is understood Thorpe has been a disturbing influence in the camp of the Indians. Mrs. Thorpe and little Jim, aged 3 months, will accompany Thorpe to New York tomorrow.

Defoe on Trail of Kilbane.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Billy Defoe, the Minneapolis featherweight, is in hard training at Gibbons' gym, rounding into shape for his bout with Matt Brock at Minneapolis on Sept. 2. Defoe is on the trail of Champion Kilbane.

LOCAL SEMI-PRO MAY PLAY TODAY FOR THE WHALES

BY SAM WELLER.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Joe Weiss, semi-pro first sacker and a product of Chicago, will probably be given a tryout by Manager Tinker in one of the twin engagements tomorrow afternoon, when the Whales and Rebels jump to Chicago for a one day's stand.

Tinker is displeased with the showing of Fred Beck, and he has had so many boosts for the semi-pro first baseman that he has said that he believed he would put him into the game in one of the battles, probably the first, and, if Weiss makes a good showing, will keep him there. Jimmy Ryan says Weiss is the best looking infielder he has seen in years, and Jimmy's judgment is considered worth following.

Weiss was at the north side park several times last week, and his work both at bat and in the field impressed Manager Tinker to such an extent that the youngster has a chance to become the regular guardian of the initial bag.

Rain Bars Game.

Rain kept the Whales and Rebels indoors this afternoon, much to the regret of the local officials, who were counting on a big crowd being present to see the two teams battle.

The Rebels have won a warm spot in the hearts of the local fans which is fast hurting the attendance at the Pirate grounds. Rebel Oakes appears to have a sure pennant winning team, and its recent defeat of Kansas City in four of the five games played and its knockout of the Whales in a belated rush in the eighth and ninth innings have opened the eyes of the patrons.

Slab Schedule for Today.

Manager Tinker will send George McConnell and Mike Prendergast to the slab in the two engagements tomorrow. Claude Hendrix and Mordecai Brown will be left here while the team makes its flying run to Chicago. Art Wilson and Trainer Brady will keep the two star pitchers company, leaving just a sufficient number for a heart game. Ad Brennan and Dave Black will be present to step into action in the event that their services are needed tomorrow.

"Home Run" Wilson and Pitcher Hendrix made a flying trip to Bonesetter Reese yesterday to learn what ailed their wings. Wilson has had trouble with his throwing arm for a month. The Youngstown expert found a couple of misplaced cartilages in Wilson's arm, snapped them back, and told the catcher to play ball at once. This will be great news to Fischer, who has been doing the brunt of the work for some time.

Hendrix Uses Wrong Pocket.

In the case of Hendrix the expert on muscles and tendons found nothing wrong, and Wilson says Reese told Hendrix he was carrying his slippery elm in the wrong pocket. Claude will shift the bark and probably pitch another no hit, no run game before the seasons ends. However, Hendrix said the bonesetter found a muscle twisted in his hip and straightened it, relieving the pain which troubled him at times.

RUSSELL FORD GETS THE CAN

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 28.—Russell Ford, leading pitcher of the Federal league in 1914; Ed Lafitte, pitcher; Tex McDonald, outfielder, and Arthur Watson, catcher were given their unconditional releases from the Buffalo Federal club today. Ford jumped to the Federals from the New York Americans and by the use of the emery ball topped the league twirlers. With the ball barred Ford's record was unsatisfactory. He was released earlier in the season, but was re-signed later.

Monroe Sold to Dodgers.

Topeka, Kas., Aug. 28.—Edward Monroe, catcher of the Topeka Western league team, has been sold to the Brooklyn Nationals. The price was not made public.

Philadelphia once more today.

Manager Rowland decided not to switch Felsch and Jackson in the outfield.

Today's game will end the invasion of Comiskey park by the eastern teams for the season

The Athletics got their wires crossed while at bat in the fourth, with the result that two runners were forced out at second with little effort to avoid it.

The attention of amateur players, managers, and umpires is called to the fact that Faber and not Schalk was out when both were standing on third in the fifth inning.

The Rowlands have copped the season's series from the Athletics by a safe margin. They have won thirteen games and have lost three to the Mackmen. Six more are to be played, five of them in Philadelphia.

Murphy and J. Collins walked with one out in the seventh, and their two runs would have tied. Eddie Collins tried to beat out a bunt toward third, but was called out by an eyelash. The runners advanced within scoring distance, but Jackson popped out in the pinch.

With Davis on third and Lapp up in the second the visitors tried the squeeze play, and it turned out to be of the citron variety. Lapp barely tipped the ball, which lodged securely in Schalk's mitt. Davis was half way home and helpless, so Schalk chased him back and handed the ball to Johns for the out.

Strunk opened the fourth with a single and went to third on Lajoie's one bagger to center. Oldring rapped a hard one to Weaver, who came up with the ball, drove Strunk back to third, then turned and shot the ball to Eddie Collins for a fine double play. Schang followed with a triple, scoring Strunk, but Davis whiffed.

Notes of the Cubs.

New York, Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Tomorrow will be a day of rest for the Cubs and the battle with the Giants will be resumed on Monday.

McGraw in a signed article today says he intends to tear his ball club to pieces. Indications were that some one had beaten him to it.

After the series here ends on Tuesday the Cubs will barnstorm in the region of Pittsburgh for two days before opening with the Pirates on Friday.

Christy Mathewson has at last discarded the old red sweater which has been with him for a decade. He appeared today on the coaching lines in a new and trim one of latest design.

Charley Pechous, the "Tribune" amateur, has all plans made for a day of sightseeing tomorrow. In the morning he will visit the zoo up in the Bronx, then travel to Coney island for his afternoon of recreation.

Heine Zim was the victim of much kidding by the extras on the New York bench. In the fourth he hit one which ought to have been a triple, but Burns made a wonderful running catch. The next time up Heine fanned.

JEFF TESREAU HOLDS RAJAHS TO THREE HITS

Stops Cubs, While Giants Find Humphries for 2 to 0 Victory.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

New York, Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Big Jeff Tesreau today proved he is one member of McGraw's once famous Giants who isn't through with the national game. The big spit ball hurler had all his old time speed and shut out the Cubs in the first game of the series by a score of 2 to 0. The Cubs labored diligently from start to finish, but never could connect well enough to make an impression on the big fellow, and he was a winner after his mates batted in one run for him in the opening round.

All told, the Cubs made only three hits, and they were well scattered. Tesreau got sparkling support in two or three tight places, which kept him out of danger. Once George Burns turned a circus catch on one of Heine Zim's drives that might have done a lot of business. Several fast plays were made by the New York infielders.

Bert Humphries attempted to oppose Big Jeff, and did well after the first inning, but one earned run then was enough. Another tally was handed the Giants in the third. Red Murray batted for Humphries in the eighth and Karl Adams finished the slab work.

Small Crowd for Gotham.

Cold and rainy weather made it a bum day for the national pastime and probably kept away several hundred patrons who might have gone out if for no other reason than to take the air. The Polo grounds haven't been filled this season and most of the time the park has been one of the quietest and least exciting spots in New York.

There was a time that folks here went mad and stormed about in warlike fashion when the Cubs came to town. There were no signs of such doings today and the weather dampened what little baseball ardor there is left on Manhattan island. So only about 5,000 persons were present. Perhaps most of them came out to look at the beautiful grounds. All of the old hangers-on of McGraw and his players apparently have deserted him. There weren't any actors or other summer decorations of Broadway on hand, only a few amateurs of Harlem being banked behind the New York bench to bark at the umpires and roast the visiting players.

McGraw Hides in Coop.

McGraw himself is apparently so ashamed of things that he does not want to be seen. In the old winning days he always squatted at third base to coach his men. Now he remains hidden in the dark recesses of the coop.

In spite of their standing with Broadway fans, the Giants raised a few cheers for themselves early in the game when they broke to the front. They batted in a clean tally in the first inning in quite ferocious style. Burns led off with a single over second, but was forced by Grant. Robertson banged one safely to center, Grant stopping at second. Doyle's best was a pop to Fisher, but Merkle came through with a single which sent Grant home and Robertson to third, Merkle taking second on the peg. Fletcher ended the fracas with a pop to Saier.

Gift Tally for Giants.

There were more cheers from the old time fans when the Giants got another run in the third, one they didn't deserve. Burns began with a walk and Grant smashed sharply to Fisher. There was a chance for a double play, but Fisher was too anxious and booted. Doyle produced a long fly and Burns raced home after the catch, but Grant was trapped between second and third and run down.

The Cubs had an opening in the second when Zim began with a walk, but the next three men died in order. Phelan got a two bagger in the fifth after two were out, but it was wasted, for Archer fanned. In the sixth with one out Good walked and Fisher got an infield single, but in this crisis Schulte smashed into a double play.

Saier walked in the seventh after one was out, but no one could help him along. In the eighth with two out, Good bunted and beat it for a single, but Doyle made a swell one-handed stop of Fisher's hot one back of second and tossed to Fletcher in time for a force play.

In the Wake of the News

By RING W. LARDNER

Bill to Steve.

N. Y. CITY, Aug. 28.—Steve. Well Steve wommens allways hoiling a bout they should ought to have sufferage and vote but if I was them I would try and lern some thing beffore I tride to but in on business affairs and voteing and so 4th. If all of them is as smart is Gussy I would try and lern something if I was them.

May be I told you all ready a bout our scheame for geting rid of this here Babe that was vissiting us and the way we was to get rid of her was me writeing Gussy a fake letter and tell her to come and join me on the rode on acct. of I being lone some and then when Babe seen Gussy was geting ready to go a way she would half to leave her self and go home where she bellongs. So I wrote the letter wile we was in Philly and Gussy got a hold of it last Mon. and when she read it she says to Babe well I and you have got to part finely because my husband insist that I got to join him on the rode and I got to start right a way so you will half to pack up and go home so Babe says lets see the letter and Gussy showed it to her in Black and White and there it was and no geting a way from it. So Gussy says I will half to pack right up and you better beggin packing and I will call up and see what time both our trains go and may be we can go to the depot to gather.

So Gussy went in her rm. and beggin to pertend like she was packing up but Babe dident come a long in there with her so finely Gussy went out in the parler and says why wasent Babe packing up and Babe says she would wait and find out what time the trains went so Gussy telephoned to the R. R. on the phone and found out where they was a train leaveing for grand Rabbits at 5 30 and 1 leaveing for Boston at 5 30 only from diffrunt depots on 2 diffrunt Lines. so Gussy says that was fine busness and may be they could down town to gather and then she beggin to pertend like she was packing up some more close but still Babe dident start doing no packing yet and it was 3 a clock in the P. M. so Gussy ast her again why she dident beggin and pack and Babe says wasent Gussy a scared to leave her flat alone and Gussy says no and then Babe says would Gussy mind if Babe stade in the flat wile Gussy was on the rode with me. What do you think of that Steve. And Gussy says why who would cook your meals and wash the dishes and make the bed because I havent saw you do nothing sence you been here. So Babe says dont worry about that I can do evry thing nessary and I will stay and keep your flat clean for you and they cant no body steal nothing. Well Steve Gussy should ought to have told her right there that she dident want her in the place no longer and quarled with her and in the stead of that she hemed and haud and Babe kept coxing her and finely Gussy give up to her and says she could stay. Mind you Steve I wasent in ernest when I ast Gussy to join me and she knowed it was jest a fake and still and all she left this here womman put some thing over on her and then Gussy has to pack up her stuff in ernest and go down and catch the 5 30 train and she got to Boston Tues. night and was there in the hotel waiting when we come in Wed. A. M. Well Steve when I seen her setting there you could of knocked me down with a fether.

Gussy says I will half to pack right up.

When I seen her setting there you couldent of knocked me down with a fether.

I says whats the matter with you and she told me the hole story and I balled her out good but whats the use of balling them out when its all been done and over and she beggin to cry and this in that till you couldent rest. A fine thing hey Steve to let that woman get a way with a trick like that and it will cost me about 1 hundred bucks haveing Gussy along including her R. R. fair and where the 1 hundred bucks is comeing from I dont know where its comeing from and Gussy buys some thing new evry time she goes out of the Hotel and the worst part of it is that this here Babe will be there still waiting for us yet when we get home but I wont go home Steve and it will lern Gussy a lesson and I will sleep in the gutter some wheres beffore I go home untill this here womman beats it out of there. There all a like Steve and if brains was money theyd be poppers in the poor house.

$1,000,000 GOES TO BALL PLAYER

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—William [Buck] Kenworthy, second baseman of the Kansas City Federals, has become heir to more than $1,000,000. The day his claim was allowed he made a home run to celebrate the event.

Joshua Kenworthy, an uncle, late of London, England, died in a fire in Connecticut about a year ago, while touring this country. He left an estate valued at $50,000,000. In his will he divided his estate among the various Kenworthy families in England, Ireland, and the United States. Buck Kenworthy's father and mother and three brothers put in their claims, which, after a long delay on account of the war, were allowed.

WHITE SOX AID IN OWN DEFEAT; MACKS WIN, 4-2

Poor Work on Bases, with Double Plays by Enemy, Beats Rowlands.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Chicago's White Sox passed up a chance to win a pushover yesterday from the Athletics in the next to the last game of their home series, permitting the Mackmen to triumph in a poorly played contest, 4 to 2.

Manager Mack sent Knowlson, one of his recruits, to the slab with the apparently firm intention of leaving him there, and the youngster got by in spite of lack of control on the strength of his support and some dubious base running by the Rowlands.

Eight bases on balls were given by the Mack rookie in addition to one punctured swatter. Seven safeties were made off him, but the walks and swats were so poorly combined that they produced only two runs. The Athletics tapped Benz and Faber for twelve safeties, but deserved only two of the four runs they registered. The other two were kicked home.

Lajoie Swats Three Hits.

Lajoie demonstrated that he is far from the pension list by mauling out three hits that went safe and one that would have been the longest of the lot if Jackson had not made a jumping pinch of it. The veteran slugger participated in the making of half the visitors' runs. Eddie Murphy was the busiest guy on the home side. He lined out a single and a double besides drawing two passes. Four double plays by the Mackmen did a lot toward discouraging the White Sox. Two of them were of the horseshoe variety and the other two were due to Weaver's overzealousness on the paths.

In every inning except the ninth the White Sox had chances to score. In the first and second their bids were wrecked by double plays that resulted from line drives to Kopf. Knowlson didn't pass anybody in the third and fourth. The Rowlands scored a couple of runs in the fifth out of material with which the average team would have made half a dozen tallies at least.

Johns Leads Rally.

Johns started the successful sortie with a hot shot that caromed off Schang's underpinning almost to the grand stand, giving the batter two bases. Schalk walked. Faber dumped a bunt in front of the plate. Lapp tried to force Johns at third, but was several instants too late, and the bases were full with nobody out. Murphy hoisted a long fly over center. Davis went back and made the ball hit his hands but could not hold it. The near catch kept all the runners on their bases, of course, and after the ball fell to earth only Johns could score. Schalk stopped on third and Faber on second, but Murphy kept right on running until he was on top of second, too.

The visitors had three runners jammed on two bases and somebody had to be the goat. So Faber ran over to third, giving Murphy access to second. Lapp trotted down and tagged both Schalk and Faber while they were annexed to third base, and Faber was called out. J. Collins hit a nasty bounder through Kopf, scoring Schalk. E. Collins walked, filling the bases once more. Jackson struck out and Felsch poled a long fly to right center. Three more chances to count were passed up by the Sox before the game was over.

Two Runs for Macks.

The Mackmen got to Benz for two runs in the second. Lajoie doubled, went to third on Oldring's sacrifice, and scored on a wild pitch. Schang walked, went to second on Davis' single, and scored in a double steal with Davis, who reached third because Schalk muffed the throw back of the plate. A squeeze play miscued and stopped that rally.

Weaver let in a run in the third. Knowlson singled, but was forced out by Kopf, who went to third on Strunk's single to right. Weaver cut in on the throw to third and fired to first to catch Strunk overrunning that base. The ball hit the stand and let Kopf score.

Faber took the slab in the fourth and was touched for only one run. Two singles and a triple got together in the sixth, and would have counted more if Weaver and Eddie Collins had not staged a swell double play right ahead of Schang's triple.

RED SOX VICTORS IN TWO CLASHES; INCREASE LEAD

Mayo Stops Rally in Opener, Beating Indians, 5 to 3; Second Game, 3 to 1.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 28.—Boston gained on Detroit by taking two games from Cleveland. Timely hits off Morton won the first game, 5 to 3, Mays stopping a Cleveland rally off Ruth in the eighth inning. The second contest was a pitchers' battle between Collamore and Shore, in which the latter had the advantage. Triples by Hooper and Speaker decided the game. Catches by Speaker and Lewis featured each contest. Catcher Thomas of Boston was hurt in a collision with Catcher O'Neill at the plate and was forced to retire. Scores:

YANKS TAKE OPENER, 1 TO 0; SECOND TO DETROIT, 6 TO 2.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 28.—New York and Detroit divided a double header. Caldwell won a fine pitching duel from James, 1 to 0, in the first contest while Fisher was defeated in a ragged game, 6 to 2, by Coveleskie. Caldwell won his own game. Twice Detroit had men on third with only one out. On one occasion Caldwell struck out Cobb and the other time he fanned Burns. The sole run was the result of a triple by Caldwell and a single by Cook. Vitt's batting was the only feature of the second game. Scores:

WANT A. A. CLUB FOR OMAHA.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Omaha may buy the Cleveland American association franchise and desert the Western league for next season. A syndicate headed by Tom McVittee of Omaha, has made an offer for the Western league team and franchise here and is in communication with President Chivington of the American association and Charles Somers, owner of the Cleveland franchise, on the question of transferring the Cleveland team to Omaha at the close of this season. The offer for the Omaha Western league team was accompanied by a certified check for $40,000 as a guarantee of good faith. In case the deal is made the Western league franchise will be transferred to some other city.

BIG CROWD SEES PYTHIAN GAMES AT CUB GROUNDS

Several thousand fans of both sexes turned out for the third annual field day of the Knights of Pythias yesterday at Cub park. Six athletic events were run off, with two exhibition ball games of five innings each. Henry Clay lodge, champion of 1913 and 1914, was awarded the pennant for last year's campaign and flew it for the first time.

Harry Atwood, attorney of the board of local improvements, represented Mayor William Hale Thompson. J. M. Kanton, a member of the real estate board, was the only other speaker. Drills by Gauntlet temple of the Pythian Sisters, the Knights of Khorassan, and the Ellsworth Guards occupied a prominent place on the program.

Summary of athletic events:

Fungo hitting—R. W. Scheddel, Sterling, won; W. Bannes, Carnahan, second; J. Cohen, Beaconsfield, third.

WA-WA FIRST IN YACHT RACE.

The one designer, Wa-Wa, skippered by Alfred Itte, won the second of a series of three races for the Evanston News Index trophy yesterday over the Arrowhead course. The course is seven miles in length. Débutante, the mahogany flagship of the North Shore Yacht club, was second. Debutante was skippered by Commodore Julian Armstrong. Dawn, skippered by W. B. Lane, was third. The race result places Wa-Wa and Debutante as rivals for the season's championship standing in the centerboard quarter-rater class.

ROBINS DEFEAT PIRATES TWICE IN MOUND DUELS

Batting of Pitchers Rucker and Pfeffer Helps Infants Win, 2 to 1 and 3 to 0.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 28.—Brooklyn beat Pittsburgh twice and moved closer to Philadelphia in the race for the National league pennant. Both games were pitchers' battles and in both the Brooklyn hurlers figured prominently with the bat. Rucker made two hits off Harmon in the first and the Superbas won, 2 to 1, by a ninth inning finish. One of Pfeffer's two hits helped his mates win the second, 3 to 0. Scores:

BRAVES BLANK REDLEGS IN SLAB TOURNEY, 2 TO 0.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 28.—Boston took the opener from Cincinnati today, 2 to 0, after a pitchers' battle during which Rudolph and Toney each allowed five hits. Boston got a run in the third when Evers doubled, was sacrificed by Snodgrass, and scored on Magee's single to center. In the fifth a pass to Evers with an infield out and Magee's sacrifice put the Boston captain on third. Schmidt's single scored him. Herzog had three hits in four times at bat. Score:

MAYWOOD MASONS HOLD FIRST ANNUAL FIELD DAY.

Maywood lodge, No. 869, A. F. & A. M., held its first annual Masonic field day at the village park in Maywood yesterday before about 5,000 persons. Events were arranged so that any one could take part from the little tot who could barely walk to the oldest person on the ground. The Maywood Boys' band of forty members and fifty girls demonstrated the butterfly and fairy hoop dances.

The three legged race was won by Walter Lyklema and Gordon Bunge. Quite a bit of amusement was afforded the onlookers in the greased pole event, but no one was able to reach the top and capture the prize. Mrs. L. Rhodes won the married women's race, finishing a foot ahead of Mrs. A. Rost. In the century sprint for club members only T. O. Tiffen finished first and Paul Aston second. The S. P. I. of the First Methodist church defeated the Masons, 10 to 2, in the baseball game. Score:

Inquisitive Fans.

Logansport, Ind.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—A is on second, B on third. Batter hits ball to infield. B starts for home and A runs up and stands on third. Ball is thrown home and B is driven back toward third. While B is still between third and home, A [standing on third], is touched with the ball in the hands of the third baseman. Is A out? R. E. WILSON.

Not out.

Joseph Kallison, Chicago—The correct score was ten hits for Detroit in the game of Aug. 8.

Reader, Moline, Ill.—Pitchers are not charged with the loss of games in the major leagues now. The unofficial statisticians probably would charge the game described to the first pitcher, but their systems vary. There are no rules covering the point.

"X," Chicago.—The Eddie Collins of the White Sox never played on the Milwaukee team. There is another Eddie Collins who has.

Dunlap, Ia.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—There is no one out, runners on first and third. Batter hits a high fly about six feet in front of home plate. Catcher misses the ball and it rolls away. Man on first goes to second and batter goes to first. The other side claims batter was out on infield fly. The umpire says that first and second must be occupied and called no one out. Was he right? [2] There is no one out and a base runner on first. The catcher drops the third strike on the batter. Is the batter out? B. L. BRACE.

[1] Umpire was right. See rule 51, section 8. [2] Yes. See same rule, section 9.

Dubuque, Ia.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Base runners on second and third, two out, one strike on the batter. Immediately after the ball is returned to the pitcher by the catcher and the pitcher has his foot on the slab the coacher on third dashes for home. Pitcher, thinking it is the base runner, hurriedly throws the ball wide of the plate. Umpire allowed runner to remain on third and called a ball on the batter. Was this ruling correct? L. H.

Ruling was correct.

Samuel Wolff, Chicago—Quinlan was sent to the Salt Lake team.

George Green, Chicago—His name was Moren, but the rumor was not true.

Chicago.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—A is on first, B at bat, with two hands out. B hits the ball into left field and both A and B score on the hit, but A failed to touch second base. The umpire, seeing the play, rules A out, making the third out. Does B get credited with the hit? R. B.

No.

Glenn Litter, Anderson, Ind.—The runner would be declared safe by any major league umpire.

"Fan," St. Joseph, Mo.—The unfinished game between Easton and St. Patrick's was the same as a postponed game, and should have been played off before the season ended.

Hampton, Ia.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The score being 2 to 2 in the last half of the ninth inning with two men on bases and two out, the batter hits a legal home run. What is the final score? Does more than one run count? Would the total score be seven runs? C. H. WELTY.

The final score was 3 to 2, and the batsman got credit for only a single or double, according to whether the winning run was on third or second base. The total score of both teams was five.

Chicago.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—A says that a pitcher can be taken out and put in to play another position and then later on in the game can be put in to pitch again. B says No. Does the rule stand with any of the big leagues or Chicago amateur association? CASSIDY.

A is right according to the major league rules.

What's What in TOP MATERIALS is the title of an interesting booklet that we have issued recently. It contains full information concerning all top materials, including the best.

Genuine Pantasote

The top is the most important part of any car. A top that leaks spoils the comfort and pleasure of motoring.

Tops made of Genuine Pantasote material do not leak, crack or become shabby. Pantasote is used for tops on the better automobiles.

Write us for a free copy of "What's What in Top Materials." It covers the whole top question, and explains why you will make a serious mistake if you do not insist on having a top made of Genuine Pantasote when you buy your car.

Score Three Runs on Three Hits, While Stremmel Shuts Out Shaws.

Butler Bros., Chicago amateur champions last year and runners-up for the national title, scored first blood in the opening series for the local title by defeating the Shaw Taxis, 3 to 0, at American Giants' park yesterday. Butlers, although held to three hits, the same number scored off Stremmel by the losers, played inside ball for their three runs.

Kelly started the second with a single, advanced on Sullivan's sacrifice, and scored on a bingle by Engle. Kelly also counted the second run, his walk, Sullivan's second sacrifice hit, and Fay's error. Meinke sewed up the game in the fifth on Wallisier's error, Harley's sacrifice, and a muffed fly ball by Dann. Score:

MATEURS CALL ARDON'S VIEWS OF LINKS RIGHT

naghey Explains Mystery of Second Hole in Course at Detroit.

BY FREDERICK DONAGHEY.

nks to the forehanded Joe Davis, ago's golfing thousands will be able llow this week's national amateur ney with a clear understanding of the players have to contend with he links of the Country Club of De. Mr. Davis' descriptive article in TRIBUNE of Sunday, Aug. 22, and good diagram of the course printed ewith, should serve as a guide to daily reports of the chief event of golf year in America. The day to story of the national open over the urrel course in New Jersey would e been far more significant and in- ing to Chicago golfers if they had furnished with like information in ase of that important event.

Mr. Davis said in his article on the Detroit links, uncommon interest in year's national amateur is due to praise of the course by Vardon and when they played in this country 1913. Their verdict on American rses created not only surprise but gin also, for nobody outside the re- tive cities regarded either Detroit or land as a golf center of sufficient rtance to possess a links of cham- ship quality. But, naming the three es which they regarded as best, they d that of the Country club of De- , the Mayfield of Cleveland, and a in Toronto.

Vardon's Praise Explicable.

Mayfield course, too, has had clear ription in THE TRIBUNE by Mr. Davis has had its test also in the western eur, held there in July. Not all the ers who played over it at the time in complete agreement with Vardon, not all of those who have spent the week or a part thereof in learning the roit links are of the opinion that he wholly fair to some of the other es he visited.

wever, his enthusiasm for the De- course is quite explicable when it embered that he is a product of English and Scotch courses. It has ntless features to remind an English Scotch player of a links "at home." he group of notable amateurs entered the national and now in Detroit, the est enthusiasm for the course there heard from those who have played ed.

ss, Ouimet, and Travers are of the ter. All three regard it as a proper t of golf," and for like reasons. y, it is a course for their respective es. There is nothing in the 6,615 yards that's the length of it when stretched to back tees for the tourney—to punish of them when he plays his best.

Where the Pinch Comes.

interested golfers will study the dia- m from last Sunday's TRIBUNE, along Mr. Davis' article, they will be able, certain, to get a great deal of what ht be called vicarious golf out of the ney without the necessity of a trip Detroit. While there is not an uninter- ng hole in the eighteen, four of the classify as "great," and at least others demand perfect golf for the e six which I should mark with ics are the third, fifth, seventh, elev- twelfth, and eighteenth. The twelve es are abundantly equipped with de- es of torture and trouble; but the en- ts who have been over the course d the listed six to be the most ex- . There isn't a penalty on any of m for good golf, but par on none of the will reward the careless player.

Vardon's Famous "Second."

e Country club caddies always tell tors, as they walk from the first , that the second hole was especial- praised by Vardon, who called it not the best of the eighteen on this links, the best five hole in the United States. on said just that in one of his mag- e articles about American courses. consequence, every newcomer on the s is curious as to this second hole; every newcomer, after playing it, himself looking back over its ght 447 yards from the green to the and wondering what Vardon saw in warrant the superlatives.

at was the effect it had upon me when t played it; and last week's new- amateurs were likewise moved to der. It is easily the least hazardous of the eighteen, and ,save in the ter of yards, is of about the quality of first hole at Beverly.

e explanation lies in the fact that it not the second hole when, in 1913, on played the course. As Colt laid the links, what is now the first hole the eighteenth; the present eight- was the seventeenth; and the sec- was Colt's idea of the first—that is, a simple getaway hole, with only hazards, in order that the players ld not congest in starting for their on a busy Saturday or Sunday.

Third Hole Merits Praise.

change in Colt's plan was made not use of any difference of opinion be- the members and the famous course tect as to the merit of his links, but use of a decision to place a pavilion given spot on the grounds. This lo- of the pavilion made Colt's start- place—the green of the present second impracticable. Colt's seventeenth present eighteenth—is a tricky 3; the change violated one of his pet no- —that the "home hole" should be a 4 or a 5.

wever, save for the fact that turning eighteenth into the present first re- is a more difficult getaway than is rtable on a populous course, I do not that the change has in any way dam- the links as a golf proposition. The ion was a necessity; for the links miles from the clubhouse. The lat- , of itself, an institution; golf; in- is a by-product. Thus, the club has 600 members, not more than 300 of play golf.

LASKER TO PLAY HERE.

Results on Local Golf Courses.

PLAY in the monthly tournament at the Midlothian Country club came to a close. E. H. Bankard carried the chief honors by his victory over Kenneth P. Edward, 4 and 3, in Class A. Because both of these principals had entered the national amateur championship at Detroit, the contest was decided early in the week.

C. W. Booth took Class B honors defeating E. L. Ives, by 4 and 3, and incidentally won and lost by the same margin that obtained in the first division.

Singularly, the matches in Classes C and D were decided in like figures, of 2 up. B. L. White eliminated J. G. Llewellyn, president of the club, in the former, while W. H. Eaton took the measure of J. H. McNamara in the latter.

An eighteen hole handicap event was arranged for members 40 years of age and over, who competed for the "Old Boys" cup. F. H. Manter, who held the liberal handicap of 28, won the trophy when he registered a gross of 97, which, minus his allowance, gave him a net total of 69. W. L. Hodgkins took second place with a card of 97—26—71.

West Pullman.

L. A. Lundberg led the field in the qualifying round for the Cuyler cup at West Pullman with low net on a card of 108—33—75. J. M. Britt had low gross with 86. Play in the first round will be held today. Results in preliminary play and pairings follow:

H. Mills, 100—20—80, vs. H. Sett, 113—30—83; L. A. Lundberg, 108—33—75, vs. H. Clayton, 98—18—80; L. H. Meyers, 92—8—84, vs. T. F. Blair, 113—31—82; H. C. Nuth, 103—14—89, vs. E. H. Nichols, 113—33—80; J. E. Schermerhorn, 104—28—76, vs. H. E. Cooke, 100—14—86; M. Johnson, 98—8—90, vs. H. A. Parker, 105—15—90; J. M. Britz, 91—5—86, vs. F. P. Allen, 119—28—91; J. Miller, 105—22—83, vs. G. R. Bixby, 115—25—90.

Allen won his place in the first round by a draw from F. Graham and D. J. Cameron, all three players having finished their round with low net of 91.

Oak Park.

W. Phielcault won low gross in the medal play handicap at Oak Park, with 89; W. H. Davies had low net of 78. This was one more than Phielcault's net, but the judges decided two prizes should not go to the same player. Play against blind bogey resulted in a tie between H. B. Eigelbermer and J. S. Simpson, with 83. Cards in the medal play:

W. Phielcault, 89—12—77; W. H. Davies, 104—26—78; F. H. Swett, 100—20—80; F. W. Thomas, 104—20—84; H. B. Eigelbermer, 98—14—84; J. S. Simpson, 113—28—85; L. R. Schermerhorn, 120—35—85; Fred Swirles, 95—10—85; A. H. Hart, 113—25—87; George Alexander, 101—12—88; E. Kettlewell, 109—20—89; Z. Green, 114—24—90; Donald Shonk, 118—28—90.

Glen Oak.

Play in the second round for the Directors' cup was finished at Glen Oak. George Edwards defeated Dr. Nichols, 1 up. Edward Middleton defeated Gus Guttermeister, 2 and 1. V. Biggs won from Ed Cobb, 1 up, and Ed [Midiron] Murphy defeated F. T. Liddy, 2 and 1. Semi-finals will be played off this week.

North Shore.

F. D. Buckman won the O. G. Corns trophy at North Shore with a card of 91—27—64. O. W. Schmidt was first in the low gross ball sweepstakes with 81. Leaders in the play against blind bogey of 81: R. W. Jorgan, 95—15—80; A. J. Taylor, 92—10—82; B. F. Brown, 89—7—82; L. C. Wilson, 99—17—82.

Hinsdale.

E. F. Brewster defeated A. E. Cleaves, 2 and 1, and E. T. Snohr won from Ned G. Symonds, 3 and 2, in the semi-finals for the Visitors' cup, a scratch event at Hinsdale. C. F. Braffette won the Blount cup in the age limit competition, defeating L. M. Brochon, 6 up. H. E. Skinner was low in the ball sweepstakes, winning 50 per cent, with 92—24—88. R. R. Kimbell carried off 30 per cent of the stakes with 99—26—73, and H. S. Hanson was third in the money with 102—28—74.

Westward Ho.

W. E. Kettlestrings and C. L. Teniston tied for low gross of 81 in the qualifying round for the club championship at Westward Ho. Carl Henderson won the low net with a card of 83—10—73. The results in the qualifying play:

W. E. Kettlestrings, 81; C. L. Teniston, 81; Carl Henderson, 83; J. R. McGregor, 83; W. E. Maas, 85; J. V. Houston, 85; W. C. Albro, 86; J. G. Hodgson, 86; P. H. Jones, 87; M. H. Davis, 88; C. D. Richards, 88; W. H. Spear, 89; E. L. Hartig, 89; H. C. Quest, 90; R. D. Stevenson, 90; E. L. Walker, 90.

Edgewood.

F. De Witt won the finals for the President's club at Edgewood, beating W. S. Fuller, 5 and 3. R. H. Purcell, 96—24—72, led in the handicap match play against bogey with 5 up. Other scores against bogey:

E. P. Horr, 3 up.	J. De Jarld, 2 down.
A. Peterson, 2 up.	W. Hastings, 2 down.
F. De Witt, 1 up.	J. Sanders, 3 down.
H. E. Spear, 2 down.	Ed Brammon, 3 down.

Windsor.

A large field competed in the qualifying round for the Boyden trophy in eighteen holes medal play at Windsor. Pairings follow:

Seth Barham, 88—10—78, vs. J. C. McClurkin, 93—12—81.

W. A. Eaton, 100—18—82, vs. G. A. Rogers, 95—14—81.

T. B. Brown, 94—18—81, vs. H. Doyle, 101—18—83.

H. E. Herrick, 96—14—82, vs. W. C. Hill, 97—18—79.

C. Lancaster, 90—10—80, vs. H. H. Small, 109—27—82.

George R. Jenkins, 96—15—81, vs. O. Z. Landolf, 116—34—82.

E. W. Rogers, 92—10—82, vs. R. A. Roberts, 90—11—79.

C. F. Collins, 92—11—81, vs. P. J. Francis, 93—10—83.

Jackson Park.

Play in the qualifying round resulted in the following pairings for the "Dad" Eason trophy:

Hobart Hoag vs. S. C. Donecker, Joseph Badenoch vs. E. R. Dunning, J. F. Chambers vs. A. F. Stern, W. E. Lincoln vs. W. T. McNeely, J. Sanford vs. T. Burgess, E. Gudeman vs C. H. Perrine, M. Dening vs. R. McRoy, C. A. Walton, bye; R. A. Bowker vs. P. M. McCann, E. Bones vs. E. W. Austin, H. W. Pierson vs. R. Curtis, P. Roelke, bye; E. Green vs. W. Hornberger, William Beard vs. J. F. Stewart, A. B. Cole vs. Dr. Bascombe, W. N. Moren, bye.

Onwentsia.

Protagonists of the links eschewed the Lake Forest county fair, which is an annual event at the Onwentsia club, and played an eighteen hole medal handicap. Albert Farwell achieved the double distinction of registering low gross and low net, with a card of 81—8—73. A. H. Revell finished second in the net column, with 88—14—74. Wayne Taylor, the club champion, trailed Farwell with a gross of 82, and tied with O. E. Babcock for third net position with 77.

Edgewater.

Golfers at Edgewater were somewhat scarce as the result of the completion Friday of the tri-day invitation tournament. Members competed in eighteen hole medal handicap class contests, with prizes offered for low net scores. E. A. Maginnis led in Class A, with 85—15—70, while J. H. Servatius topped the list in class B, with 91—19—72. M. H. Seegers, 102—29—73, annexed the class C trophy.

Ravenswood.

J. B. Strickland will meet A. W. Johnston, while W. T. Campbell will cross clubs with E. M. Fredericks in the semi-final for the Ravenswood cup, as the result of the second round, played yesterday. Strickland won an easy victory over C. H. Challen, whom he defeated, 6 and 4. Johnston eliminated A. D. Birdsall, 3 and 2. Campbell took the measure of G. H. Trautman, 3 and 1, while Fredericks outplayed E. W. Hughes, 3 and 2.

Flossmoor.

A large field contested at Flossmoor in the qualifying round for the president's cup. F. L. Horton, with a card of 84—15—69, had low net, while C. W. Mosher, 82—5—77, registered low gross and was second in the net column. E. K. Findlay and Marquis Eaton tied for first honors in the blind bogey competition, with net totals of 79. In the final for the veterans' trophy, M. A. Allen had an easy victory over F. J. Reichmann, whom he defeated by 5 up and 4 to play.

Calumet.

Calumet golfers competed in the qualifying round for the club championship, which drew a field of more than 100 starters. The first thirty-two players with low scores will compete in the championship flight, while the next sixteen will play in the second division. A. C. Perry headed the contingent, with 42—37—79. C. F. Grimes and W. D. Stapp were tied for second place, with identical cards of 41—43—84.

South Shore.

South Shore Country club members concluded the last leg of the seventy-two hole journey for the Everett C. Brown trophy. The competition was against bogey, three-fourths handicap applied. J. P. McGrath won the emblem by finishing 29 up, while Dr. Frank Brawley was second, 14 up. Other results: W. H. Powell, 8 up; Harry T. Gilbert, 6 up; W. B. Hart, 5 up; C. E. Willard, 4 up. In the ball sweepstakes event against bogey, three-fourths handicaps applied, McGrath tied with C. L. Day, when their cards matched 8 up on the "colonel." E. L Stephen was third, with 6 up.

ONE-FOURTH of a point separated two brothers in trophy play in the Maginnis August event at Evanston, competition being for the best low net average for the month. D. W. Elyson won with 73¼ and D. P. Elyson took second prize with 73½. Finals in the thirty-six hole play for the club championship were postponed.

T. B. Field and E. H. Evans finished in a tie for low gross in the sweepstakes with score of 80. They split the money. D. W. Elyson, a relative of the Maginnis winners, was third in the low gross contest with 82.

W. J. Phalen won low net in the sweepstakes with 94—21—73. H. S. Camp and O. H. Rockhold divided the second stakes in the event. Camp turned in a card of 92—17—75 and Rockhold had 85—10—75.

Park Ridge.

A. C. Townsend won the Saturday cup presented by Dr. Knowles at Park Ridge, being all square with par on eighteen holes. Four players were eliminated in the second round for the club championship. J. W. Spray defeated H. L. Johnson, 4 and 3; G. M. Lewis beat C. A. Brooks, 2 up; T. P. Hodge beat R. A. Lundwahl, 6 and 4, and C. E. Cleveland beat W. W. Smythe Jr., 2 and 1.

Smythe exacted some consolation from the class A contest, winning from C. E. Zollars, 2 and 1. H. L. Johnson won by default from A. Stauffer in this class. Play in the other classes resulted as follows:

Class B—G. S. Wells defeated T. P. Black, 3 and 2; G. A. Samuelson defeated A. C. Townsend, 3 and 2.

Class C—E. W. Wagensell defeated R. H. Morris, 6 and 4; W. B. Bowers defeated T. J. Shea, 1 up.

Class D—W. Becker defeated C. H. Pither, 5 and 4; F. Baldwin defeated A. F. Wittack, 3 and 2.

In the first round of the championship consolation C. Dorticos defeated C. M. McDonald, and 6. J. Griewe defeated C. E. Zollars, 3 and 2; F. Young beat A. Stauffer 8 and 6, and S. H. Burrows won from S. J. Knowles by default.

Beverly.

By defeating Dr. W. D. Mahoney, 5 and 4, in the final match, J. A. Mudd Jr. won the championship of the Beverly Country club. Mudd's victory was more scintillating from the fact that Dr. Mahoney had held the title for two consecutive years. J. T. Henry apparently paved the way for Mudd by defeating Dr. Mahoney by 5 and 3 in the final for the Embree trophy, which was decided early in the week.

Mudd showed further aggressiveness by competing in the second round for the St. John trophy and winning his match from S. K. Milligan by the narrow margin of 1 up. Mudd will meet G. B. Butt in the upper half of the bracket next week. Butt eliminated H. J. Gondon by 2 up. In the lower half of the frame W. E. Van De Wenter will oppose Dr. B. A. Duffy. The former defeated A. J. Atwater, 4 and 3, while the latter disposed of M. S. Lamoreaux by like figures.

Elmhurst.

The first match round of the T. E. Wilder cup was decided at the Elmhurst Golf club. Close play marked the event, as evidenced by the following summary: A. E. Nelson defeated J. L. Pentecost, 1 up; Harris Wilder defeated W. B. Pearn, 3 and 1; J. Kent defeated S. E. Dean, 2 and 1; F. L. Morrell defeated J. A. Cox, 2 up; G. Kirkpatrick defeated C. Bohassek, 2 and 1; C. J. Albert defeated Harold Wilder, 2 up; John Pentecost defeated J. H. Haynes, 2 up.

Edgebrook.

Members of the Edgebrook Country club competed in the first match round for the S. M. Earling cup. Most of the matches were closely contested, except that between C. A. Lehy and F. W. Kasehagen, which went to the former, 10 and 9. Kasehagen, who has always been a contender in the various events, had an alibi for his poor showing in an injured arm. He persisted in playing, despite this handicap. Results: E. W. Kirchner defeated D. W. Bennett, 1 up; C. W. Butler defeated J. Mullen, 1 up; W. H. Watson won by default from J. A. Stehman; W. W. Decker Jr. defeated J. Diederich, 3 and 2; C. C. McLean won by default from H. C. King; C. A. Lehey defeated F. W. Kasehagen, 10 and 9; R. W. Clark [bye].

La Grange.

B. N. Anderson yesterday took possession of the President's cup when he defeated C. M. Denise in the final match round at the La Grange Country club, 2 and 1. The match was close and interesting and Denise lost by poor putting on the last leg of the journey. In the thirty-six hole choice score event, B. Wilson won with a card of 91—22—69. J. A. Walker, 85—25—70, was second, while L. G. Elliott, who shot the low gross, 85, held a handicap of 14 for a net of 71.

Exmoor.

Herman Thomas won the 18 hole match play against par at Exmoor with 2 down, finishing first in class A. Play in class B resulted in a tie between A. C. Barnes and R. Mott with 2 down. A. H. Shotwell finished even up, winning class C, and J. C. Smith carried off honors in class D with 1 up.

Skokie.

By finishing 8 up, F. W. Hill, Gordon Sibley, Gordon Copeland, and Walter Paepcke won the match play versus par, choice ball handicap event, at Skokie. S. A. Wilmarth, L. P. Moore, F. E. Compton, and E. Sherman finished second, 7 up.

Glen View.

Rollin W. Keyes won the title of club champion at Glen View by his victory over Kenneth H. Burns, whom he defeated by 3 up and 2 to play in the deciding contest. E. M. Barnhart, winner of the title last year, met defeat at the hands of Burns last week. The Old Hickory cup went to H. B. Riley, who defeated E. H. Ball Jr., 3 and 1. Old bachelors over 30 and young bachelors under 30 years of age competed in an eighteen hole medal handicap. P. Berkey won in the former class with a card of 85—8—77, while J. H. Kelleher led the "youngsters" with 94—8—86.

Wheaton.

Play at the Wheaton Golf club consisted of the first match round for the President's cup. The summary: E. G. Selmon defeated H. H. Chester, 6 and 4; J. J. Peabody won by default from H. W. Redmond; C. J. Fletcher defeated J. L. Miller, 1 up; R. F. Newhall defeated H. W. Lane, 1 up; A. W. Sherer defeated D. H. Tweedie, 2 and 1; L. H. Grange defeated P. E. Bessire, 6 and 5; S. H. Lyons defeated W. F. McVeigh, 1 up; J. F. Tuttle defeated F. M. Cutter, 3 and 2.

Westmoreland.

F. B. Farnsworth proved the prowess of the midiron at the Westmoreland club when he won the "one club" event at 18 holes, half handicaps applied. Some of the players used drivers and others brassies, but the "middie" stood the test, as Farnsworth's low gross of 95 was seven strokes better than that of his nearest opponent. Aided by the liberal allowance of 23, P. W. Andrews won the ball sweepstakes competition with a card of 99—23—76. T. C. Moulding, R. E. Moody, F. A. Yard, and H. W. Armstrong tied for second place with net totals of 78.

Ridgemoor.

With a card of 101—26—75, W. A. Bayless led the field in the qualifying round for the grounds' committee cup at Ridgemoor. Roy Williams notched low gross, 84. The leading scores follow: W. A. Bayless, 101—26—75; R. B. Storer, 112—36—76; Roy Williams, 84—6—78; H. A. Smith, 97—18—79; F. Mayo, 104—25—79; A. N. Dillon, 91—12—79; W. C. Toles, 103—24—79; J. A. Gilroy, 94—14—80.

HEBREW INSTITUTE NET TOURNAMENT PLAY OPENS.

Preliminary matches in singles and doubles in the seventh annual all-comers' tennis tournament were played yesterday at the Chicago Hebrew institute. Forty competed in the singles, and eighteen pairs in the doubles play. Vance and Kirk won the feature match of the day, beating Nath and Littman, 4—6, 6—4, 7—5. Play through the semi-finals will be continued today. Summaries:

Singles—B. Littman defeated Z. Ragen, 6—3, 6—4; H. Ries defeated R. Adams, 6—1, 6—2; L. Goldstone defeated Sabath, 6—1, 6—0; R. Lindquist defeated J. Shenker, 6—0, 6—1; S. Abrams defeated M. Benzion, 3—6, 6—2, 6—2; R. J. Barker defeated C. Wagner, 6—4, 6—2; A. Landholm won from L. Curran by default; A. Buhai defeated G. Sladek, 6—3, 6—4.

Doubles—Wagner and Landholm beat Vuilinberg and Shenker, 6—3, 8—6, 6—2; Kirk and Vance beat Nath and Littman, 4—6, 6—4, 7—5; Rose and Anthony beat Barker and Robinson, 6—2, 6—2; Smith and Kramer beat Blair and Ragen, 6—8, 6—1; Fried and Sladek beat Curran and Schoenfeld, 6—1, 6—1.

Iowa Star to Be Coach.

Iowa City, Ia., Aug. 28.—Archie Raymond Kirk, formerly a star tackle at Iowa university, has been appointed coach of the Simpson college eleven at Indianola, Ia., for the coming year and has accepted. Kirk was picked last year as an all-Iowa and all-conference man by numerous Chicago critics, and was mentioned by Walter Camp in connection with all-American material.

TENNIS EXPERTS START NATIONAL MEET TOMORROW

Field of 130 Named for Title Tourney on Courts of Long Island.

BY JEWETT E. RICKER JR.

[Vice President Western Lawn Tennis Assn.]

With over 130 players entered in the competition, everything is set for the national lawn tennis championship which begins tomorrow at the West Side Tennis club, Forest Hills, L. I. The event is the first ever held away from the Newport Casino. It is particularly notable this year and elaborate plans have been made to make it the greatest tennis tournament ever held in this country.

Twenty-four courts have been provided for the matches, all being so arranged as to be within view of the clubhouse. Four courts are located on the spot of those used in the Davis cup matches last year, directly in front of the clubhouse, and are bounded on the north and south by stands, each seating 3,500 persons. Twenty courts are laid out in twos and threes, extending to the west and all running north and south, like the four "exhibition" courts.

Turf Almost Perfect.

The West Side club has had the best turf experts in the country working on the courts for months. As a result the most perfect grass playing surface ever provided in this country has been obtained.

The greatest interest centers in the championship doubles match. William Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin, winners of the recent preliminary doubles tournament at the Onwentsia club, will compete as challengers against Maurice E. McLoughlin and Thomas C. Bundy, present title holders. All four are Californians, McLoughlin, Johnston, and Griffin all hailing from San Francisco, while Bundy's home is in Los Angeles.

Teams Rivals on Coast.

For two years the teams have been keen rivals in Pacific coast tennis, although the victories have invariably gone to McLoughlin and Bundy. Both in 1914 and the present season Johnston and Griffin were returned victors in the Pacific coast championship.

Although they were deprived of the right to meet McLoughlin and Bundy for the title last year through their defeat at Chicago by T. R. Pell and Karl Behr, this year, however, after two extremely close matches at Onwentsia, they have earned the right to challenge their California brethren for the national title.

With both teams playing their best form a close, spectacular contest should result, with the odds favoring the present title holders. Just what form McLoughlin and Bundy will show is problematical, as they have had little practice together, while neither as yet has shown his best form.

Battle of Tactics.

It is certain that McLoughlin and Bundy must play better than they have played this year if they are to retain the title. Each of the four men is well acquainted with each other's game and all have been looking forward with keen anticipation to Tuesday's match. A great battle of tactics should result, and it would not be surprising to see Johnston and Griffin play most of their shots at McLoughlin, who, on the coast at least, is regarded as the weaker of the two men in doubles.

During the entire history of the national doubles championship only seventeen teams have held the title. Of these four teams stand out head and shoulders above the rest. In the eighties R. D. Sears and James Dwight held almost undisputed sway, winning the title five times.

Title Changes Often.

The doubles game, however, was not then developed as it is today, and it is hardly likely that this team could make much of an impression against the great combinations of later years. From that time until 1899 no team held the championship for more than two years in succession, and although there were some formidable teams, notably Hobart and Hovey, the Neel brothers, and Ware and Sheldon, it was not until 1899 that the doubles game as it is played today was fully developed.

Then it was that Dwight F. Davis and Holcombe Ward, a Harvard combination, sprang into fame and practically revolutionized the doubles game in this country. Ward it was who invented the American "twist" service, a form of delivery that was quickly adopted by his partner, Davis, and which has since spread throughout the world. With both men using this service their opponents were nearly always baffled. Davis, being left handed, was able to impart a twist that broke directly opposite to that of Ward's, giving an assortment of "shoots" that bewildered the best teams of their day.

It was Ward and Davis also who popularized the formation now nearly universally used in this country whereby the man at the net stands practically at the center of the net, at least when his opponent is serving in the right hand court; a formation that effectually puts a stop to cross court driving. The formation was found particularly valuable when an opponent served to a right hand court.

Other innovations largely credited to Ward and Davis are the use of the short lob as an offensive stroke, and the now accepted principle by which a doubles team works up and down the court in parallel formation, thus avoiding the fatal "open diagonal." For three years Ward and Davis were invincible in this country, though defeated by the great Doherty brothers of England on several occasions. Then—in 1902—the great team fell before the Doherty brothers in the challenge match at Newport in a wonderful three set match, 11—9, 12—10, 6—4, and Davis soon after retired from active competition.

Westerners Are Stars.

In the same year Kreigh Collins and L. Harry Waidner, the greatest doubles team ever developed in the west, and, like Ward and Davis, a right-and-left handed combination, had won the western title and all but defeated the Dohertys in the all comers' match at Newport, the westerners going down to defeat only after five grueling sets, 2—6, 6—2, 4—6, 6—3, 6—3. Again in the following year Waidner and Collins were beaten in a close match by the Dohertys for the national title. It was unfortunate for the great western team that they were forced to battle the Doherty brothers on both of these occasions, as, otherwise, they would almost certainly have earned a place for themselves among the national doubles champions.

In the following year the Doherty brothers defaulted their American title and Holcombe Ward, who had doubled with another left hander, Beals Wright, again won the championship and began the three year period in which Ward and Wright were invincible on American soil.

Narrowed down, it seems only fair to rank the following teams as the greatest ever produced in this country:

Holcombe Ward and Dwight F. Davis.
Holcombe Ward and Beals C. Wright.
Kreigh Collins and L. Harry Waidner.
F. B. Alexander and H. H. Hackett.
Thomas C. Bundy and Maurice E. McLoughlin

And, without much possibility of dispute, the three greatest individual doubles men produced in America have been Holcombe Ward, H. H. Hackett, and Thomas C. Bundy.

Sporting News Notes.

The West Maywood Tennis club will hold its third annual singles championship tourney on its courts, Seventeenth avenue and Washington boulevard, on Sept. 4, 5, and 6. Entries close with R. E. MacDuff, 9 South Clinton street, on Sept. 3.

The Chicago Amateur Football league will hold its first meeting of the year at 54 East Monroe street on Tuesday night. H. S. Borroughs, secretary of the league last year, will act as chairman until a permanent officer is elected.

Teams in the West Side Indoor Baseball league will open their season with games at 10:30 o'clock this morning. Mercury A. C. will play the Y. M. H. A. at the Chicago Hebrew institute, Orele A. C. will cross bats with the Twentieth Century A. C. at the Foster school playground, and the Dodger A. C. will meet the National A. C. at the Washburn school grounds.

TUNE UP BOATS FOR FIRST RACE OF BIG REGATTA

Fast Craft Entered for American Championship Start Series Saturday.

BY JACK PROCTOR.

Representative boats of the east and west are being tuned up for Saturday's initial race of a series to determine possession of the American sailing championship. The coming event is the most important one of the kind ever held in the west.

The series is to be sailed under the auspices of the Chicago Yatch club and two big trophies are to be competed for. The successful boat will take not only the American championship title but will gain the honor of having its name inscribed on the Manhassett and great lakes challenge trophies as well. Addison G Hanan's Josephine of the Indian Harbor (N. Y.) Yacht club and the acknowledged champion of the east is the craft that will race with the Price syndicate's Valiant holder of the great lakes title, for the national sailing honors.

Josephine Tryout Tomorrow.

Josephine arrived in the city by rail a few days ago and now swings at the end of a mooring line near the Chicago Yacht club, where Skipper Hanan and his crew of salt water tars are rigging it, preparatory to taking their first tryout on Lake Michigan tomorrow. Experts who have inspected the invading craft are impressed by its lines and predict that Josephine will give the great Valiant a hard race. The Hanan craft is the largest class P sloop ever built.

According to James O. Heyworth, chairman of the special committee in charge of the race, the Manhassett trophy will be raced for on Sept. 4, 6, and every alternate day until it is won. The deed of gift governing the trophy provides that the cup goes to the craft winning three out of five races. The last two races for the Manhassett trophy are to apply on the competition for the new Ocean-Great Lakes Challenge cup, hung up by Commodore William A. Lydon and to be raced for annually by class P boats. Ownership of the latter named trophy rests with the Chicago Yacht club, to which it will revert each year.

History of the Series.

The first series for the Manhasset trophy was held in 1903 when Alert of the Manhasset Bay Yacht club took the prize. It went to Mimosa of the American Yacht club in 1904 and to Mimosa III. of the same organization in 1905. In 1908 Addison Hanan, who now owns Josephine, took the trophy with Seneca and carried it to the Indiana Harbor Yacht club, where it remained until 1912, when Fred A. Price and his crew of Chicago Yacht club amateurs went down east and won the cup with Michicago. In 1913 Stranger of the Rhode Island Yacht club came to this city in an effort to take the trophy back east, but Michicago won three straight races and retained it. The trophy was not raced for last year.

Commodore Lydon's steam yacht Lydonia, flagship of the C. Y. C., will be used as the judges' boat.

West secured a small slam.

The first trick was startling and West immediately began to try to determine the character of the hand held by south. He decided that South must have six or seven hearts and some outside strength, which in the present deal could only be king of clubs and king of diamonds.

The play of the four clubs revealed the fact that south had king and two others and that the heart discard by north placed nine of the original thirteen cards in the south hand, six hearts and three clubs.

West decided that south must have held two spades and the king and one diamond originally, but took two rounds of spades to make this point certain, and also to leave south nothing to lead but hearts after the ninth trick.

The work of west culminated in his very pretty play at trick nine, which gave him an extra trick in the heart suit and the bonus for a small slam.

San Antonio, Tex.—[To the Editor.]—A contention over rules has appeared and I would like your authority. Player bids four and is doubled and redoubled. Takes five odd tricks and in case of hearts counts 200 above and 160 below the line.

Adversary claims count should be 200 above line and 128 below, contending that on double only the amount bid may be counted below the line.

C. B. H.

Ans.—Two hundred above and 160 below were the correct scores in the case given above. There is no such law as that claimed by the adversary.

Chicago.—[To the Editor.]—In a game of stud poker after the last cards are drawn A is dealing and has a possible straight. B is high with a king and passes. A does not announce his possible straight, but bets. B raises A and taps himself. A calls and shows a straight. B claims a draw back because A did not announce his possible straight. Who is right?

C. J. R.

Ans.—Hoyle does not require a player of stud poker to make such an announcement as the one mentioned in this case, and B could have no basis for his claim except, possibly, some local custom.

DE PAUL PLAYERS START FOOTBALL WORK TOMORROW

Coach Paupau Will Open Training Grind with Squad of Forty-five Boys.

BY OTTO A. ENGEL.

Forty-five football players, composing the De Paul university and academy squads, have been asked by Coach Joseph Paupau to report for the initial practice on the campus football field tomorrow afternoon. De Paul players will be the first organized squad to get into action for the coming season and the inaugural drill will mark the reëstablishment of the gridiron game for the varsity, after a lapse of a year.

Besides taking charge of over two score of his own players, Paupau has issued a general invitation to any and all high school players to come out for practice. Paupau, imbued with a generous spirit, is willing to teach the outside youngsters the elementary points of the game and also will teach them how to condition themselves for the coming season.

Thirteen Vets for Varsity.

As a nucleus for his varsity team Paupau will have the services of thirteen members of the championship Catholic high school eleven of last season. This team went through the season with one defeat, that being sustained at the hands of St. John's academy of Danvers, Mass., 8 to 6, in the final game of the local season.

Despite the loss of an almost entire academy team, enough material will remain from the left overs and freshmen team to fill the many gaps. The only youngsters lost to either team will be Manley, full back, who will enter the University of Illinois, and Morgan, quarter back, who will matriculate at Notre Dame. The last of the Ward brothers—Oliver—will join the minor ranks. In all, De Paul has had seven Wards among its athletes, mostly in football.

Electric Lighting and Starting
Demountable Rims—Fully Equipped
The Lowest Price for a Quality Car

$650

F. O. B., Flint, Mich.

An increased production enables us to sell the new Model Five Dort Touring Car for $75 less than we sold this car a year ago —and to add complete electric starting and lighting equipment and demountable rims. The Dort passed all of its experimental stages more than a year ago. Those who saw the Dort at the New York and Chicago Shows admitted it to be a wonderful value at $725.00 —it is a better value today at $650.00.

The approval which the public has set upon the Dort has made possible this remarkable increase in production and is responsible for the saving in cost you may enjoy in owning a Dort.

The McDuffee Company has waited nine months to make this announcement because until now other Dort dealers were selling more cars than could be delivered to them.

That this old-established firm, which has successfully sold such high grade cars as the Peerless, Rauch & Lang Electric and National, should be the Chicago dealer to make this announcement, is particularly significant to those who want quality in a car. Only a quality car could suit this firm—and in the words of Mr. J. R. Buck, of the McDuffee Co., "the new Dort Model Five Touring Car is a well-born little brother of the new Highway Six and Twelve National."

We have spent over 29 years in the successful building of vehicles and automobiles, and, like ourselves, the McDuffee Company believes that the Dort offers the greatest automobile value for the price.

By value we mean appearance, smoothness in riding and inherent sturdiness. Value that is not expressed in words but in terms of actual use and the recommendation of satisfied owners.

Read the specifications and compare the Dort with other cars in its class on the market today.

M'DERMOTT WINS LAKE FRONT SWIM 200 YARDS AHEAD

Browne Second, Miller Third, in Annual Event of Columbia Yacht Club.

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

Swimming with a powerful crawl stroke, which he changed to a trudgeon occasionally, Michael McDermott, one of the star swimmers of the Illinois A. C., yesterday won the second annual two and one-half mile swim of the Columbia Yacht club, and defeated Clement Browne of the Hamilton club, a strong favorite, by 200 yards.

The bricklayer natator covered the distance under adverse conditions in 1:07:28, one minute slower than the time made last year. John T. Miller of the tricolor club won third place by eighteen seconds over Van Vlissingen of the Cherry Circle club.

The weather was anything but favorable to good performances and over half of the number of contestants had to be pulled out of the lake by either lifesavers or by the attendants who followed the swimmers in rowboats and canoes. As the temperature of the water was 66 degrees most of the swimmers suffered from cramps, but none of them felt any serious results after having received medical attention at the yacht club.

Taken Out at First Buoy.

Joseph aMrtin, who competed unattached, was pulled out of the water after the first buoy was reached. He was taken to the clubhouse and soon revived. Gordon J. Carveth of the Hamilton club and Frank Pickle of the C. A. A. had to receive assistance on the third leg of the journey, while William Vosburgh of the I. A. C. had to be pulled into a boat after he had entered the Van Buren gap.

When he was pulled out of the water the tricolor star was a sure winner of third place. He was twenty yards behind Browne and over 200 yards in advance of his most dangerous contender. Vosburgh stayed in the race until he was unable to use his legs. He afterwards asserted he swam fully a mile after getting cramps in his right leg. N. K. Ferguson, who won sixth place, got a cramp at the finish and had to be pulled on the dock, as did E. C. Midkiff of the University of Chicago.

Gets Lead Early.

McDermott swam a great race, and his victory now makes him a favorite for the ten mile Missouri river swim to be held next month. The Turk, as he is known to his fellow swimmers, went into the lead soon after hitting the water. At the end of the first leg, about 440 yards from the starting point, he rounded the stake ten yards in advance of Browne, who had a slight advantage over Vosburgh.

When the leading trio rounded the life saving station at the mouth of the river McDermott had increased his lead to thirty yards, and Browne had a five yard advantage over the tricolor club swimmer. The pace was too hot for the rest of the field, most of whom withdrew after realizing they were hopelessly beaten.

After turning south along the breakwater a choppy sea was encountered and the water was much colder. McDermott apparently did not mind the temperature, and he gradually increased his lead until he rounded the breakwater at the Van Buren street gap, where he had a clean lead of 150 yards.

Never in Danger.

It was shortly after this stage of the race that Vosburgh was compelled to give up. Browne tried to cut down the lead of McDermott, but the Irishman had too much reserve, and every time the Dearborn street swimmer threatened to overtake him Mike simply let out a notch, and never was in danger of defeat.

Browne won second position easily, but the struggle for third position on the last leg between Miller and Van Vlissingen was interesting. They swam stroke for stroke, and there was little to choose between them until fifty yards from the finish. Each put every ounce of energy and strength into his efforts; but Miller was the stronger and won the medal by three yards from his worthy opponent.

McDermott's victory was a popular one. He was easily the class of the field under yesterday's conditions. He finished fresh and could have made much faster time if he had been pushed. Browne also swam a strong race, and outside of Vosburgh, they were the class of the field.

Special Medal for Dullaghan.

The performance of John Dullaghan, the 52 year old swimmer from Wilson beach, who has learned the art from Harry Bachrach, was a creditable one. Dullaghan finished in eleventh position, and, because of this performance, he will be given a special medal by the committee in charge of the event. R. B. Weld of New Trier High school, who finished tenth, swam a good race. He was the youngest swimmer in the event and covered the entire distance by use of the breast stroke.

Fully 10,000 persons saw the race. They viewed the contest from crafts of all descriptions, from fishermen's rowboats to millionaires' palatial steam yachts, while thousands crowded the piers, docks, and breakwater. Many took advantage of the opportunity to pay 25 cents to board the steamers which followed the contestants.

Commodore Robert L. Doran, Lou Reitman, and other members of his committee deserve credit for staging such a successful event, considering the short space of time they had to secure entries. The race now will be an annual affair.

BY KEENE GARDINER.

Evanston Y. M. C. A. swimmers, led by Max Hayford, who won individual honors, carried off the third annual swimming championships of the Amateur Athletic federation yesterday at Sherman park. The north shore natators placed in all but two events of the championship and secondary swims, scoring 50 points, to 30½ for Sinai Social center, which finished second. The outcome upset the order of the last two years, when Sinai tank men carried off the honors.

Events were run off in three divisions—championship, secondary, and junior classes. The first four places in the championships counted five, four, three, and one for the team point total; and in the secondary races three, two, one, and one-half. Junior events did not count in the team total. Competition in the secondary events was restricted to swimmers not having won firsts in their events in former A. A. F. meets.

Hayford Individual Champion.

Hayford, an Evanston academy star, was third in the forty yard dash, second in the 100 yard back stroke, and won the 440, events which, with the plunge, counted for the individual championship. In addition, he won a runaway in the half mile, scoring fifteen points.

McCue, Sinai, totaled sixteen points in the junior events and was high scorer. He carried off the forty yard dash and 100 yard swim and took seconds in the plunge and forty yard back stroke, besides competing on the winning relay team. Evanstonians won the senior and secondary relays in easy fashion.

COAST EXPERTS WIN TENNIS CUP

Johnston and Griffin Beat Church and Hall in the Meadow Club Final.

Southampton, N. Y., Aug. 28.—In the doubles finals of the Meadow club's tennis tourney today William M. Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin of San Francisco, Pacific coast champions, defeated George M. Church and Walter Merrill Hall, 6–2, 4–6, 6–4, 7–5. The match ended according to form.

The losers, comprised of the Princeton captain and the former middle states champion, took desperate chances and extended the challengers for the national titles much more than was expected. The lobbing and smashing of Church and Hall often had the Californians fighting on the defense.

Rallies Keep Gallery Applauding.

So fast and furious were many of the rallies that the spectators, wrapped in blankets, furs, and overcoats, forgot to shiver as they applauded the lightning drives and the all around fine playing of Johnston, who was easily the most brilliant player on the court.

Watson M. Washburn of Harvard defeated Theodore Roosevelt Pell of New York in the singles final. It took Washburn four sets to dispose of Pell. The latter won the first set and made a desperate fight in the third, but his rally failed. The other sets were comparatively easy for Washburn. The scores were 4–6, 6–3, 9–7, 6–2.

Summary of Play.

Meadow club cup singles, final and cup round—Watson M. Washburn, New York, defeated T. R. Pell, New York, 4–6, 6–3, 9–7, 6–2

Meadow club cup men's doubles, final and cup round—William M. Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin, San Francisco, defeated George M. Church and Walter Merrill Hall, Englewood, N. J., and New York, 6–2, 4–6, 6–4, 7–5.

Meadow club mixed doubles, semi-final round—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Leroy defeated Mr. and Mrs. Howard Brokaw, 6–2, 6–3; Miss Lee and William Rand III. defeated Miss Jones and G. W. Burgwin, 6–2, 6–2. Final—Mr. and Robert Leroy defeated Miss Lee and William Rand III., 7–5, 6–1.

Men's consolation singles, final—Charles S. Garland defeated Harold Wainwright, 6–0, 6–3, 6–2.

STECKER TO GRAPPLE HERE.

Joe Stecker, the farmer boy wrestler, who threw Charlie Cutler with ease, is going to show before Chicago's mat enthusiasts on Labor day night at Riverview park. Paul Martinson is to be Stecker's opponent. Stecker is to get $5,000 for the match, but he has agreed to come here and train two weeks in advance of the battle, so that the public can get a line on his work.

MAROON NINE QUITS STATES FOR HAWAII; THEN GO FOR JAPAN

BY H. ORVILLE PAT PAGE.

San Francisco, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—As the S. S. Mongolia of the Pacific Mail fleet swung out from old Pier 42, starting its last voyage on the Pacific, there were many Chicago men on the dock giving a farewell "Chi-ca-go," the yell that will echo and reëcho on Stagg field when the football warriors will tear things up this fall. Spike Shull developed into a real cheer leader after failing to make good as a stowaway.

Heading down the bay, the fellows turned to their steamer letters and memories drifted back to the home folks. As we approach Golden Gate and the Seal Rocks, last messages are sent ashore, including this letter. The freshmen are sent to the dog watch to await the first view of the Hawaiian islands. Tiny Hart wonders if Kansas grasshoppers could swim in salt water.

Give Portland Battle.

Since arriving on the coast the Midwayites have waded through the fog. The Portland Coast league club opened its eyes when the university youngsters drove in a few runs. We tied up the game in the sixth but finally lost, being too anxious in our fielding. Score:

Journeying south through the beautiful Sacramento valley, Mount Shasta, 14,000 feet up, was viewed, while the ozone waters of the Shasta springs were indulged in along with some mountain climbing.

Arriving into the old capital city of Sacramento, some real hot weather was unwelcomed. Two games were played with the city champions. It was fine training for Manila heat. Des Jardien pitched his best and won the first game, 3 to 0, Catron making a feature catch. Cavin hit hard. Score:

GAME OF AUG. 18.

Sacramento	0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0	0	2	1

On the second day the pepless Chicagoans had three bad innings and lost, 11 to 5. Score:

Chicago	0 0 2 1 1 1 0 0 0	5	8	5
Sacramento	5 0 0 3 0 0 0 3 0	11	12	2

Batteries—George, Page, and Hart; Macholtt and Tobin.

Rally Beats Olympia Club.

Arriving in San Francisco, the team got a good rest for its Olympia club opponents, composed of Stanford and California university players. In a beautiful uphill fight Chicago earned six runs, scoring three in the ninth on Hart's single, George's walk, Catron's two bagger, and Cole's sacrifice. Rudolph punched for Carvin and drove over the third, thus tying the game. In the tenth the Maroons won on Des Jardien's walk, Kixmiller's hit, and McConnell's drive over second. Score:

Give Navy Team Trouncing.

On Monday, Aug. 23, a government launch took the team over to Goat Isle. There the naval training school team was defeated, 9 to 5, in a spirited game before 1,800 Jackies. The Maroons got away to a good start, but near the close the fog ball failed to work and the Marines got five runs. Gray and Hart did not participate, being wary of the asphaltum grounds. Score:

GAME OF AUG. 23.

Navy	0 0 0 0 0 5 0 0 0	5	5	4

A feature of the game was the umpiring of bases by "Spike" Shull. He stood amazed at the speed and cleverness of his cohorts. By winning this final game in the states the Maroons have completed a most successful lap of their extensive journey, winning twelve and losing only three games.

Play in Hawaii Next.

Word comes from the Hawaiian islands that our "Waterloo is at hand." So from all accounts Oahu league teams, composed of Chinese, Portuguese, Japanese, and service players, are going to make things interesting.

Before embarking, the beauties of San Francisco and the exposition were noted. The salt Sutro baths were enjoyed, while the August football practice at Berkeley was seen from the shade of the bleachers.

It seemed a pleasure to hear that the University of California, after nine years' experimenting with the rugby game, has at last gone back to the good old American college football game, which is so popular throughout the east. Only eleven teams of varsity candidates worked out together. What would Stagg do with such a raft of material?

Another Boost for W. G. N.

New London, Ia., Aug. 27.—[Sporting Editor of The Tribune.]—It has been my good fortune during the last sixteen years to attend practically all the Grand American handicaps. Never in the history of this great sporting event has any newspaper ever compiled the scores so accurately and in such a concise manner.

Any one making a good score always likes to be found near the top, and your compilation of the Grand American handicap event proper was the finest ever given by an American newspaper. Any one always likes to be commended for work well done, and I want to assure you, speaking as I do for a host of Iowa shooters, that they are all enthusiastic over Chicago as a permanent place for holding the event, and THE TRIBUNE's method of handling the scores. Your writeups contained less errors in names, etc., than any paper I saw during the shoot.

C. E. COOK.

Dr. Cook is mayor of New London, Ia., and has a long record of attendance at Grand American handicaps. His words, therefore, are the more appreciated.

KETCHUM, GIFFORD VICTORS.

M. G. Ketchum and Harold Gifford, a doubles team which figured in all local tournaments during the summer, defeated Alex Squair, last year the Illinois and western singles champion, and former western college title holder, who was paired with Cyrus Hill, former Yale player, in an exhibition match played at the Portage Park tennis club on the new courts, at Irving Park boulevard and Fifty-fourth avenue, yesterday. The winners dropped the first two sets, 11–13 and 2–6, but swept the former collegians off their feet in the concluding frames, 7–5, 6–3, and 6–4.

SAYLOR CANCELS BOUT.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 28.—Milburn Saylor, the Indianapolis lightweight who was to meet Phil Brock in the opening Minneapolis show Sept. 2, backed out today claiming broken ribs. Young Brown of New York may take his place.

GIBBONS HERE TODAY FOR HARD WORKOUT BEFORE LOCAL FANS

BY KNOCKOUT.

Local fight fans and critics will have an opportunity today to judge for themselves as to the relative condition and boxing ability of Packey McFarland and Mike Gibbons, the sterling welterweights who will clash in a ten round bout at the Brighton motordrome of New York on Sept. 11.

Gibbons will arrive in Chicago today from his home in St. Paul and will go through a strenuous workout at Forbes' resort. The St. Paul Phantom, as he is known to followers of pugilistic affairs, will box three rounds with his brother Tom and the same number with Leo Laporte, one of the claimants of the city amateur middleweight title.

Crowds See Packey Work.

Hundreds of boxing fans took advantage of the opportunity to see Packey McFarland in action at O'Connell's during the last two days and it is more than probable these same enthusiasts will avail themselves of the chance to see Gibbons go through his paces.

McFarland's cleverness and speed brought forth rounds of favorable comment from those who saw him work yesterday. In their opinions it will take the best Gibbons has in stock to beat the crafty southsider. Opinions may be changed, however, after a visit to Forbes' gymnasium, for the word has come from St. Paul that Mike was never more fit for a contest in his entire career.

Packey has made his farewell appearance in Chicago until after the fight. Yesterday he boxed eight rounds before one of the largest crowds that ever packed O'Connell's. McFarland stepped three rounds with Johnny Griffiths of Akron, O.; the same number with Jack Burke of St. Louis, and two sessions with Lee McMahon, the clever local lightweight.

Packey Starts East Today.

Packey and his trainer and sparring partner will leave for the east this morning over the New York Central at 10:30 o'clock.

As soon as he finishes training today Gibbons will start for New York. Mike will finish training in the east. He will start work today at 2 o'clock in order to catch a 5 o'clock train.

Al Bloom and Nate Lewis, who are arranging for a special train to the fight yesterday announced their plans. The train will leave over the New York Central at 10:15 a. m. on Sept. 10 and arrive in New York the following morning. The trip will be made in twenty-two hours and the fare will be $33.65, including berths each way. Reservations can be made at 4 North Clark street.

Dundee and Manager Here.

Johnny Dundee, the eastern lightweight who is matched to box ten rounds with Ritchie Mitchell in Milwaukee tomorrow night arrived in Chicago yesterday, accompanied by Manager Scotty Monteith. After this bout Dundee will go to New York, where he is matched to step ten rounds with Joe Mandot on Sept. 16. Monteith will go to Cincinnati, where his featherweight boxer, Eddie Wallace, will exchange punches with K. O. Mars for ten rounds on Sept. 13. Wallace also is matched to meet George Chaney in a six round bout in Baltimore on Sept. 25.

HARRY HARKNESS SHEEPSHEAD BAY AUTO PRESIDENT

Son of Standard Oil Magnate Elected to Succeed C. G. Fisher.

BY REED L. PARKER.

Harry S. Harkness, one of the most genuine of New York sportsmen, who has a host of friends in Chicago, has been elected president of the Sheepshead Bay Speedway corporation of New York, to succeed Carl G. Fisher, the original president, who resigned. Harkness is the only son of L. V. Harkness, a Standard Oil magnate, who died last January, leaving an immense fortune.

Harkness, it is said, was one of the men who made the New York track a possibility. He is reported to have subscribed $100,000 in cold cash when the project needed money. He has been identified with motor racing in one way and another for the last fifteen years.

Holds Mount Washington Record.

Between 1900 and 1906 he drove his own cars and figured in many meets with Alexander Winton, Albert C. Bostwick, the Vanderbilts, Keene, and others of the "400," who during that period took to motor racing as a hobby. He still holds the record between Boston and New York, although he made his attempt in 1906. He scaled Mount Washington in 34:37 the same year, establishing a record that never has been broken.

Aviation attracted him after automobile racing became more or less commercialized. He owns a flying stable of five 70 horse power Antoinettes and several fast hydroplanes. It is probable he will get together a motor racing stable and may have a car in the New York race on Oct. 2.

Meeting on Tuesday.

A meeting of the contest board of the Chicago Automobile club will be held on Tuesday noon to discuss plans for the annual fall reliability run and the 1916 Elgin road races. It is probable the club will offer its services to the Chicago speedway for the fall championship race in October.

When James Allison, an official of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway corporation, opened negotiations for the purchase of two of Europe's fastest racing automobiles with the Peugeot Import company of New York he probably never had heard of Lutcher Brown, youthful son of a wealthy Texas ranchman. Before he or his agent gets those cars he may think there are a hundred Lutcher Browns, for Lutcher has outguessed Allison, his associates at Indianapolis, and the Peugeot Import company as well.

In other words, when John Aitken, Allison's representative, reaches New York to receive the Hoosier speedway's new beauties and prospective money makers he will receive just one car. For Lutcher has the other. How Lutcher put it over on Allison and the American agents for the French company is one of the most interesting stories incidental to motor racing we ever have heard.

Brown Friend of Mulford.

Brown is a warm friend of Ralph Mulford. He backed the New Yorker's vain attempt to build a winning Mulford special. After the Sioux City race Brown assured me he would have a fast Peugeot for his friend before the summer was over. We did not believe him, as others more prominent and not a whit less wealthy than Brown had tried vainly to fulfill the same promise. However, Brown did not elaborate on his scheme of action.

Instead of talking he freely used the cables. He enlisted foreign help. Rumor has it that none other than the great Boillot was his fellow conspirator. Boillot, or whoever it was that assisted Brown, went directly to the Peugeot company with what is said to have been 10,000 real American dollars in his hands, offering the money for the outright purchase of one of the cars the Indianapolis speedway magnate had ordered at the instance of the speedway management, it is said. The Peugeot company turned the car into cash immediately and Brown's agent became the possessor. To make Brown the owner was a matter of routine.

Makes Noisy Protest.

Loud indeed was the protest of the American agents of Peugeot when they heard of the deal weeks later than the day they had sold the car to Allison. They maneuvered in every possible way to have the home firm repudiate its deal, but finally were silenced by a letter which read in substance: "The exigencies of war makes it impossible for us to heed your protest."

Mulford will get his car, unless the Germans sink the boat it was shipped on, in time for the Minneapolis race, and the Indianapolis speedway must withdraw one of its two entries for the same race.

BANGERT STAR OF DRIVERS IN TROT MEET AT AUSTIN.

After a couple of weeks layup Chicago harness horse fans had an opportunity to see the trotters and pacers step the course at the Austin track yesterday. John Bangert was the star driver of the day, winning the blue ribbon in the free-for-all and a couple of seconds in the mixed event and slow trot. Bangert made best time, 2:17½, of the day in his drive with the gelding Weber in the third heat of the free-for-all. Summaries:

JAMES WINS AT EVANSTON.

Maurice James, former Northwestern university tennis champion, yesterday defeated Pierce Ward, former Princeton star, in the finals for the tennis championship of Evanston, played at the Evanston Country club, 6–4, 6–3, 4–6, 3–6, 6–2. A silver loving cup was the trophy.

RING UNION BIDS FAIR TO BETTER SQUARED CIRCLE

Boxing Promoters Form Organization for First Time in America.

BY RAY C. PEARSON.

Going about things quietly—otherwise known as using gumshoe methods—the boxing promoters have accomplished an organization which is expected to result in the betterment of the sport and place it on a plane which practically will make criticism impossible. The new organization which was formed in Cleveland a few days ago, is to be known as the American Boxing Association of the United States. Great credit for its formation must be accorded westerners, although the men behind the sport in the east have signified their intention of becoming affiliated with the association just as soon as the "goods" are shown.

Innovation in America.

Perhaps the most interesting comment that can be made on the formation of the American Boxing Association of the United States must be made concerning the organization itself, although the rules which the association has adopted are certainly of great importance not only to the promoters and boxers but to the public as well.

In the first place the association is the first that has ever been formed in this country to control the sport of pugilism. In England there is an organization under whose jurisdiction the sport is conducted; in France there is the Boxing Federation of France for control; and in Australia, where "Snowy" Baker is the leading spirit, boxing is controlled by an official body. But in the United States there had not been an organization to regulate the sport until the recent gathering in Cleveland, which was productive of so much success.

France First in Limelight.

When the fact is considered that this country has been the greatest in the world for pugilism since the days of glove milling came into vogue nearly three decades ago and that it was the last to take action that would bring about the organization of a controlling body, the natural consensus of opinion is that the "big guns" of the sport in the United States have been sleeping on the job. France, which really did not come into prominence as a boxing center until the great Georges Carpentier jumped into the limelight, did not waste any time in forming its federation to control the game, and Australia, like France, was just as quick to realize the importance of a ruling organization.

Action Due to Fighters.

For years the promoters of boxing pulled off their contests, making matches they saw fit to make, paying the performers purses of any size that the bankroll would permit, and running the game to suit themselves, in the main. It was a case of every promoter for himself and many times the promoter with the small bankroll was frozen out of a big match by the promoter with the big bundle of greenbacks. But with the promoters that was business, pure and simple, and the man who was frozen out seldom let out much of a holler. He stood the gaff gamely and came back for more. None of them seemed willing or anxious to take the step that would result in a controlling body.

Perhaps no promoter who attended the convention at Cleveland took a more active part in the organization than Tom Andrews of Milwaukee, the boss of the Cream City Athletic club. Andrews was one of those who were hard hit by the money grabbing fighters, but Tom does not blame the fighting men one bit. He believes they should get all they can get.

Promoters Protect Selves.

Andrews had plenty of experience with exorbitant demands. He had to pay Willie Ritchie a lot of coin to fight for him and he had to cough up bunches of it to Ad Wolgast. He staged the biggest ten round money maker ever held in this country when he stacked Wolgast against Ritchie. The house amounted to more than $39,000. When Andrews paid off his fighters and the expenses of staging the show were met his profit was something like $7,000. Tom made no kick over that, but he did make a holler later on when he sent Charley White against Ritchie, for the fighters cost him so much that he lost nearly as much money on this contest as he made on the Ritchie-Wolgast mill.

Other losing gates which followed convinced Andrews that something should be done to protect the promoter, and it was the Brewery City man's activity that had a great deal to do with the organization perfected at Cleveland.

The adoption of a weight scale to agree with that operative in England, France, and Australia was another matter decided at the convention. The weights now will be: Bantamweights, 117 pounds; featherweights, 125 pounds; lightweights, 135 pounds; welterweights, 147 pounds; middleweights, 160 pounds; light heavyweights, 174 pounds.

Raise Limit on Weights.

Those who follow the sport will readily see that this is a raise of a couple of pounds for every class and, at least for the present, the boost will stop the haggling, that particularly which has been going on among the lightweights. The game has been bothered too long by 133 pound lightweights and 135 pound lightweights. Now, with the uniform scale the 133 pound lightweight is eliminated. If he can make 133 pounds he will have to battle as a 135 pounder to draw recognition in championship circles. This ruling will apply in other classes as well. The adoption of these weights also will help materially to do away with overmatching of fighters.

The officials of the association, of which Matt J. Hinkel of Cleveland has been chosen president, will draw no salaries. That is a good rule, too.

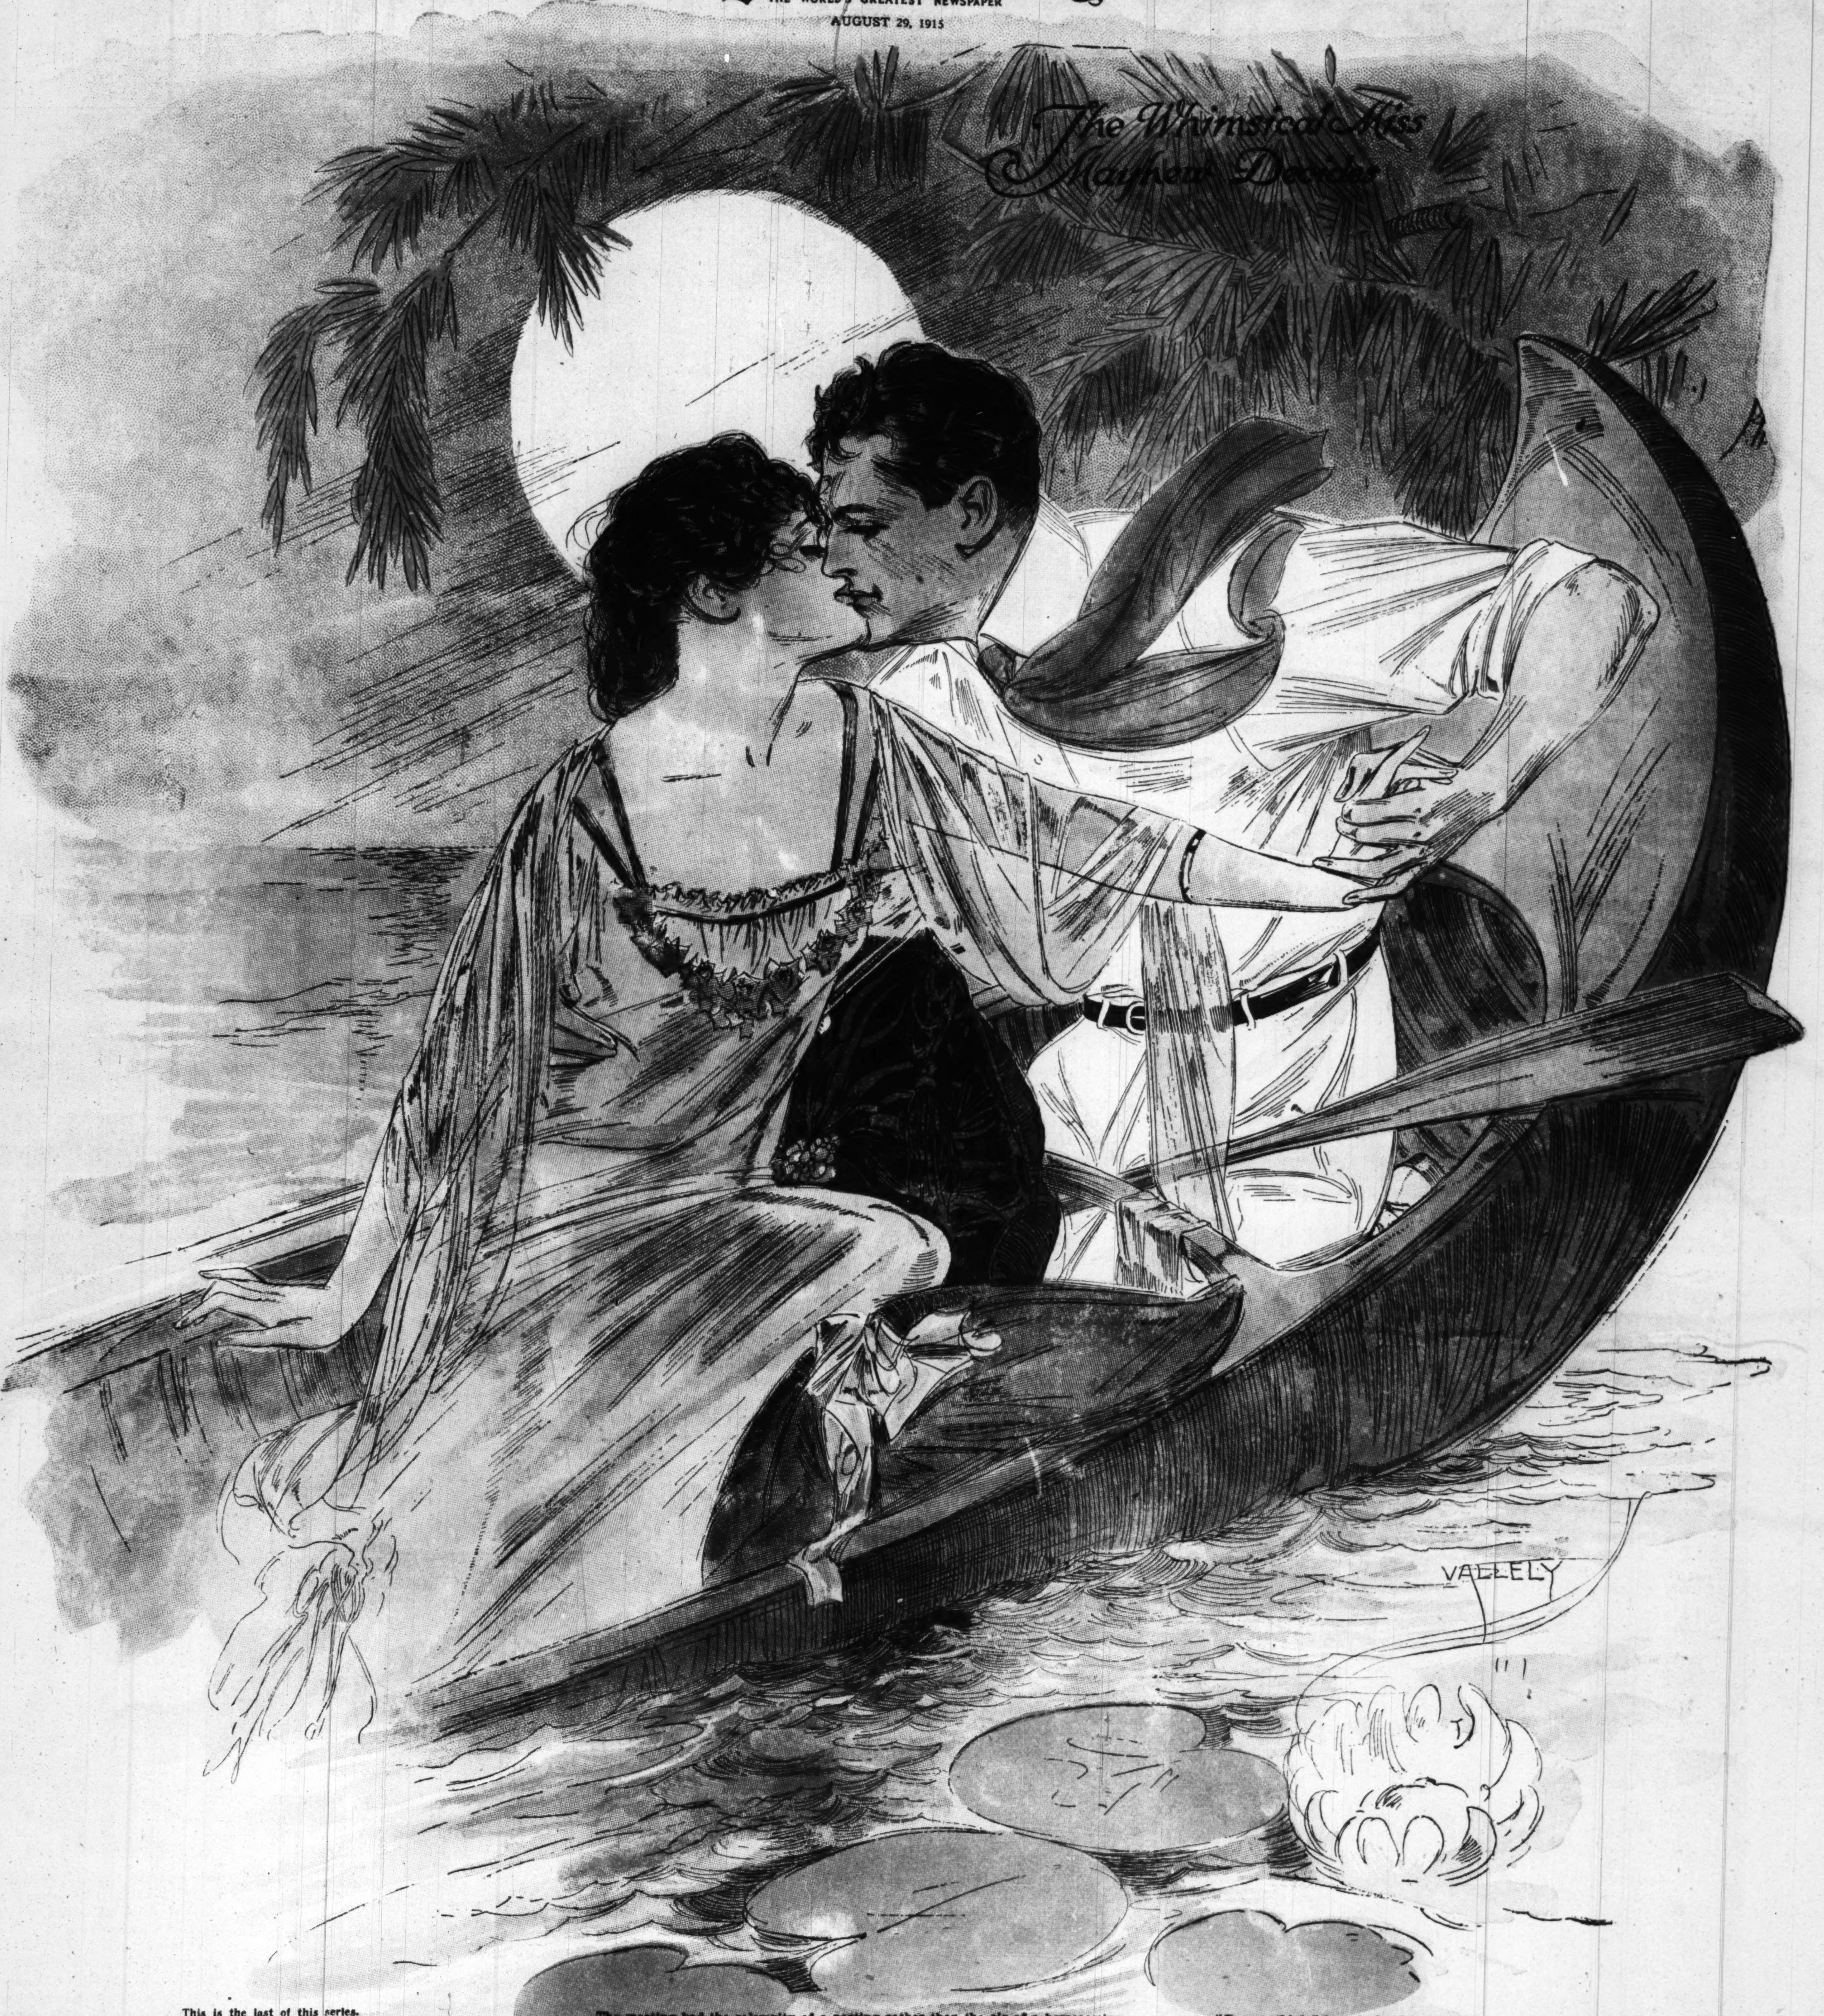
The Whimsical Miss Mayhew Decides



This is the last of this series.

NOW that all her love experiments were over, the whimsical Miss Mayhew felt in a vague, uncertain way that instead of gaining something, as she had hoped, she had lost.

She had dallied with half a dozen interesting men; she had deliberately played up to them, had allowed them to commit themselves, had encouraged them, and then had analyzed and criticized and sent them away. In most cases she had been untouched herself, and yet all of the attention paid her had not made her happy.

And today Channing, her fiancé, was coming home. For the first time since their agreement she felt misgivings and fear. Somehow his letters had not seemed as warm, as faithful, since she had begun her experiments as they had been during his courtship. The last one, she remembered, had been painfully brief. A sharp pang of fear shot through her; supposing that by her experiments she had gained only knowledge and had lost Channing? The thought was almost too much for her to bear.

She tried not to think of it. She tried to lose herself in the novel in her hands. But she could not. Always came the thought that Channing's patience, his jealousy, his faith, might have been tried to the breaking point, and then when he again met her it would be with coolness that change had brought.

A step on the pine needles behind her caused her to look up. She sprang to her feet. It was Channing!

"Rutledge!" she cried, and ran to his arms. Instead of kissing her, he merely held her firmly in his arms a moment, then released her. Her heart was sick. The worst she had feared was true, then.

Scarcely knowing where she was being led, she walked beside him down toward the reedy edge of the lake. When he helped her into a waiting canoe and took a seat immediately behind her, she said nothing. Neither had spoken a word. The meeting had the solemnity of a parting rather than the air of a homecoming.

Slowly they drifted along the wooded shores. As she felt him behind her, Miss Mayhew realized how big, how strong, Rutledge Channing was—how complete a man he was—and how much it would cost her in mental anguish should she lose him. Each feeling the delicacy of the situation, waited for the other to speak. At length, when the canoe had come to rest in the shadow of a willow, it was he who broke the silence.

"Well," he said in a strained voice, "I've come for my answer."

"Your answer?" she murmured, fighting to keep her tears back.

"Yes, Marcia, my answer. I've come back to learn whether or not you still care for me. You know I have been away a long time, and the men you met were interesting—some of the most interesting men I know.

"I would not blame you if you found them more ideal than I am, if you had learned to love one of them more than you said you once loved me."

The whimsical Miss Mayhew's heart was breaking. She saw it now—he was taking this way of showing that he was weary of her and that his feelings had changed. If it were otherwise he would have kissed her, he would have wasted no time in hinting that she had fallen in love with one of her many "experiments."

"I understand," she whispered haltingly. "O, why was I so silly—why was I such an idiotic little fool! But I have only myself to blame. But, Rutledge, I am ashamed, disgusted with myself. It was all a foolish, silly whim on my part. And now—now it all must end——"

"Then you have met some one whom you care for more?" His voice was calm.

"No, no, no!" she cried vehemently, while two big tears coursed diagonally down her pink and lovely cheeks. "But you have changed. I see you looking at me and you seem to say, 'I don't care for her any more—this foolish little girl who played with her own happiness!' I can't explain it, but—O, the change is there——"

"Do you think," he asked, "I love another woman?" Marcia shuddered. So that was it. While she had been trifling in the country, some other woman, bigger, broader, truer, had won his love.

"Wa—was—it?" she gulped. Channing dropped his paddle and leaned very close.

"Marcia," he whispered, "I have a confession to make." The whimsical Miss Mayhew could not speak. She only nodded weakly.

"Marcia," he resumed, "it occurred to me after I went to New York that maybe after all I wouldn't be entirely happy with you; that it wouldn't be a bad idea to look around to see if there were any others that I could love as well as I loved you. And so while you were experimenting I was experimenting, too. I experimented on six——"

Miss Mayhew gasped and tried to brush away the tears, but she could not. In a moment she would learn who the other woman was.

"And of the six," Channing went on, "Patience Gay was the most lovely. Patience Gay is the most wonderful——"

"You care for her?" Miss Mayhew cried.

"Didn't you care for Jerry Climmit?" he demanded, evenly.

"Yes—because—because he was—was like you," she blurted out.

"Well, then, I'll tell you a secret," he answered, "if you'll lean real close so I can whisper in your ear."

The whimsical Miss Mayhew leaned "real close."

"Marcia," he said tenderly, taking her hand, "the only real reason I cared for Patience Gay is because she had a few qualities like yours. But she could never have all of your qualities, and neither could anybody else. And my secret is, Marcia, sweetheart, that I'll always love you. Do you hear, always . . ."

He turned her face tenderly to his and kissed her. The canoe drifted on and on. And overhead a great summer moon smiled and smiled as it watched the two below.

THE TRAIL OF THE BOY SCOUTS

BY PATHFINDER

All questions relating to scoutcraft or to the routine to be gone through in organizing boy scout camps will be answered if addressed to Trail of the Boy Scouts, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago. Inclose self addressed and stamped envelope if you wish a personal reply.

THE INDIANS AT WHITEHALL.

IT would hardly be fair to Scout Kading to say that he was scared upon suddenly catching sight of a group of Indians along the lake shore, less than fifty yards distant. Law 10—"A scout is brave"—was one of the things in the manual that stood out very vividly in Scout Kading's mind, and he was familiar enough with history and geography to know that it was not probable that Indians in feathers and war paint should still be roaming in the pine woods near Camp Owasippe.

Yet Scout Kading gripped the sides of the row boat and his eyes opened wide with wonder. Surely his eyes could not have deceived him. He had just seen at least three sure enough redskins disappear behind the shrubbery that grew close to the sandy beach at Crystal Lake.

"Indians!" gasped Scout Kading.

Patrol Leader Gazzola and Scout Bates, sitting with their backs toward the shore, ceased studying the blue water that lay like glass around the boat and turned quickly in the direction toward which Scout Kading's wide opened eyes were glued. They saw nothing but the sandy beach and rugged pines on the hills beyond.

"What ya trin' to give us?" poohed Patrol Leader Gazzola, half peeved because of the interruption to his pleasure in plying the oars.

"Honest," insisted Scout Kading. "They just went behind those bushes. I thought we were getting pretty far away from camp. I saw them just as plain as I see you fellows in the boat. There was a tall one without anything much on but head feathers, and there was one with a blanket, and one that looked like a squaw. I tell you they were real Indians."

"Indians your grandmother," scoffed Patrol Leader Gazzola. "Of course, we're pretty far up in the north woods and the Ottawas used to be here, but it's been—how long ain't it been that there's been nothing here but logging camps and fruit farms? That's one on you, Kading. Wait until I tell the bunch back in camp and you'll never hear the end of it. Why——"

But the patrol leader was interrupted by a yell that came from the shore just back of him. The three scouts from Custer troop sat for a moment as if paralyzed.

"By jimminy," half whispered the patrol leader, "I can make them out myself now. What do you think we'd better do?"

"I'm for hitting it back to the middle of the lake," suggested Scout Bates from his seat nearest the shore and nearest the Indians. "They're watching every move we make."

Patrol Leader Gazzola, making no comment on Scout Bates' unintentional rhyme, bent to the oars, but it was some time before the boat could be swung into anything like progress. Suddenly Scout Bates cried out:

"Look! One of 'em's started to swim out. We're too late, boys. Look at the way that guy swims."

It was only too true. The tall, half naked Indian wearing head feathers was coming swiftly toward the boat in long, clean strokes. It seemed almost no time before he was alongside, muttering a guttural "Woof, woof."

"Climb on in," welcomed Scout Gazzola, with puzzled brow. "We're scouts from Custer troop."

The dripping redskin climbed into the boat and, motioning to Scout Bates to change seats, himself went to the prow of the boat, where he stood at full length and pointed back to shore. Scout Gazzola, with no other thought but to obey, tugged at the oars, and in a few moments the craft was grounded in the sand. Immediately the Indian wearing a blanket and the squaw came forth from behind some bushes, accompanied by another party of scouts that had gone out berry picking that morning. So there were other captives, were there? With a waving of his arms the tall Indian indicated that he desired the entire party to be taken aboard the boat.

A strange sight it was as the boat, filled with Indians and scouts, started back over the lake.

"Back to camp," directed Patrol Leader Gazzola, and the Indians raised no objection. Indeed, they had very little to say, and for some time as the boat plowed through the waves the boys were silent, too, so busy were they in studying their gaudily garbed captors.

"Ottawas, I reckon," said Scout Kading finally, looking up into the face of the blanketed redskin. "We were down to the old chief's grave on our hike yesterday. We rested under the old tree right where the chief sat waiting for the return of his two sons who had been sent out alone in their canoe to meet the Great Manitou. Too bad about the old chief dying of a broken heart because his sons were buried alive by that overhanging bluff that they'd sought shelter under from a storm."

"Woof, woof," responded the Indian wearing the blanket.

After a while the tents of the boy scout camp on the bluffs came into view. Patrol Leader Gazzola swung his oars until the boat drew alongside the docks, and the entire party alighted on shore. There was a scamper of boy scouts up the bluff, but the Indians held back.

Presently Mr. Fitch, the camp director, appeared on the scene. The scouts all started in, each eager to tell his own story, but Mr. Fitch kept on walking until he could get a closer view of the redskins, the scouts following at his heels.

At first the redskins made an effort to hide their faces by insisting on looking out over the lake, but Mr. Fitch grabbed the one with the head feathers by his bare arm and whirled him around until he could get a good look at him.

"Uh, huh," smiled the camp director; "so you three scout masters thought you would make your arrival into camp in this fashion, did you? I've been looking for you all morning and I thought it was about time you were showing up. Well, I guess you found you couldn't scare the scouts of this camp."

"Scare us? I should say not!" poohed Patrol Leader Gazzola. "They couldn't even fool us. We figured they wasn't real Indians all the time."

Answers to Queries.

THOMAS H.: You must remember that you are now in the growing period and the chief business of a boy is to grow. You should have a few simple rules for living and make them a part of your daily life. Each day should have its outdoor exercises. Walking is a splendid form of exercise. Don't ride unless absolutely necessary because of unusual distance. Walk with a good swinging stride, with chest well up and spine fairly straight. Slow running across country is great; it lacks strain and yet affords splendid stimulation to heart and lungs. A boy ought to have at least two hours of sport daily in some good, vigorous game, and, if he can possibly afford it, at least two periods a week, of an hour each, in a gymnasium, where he can receive guidance in body building. Since you are under 16 you should avoid exercises that strain such as weight lifting, or sprint running over 100 yards, or long distance racing.

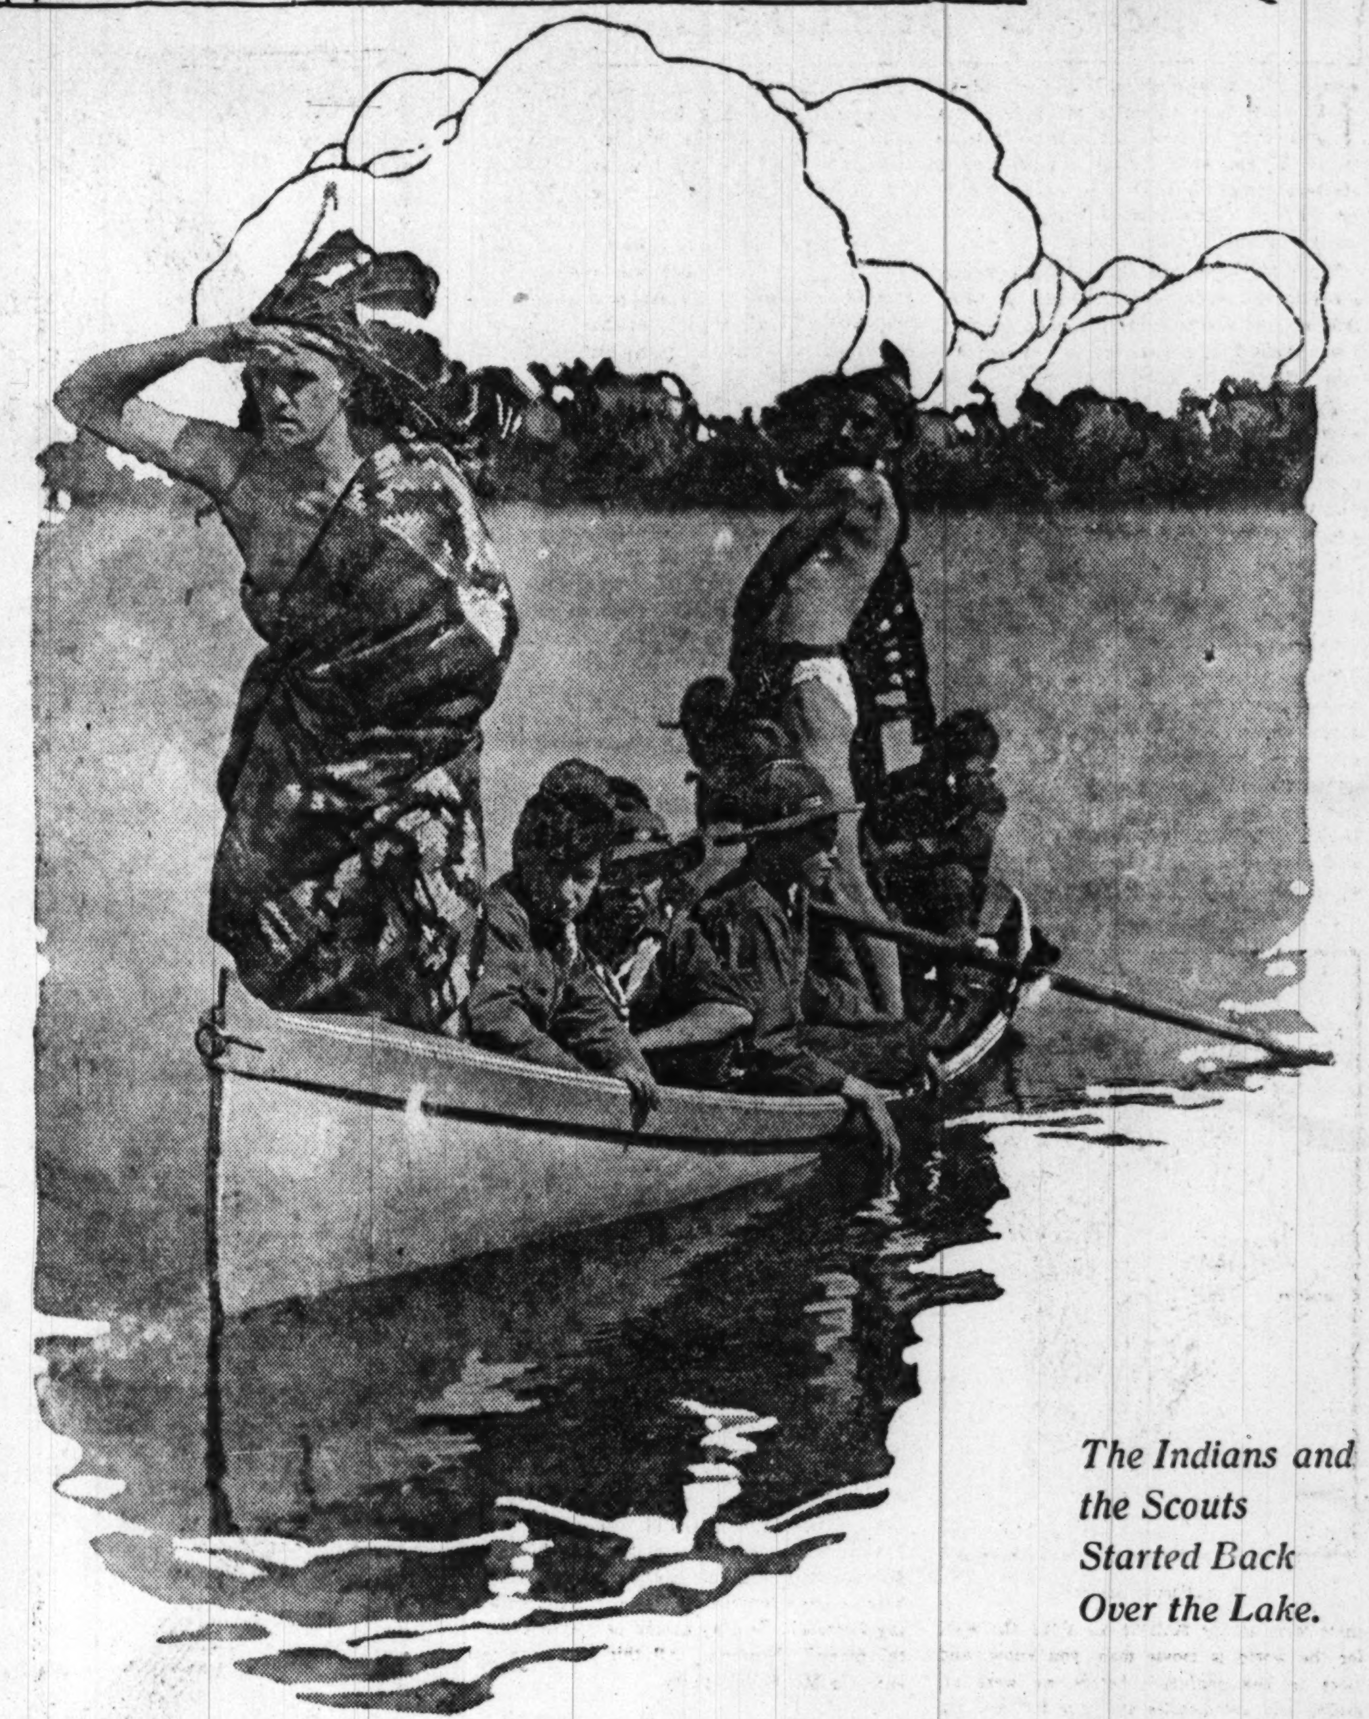
EDDIE: Signaling is not confined to man alone. Everyone knows how the horse or the dog or the cat can express its feelings by the movements of the head and ears and tail. Even insects communicate with one another by the use of their antennae. Monkeys are most human in the gestures they use, and they seem to communicate with one another by grunt-like sounds and facial expressions. The Indian sign of shaking a blanket means "I want to talk to you."



The Indians and the Scouts Started Back Over the Lake.

RED: To scull is to propel a boat by a single oar at the stern. The boat must be provided with row lock or a semi-circular scoop in the stern, and the boat is propelled by working at the stern, obliquely from side to side. This is a convenient way of doing when you are working among boats in the water and have to go short distances without the necessity of speed.

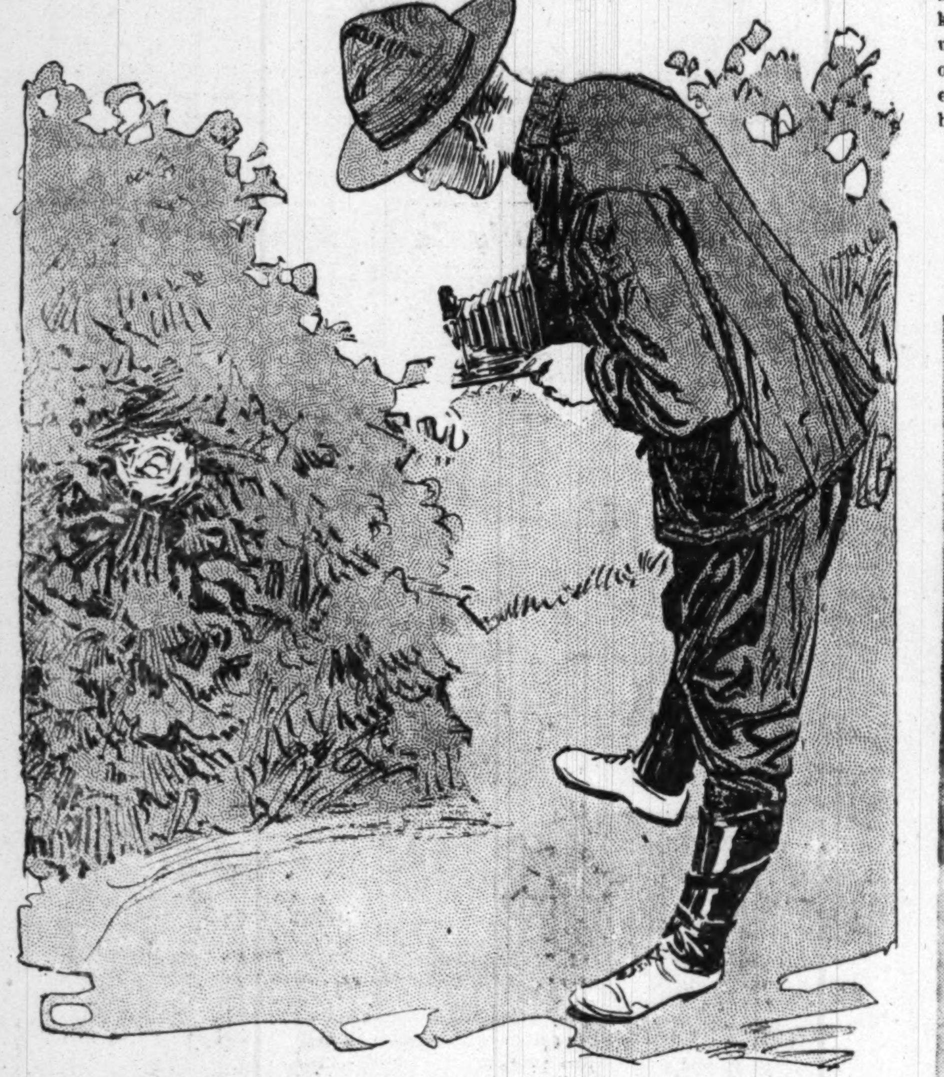
HAROLD: Yes, I think every boy should learn to swim. He never knows when it is going to come in handy and be a means of saving his own life and the lives of others. But don't make the mistake of taking too great chances in the water without being sure of yourself. Over at Whitehall this summer I discovered a boy in the fifty yard swimming place when he should have been inside the twenty-five yard ropes. I do not approve of that sort of thing at all.

Interesting Boys



JAMES A. McDILL.

DURING his stay this summer at Camp Owasippe, the Chicago Boy Scout summer camp in the heart of the north woods of Michigan, James A. McDill, swimming instructor of the camp and assistant scout master of troop No. 1, Geneva, Ill., observed fifty-three different birds within a mile of the camp, and at least fifteen nests containing eggs or young birds. Following is a list of the birds observed by the assistant scout master:

Robin, meadowlark, vesper sparrow, chipping sparrow, field sparrow, song sparrow, killdeer, spotted sandpiper, turkey vulture, black billed cuckoo, downy woodpecker, red headed woodpecker, American flicker, whip-poor-will, nighthawk, chimney sweep, barn swallow, bank swallow, kingbird, phœbe, wood pewee, blue jay, crow, red winged blackbird, bronzed grackle, Baltimore oriole, American goldfinch, red eyed vireo, owen bird, bluebird, cedar waxwing, American bittern, house wren, pine warbler, black and white warbler, purple martin, brown thrasher, wood thrush, black capped chickadee, mourning dove, belted kingfisher, scarlet tanager, horned lark, Bob White, towhee, catbird, marsh hawk, indigo bunting, red tailed hawk, crested flycatcher, tufted titmouse, white breasted nuthatch, green heron.

Any boy who cares enough for outdoors to be a scout is sure to want a good acquaintance with the birds. Even dull people cannot help taking notice of our "little brothers of the air," on account of their beauty and their songs. But most folks never take the trouble to try to learn the names of any except a few common birds. Scouts whose eyes are sharp and ears are keen will find the study of birds a fascinating sport, which may prove to be the best fun that the woods provide.

WIRELESS WONDER-WORKER.

Prof. B. K. Shepard of Medford, Mass., a member of the faculty of Tufts college, is shown in the accompanying photograph using a hand operated wireless machine to blow a horn, ring bells, start an electric fan, etc. Prof. Shepard can also steer an auto, navigate a seven foot boot, and fire a cannon with his novel invention.

Prof. Shepard is now working on a wireless submarine boat destroyer. This machine has no ground wire, as in the Hammond patents. In case a torpedo misses its marks it can be steered back to the sender.

My Adventures as a Spy

By Lieut. Gen. Sir Robert Baden Powell, K.C.B.

FOUNDER OF THE BOY SCOUTS.

DALTON VALENTINE

WITH the aid of our friendly waiter we let the detective at the hotel understand that we were tired of being under suspicion and that we were boldly going to take the train and leave the country.

At 10 o'clock a cab was to come round to take us and our baggage to the station, and if anybody interfered with us—why, we were freeborn British and subject to no man's rule, and the ambassador and all the rest of the powers should hear about it! This was for the information of the detective, and he merely telephoned it to the police office at the railway station, where we should be arrested at the point of our departure.

We got into our cab and drove off down the street towards the station until we were out of sight of the hotel. Then we called to our driver and said we should like to go to a different station. This course involved our going to the river side and taking the ferry.

It was an anxious time. Had we been spotted? Should we be missed? Were we being followed? These questions would answer themselves as we progressed with our plot. The answer, when it came, would mean a tremendous lot to us—triumph or five years' imprisonment; so we had every right to be fairly anxious. And yet, somehow, I don't think we were worrying much about the consequences, but rather were busy with the present—as to how to evade pursuit and recapture.

Arrived at the ferry, we paid off our cabman and made our way to the quay side. Here we found a boat which had already been arranged for; and we made our way safely off to the ship, which was waiting under steam in mid-stream to start the moment we were on board.

At this supreme moment my brother had the temerity to argue with the boatman over the fare. Being now in the last stage of tenderhooks, I adjured him to give the man double what he asked, if only to be free. But the brother was calm, and for once—he was right! His display of want of all anxiety quite diverted any kind of suspicion that might have attached to us, and in the end we got safely on board and away.

Such are some of the minor experiences which, though not very sensational in themselves, are yet part of the every day work of an "intelligence agent" (alias a spy), and while they tend to relieve such work of any suspicion of monotony, they add, as a rule, that touch of romance and excitement to it which makes spying the fascinating sport that it is.

When one recognizes also that it may have invaluable results to one's country in time of war, one feels that even though it is a time spent largely in enjoyment, it is not by any means time thrown idly away; and though the "agent," if caught, may "go under," unhonored and unsung, he knows in his heart of hearts that he has done as bravely for his country as his comrade who falls in battle.

The end.

VACATIONING WITH THE SELIG SPECIAL.

BEING in the position to give you all inside facts regarding the Selig excursion to the coast, I feel it my duty to tell you what I know, my one aim in life being, you realize, to keep you correctly informed as to just what is going on in the world of moving pictures. Ahem!

When Mr. Hoaglano of the Selig company asked me if I would accompany him, his wife, children, and several other people on the trip, I was thrilled, of course—but I hesitated, because, if you must know, I am vurr' bashful and rarely move in crowds. However, it seemed the case of golden opportunity knocking at mine door, and so I accepted the invitation—and went with the party, not departing with them, but meeting them in Ogden, Utah, after a fevered visit to my folks in Denver.

It seemed to me that I had been waiting at the station for hours before somebody suddenly yelled:

"Here they come!"

The call was taken up by a lot of other people, and after one look up the track I ducked under the barring arm of the gateman and hurried out just in time to see the Selig special pull in—not engine first, but flat car first, for they had been taking pictures at Devil's slide and everybody who could possibly hang on was out in front on the flat car which held the actors and camera men.

There was a crowd at the station, as, indeed, there were at the stations all along the way, for the world is movie mad, you know, and more or less confusion before we were all loaded into automobiles and cars for our trip through the cañon. Some trip! It took three hours. Then back to the train we came and I had my introduction to the "special," which was to be my home off and on for the next couple of weeks.

Did you ever travel on a "special"? Maybe you have, but I never had before, and so it had all the charm of novelty for me. I even liked being sidetracked and switched for the regular trains. It gave one such a sort of important feeling, you know, to realize that the people on the regularhonesttogoodness choo-choos were realizing and saying as they passed us on their regular, ordinary way, "That's a special." And then, of course, one knew that as soon as they saw the name SELIG on the rear end of the train—O, yes, it was there, all done in electric lights—they'd think that everybody on it was a star. CONsequently on occasions of this kind most of us managed to get into view and look as much as possible like screen celebrities we had seen, hoping to inspire wild excitement in the breasts of those who viewed us.

But to be strictly frank and candid, as I started out to be—believing, as I told you, that it was my duty, it behooves me to say that practically few were the screen celebrities we hoped we looked like. To be sure, there were the Seven Suffering Sisters and the ICEMEN, the love-a-ly villainess and the sweet young heroine with her accompanying hero, all of whose duty it was to disembark at various points of interest and work out a picture the backgrounds of which would all be real, in order that those who, unfortunately, could not make the "special" might at least see some of the things that delighted the eyes of those who specialized.

The Seven Suffering Sisters, you understand, were young women who recently won beauty or popularity contests or something of the kind. They were inexperienced but willing—and O, vurr', vurr' beautiful. You'll agree with the last statement when you see them on the screen. They were shepherded, guarded, barked at, and sighed over by a plump, blonde director who, if one must tell the truth, was seen on several occasions showing interest not strictly professional in the bee-yew-tiful heroine. However—the others had nothing to complain of, for there were divers and sundry men on board who would no more have left a Suffering Sister so much as get a drink of ice water for herself than they would have—well, words fail me and similes come not, but just the same they wouldn't of!

I couldn't help thinking as we rolled along that the Selig special would have been appropriately named had it been labeled "The Escape." For it did seem that everybody there had come there to get away from something. Tired business men who had simply turned the key in their desks and beat it; mothers who had taken the children over to mother's or Aunt Anna's, warned them to be good, and left them with sighs of regret and relief; blasé clubmen, tired of the life of dilettantes and glad of the chance to try something new; a blushing bride and bridegroom fleeing from persistent friends; a little old lady who told me with a glint of triumph in her eye that she had just simply felt she must get away before they made her old—those sons and daughters and grandchildren of hers who insisted on following her about with hot water bags and shawls and closing windows on her and the like.

"I just told 'em I was going, and I came," she said. "They almost locked me up, but I fooled them—and here I am, feeling twenty years younger already." And a lot of others. Space doth not permit me to go farther into detail on this tack, however.

Regarding life on a "special," there is not a doubt but that, as train life goes, it is the life. Where on a "regular," may I inquire humbly, does one have the chance to fox-trot and one-step until the wee small hours? To hear all one's favorite records on a hard working victrola? To play at and be played to on the piano? Nowhuh. All this was ours to enjoy in Mr. Selig's party.

As to points of interest, I reckon there were not many we missed. Singly, in pairs, or en masse, we "did" the expositions at San Francisco and San Diego; caféd, danced, and sightsaw in and around Los Angeles; bounced around like corks in Salt Lake; and were pulled, quaking and gasping, up Mount Lowe. Then Colorado Springs, Denver, Kansas City, and St. Louis saw and "showed" us. And then one morning dear old Chicago loomed up before us—and if anything ever looked as good to me as it did that morning I don't recollect just what it was.

A wonderful trip—but don't you think that the best part of any "going-away" is the "coming-home"?

I do.

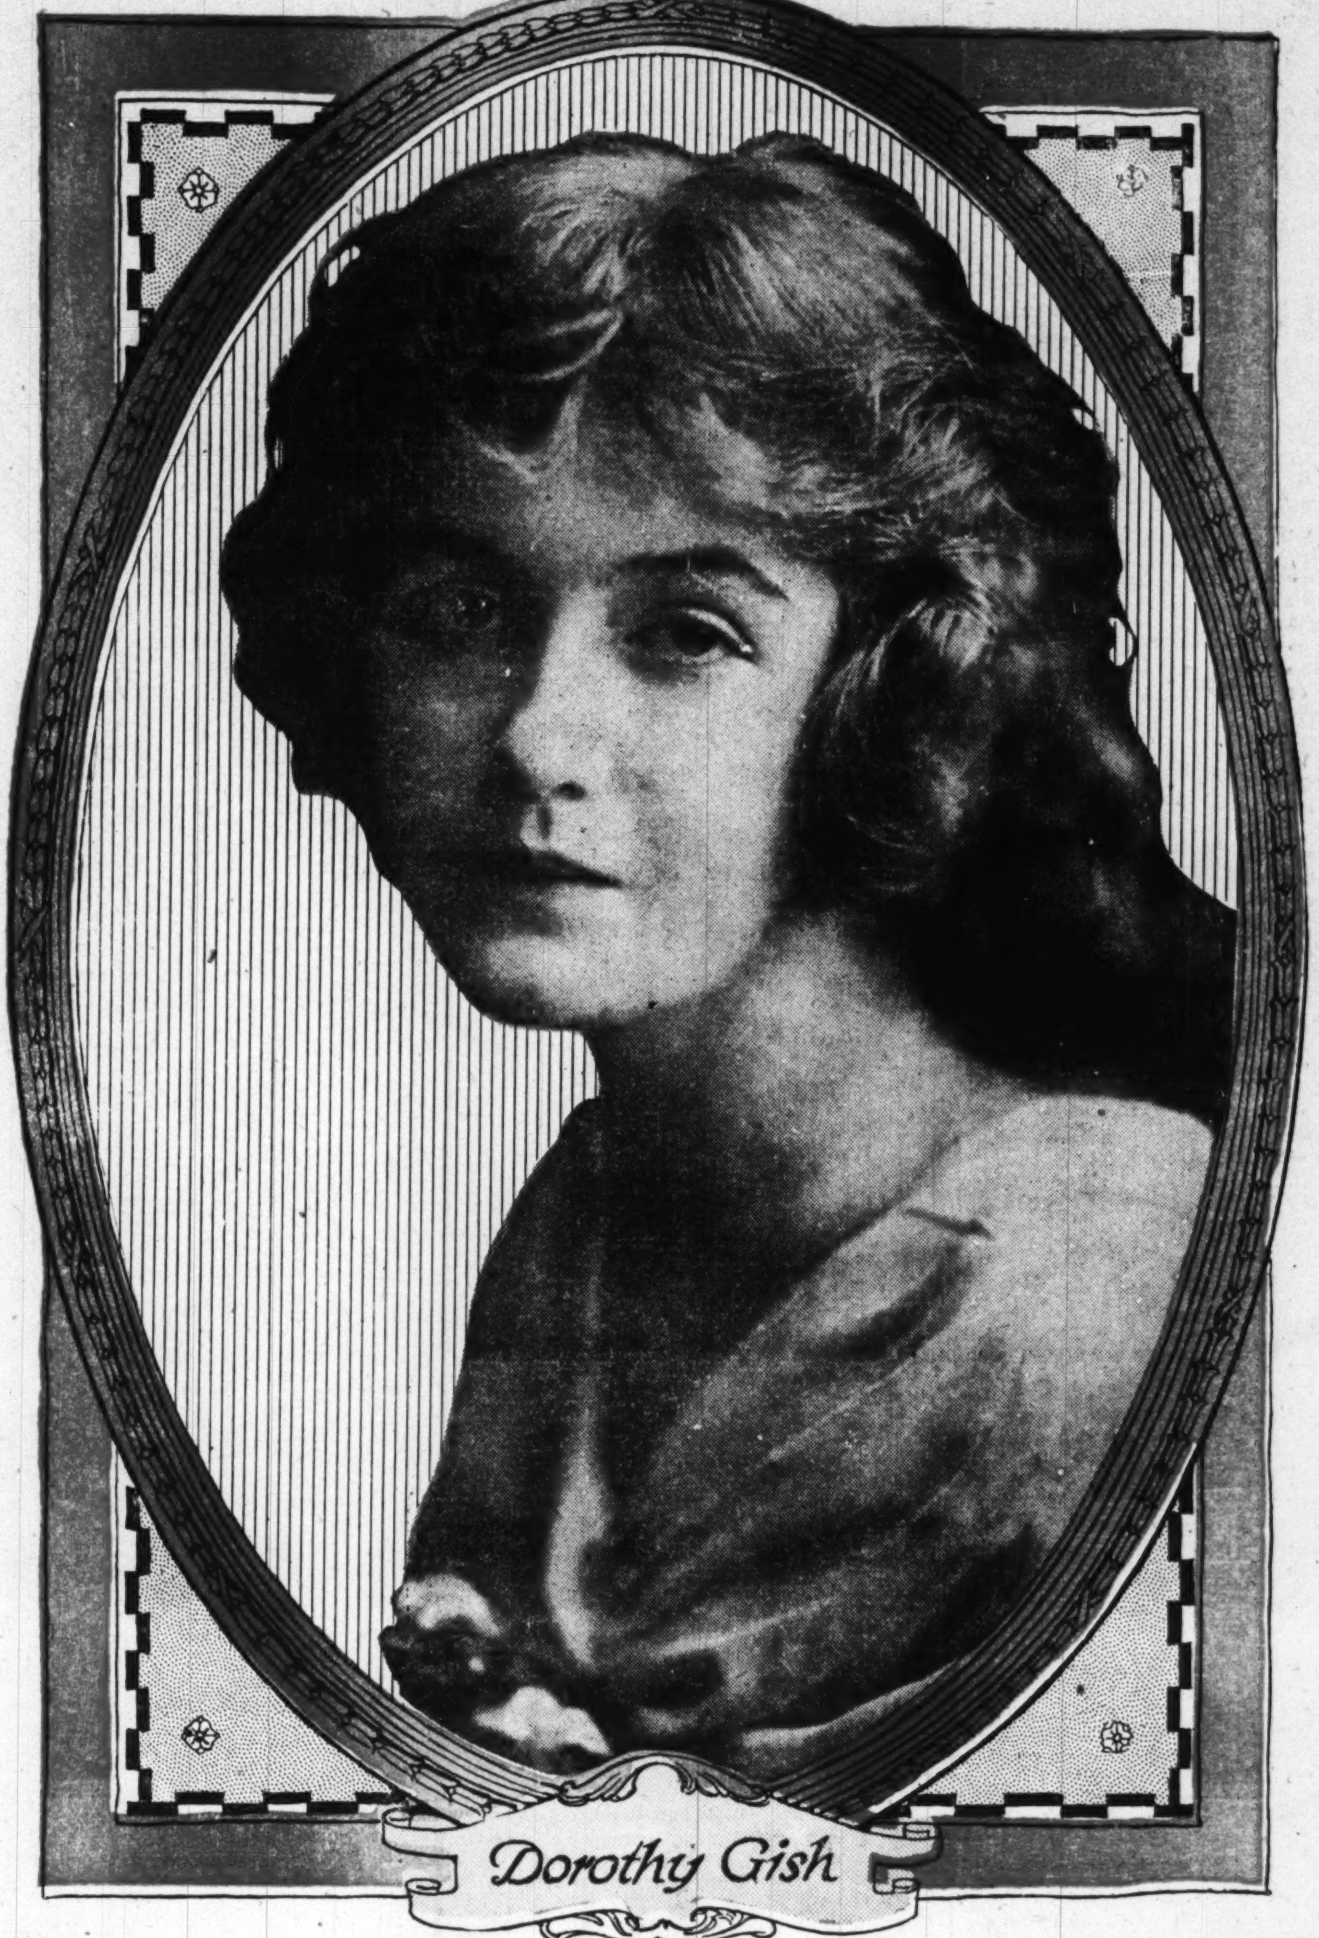
The Frame of Public Favor



Dorothy Gish

THERE is not a bit of doubt but that you will be delighted to see this morning the picture of Miss Dorothy Gish of the Griffith forces in the "Frame of Public Favor." Though only 17 years old, "Lillian Gish's little sister" has a popularity that would make happy anybody twice her age. She is an American by nationality and was born in Dayton, Ohio. Before entering pictures two years ago she spent her time attending school and fooling around home just like any other girl. Her debut into pictures was made with the Biograph company. Later she joined the Mutual and since then has been affiliated with the Reliance, Majestic and Griffith brands. She is a decided blonde, has blue eyes, weighs 108 pounds and is 5 feet 2½ inches tall.

Miss Gish has been principally known for her clever delineation of "slavey" parts, but she is a versatile little person and her directors say that there is nothing she couldn't do if she made up her mind to do it.

ANSWERS TO MOVIE FANS.

FRANCES P.: I'm awfully glad you wrote. Mr. Bushman doth depose that he is not married. Address him in care of the Metro company, Los Angeles, Cal. Pearl White in care of Pathe Freres, Jersey City, N. J. I don't know where colored postal cards of them could be purchased. Yes, Mary and Lottie Pickford are sisters. You haven't put me to a bit of trouble—notabit!

FANITA A.: To be sthrichtly correck, pronounce Vitagraph with the long "i." I'm glad you like the department. Thanks for telling me that you do.

PEGGY: A number of times. About fifty-fifty.

BETTY: He is dead. No, not that I ever heard of. Yes, indeed, I answer personal letters. Love to!

SUZANNE: Mercy, Suzanne, what a saucy letter! Was it blue Monday with you when you wrote it?

A "STUDIER": No wonder you're interested in pictures. You'd be a funny lady if you weren't. Yes, I have some printed material which I will send you if you will mail me a stamped and self-addressed envelope for the same.

BEN: Send a stamped and self-addressed envelope and I will be glad to mail you printed material I have on scenario writing, how to become a moving picture player, the "doubling" process, etc. State just which you desire. I certainly do wish you success!

LYCIDAS: Anita Stewart is 21 years of age. Yes, she's lovely. Little Bobby Connelly is "Sonny Jim" in the play you mention. Isn't he adorable? The lady in question will undoubtedly be glad to know, that, aside from frizzing her hair, you think she's all right.

MARION D.: Yes, her name is Pearl White. Tom Moore and Alice Joyce are still with the same company as far as I know. No information regarding the private affairs of Arnold Daly. S'shame!

HOPEFUL: Thanks for your interesting suggestion. It may be that sometime we'll be able to do what you wish. Here's hoping!

ETHEL MAY: You just stop feeling "backward" about asking questions. If nobody asked me any questions I reckon I soon wouldn't have any job. Yes, the pictures of both Carlyle Blackwell and Mary Fuller have appeared in the "Frame." Alice Joyce is still appearing in pictures. Your letter wasn't a bit too long—fur frummit! Write again some time.

L. G. and E. Z.: Notabitabother! No, Lottie Briscoe and Arthur Johnson are not married—that is, so far as I know. Mr. Bushman has joined the Metro company. Not that I know of. Yes, I reckon. I haven't any idea. If you hear let me know.

B. R. S.: I wish I could do something for you, but I'm afraid I can't. I have been vurr' strictly brought up and am not allowed to meet my correspondents personally.

IRENE W.: No visitors are allowed at the Chicago Essanay studio. Too bad.

J. KAUFMAN'S ADMIRER: I will leave getting "on the safe and right side of these handsome young actors" to my esteemed correspondents. Yes, the ones you mention are certainly attractive. Mr. Kaufman is with the Lubin company of Philadelphia. A letter addressed to him there would reach him. If you inclosed a stamped and self-addressed envelope the chances are he would answer it. If you'll send me one I'll inclose some printed material I have on how to become a photoplayer which I think would interest you. James Cruze should worry about Mr. Bushman! You are vurr' vurr' welcome.

C. B. and B. I.: King Baggott is with the Universal company. Lottie Pickford has no husband.

L. T. H.: If you will give me the name of the company that produced the play in which you are interested, I'll endeavor to tell you what you wish to know about it.

E. M.: So far as I know, Mr. Garwood is not married. He is with the Universal company. I reckon he'd send you his picture if you were to write to him in care of that company, 1600 Broadway, New York City, inclosing a quarter. A little over medium height.

A MOVIE FAN: Address Lottie Pickford in care of the American company, Santa Barbara, Cal. Kathlyn Williams is with the Selig company, Los Angeles, Cal. Miss Pickford has dark hair. Miss Williams is in her early thirties, I believe.

A MOVIE FAN: I'm glad you like the page. Address Mr. Bushman in care of the Metro company, Los Angeles, Cal., and Crane Wilbur, care of the Lubin company, Philadelphia. You're welcome.

ROWENA C. B.: I have not the cast of the picture you mention. Donald Hall is 37 years old. He is not married. Bryant Washburn is. He's 26. Lottie Pickford is about 20. No, she's married to no one. Charlotte Burton is not married. She's 25.

MOVIE ACTRESS: Don't ask leading questions, lady. Pronounce "Leonard" with the accent on the first syllable. "Cunard" is pronounced with the accent on the last. Y'wekkum.

MA TAYLOR: Francis Ford is, at least, not married to Miss Cunard. No, he is not. Thank you.

MISS HARRIET G.: A letter addressed to the two people in whom you are interested in care of the Universal company, 1600 Broadway, New York City, will reach them. No, she is not married, so far as I know.

JOE: Cleo Madison says she is not married. She is in her early thirties.

"His Letters" which are the epistles from a moving picture actor in California to his lawyer friend in Chicago, will appear from time to time on this page. In the intervals will appear various articles of timely interest.

VOICE of the FAN

Dear Miss Tinee: It seems that all that is necessary is "suggestion" when a question of civic improvement is at stake.

Then why do people sleep when they are aware of great danger? Parents who accompany their children, day after day, to the picture theaters, will sit in front of the screen witnessing degrading, tragical sights that they would no more think of witnessing in actual experience than they would read aloud for an hour the same story to their children from a 10 cent library.

In this day of civilization, with the desire for higher thinking and better living, why are people afraid to act, particularly parents?

In some cities there is a committee of from three to five, who each Monday morning inspect every reel of pictures to be shown in all the local theaters during the week.

The boards of censorship are a good deal like those who sit in audiences "passing up" a picture as a "good entertainer, but not much to it"—only the ruination of pure, impressionable minds of present and future generations.

In some cities, one afternoon and evening a week is set aside for children where simple stories of child life are told from the camera. Every one enjoys a child's story unless he belong to the heathen.

There should be at least one day a week for educational pictures of helpful kind, not only of current events, but of stories full of inspiration to rise above standard thoughts and acts—whatever the standard might be; it certainly cannot rise if there is not improvement in productions, in the selection of photoplays, or in the judgment of the boards of censorship.

It is impossible to entirely prevent the expression of vile minds, even in black and white; manuscripts of indecent character are bound to be accepted by editors and companies; there are some editors who "love the root of all evil," but the members of the board of censorship should be composed of men and women who are supposed to be clean enough and considerate enough of the proper education of mankind, and especially of childhood, to prevent the passing of any picture that would tend to destroy a pure mind or to discourage a struggling soul.

The world needs cheer and plenty of it. Man needs help from every source, particularly when he seeks recreation where he spends his hard earned nickel or dime.

Then, with opportunity and responsibility, let us work for better pictures.

ABBIE HUFFAKER-BURR.

Dear Miss Tinee: Not that the whole of the Right Off the Reel page is not interesting, but why can't we have five or six more columns of questions and answers? Somehow there never seem to be enough. I grab the paper every Sunday morning and make for your query column. While I'm reading I feel right at the inner shrine. That is, I have a wonderful feeling of being among and one of the people regarding whom you answer questions so patiently. It's great stuff, Miss Tinee! Keep it up and give us more of it.

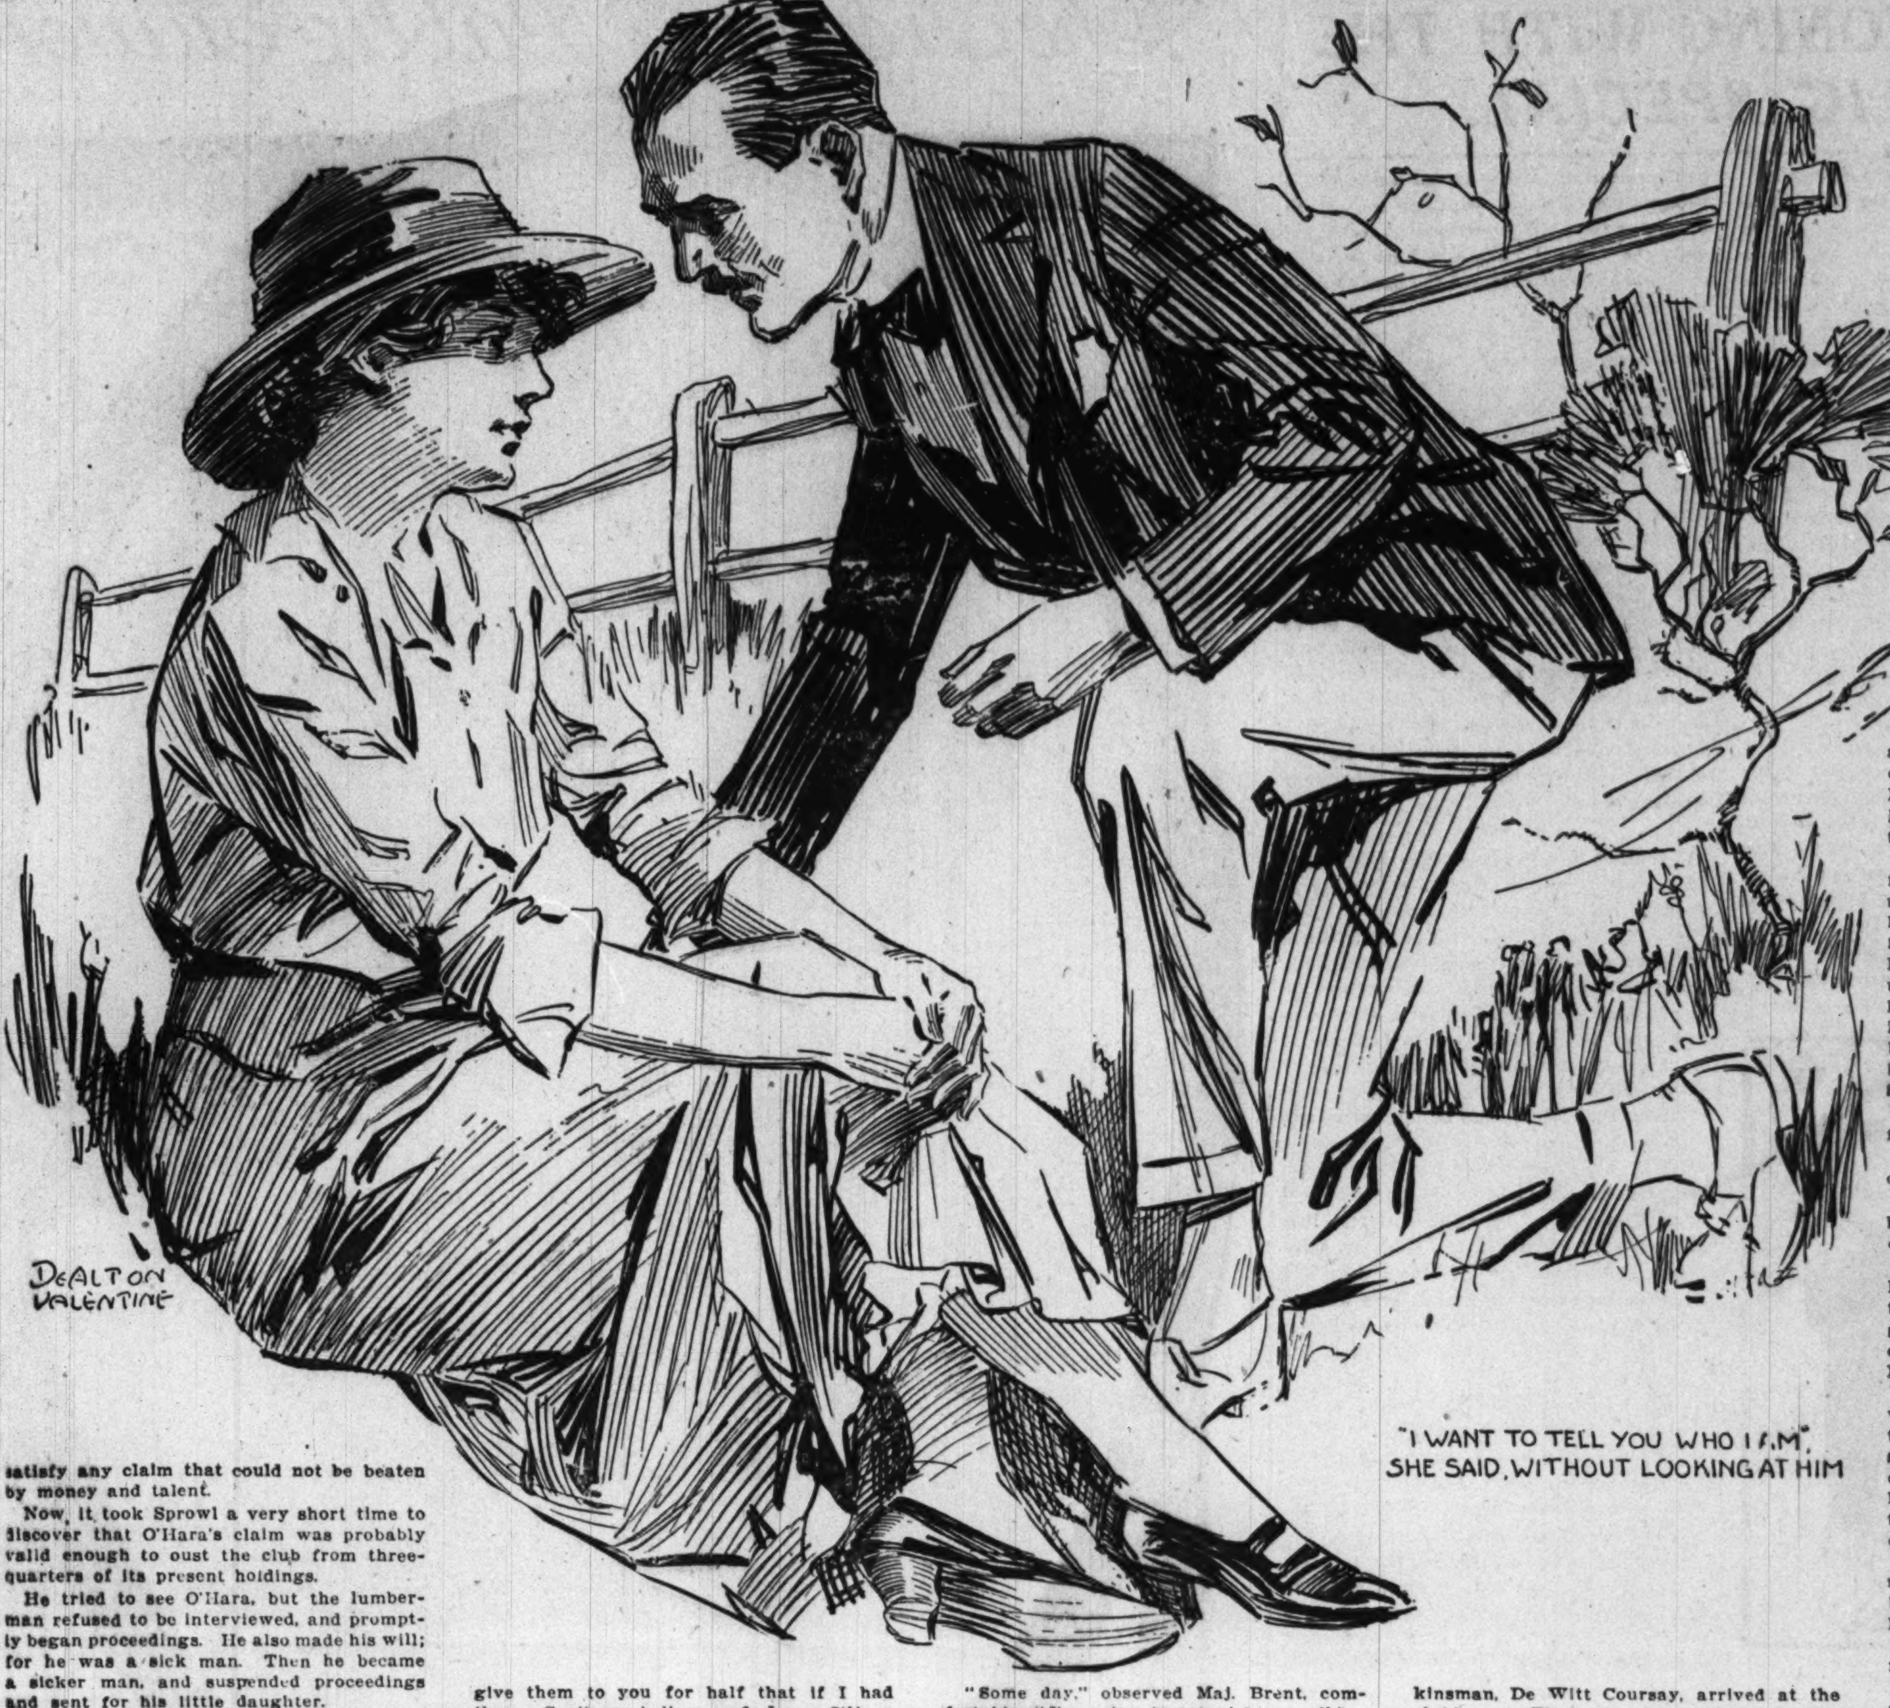
Hatred and Intrigue Revolve About an Innocent Girl, Who Finally Triumphs When Love Takes a Hand.



"I WANT TO TELL YOU WHO I AM," SHE SAID, WITHOUT LOOKING AT HIM

BEFORE the members of the Sagamore Fish and Game association had erected their handsome clubhouse, and before they had begun to purchase those thousands of acres of forest, mountain, and stream which now belonged to them, a speculative lumberman with no capital, named O'Hara, built the white house across the river on a few acres of inherited property, settled himself comfortably with his wife and child, and prepared to acquire all the timber in sight at a few dollars an acre, on credit. For this, thought he, is the beginning of all millionaires.

So certain was O'Hara of ultimately cornering the standing timber that he took his time about it, never dreaming that a rival might disturb him in the wilderness of Sagamore county. He began in the woodland which he had inherited, which ran for a mile on either side of the river. This he leisurely cut, hired a few drivers, ran a few logs to Foxville, and made money.

Now he was ready to extend business on a greater scale; but when he came to open negotiations with the score or more of landholders he found himself in the alarming position of a bidder against an unknown but clever rival, who watched, waited, and quietly forestalled his every movement.

It took a long time for O'Hara to discover he was fighting a combination of fifteen gentlemen from New York. Finally, when the Sagamore club, limited to fifteen, had completed operations, O'Hara suddenly perceived that he was bottled up in the strip of worthless land which he had inherited, surrounded by thousands of acres of preserved property—outwitted, powerless, completely hemmed in. And that, too, with the best log driving water betwixt Foxville and Canada washing the very door sill of his own home.

At first he naturally offered to sell, but the club's small offer enraged him, and he swore that he would never sell them an inch of his land. He watched the new clubhouse which was slowly taking shape under the trowels of masons and the mallets of carpenters; and his wrath grew as grew the house.

The man's nature began to change; an inextinguishable hatred for these people took possession of him; became his mania, his existence.

His wife died; he sent his child to a convent school in Canada and remained to watch. He did the club what damage he could, posting his property, and as much of the river as he controlled. But he could not legally prevent fishermen from wading the stream and fishing; so he filled the waters with sawdust, logs, barbed wire, brambles, and brush, choking it so that no living creature, except perhaps a mink, could catch a fish in it.

The club protested, and then offered to buy the land on O'Hara's own terms. O'Hara cursed them and built a dam without a fishway, and sat beside it nights with a loaded shotgun.

He still had a few dollars left; he wanted millions to crush these rich men who had come here to mock him and take the bread out of his mouth for their summer's sport.

He had a shrewd young friend in New York named Amasa Munn. Through this man O'Hara began to speculate in every wildcat scheme that squalled aloud for public support; and between Munn and the wildcats his little fortune spread its wings of gold and soared away, leaving him a wreck on his wrecked land.

But he could still find strength to watch the spite dam with his shotgun. One day a better scheme came into his unbalanced brain; he broke the dam and sent for Munn. Between them they laid a plan to ruin forever the trout fishing in the Sagamore; and Munn, taking the last of O'Hara's money as a bribe, actually secured several barrels full of live pickerel and shipped them to the nearest station on the Sagamore and Inland railway.

But here the club watchers caught Munn, and held him and his fish for the game wardens. The penalty for introducing trout destroying pickerel into waters inhabited by trout was a heavy fine. Munn was guilty only in intent, but the clubkeepers swore falsely, and Peyster Sprowl, a lawyer and also the new president of the Sagamore club, pushed the case, and Munn went to jail, having no money left to purge his sentence.

O'Hara, wild with rage, wrote, threatening Sprowl.

Then Sprowl did a vindictive and therefore foolish thing: he swore out a warrant for O'Hara's arrest, charging him with blackmail.

The case was tried in Foxville, and O'Hara was acquitted. But a chance word or two during the testimony frightened the club and gave O'Hara the opportunity of his life. He went to New York and scraped up enough money for his purpose, which was to search the titles of the lands controlled by the Sagamore club.

He worked secretly, grubbing, saving, starving; he ferreted out the original grants covering nine-tenths of Sagamore county; he disinterred the O'Hara patent of 1760; and then he began to understand that his title to the entire Sagamore club property was worth the services, on spec, of any first class Center street shyster.

The club got wind of this and appointed Peyster Sprowl, in his capacity of lawyer and president of the club, to find out how much of a claim O'Hara really had. The club also placed the emergency fund of $100,000 at Sprowl's command, with carte blanche orders to arrest a suit and satisfy any claim that could not be beaten by money and talent.

Now, it took Sprowl a very short time to discover that O'Hara's claim was probably valid enough to oust the club from three-quarters of its present holdings.

He tried to see O'Hara, but the lumberman refused to be interviewed, and promptly began proceedings. He also made his will; for he was a sick man. Then he became a sicker man, and suspended proceedings and sent for his little daughter.

Before she arrived he called Munn in, gave him a packet of papers, and made him burn them before his eyes.

"They're the papers in my case," he said. "I'm dying; I've fought too hard. I don't want my child to fight when I'm dead. And there's nothing in my claim, anyway." This was a lie, and Munn suspected it.

When the child, Eileen, arrived O'Hara was nearly dead, but he gathered sufficient strength to shove a locked steel box toward his daughter and tell her to keep it from Munn, and keep it locked until she found an honest man in the world.

The next morning O'Hara appeared to be much better. His friend Munn came to see him; also came Peyster Sprowl in some alarm, on the matter of the proceedings threatened. But O'Hara turned his back on them both and calmly closed his eyes and ears to their presence.

Munn went out of the room, but laid his large, thin ear against the door. Sprowl worried O'Hara for an hour, but, getting no reply from the man in the bed, withdrew at last with considerable violence.

O'Hara, however, had fooled them both; he had been dead all the while.

The day after the funeral Sprowl came back to look for O'Hara's daughter; and as he peeped into the door of the squalid flat he saw a thin, yellow eyed young man with a bony face, all furry in promise of future whiskers, rummaging through O'Hara's effects. This young gentleman was Munn.

In a dark corner of the disordered room sat the child, Eileen, a white, shadowy elf of 6, reading in the Book of Common Prayer.

Sprowl entered the room; Munn looked up, then coolly continued to rummage.

Sprowl first addressed himself to the child, in a heavy, patronizing voice:

"It's too dark to read there in that corner, young one. Take your book out into the hall."

"I can see better to read in the dark," said the child, lifting her great dark blue eyes.

"Go out into the hall," said Sprowl, sharply.

The child shrank back, and went, taking her little jacket in one hand, her battered traveling satchel in the other.

If the two men could have known that the steel box was in that satchel this story might never have been told. But it never entered their heads that the pallid little waif had sense enough to conceal a button to her own profit.

"Munn," said Sprowl, lighting a cigar, "what is there in this business?"

"I'll tell you when I'm done," observed Munn, coolly.

Sprowl sat down on the bed where O'Hara had died, cocked the cigar up in his mouth, and blew smoke, musingly, at the ceiling.

Munn found nothing—not a scrap of paper, not a line. This staggered him, but he did not intend that Sprowl should know it.

"Found what you want?" asked Sprowl, comfortably.

"Yes," replied Munn.

"Belong to the kid?"

"Yes, I'm her guardian."

The men measured each other in silence for a minute.

"What will you take to keep quiet?" asked Sprowl. "I'll give you $1,000."

"I want $5,000," said Munn, firmly.

"I'll double it for the papers," said Sprowl.

Munn waited. "There's not a paper left," he said; "O'Hara made me burn 'em."

"Twenty thousand for the papers," said Sprowl calmly.

"My God, Mr. Sprowl," growled Munn, white and sweating with anguish. "I'd give them to you for half that if I had them. Can't you believe me? I saw O'Hara burn them."

"What were you rummaging for, then?" demanded Sprowl.

"For anything—to get a hold on you," said Munn, sullenly.

"Blackmail?"

Munn was silent.

"O," said Sprowl, lazily, "I think I'll be going, then——"

Munn barred his exit, choking with anger.

"You give me $5,000 or I'll stir 'em up to look into your titles!" he snarled.

Sprowl regarded him with contempt; then another idea struck him—an idea that turned his fat face first to ashes, then to fire.

A month later Sprowl returned to the Sagamore club, triumphant, good humored, and exceedingly contented. But he had, he explained, only succeeded in saving the club at the cost of the entire emergency fund—$100,000—which, after all, was a drop in the bucket to the remaining fourteen members.

The victory would have been complete if Sprowl had also been able to purchase the square mile of land lately occupied by O'Hara. But this belonged to O'Hara's daughter, and the child flatly refused to part with it.

"You'll have to wait for the little slut to change her mind," observed Munn to Sprowl. And, as there was nothing else to do, Sprowl and the club waited.

Trouble appeared to be over for the Sagamore club. Munn disappeared, the daughter was not to be found; the long coveted land remained tenantless.

There existed, of course, that tacit mutual derision based upon individual sporting methods, individual preferences, obstinate theories concerning the choice of rods, reels, lines, and the killing properties of favorite trout flies.

After a decent interval the Sagamore club made cautious inquiries concerning the property of the late O'Hara, only to learn that the land had been claimed by Munn, and that taxes were paid on it by that individual.

For fifteen years the O'Hara house remained tenantless; anglers from the club fished freely through the mile of river; the name of Munn had been forgotten save by the club's treasurer, secretary, and president, Peyster Sprowl.

However, the members of the club never forgot that in the center of their magnificent domain lay a square mile which did not belong to them; and they longed to possess it as better people than they have coveted treasures not laid up on earth.

The relations existing between the members of the Sagamore club continued harmonious in as far as their social intercourse and the general acquisitive policy of the club was concerned.

Maj. Brent and Col. Hyssop continued to nag and sneer at each other all day long, yet they remained as mutually dependent upon each other as David and Jonathan. For thirty years the old gentlemen had angled in company, and gathered inspiration out of the same books, the same surroundings, the same flask.

They were the only guests at the clubhouse that wet May in 1900, although Peyster Sprowl was expected in June, and young Dr. Lansing had wired that he might arrive any day.

An evening rainstorm was drenching the leaded panes in the smoking room; Col. Hyssop drummed accompaniment on the windows and smoked sulkily, looking across the river toward the O'Hara house, just visible through the pelting downpour.

"Irritates me every time I see it," he said.

"Some day," observed Maj. Brent, comfortably, "I'm going to astonish you all."

"How?" demanded the colonel, tersely.

The major examined the end of his cigaret with a cunning smile.

"It isn't for sale, is it?" asked the colonel. "Don't try to be mysterious; it irritates me."

Maj. Brent savored his cigaret leisurely.

"Can you keep a secret?" he inquired.

The colonel intimated profanely that he could.

"Well, then," said the major, in calm triumph, "there's a tax sale on tomorrow at Foxville."

"Not the O'Hara place?" asked the colonel, excited.

The major winked. "I'll fix it," he said, with a patronizing squint at his empty glass.

But he did not "fix it" exactly as he intended; the taxes on the O'Hara place were being paid at that very moment.

He found it out next day, when he drove over to Foxville; he also learned that the Rev. Amasa Munn, prophet of the Shining Band community, had paid the taxes and was preparing to quit Maine and reëtablish his colony of fanatics on the O'Hara land, in the very center and heart of the wealthiest and most rigidly exclusive country club in America.

That night the frightened major telegraphed to Munnville, Me., an offer to buy the O'Hara place at double its real value. The business-like message ended: "Wire reply at my expense."

The next morning an incoherent reply came by wire, at the major's expense, refusing to sell, and quoting several passages of scripture at Western Union rates per word.

The operator at the station counted the words carefully and collected $8.14 from the major, whose fury deprived him of speech.

Col. Hyssop awaited his comrade at the clubhouse, nervously pacing the long veranda, gnawing his cigar. "Hello!" he called out, as Maj. Brent waddled up. "Have you bought the O'Hara place for us?"

The major made no attempt to reply; he panted violently at the colonel, then began to run about, taking little, short, distracted steps.

"Made a mess of it?" inquired the colonel, with a badly concealed sneer.

He eyed the major in deepening displeasure. "If you get any redder in the face you'll blow up," he said, coldly; "and I don't propose to have you spatter me."

"He—he's an impudent swindler!" hissed the major, convulsively.

The colonel sniffed: "I expected it. What of it? After all, there's nobody on the farm to annoy us, is there?"

"Wait!" groaned the major—"wait!" and he toddled into the hall and fell on a chair, beating space with his pudgy hands.

When the colonel at length learned the nature of the threatened calamity, he utterly refused to credit it.

"Rubbish!" he said, calmly—"rubbish, my dear fellow; this man Munn is holding out for more money, d'ye see? Rubbish! Rubbish! It's blackmail, d'ye see?"

"Do you think so?" faltered the major, hopefully. "It isn't possible that they mean to come, is it? Fancy all those fanatics shouting about under our windows——"

"Rubbish:" said the colonel, calmly. "I'll write to the fellow myself.

No reply came to the colonel, but that did not discourage him.

"They are playing a waiting game," he said sagely. "This man Munn has bought the land from O'Hara's daughter for a song and he means to bleed us. I'll write to Sprowl; he'll fix things."

Early in June Dr. Lansing and his young kinsman, De Witt Coursay, arrived at the clubhouse. They, also, were of the opinion that Munn's object was to squeeze the club by threats.

The second week in June, Peyster Sprowl, master of fox hounds, Shadowbrook, appeared with his wife, the celebrated beauty, Agatha Sprowl, nee Van Guilder.

Sprowl, now immensely large and fat, had few cares in life beyond an anxious apprehension concerning the durability of his own digestion. However, he was still able to make a midnight mouthful of a Welsh rarebit on a hot mince pie, and wash it down with a quart of champagne, and so the world went very well with him, even if it wabbled a trifle for his handsome wife.

"She's lovely enough," said Col. Hyssop, gallantly, "to set every star in heaven wabbling." To which the bull-necked major assented with an ever hopeless attempt to bend at the waistband.

Meanwhile the Rev. Amasa Munn and his flock, the Shining Band, arrived at Foxville in six farm wagons, singing "Roll Jordan!" Of their arrival Sprowl was totally unconscious, the colonel having forgotten to inform him of the threatened invasion.

The members of the Sagamore club heard the news next morning at a late breakfast. Maj. Brent, who had been fishing early upstream, bore the news and delivered it in an incoherent bellow.

"What d'ye mean by that?" demanded Col. Hyssop, setting down his cocktail with unsteady fingers.

"Mean?" roared the major; "I mean that Munn and a lot o' women are sitting on the river bank and singing 'Home Again'!"

The news jarred everybody, but the effect of it upon the president, Peyster Sprowl, appeared to be out of all proportion to its gravity. That gentleman's face was white as death; and the major noticed it.

"You'll have to rid us of this mob," said the major, slowly.

Sprowl lifted his heavy, overfed face from his plate. "I'll attend to it," he said, hoarsely, and swallowed a pint of claret.

"Soapsuds in my favorite pools!" bawled the colonel. "Damme if I'll permit it!"

"Sprowl ought to settle them," said Lansing, good-naturedly. "It may cost us a few thousands, but Sprowl will do the work this time as he did it before."

Sprowl choked in his claret, turned a vivid beef color, and wiped his chin. His appetite was ruined. He hoped the ruin would stop there.

"What harm will they do," asked Coursay, seriously—"beyond soapsuds?"

"They'll fish, they'll throw tin cans in the water, they'll keep us awake with their fanatical powwows—confound it, haven't I seen that sort of thing?" said the major passionately. "Yes, I have, at nigger camp meetings! And these people beat the niggers at that sort of thing."

"Leave 'em to me," repeated Peyster Sprowl, thickly, and began on another chop from force of habit.

"About fifteen years ago," said the colonel, "there was some talk about our title. You fixed that, didn't you, Sprowl?"

"Yes," said Sprowl, with parched lips.

"Of course," muttered the major; "it cost us a cool hundred thousand to perfect our title. Thank God it's settled."

Sprowl's immense body turned perfectly cold; he buried his face in his glass and drained it. Then the shrimp color returned to his neck and ears, and deepened to scarlet. When the earth ceased reeling before his apoplectic eyes, he looked around, furtively. Again the scene in O'Hara's death chamber came to him, the threat of Munn, who had got wind of the true situation, and the bribing of Munn to silence.

But the club had given Sprowl one hundred thousand dollars to perfect its title; and Sprowl had reported the title perfect, all proceedings ended, and the paymen one hundred thousand dollars to Am Munn, as guardian of the child of O'Ha in full payment for the O'Hara claims the club property.

Sprowl's coolness began to return. five thousand dollars had stopped Mun mouth once, it might stop it again. Besid how could Munn know that Sprowl had ke for his own uses ninety-five thousand do lars of his club's money, and had found upon it the house of Sprowl of many mi lions? He was quite cool now—a trifle an ious to know what Munn meant to ask f but confident that his millions were buckler and a shield to the honored name Sprowl.

"This blackmail," said Sprowl, thickly, "is paid now for the last time. If you come after me again you come to your death, for I'll smash your skull in with one blow and take my chances to prove insanity. And I've enough money to prove it."

Munn waited.

"I'll buy you this last time," continued Sprowl, recovering his self-command. "Now, you tell me where O'Hara's child is and how you are going to prevent her from ever pressing that suit which he dropped."

"O'Hara's daughter is here. I control her," said Munn, quietly.

"You mean she's one of your infernal flock?" demanded Sprowl.

"One of the Shining Band," said Munn, with a trace of a whine in his voice.

"Where are the papers in that proceeding, then? You said O'Hara burned them, you liar!"

"She has them in a box in her bedroom," replied Munn.

"Does she know what they mean?" asked Sprowl, aghast.

"No—but I do," replied Munn, with his ominous smile.

"How do you know she does not understand their meaning?"

"Because," replied Munn, laughing, "she can't read."

Sprowl did not believe him, but he was at his mercy. He stood with his heavy head hanging, pondering a moment, then whistled to his sorrel. The mare came to him and laid her dusty nose on his shoulder.

"You see these checks?" he said.

Munn assented.

"You get them when you put those papers in my hands. Understand? And when you bring me the deed of this cursed property here—house and all."

"A week from today," said Munn. His voice shook in spite of him. Few men can face sudden wealth with a yawn.

"And after that——" began Sprowl, and glared at Munn with such a fury that the prophet hastily stepped backward and raised a nervous hand to his beard.

"It's a square deal," he said; and Sprowl knew that he meant it, at least for the present.

The president mounted heavily and sought his bridle and stirrups.

"I'll meet you here in a week from today, hour for hour; I'll give you twenty-four hours after that to pack up and move, bag and baggage."

"Done," said Munn.

"Then get out of my way, you filthy beast!" growled Sprowl, swinging his horse and driving his spurs in.

Munn fell back with a cry; the horse plunged past, brushing him, tearing out across the pasture, over the bridge, and far down the stony road Munn heard the galloping. He had been close to death; he did not quite know whether Sprowl had meant murder or whether it was carelessness or his own fault that the horse had not struck him and ground him into the sod. However it was, he conceived a new respect for Sprowl, and promised himself that if he ever was obliged to call again upon Sprowl for financial assistance he would do it through a telephone.

A dozen women, dressed alike in a rather pretty gray uniform, were singing up by the house. He looked at them with a sneer, then walked back along the river to where the young girl still sat under the elm.

"I want to talk to you," he said, abruptly, "and I don't want any more refusals or reasons or sentiments. I want to see the papers in that steel box."

She turned towards him in that quaint, hesitating, listening attitude.

"The Lord," he said, more cheerfully, "has put it into my head that we must journey once more. I've had a prayerful wrestle out yonder, and I see light. The Lord tells me to sell this land to the strangers without the gates, and I'm going to sell it to the glory of God."

"How can you sell it?" said the girl, quietly.

"Isn't all our holdings in common?" demanded Munn, sharply.

"You know that I am not one of you," said the girl.

"Yes, you are," said Munn; "you don't want to be because the light has been denied you, but I've sealed you and sanctified you to the Shining Band, and you just can't help being one of us. Besides," he continued, with an ugly smile, "I'm your legal guardian."

This was a lie; but she did not know it.

"So I want to see those papers," he added.

"Why?" she asked.

"O, legal matters; I've got to examine 'em or I can't sell this land."

"Father told me not to open the box until I found an honest man," she said, steadily.

Munn glared at her. She had caught him in a lie years ago; she never forgot it.

"Where's the key?" he demanded.

She was silent.

"I'll give you till supper time to find that key," said Munn, confidently, and walked on towards the house.

But before he had fairly emerged from the shadow of the elm he met Lansing face to face, and the young man halted him with a pleasant greeting, asking if he were not the Rev. Dr. Munn.

"That's my name," said Munn, briefly.

"I was looking for Mr. Sprowl; I thought to meet him here. We were to speak to you about the netting of trout in the river," said Lansing, good humoredly.

Munn regarded him in sulky silence.

"It won't do," continued Lansing, smiling: "if you net trout you'll have the wardens after you."

"O, and I suppose you'll furnish the information," sneered Munn.

"I certainly will," replied Lansing.

Munn had retraced his steps towards the river. As the men passed before Eileen O'Hara, Lansing raised his cap. She did not return his salute; she looked towards the spot where he and Munn had halted, and her face bore that quaint, listening expression, almost pitifully sweet, as though she were deaf.

"Peter, our head keeper, saw you netting trout in that pool last night," said Lansing.

Munn examined the water and muttered that the Bible gave him his authority for that sort of fishing.

"He's a fake," thought Lansing, in sudden disgust. Involuntarily he glanced around at the girl under the elm. The beauty of her pale face startled him. Surely innocence looked out of those dark blue eyes, fixed on him under the shadow of her straw hat. He noted that she also wore the silvery gray uniform of the elect. He turned his eyes towards the house, where a dozen women old and young, were sitting out under the trees, sewing and singing peacefully. The burden of their song came sweetly across the pasture; a golden robin, high in the elm's feathery top, warbled incessant accompaniment to the breeze and the flowing of water and the far song of the women.

"We don't mean to annoy you," said Lansing, quietly. "I, for one, believe that we shall find you and your community the best of courteous neighbors."

Munn looked at him with his cunning, amber-yellow eyes and stroked his beard.

"What do you want, anyway?" he said.

"I'll tell you what I want," said Lansing, sharply; "I want you and your people to observe the game laws."

"Keep your shirt on, young man," said Munn, coarsely, and turned on his heel. Before he had taken the second step Lansing laid his hand on his shoulder and spun him around, his grip tightening like a vise.

"What y' doing?" snarled Munn, shrinking and squirming, terrified by the violent grasp, the pain of which almost sickened him.

Lansing looked at him, then shoved him out of his path, and carefully rinsed his hands in the stream. Then he laughed and turned around, but Munn was making rapid time towards the house, where the gray clad women sat singing under the neglected apple trees. The young man's eyes fell on the girl under the elm; she was apparently watching his every movement from those dark blue eyes under the straw hat.

He took off his cap and went to her, and told her politely how amiable had been his intentions and how stringent the game laws were and begged her to believe that he intended no discourtesy to her community when he warned them against the wholesale destruction of the trout.

He had a pleasant, low voice, very attractive to women. She smiled and listened, offering no comment.

"And I want to assure you," he ended, "that we at the club will always respect your boundaries as we know you will respect ours. I fear one of our keepers was needlessly rude last night—from his own account. He's an old man; he supposes that all people know the game laws."

Lansing paused; she bent her head a trifle. After a silence he started on, saying "Good morning" very pleasantly.

"I wish you would sit down and talk to me," said the girl, without raising her head.

Lansing was too astonished to reply. She turned her head partly towards him, as though listening. Something in the girl's attitude arrested his attention; he involuntarily dropped on one knee to see her face. It was in shadow.

"I want to tell you who I am," she said, without looking at him. "I am Eily O'Hara.

Lansing received the communication with perfect gravity. "Your father owned this land?" he asked.

"Yes; I own it now, I think."

He was silent, curious, amused.

"I think I do," she repeated; "I have never seen my father's will."

"Doubtless your lawyer has it," he suggested.

"No; I have it. It is in a steel box. I have the key hanging around my neck inside my clothes. I have never opened the box."

"But why do you not open the box?" asked Lansing, smiling.

She hesitated; color crept into her cheeks. "I have waited," she said; "I was alone; my father said—that—that——" She stammered; the rich flush deepened to her neck.

Lansing, completely nonplussed, sat watching the wonderful beauty of that young face.

"My father told me to open it only when I found an honest man in the world," she said, slowly.

The undertone of pathos in her voice drove the smile from Lansing's lips.

"Have you found the world so dishonest?" he asked, seriously.

"I don't know; I came from Notre Dame de Sainte Croix last year. Mr. Munn was my guardian—said he was. I suppose he is."

Lansing looked at her in sympathy.

"I am not one of the community," she said. "I only stay because I have no other home but this. I have no money; at least, I know of none that is mine." Lansing was silent and attentive.

"I—I heard your voice; I wanted to speak to you—to hear you speak to me," she said. A new timidity came into her tone; she raised her head. "I—somehow when you spoke—I felt that you—you were honest." She stammered again, but Lansing's cool voice brought her out of her difficulty and painful shyness.

"What is your name?" she asked.

"I'm Dr. Lansing," he said.

"Will you open my steel box and read my papers for me?" she inquired, innocently.

"I will—if you wish," he said, impulsively; "if you think it wise. But I think you had better read the papers for yourself."

"Why, I can't read," she said, apparently surprised that he should not know it.

"You mean that you were not taught to read in your convent school?" he asked, incredulously.

A curious little sound escaped her lips; she raised both slender hands and unpinned her hat. Then she turned her head to his.

The deep blue beauty of her eyes thrilled him; then he started and leaned forward, closer, closer to her exquisite face.

"My child," he cried, softly, "my poor child!" And she smiled and fingered the straw hat in her lap.

"Will you read my father's papers for me?" she said.

"Yes—yes—if you wish. Yes, indeed!" After a moment he said: "How long have you been blind?"

That evening, at dusk, Lansing came into the club and went directly to his room. He carried a small, shabby satchel; and when he had locked his door he opened the satchel and drew from it a flat steel box. For half an hour he sat by his open window in the quiet starlight, considering the box, turning it over and over in his hands. At length he opened his trunk, placed the box inside, locked the trunk, and noiselessly left the room. He encountered Coursay in the hall and started to pass him with an abstracted nod, then changed his mind and slipped his arm through the arm of his young kinsman.

"Thought you meant to cut me," said Coursay, half laughing, half in earnest.

"Why?" Lansing stopped short; then, "O, because you played the fool with Agatha in the canoe? You two will find yourselves in a crankier craft than that if you don't look sharp."

"You have an ugly way of putting it," began Coursay. But Lansing scowled and said:

"Jack, I want advice; I'm troubled, old chap. Come into my room while I dress for dinner. Don't shy and stand on your hind legs; it's not about Agatha Sprowl. It's about me, and I'm in trouble."

The appeal flattered and touched Coursay, who had never expected that he, a weak and spineless backslider, could possibly be of aid or comfort to his self-sufficient and celebrated cousin, Dr. Lansing.

They entered Lansing's rooms. Coursay helped himself to some cognac and smoked, waiting for Lansing to emerge from his dressing room.

Presently, bathed, shaved, and in his shirt sleeves, Lansing came in, tying his tie, a cigarette unlighted between his teeth.

"Jack," he said, "give me advice, not as a self-centered, cautious, and orderly citizen of Manhattan but as a young man whose heart leads his head every time! I want that sort of advice; and I can't give it to myself."

"Do you mean it?" demanded Coursay, incredulously.

"By heaven, I do!" returned Lansing, biting his words short as the snap of a whip.

He turned his back to the mirror, lighted his cigaret, took one puff, threw it into the grate. Then he told Coursay what had occurred between him and the young girl under the elm, reciting the facts minutely and exactly as they occurred.

"I have the box in my trunk yonder," he went on. "The poor little thing managed to slip out while Munn was in the barn. I was waiting for her in the road."

After a moment Coursay asked if the girl was stone blind.

"No," said Lansing; "she can distinguish light from darkness; she can even make out form—in the dark; but a strong light completely blinds her."

"Can you help her?" asked Coursay, with quick pity.

"I haven't examined her; how could I—— But—I'm going to do it."

"And if you operate?" asked Coursay, hopefully.

"Operate? Yes—yes, of course. It is necessary, you know, with probability of repetition. We expect absorption to do the work for us—bar accidents and other things."

"When will you operate?" inquired Coursay.

Lansing broke out, harshly: "God knows! That swindler, Munn, keeps her a prisoner. Doctors long ago urged her to submit to an operation; Munn refused, and he and his deluded women have been treating her by prayer for years—the miserable mountebank!"

"You mean that he won't let you try to help her?"

"I mean just exactly that, Jack."

Coursay got up with his clinched hands swinging and his eager face red as a pippin. "Why, then," he said, "we'll go and get her! Come on; I can't sit here and let such things happen!"

Lansing laughed the laugh of a school boy bent on deviltry.

"Good old Jack! That's the sort of advice I wanted," he said, affectionately. "We may see our names in the morning papers for this; but who cares? We may be arrested for a few unimportant and absurd things; but who cares? Munn will probably sue us; who cares? At any rate, we're reasonably certain of a double leaded column in the yellow press; but do you give a tinker's dam?"

"Not one!" said Coursay, calmly.

Then they went down to dinner.

Sprowl, being unwell, dined in his own rooms. Agatha Sprowl was more witty and brilliant and charming than ever, but Coursay did not join her on the veranda that evening, and she sat for two hours enduring the platitudes of Col. Hyssop and Maj. Brent, and planning serious troubles for Lansing, to whose interference she attributed Coursay's nonappearance.

But Coursay and Lansing had other business in hand that night. Fortune, too, favored them when they arrived at the O'Hara house, for there, leaning on the decaying gate, stood Eileen O'Hara, her face raised to the sky as though seeking in the soft star radiance which fell upon her lids a celestial balm for her sightless eyes.

She laid one slim hand in Lansing's; steadily and noiselessly they traversed the dew-wet meadow, crossed the river by the second bridge, and so came to the dark clubhouse under the trees.

There was nobody visible except the steward when they entered the hall.

"Two rooms and a bath, John," said Lansing, quietly; and followed the steward up the stairs, guiding his blind charge.

The rooms were on the north angle; Lansing and Coursay inspected them carefully, gave the steward proper direction, and dismissed him.

"Get me a telegram blank," said Lansing. Coursay brought one. His cousin penciled a dispatch, and the young man took it and left the room.

The girl was sitting on the bed, silent, intent, following Lansing with her sightless eyes.

"Do you trust me?" he asked, pleasantly.

"Yes; O, yes, with all my heart!"

He steadied his voice. "I think I can help you—I am sure I can. I have sent to New York for Dr. Courtney Thayer."

He drew a long breath; her beauty almost unnerved him.

"Thayer will operate; he's the best of all. Are you afraid?"

She lifted one hand and held it out, hesitating. He took it.

"No, not afraid," she said.

"You are wise; there is no need for fear. All will come right, my child."

She listened intently.

"It is necessary in such operations that the patient should, above all, be cheerful and—and happy——"

"O, yes—and I am happy! Truly! truly!" she breathed.

"—and brave, and patient, and obedient—and——" His voice trembled a trifle. "You must lie very still," he ended, hastily.

"Will you be here?"

"Yes—yes, of course!"

"Then I will lie very still."

He left her curled up in an easy chair, smiling at him with blind eyes; he scarcely found his way downstairs for all his eyesight. He stumbly to the grillroom door, felt the knob, and flung it open.

A flood of yellow light struck him like a blow; through the smoke he saw the wine flushed faces of Col. Hyssop and Maj. Brent staring at him.

"Gad, Lansing!" said the major, "you're white and shaky as a ninety-nine-cent toy lamb. Come in and have a drink, m'boy!"

"I wanted to say," said Lansing, "that I have a patient in 5 and 6. It's an emergency case; I've wired for Courtney Thayer. I wish to ask the privilege and courtesy of the club for my patient. It's unusual; it's intrusive. Absolute and urgent necessity is my plea."

The two old gentlemen appeared startled, but they hastily assured Lansing that his request would be honored; and Lansing went away to pace the veranda until Coursay returned from the telegraph station.

In the grillroom Maj. Brent's pop eyes were fixed on the colonel in inflamed inquiry.

"Damme!" snapped the colonel, "does that young man take this club for a hospital?"

"He'll be washing bandages in the river next; he'll poison the trout with his antiseptic stuffs!" suggested the major, shuddering.

"The club's going to the dogs!" said the colonel, with a hearty oath.

But he did not know how near to the dogs the club already was.

It is perfectly true that the club and the dogs were uncomfortably close together. A week later the crisis came when Munn, in a violent rage, accused Sprowl of spiriting away his ward, Eileen O'Hara. But when Sprowl at last comprehended that the girl and the papers had really disappeared, he turned like a maddened pig on Munn, tore the signed checks to shreds before his eyes and cursed him steadily as long as he remained within hearing.

As for Munn, his game appeared to be up. He hurried to New York and spent a month or two attempting to find some trace of his ward, then his money gave out. He returned to his community and wrote a cringing letter to Sprowl, begging him to buy the O'Hara land for next to nothing, and risk the legality of the transfer. To which Sprowl paid no attention. A week later Munn and the Shining Band left for Munnville, Maine.

It was vaguely understood at the club that Lansing had a patient in 5 and 6.

"Probably a rich woman whom he can't afford to lose," suggested Sprowl, with a sneer; "but I'm cursed if I can see why he should turn this club into a drug shop to make money in!" And the colonel and the major agreed that it was indecent in the extreme.

To his face, of course, Sprowl, the colonel, and the major treated Lansing with perfect respect; but the faint odor of antiseptics from rooms 5 and 6 made them madder and madder every time they noticed it.

Meanwhile young Coursay had a free bridle; Lansing was never around to interfere, and he drove and rode and fished and strolled with Agatha Sprowl until neither he nor the shameless beauty knew whether they were standing on their heads or their heels. To be in love was a new sensation to Agatha Sprowl; to believe himself in love was nothing new to Coursay, but the flavor never palled.

What they might have done—what, perhaps, they had already decided to do—nobody but they knew. The chances are that they would have bolted if they had not run smack into that rigid sentinel who guards the pathway of life. The sentinel is called Fate. And it came about in the following manner:

Dr. Courtney Thayer arrived one cool day early in October; Lansing met him with a quiet smile, and, together, these eminent gentlemen entered rooms 5 and 6.

A few moments later Courtney Thayer came out, laughing, followed by Lansing, who also appeared to be a prey to mirth.

"Come up for the fall flight of woodcock; I'll wire you when it's on," urged Lansing.

"Perhaps. Good-by."

Lansing took his outstretched hand in both of his. "There is no use in my trying to tell you what you have done for me, doctor," he said.

Thayer regarded him keenly. "Thought I did it for her," he remarked.

Instantly Lansing's face turned red hot. Thayer clasped the young man's hands and shook them till they ached.

"You're all right, my boy—you're all right!" he said heartily, and was gone down the stairs, two at a jump—a rather lively proceeding for the famous and dignified Courtney Thayer.

Lansing turned and entered rooms 5 and 6. His patient was standing by the curtained window. "Do you want to know your fate?" he asked, lightly.

She turned and looked at him out of her lovely eyes; the quaint, listening expression in her face still remained, but she saw him this time.

"Am I well?" she asked calmly.

"Yes; perfectly."

She sat down by the window, her slender hands folded, her eyes on him.

"And now," she asked, "what am I to do?"

He understood, and bent his head. He had an answer ready, trembling on his lips; but a horror of presuming on her gratitude kept him silent.

"Am I to go back—to—him?" she said, faintly.

"God forbid!" he blurted out. With all his keen eyesight, how could he fail to see the adoration in her eyes, on her mute lips' quivering curve, in every line of her body? But the brutality of asking for that which her gratitude might not withhold froze him. It was no use; he could not speak.

"Then—what? Tell me; I will do it," she said in a desolate voice. "Of course I cannot stay here now."

Something in his haggard face set her heart beating heavily; then for a moment her heart seemed to stop. She covered her eyes with a swift gesture.

"Is it pain?" he asked, quickly. "Let me see your eyes!" Her hands covered them. He came to her; she stood up, and he drew her fingers from her eyes and looked into them steadily. But what he saw there he alone knows, for he bent closer, shaking in every limb, and both her arms crept to his shoulders and her clasped hands tightened around his neck.

Which was doubtless an involuntary muscular affection incident on successful operations for lamellar or zonular cataract.

That day they opened the steel box. She understood little of what he read to her; presently he stopped abruptly in the middle of a sentence and remained staring, reading on and on in absorbed silence.

Content, serene, numbed with her happiness, she watched him silently.

He muttered under his breath: "Sprowl! What a fool! What a cheap fool! And yet not one among us even suspected him of that!"

After a long time he looked up at the girl, blankly at first, and with a grimace of disgust. "You see," he said, and gave a curious laugh—"you see that—that you own all this land of ours—as far as I can make out."

After a long explanation she partly understood and laughed outright, a clear child's laugh, without a trace of that sad undertone he knew so well.

"But we are not going to take it away from your club—are we?" she asked.

"No," he said, "let the club have the land—your land! What do we care We will never come here again!" He sat a moment thinking, then sprang up. "We will go to New York tomorrow," he said, "and I'll just step out and say good-by to Sprowl—I think he and his wife are also going tomorrow; I think they're going to Europe, to live! I'm sure they are, and that they will never come back."

And, curiously enough, that is exactly what they did; and they are there yet. And their establishment in the American colony is the headquarters for all nobility in exile, including the chivalrous Orleans.

Which is one sort of justice—the Lansing sort; and, anyway, Coursay survived and married an actress a year later. And the club still remains in undisturbed possession of Eileen Lansing's land; and Maj. Brent is now its president.

As for Munn, he has permanently retired to Munnville, Maine, where, it is reported, he has cured several worthy and wealthy people by the simple process of prayer.

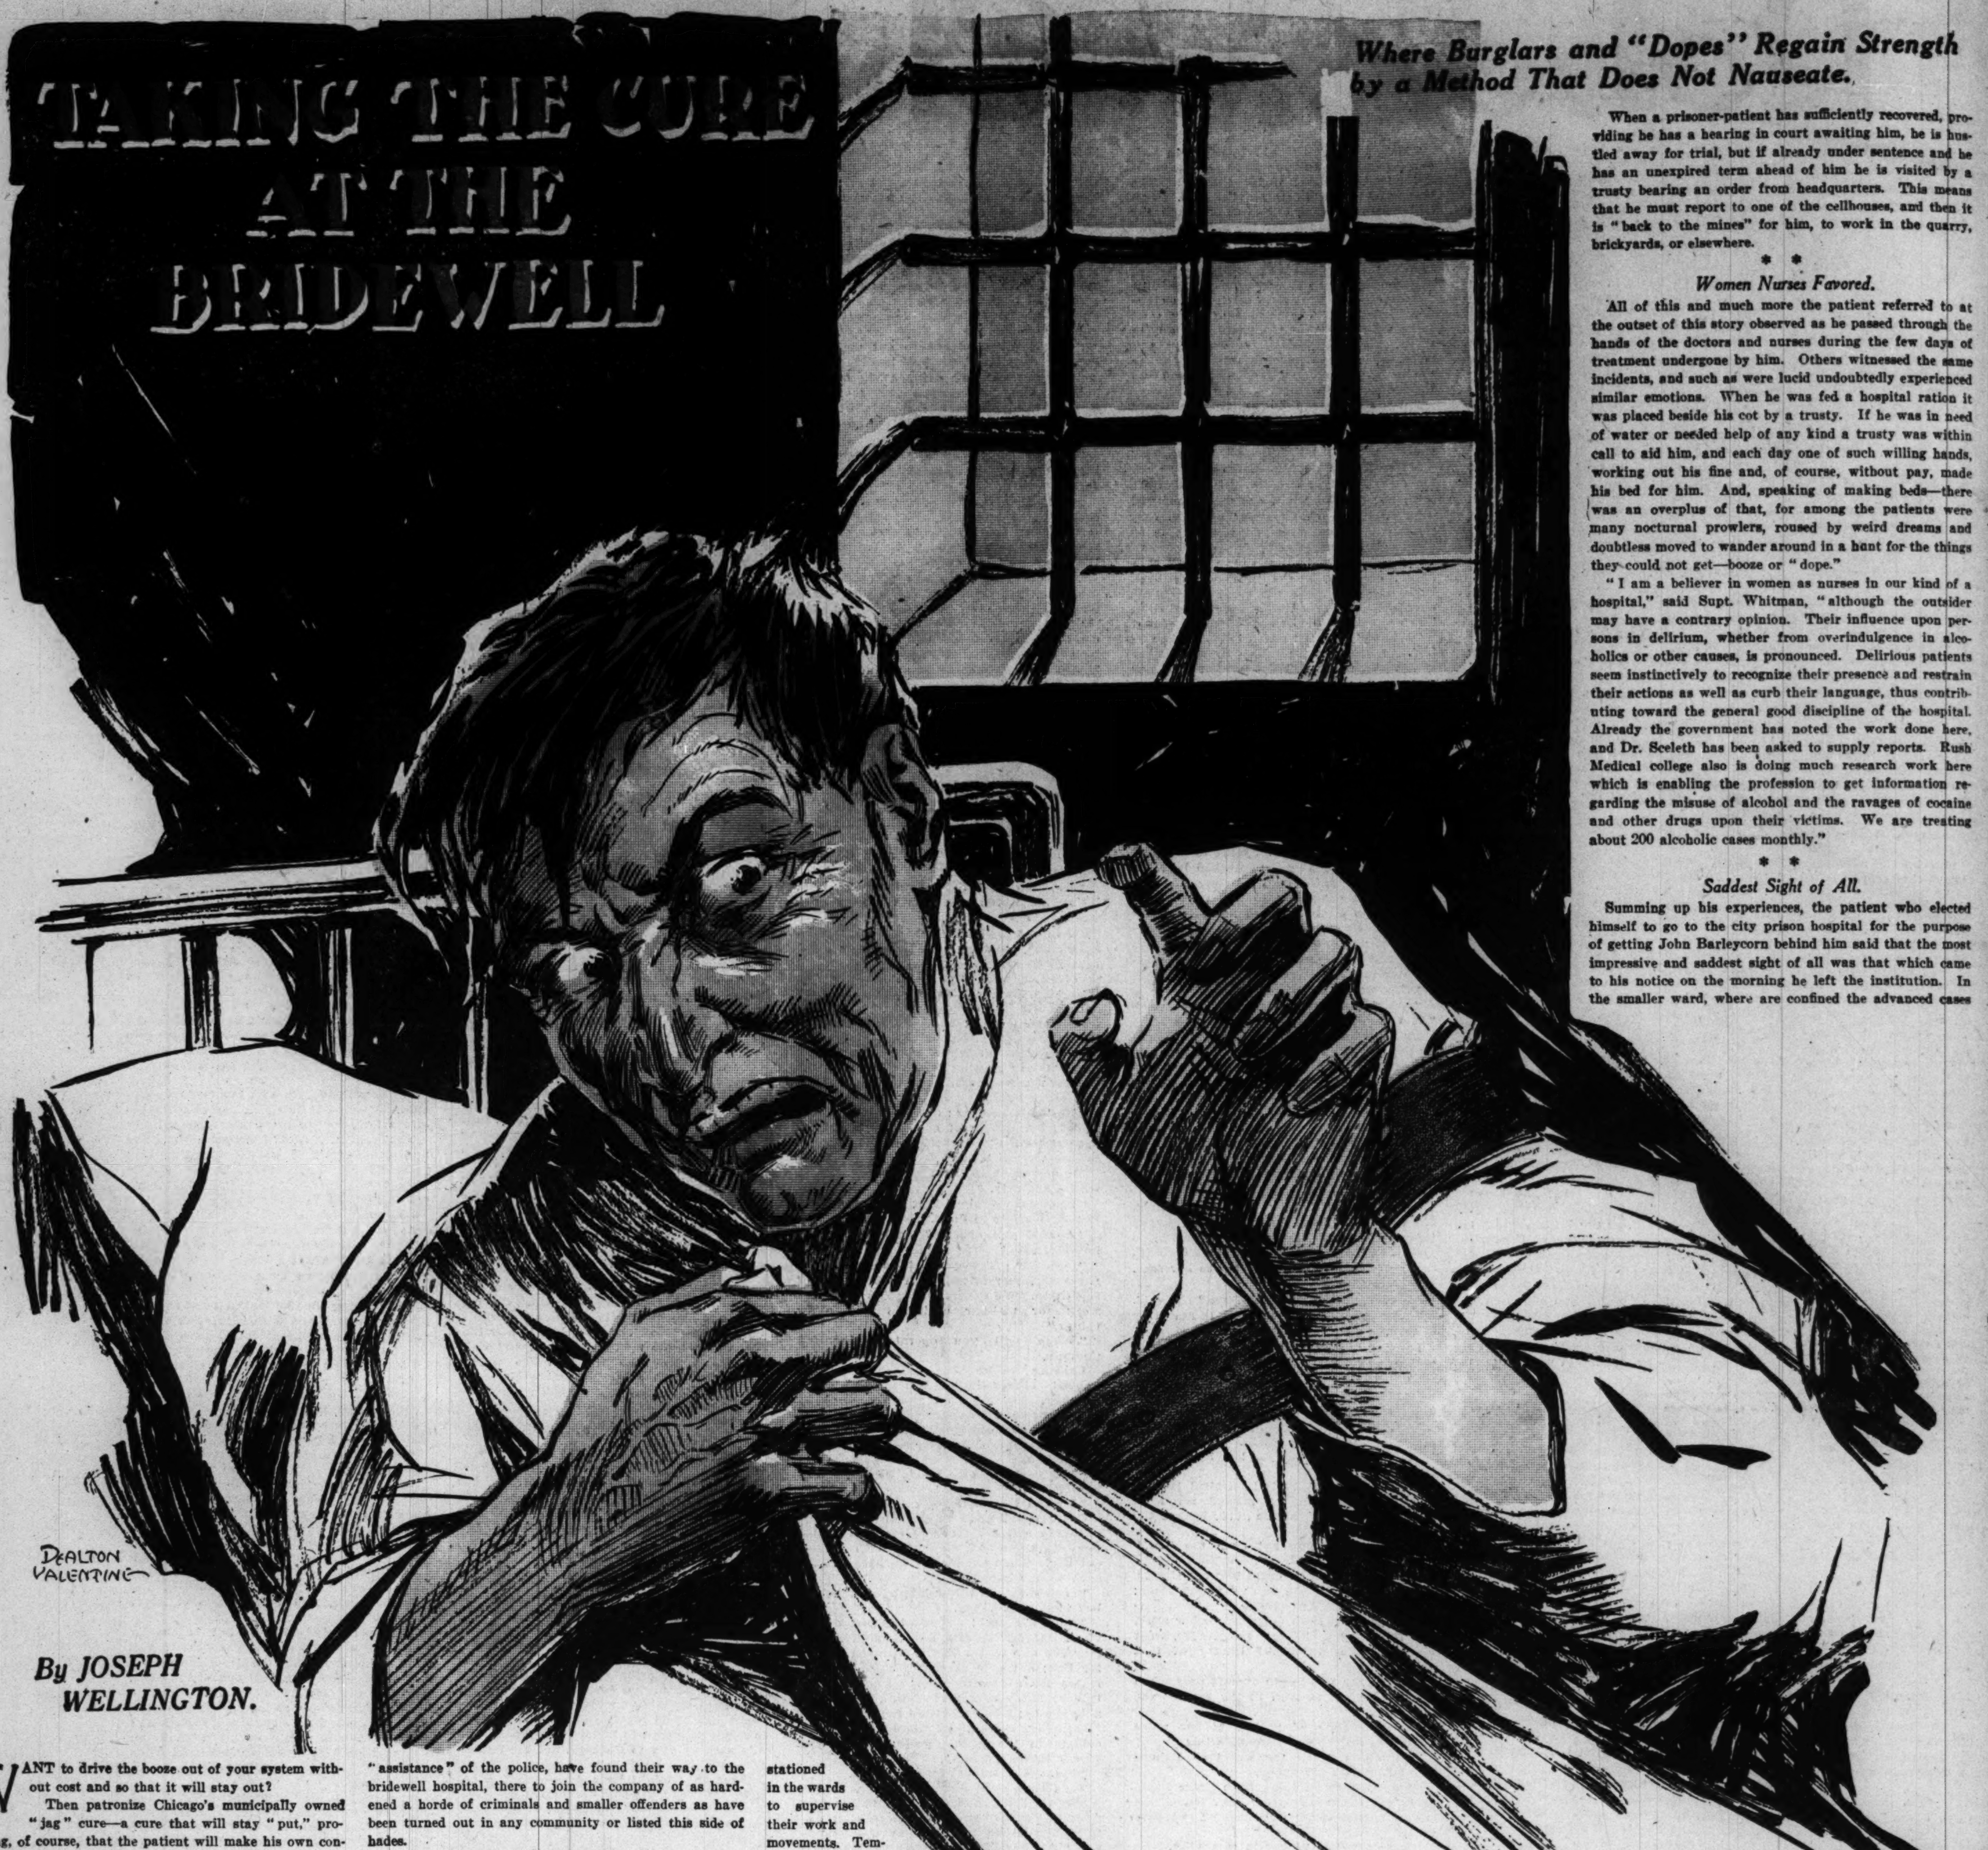
TAKING THE CURE AT THE BRIDEWELL

Where Burglars and "Dopes" Regain Strength by a Method That Does Not Nauseate.



By JOSEPH WELLINGTON.

WANT to drive the booze out of your system without cost and so that it will stay out?

Then patronize Chicago's municipally owned "jag" cure—a cure that will stay "put," providing, of course, that the patient will make his own contribution toward the effort through the exertion of a proper share of his individual will power.

Only a few days ago a chronic but not hopeless inebriate invested a nickel in car fare and rode out to the House of Correction at South California avenue and West Twenty-sixth street, in which is located the Sceleth Emergency hospital, especially chartered by the state and licensed by the city for the purpose of caring for the sick and the maimed wards of the city's prison house. He arrived there about noontime and presented himself to the general superintendent of the institution, John L. Whitman, to whom he told his story, with the request that he be given treatment for alcoholism.

"Have you a card from the police?" Mr. Whitman asked.

"I have not," was the applicant's answer.

"Our rule here is to receive only such patients as are regularly committed by the court or are sent by the police," said the superintendent.

However, the difficulty was overcome, the man was admitted, and now THE TRIBUNE prints the story of the sufferer's progress through the hospital. It presents features both sordid and startling. No reflections are made on the official staff, the method of treatment, or the conduct of this little known institution where "drunks" and drug fiends, wounded burglars and porch climbers, pickpockets, and what not are given medical and surgical care at the expense of the city of Chicago.

Not a "Down and Out."

This man was without money, but was possessed of the one pervading desire to get John Barleycorn out of his system and, this accomplished, set about to make himself over into a new man. In less than fifteen minutes after entering the office he had disrobed and been tucked between the sheets on a cot in the hospital. Ten minutes later he was visited by an interne, who asked many questions, the answers to which were carefully recorded on a history sheet.

In the first place, the patient referred to is a man who was not to be classified as a down and out. He is married, has children, has occupied himself in a useful calling in Chicago many years, but his besetting mistake was his almost total capitulation to the enemy toward whose camp his feet had long been drifting, whether he recognized that fact or whether he didn't. So, therefore, taking his own measure and not ashamed of having done so, he screwed up his courage and decided to take his chances with the not inconsiderable number of drunkards who, with the "assistance" of the police, have found their way to the bridewell hospital, there to join the company of as hardened a horde of criminals and smaller offenders as have been turned out in any community or listed this side of hades.

Glass of Milk Prescribed First.

Booze had so interfered with his capacity as a worker and a bread winner that he had lost several positions and in all probability soon would have parted with his own self-respect. He already had suffered the loss of his home, but not the confidence of his wife and others who believed in him and his redemption.

Now for the treatment and the narrative concerning the hospital itself and the startling results of his observations in the wards for the sick and the maimed in the big prison presided over by Mr. Whitman, long recognized by criminologists the country over as thoroughly competent and humane.

Just as a foretaste of what one may meet with in the institution, the candidate for a clean bill of health witnessed when there one of the most distressing scenes ever noted in that or any other institution of its kind. Four men in a row, all strapped to their cots, were writhing, groaning, cursing, or raving in a continuous chorus while they strained at their bonds with every muscle in vain efforts to break themselves free from the straps which had been fixed to their arms, around their bodies, and also their legs. These bands, made less irritating if possible by bandages of cotton, had been securely buckled to the iron sides of the cots.

So much for that incidental feature.

The first dose of "medicine" prescribed for the alcoholic is a glass of first class milk. He then is left while he makes an effort to adjust himself to the general environment of the big ward, a great room in the building formerly known as the John Worthy school for boys. In the room are several long rows of cots, each bearing its own burden of woe in the form of a human who may be a robber of any type from the common doormat thief to the gunman, safe blower, porch climber, pickpocket, and so on through the list to the sneak thief, or he may be one of the several varieties of "dope" fiends sent there in the hope of clearing up their crazy brains so that they may have an opportunity, supplied by the city, of going forth into the community with strength of mind and body to make their way among decent people.

Trusties Always on Watch.

When the nurse makes her second visit at the cotside she is accompanied, if necessary, by one of a company of bridewell prisoners detailed by Supt. Whitman to assist in the care of the hospital, to act as "runners," and to perform duties of varied character. An overseer is always stationed in the wards to supervise their work and movements. Temperature and pulse then are taken by a nurse in spotless garb and the figures recorded on the history sheet, the "trusty" alongside ever ready for any emergency, for who knows at what moment the patient, his brain in a tangle, may arise in rebellion and require a little kindly persuasion?

And, by the way, these trusties are chosen for their work because of their smartness as well as their ability to put down any sign of insurrection on the part of a prisoner or any other patient who may attempt to jump the traces. Day in and day out and through the long and noisy watches of the night they are on the job, drilling around here and there in the long aisles lined with cots and always with ears open for the call of a nurse.

When the general physical condition of the patient has become known to Dr. Charles E. Sceleth, the medical superintendent, who has the assistance of a corps of internes, prescribes for him. Then begins the giving of the real round of medicines, the first dose being the inevitable laxative, to be followed at intervals with the appearance of a nurse bearing the medicines which are intended to drive Old Man Rum out of his trench.

The treatment itself is mild, and at no time does the patient receive any intoxicating liquor nor is he given any hypodermic injection to quiet his nerves, although sedatives may be prescribed if necessary.

Startling Object Lessons.

Meantime the patient, his eyes roving from cot to cot and his ears attuned to every word or sound, becomes more and more impressed by his surroundings, terrifying to one unaccustomed to such things. Chicago has not yet found itself sufficiently opulent to establish a separate hospital for the treatment of alcoholics and drug fiends who come to the notice of the police, or an occasional sufferer, unable to pay his way elsewhere and who goes out to the bridewell on his own initiative, in which case he or she is not likely to be sent away if there be a spare cot. Once admitted, the patient is certain to receive at the hands of the superintendent and the physicians and nurses the best treatment the institution affords.

Secondary to the course of treatment itself is the object lesson, and these lessons, sordid and startling, are ever present. In themselves they are sufficient to compel disgust for the very name of the tipple which has sent the sufferer there. Surely nothing could be more instructive or convincing. In addition to the receiving room the hospital in the section for men and youngsters approaching manhood has two wards. One is a huge room, well lighted and clean. The other, which is nothing short of a chamber of horrors, is smaller and is the place where extreme cases are treated—delirium tremens.

At the entrance to the large ward are the cots occupied by such as require surgical care. These include white, black, and Asiatic, who either have been shot, slashed with knives or razors, or have been severely beaten in barroom or other encounters and have been taken there by the police pending their appearance in court or that of their bodies in the morgue. At the far end of the ward are the "drunks," some of them verging on the tremens and furtively gazing around for pink elephants, feeling carefully for lizzards or gila monsters on the coverlets or listening to the "voices" coming down from the vaulted roof high above and where are the nests of the sparrows which constantly flit in and out of the windows let down for ventilation. Screened from them are the trusties who are off duty, sleeping or resting from their heavy labors. The middle section of the ward is occupied by the medical cases, so-called. Contagious diseases receive attention elsewhere.

When a prisoner-patient has sufficiently recovered, providing he has a hearing in court awaiting him, he is hustled away for trial, but if already under sentence and he has an unexpired term ahead of him he is visited by a trusty bearing an order from headquarters. This means that he must report to one of the cellhouses, and then it is "back to the mines" for him, to work in the quarry, brickyards, or elsewhere.

Women Nurses Favored.

All of this and much more the patient referred to at the outset of this story observed as he passed through the hands of the doctors and nurses during the few days of treatment undergone by him. Others witnessed the same incidents, and such as were lucid undoubtedly experienced similar emotions. When he was fed a hospital ration it was placed beside his cot by a trusty. If he was in need of water or needed help of any kind a trusty was within call to aid him, and each day one of such willing hands, working out his fine and, of course, without pay, made his bed for him. And, speaking of making beds—there was an overplus of that, for among the patients were many nocturnal prowlers, roused by weird dreams and doubtless moved to wander around in a hunt for the things they could not get—booze or "dope."

"I am a believer in women as nurses in our kind of a hospital," said Supt. Whitman, "although the outsider may have a contrary opinion. Their influence upon persons in delirium, whether from overindulgence in alcoholics or other causes, is pronounced. Delirious patients seem instinctively to recognize their presence and restrain their actions as well as curb their language, thus contributing toward the general good discipline of the hospital. Already the government has noted the work done here, and Dr. Sceleth has been asked to supply reports. Rush Medical college also is doing much research work here which is enabling the profession to get information regarding the misuse of alcohol and the ravages of cocaine and other drugs upon their victims. We are treating about 200 alcoholic cases monthly."

Saddest Sight of All.

Summing up his experiences, the patient who elected himself to go to the city prison hospital for the purpose of getting John Barleycorn behind him said that the most impressive and saddest sight of all was that which came to his notice on the morning he left the institution. In the smaller ward, where are confined the advanced cases of tremens, were three cots in a row. On one was a strapping giant, a blacksmith. Next to him was a dying patient who had contracted pneumonia, a not uncommon disease in such cases. The next cot was occupied by a tall, gaunt, aged man. Of the three he who was laboriously gasping his last was not bound hand, body, and foot to his cot, though he had been tied down in that stage of his struggles before pneumonia set in to take his strength.

The two sufferers who flanked the dying man were apparently oblivious to the fact that their unknown comrade was nearing his end, and when that arrived they remained in ignorance of the fact. They continued to curse and writhe, spit and glare, their protruding and reddened eyeballs ablaze with fury. Even after the attendants had prepared to remove the body of their fellow victim to the morgue they continued their demoniacal ravings, mutterings, and curses, but they knew not what they did.

With that sight before him the patient who had taken his course of treatment passed through the receiving room and out into the street—cured!

"Ten Nights in a Barroom" was a kindergarten tragedy compared with it.

The Diamond from the Sky by Roy L. McCardell

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

A bitter feud, engendered over an heirloom, "the diamond from the sky," found in a meteor by an ancestor, has existed between Col. Arthur Stanley and his cousin, Judge Lamar Stanley. The feud is augmented by the fact that the succession to the Stanley earldom in England may come to an American family. When his wife dies after having given birth to a daughter Col. Stanley buys and substitutes as heir a new born gypsy boy. Three years later the gypsy mother, Hagar, steals the colonel's daughter, who is being reared in secret, and obtains possession of the "diamond from the sky" and a document that holds the secret of the false heir.

When the daughter, Esther Stanley, grows up, Hagar returns with her to Stanley hall. Dr. Lee, exacting as a condition that he keep the "diamond from the sky," adopts Esther in hopes that the supposed Arthur Stanley II., who is Hagar's son, will marry Esther and become master of Stanley hall. Blair Stanley, Arthur's cousin, who would be the rightful heir to the earldom if the truth were known, also falls in love with Esther.

In endeavoring to steal the "diamond from the sky" from Dr. Lee, Blair causes the old doctor's death. Arthur assumes the onus of the murder in the hope that he himself will escape and Blair, who is a profligate, will live a straighter life. Hagar and Esther are established in Stanley hall after Hagar has established Blair's guilt through finger print evidence. Blair in the meantime has fallen in love with Vivian Marsten, an adventuress, and, disguised and in possession of the "diamond from the sky," elopes with her, although the marriage ceremony was never completed. Mrs. Stanley, sensing that Esther is the real heir, plans to make friends with her and effect a marriage between her and Blair Stanley, her disgraced son. She reasons that if Esther marries Blair Hagar would withhold any accusations or proofs of his guilt in connection with the murder of Dr. Lee. Esther in the meantime has rifled Hagar's strong box and found proof that she, Esther, is the real heir. She resolves to say nothing about it. At Mrs. Stanley's request, Esther and Hagar accompany her to Mrs. Randolph's in Richmond. Burglars loot the train on which Blair and Vivian are riding and take from them the "diamond from the sky." Vivian, enraged, throws over Blair and threatens him with exposure unless he regains the diamond.

Blair returns to Richmond, and, finding Esther agreeable, courts her in order to arouse the jealousy of Vivian. Hagar's mind, affected by an accident in the gypsy camp, wanders, and Esther learns that to restore her to normal condition an operation costing $1,000 will be necessary. Mrs. Stanley offers Esther the money on condition that she marry Blair, but Esther refuses.

Arthur by applying the robber's loot as payment intends to save Stanley hall from the hands of strangers and help Esther and Hagar. He employs Tom Blake, the detective, instructing him to defray all of Hagar's expenses and to bid in on Stanley hall. Esther meanwhile flees from the Stanleys to escape the persecution of Blair Stanley. She intends to find Arthur. Blake, following instructions, buys Stanley hall. Luke Lovell, the sinister, by a trick of fate, again comes across the "diamond from the sky" and buys it for a quart of whisky. Arthur as "John Powell" meanwhile strikes it rich in oil and is banqueted in Los Angeles. At the height of the festivities he receives word from Blake that Esther has departed "for parts unknown." This blow crushes him. As to the diamond, Luke and his fellow bootlegger quarrel over its possession and the diamond sinks into the Pacific, near Santa Barbara.

Vivian, learning of Arthur's sudden wealth, renews her attentions to Blair in the hope that together they will be able to strip him of his gold. Blair and Vivian and Esther and Quabba separaetly go to Los Angeles in search of Arthur. Marmaduke Smythe also is in search of Arthur in California, and up in the mountain region where Arthur is seeking an investment a combat is staged to determine which will be the first to reach Arthur.

Blair hires Luke Lovell to kill Esther and Marmaduke Smythe by putting a defective linch pin into the stage coach. The coach rolls down the mountain, but Esther and the lawyer escape unhurt. Meanwhile Quabba returns and they both flee into the woods, where they are pursued by Blair and Luke until nightfall. In the morning all hands of the Lady Veronica mine are ordered to the new works by a message from John Powell. Quabba and Esther flee in an ore car over a trolley, thinking there will be help at the mine. Finding it deserted, they elude Luke and Blair by going through the tunnel on the electric trolley. Meanwhile John Powell goes aboard his new yacht in Santa Barbara bay. Vivian, bent upon his capture, charters a sailboat and heads directly across the course of the yacht. Powell at the wheel forces the inevitable collision and jumps into the bay to save her life.

Esther and Quabba make their escape by setting off a blast in the tunnel and are kindly received by the people at the mine. The pursuers are only slightly injured. Powell falls under the spell of Vivian and promises to secure for her the "diamond from the sky." Bloom writes to Durand promising any price for the diamond. Marmaduke Smythe shoots a frog which kept him awake, and bagging his game, finds "the diamond from the sky."

ARTHUR IS IN THE TOILS OF VIVIAN THE ADVENTURESS

[Copyright: 1915: By Roy L. McCardell.]

CHAPTER XVII.

DOWN the rough mountain road, turning abrupt and dangerous curves, skirting the edges of sheer precipices, the buckboard sped on its thirty mile trip from the south portal of the mine tunnel in the mountain to the small depot that was the nearest rail connection of the mines with civilization. The driver's face was wreathed with a cheerful smile of appreciation at the honor he felt was his in convoying so fair a young woman and so odd and so interesting a personage as the foreign droll, Quabba, ensconced on the back of the buckboard.

Esther listened to the driver with seeming attention, but her thoughts were far away.

The old feud of the Stanleys would not down. Girl as she was, Esther felt inspired with blood hatred, which is as strong as blood's more kindlier ties and stronger. That Blair was in her thoughts, more in contempt than fear, while of his gypsy companion and accomplice, Luke Lovell, she thought not at all, may not be strange, if propinquity has the subtle influence it is supposed to have. As the buckboard sped along towards the base of the mountain Blair Stanley and Luke Lovell had gained the mountain summit in their long and arduous tramp from the mine portal to the other side of the range.

Blair's field glasses were focused upon Esther it would seem at the very moment her mind's eye was focused upon him.

"There goes Esther!" cried Blair, putting down the field glasses and pointing to the buckboard that moved, a mere speck to the naked eye, along the road far down below. "We can intercept her yet by dropping straight down this cursedly steep mountain," Blair added.

Luke grunted a surly assent and the two desperate adventurers—the gentleman, so-called, and the gypsy, started down the rough, straight mountain trail at as brisk a pace as they dared attempt. That Arthur Stanley was or was not what he seemed was of little moment to Luke. He was bewildered on the edge of a great secret of which he had but the faintest glimpse and grasp. He only remembered that Matt Harding, Hagar's long dead husband, had trafficked with the gentlefolk of Stanley hall and had made his gypsy fortune thereby.

Luke also knew that Esther had the document that was the essence of this Stanley secret. It also concerned the diamond from the sky. Luke knew Luke had no love for Blair Stanley. He determined upon two things. One was that no harm should befall Esther, for whom Luke had long held a wild affection. The other resolve concerned the diamond. Seemingly the accomplice of Blair Stanley in his desperate schemes to regain and possess it, yet in the back of his mind Luke Lovell felt his deepest joy would be when he throttled Blair Stanley and tore it from his weakening grasp.

As Blair and Luke speed down the mountain over a rocky and half obliterated trail to intercept Esther, Marmaduke Smythe, guiding himself by the sun, plods along the road at the base of the mountain. Marmaduke Smythe is embued with one idea. The idea is that "England, home, and beauty," as he expresses it to himself, lies to the east. So at sunrise he has faced the east and plodded from his camp fire, carrying the suit case, his gun, and the deer head, which more and more he has come to believe is a bona fide trophy of his prowess as a hunter in the American jungle. The diamond from the sky means little or nothing to Marmaduke Smythe.

"How it came on the veldt I cannot for the life of me imagine," he muses. "I only know, Marmaduke Smythe, you are a bally ass to have ever left England to find the Yankee heir to the Stanley earldom."

These reveries were ended abruptly by a succession of pistol shots. The startled lawyer next heard a pounding clatter of hoofs and the rattle of wheels coming behind him.

"The savage Iroquois have tracked me down!" he cried, and stood stock still, too frightened to move. And then he felt himself bowled over and scattered with his belongings in the dust.

Smythe, picking himself up, saw that the wagon was driven by the pretty girl who had shared the coach with him just previous to the wreck that had made him what he was now, a wanderer in the wilderness. But hardships and adventure had sharpened even the wits of the timid London lawyer. He gave a willing hand to help bring the horses out of their tangle of harness against the hillside, and was quick to accept the proffer of a lift from the mysterious young woman who had been his fellow passenger in the wrecked coach and the strange looking hunchback with her.

The lawyer briskly piled his chattels on the buckboard and hopped nimbly on the back and was speeding on, all within the space of a few seconds. He gleaned from the comments of his rescuers that they had been attacked by two men on foot and that the driver of the vehicle had been shot and lay back in the road, wounded or dead.

A cold sweat broke out upon the brow of Marmaduke Smythe. "Actually," he thought to himself, for the vibration of the buckboard slats kept him mute, "actually, these wild Americans seem to take pistoling as an every day matter, like having muffins for tea at home in England!"

Luke and Blair had failed again. They had intercepted the buckboard and had shot down the brave young miner, who had refused to halt at their sudden shouts to do so when they had sprung out from the brush of the hillside on to the road.

"They have killed me! Drive on and save yourselves!" had been the last words of the driver, and even as he had fallen, or had thrown himself from the seat, he had struck the horses a quick, heavy blow with the whip, which had fallen at the feet of Esther. The maddened horses left the pursuing Luke and Blair far behind. But at a fork in the road they took the wrong turn and went astray. Realizing this, Esther and Quabba made camp and waited till daybreak.

Around their small camp fire, which they sheltered with rocks in order not to attract attention, the three so strangely thrown together recounted the eventful adventures that had befallen them since the wrecking of the coach.

"It is a coincidence, my dear young lady," Marmaduke Smythe remarked finally, "that you are seeking for this elusive young millionaire, John Powell, too. I have a letter for him from that astute chap, Blake, the Richmond detective. This Blake is a most reticent person, but he assured me that if I came to California and saw this John Powell the latter would help me to locate Arthur Stanley. It is my duty to locate Arthur Stanley. Whether he is a ticket of leave man or is to be lynched or remain a fugitive is not in my province to argue. He is the heir to the Stanley earldom. But frankly, young lady, if England expects me to go any farther in doing my duty in this matter England is vastly mistaken. I am going back as soon as I can find a train and boat to take me. If you are seeking this John Powell also, will you ask him to convey this to Arthur Stanley? Oddly enough, although I was not all surprised at anything that happened to me in America, I found this when attacked by Indians—I heard their war whoops distinctly—yesterday on the veldt—or rather, in a marsh."

And to the breathless amazement of Esther and Quabba the English lawyer brought from his breast pocket, in the most matter of fact manner, the diamond from the sky!

Again and again the Englishman explained the strange place and the strange manner of its finding. Esther and Quabba could not grasp or solve the mystery of the strange reappearance of the great and ancient Stanley heirloom here in this wild land.

As for the English lawyer, he only asked to be rid of it. "I wish no further responsibilities, and I would not stay on the veldt or in the jungles of America for a leather hatbox full of diamonds from the sky," he added. "So, please, deliver it to this Mr. Powell for Arthur Stanley, with my compliments, exacting, of course, a receipt."

As he said the words he made a brief receipt in his notebook and tendered the book and his fountain pen to Esther, adding, "Please sign, Miss Harding."

But when Esther affixed her name boldly "Esther Stanley," the English lawyer scratched his head in a puzzled manner. But although he was puzzled he was not surprised. Nothing that could happen in America ever surprised Marmaduke Smythe, queen's counsel, barrister at law, solicitor, and agent of the earls of Stanley.

Esther clasped the diamond around her neck. By every right and title it belonged to her. The impulse that had actuated her father, the late Col. Stanley, to rob her of her birthright in order that the great gem might never go to Blair Stanley, his enemy's child, was the impulse that made Esther's heart beat resolutely with the same resolve. If the diamond from the sky was in sooth the Stanley charm against harm, Esther Stanley needed its protecting influence now. It seemed that the purposes of fate, operating through the great diamond, had been served so far as Marmaduke Smythe was concerned. He had found the diamond in the wilderness and he had passed it on.

The next day, the delay and losing their way, giving their enemies chance to overtake them on horses stolen from a lonely ranch in the valley, Marmaduke Smythe was jolted from his place at the back of the buckboard. His very discomfiture, however, aided Esther and Quabba. For the horses of Luke and Blair had shied off at the squirming figure of the lawyer in the road, and when Blair and Luke resumed pursuit Esther and Quabba had reached the little railroad station and safety.

. . . .

In Los Angeles Vivian Marston still weaves the spell of her charms about Arthur. She is the first to be taken to view the wonderful Aladdin's palace that, as the millionaire oil man and mine owner, "John Powell," Arthur has built. It is a home fit to house the woman who dreams of possessing the diamond from the sky!

But as a philosopher wisely said, "Everybody has a past!" It is not the things we do or the things we are going to do that sway our course; it is the things we have done.

Vivian was parting with Arthur at the door of her hotel. Her eyes were bright; her cheeks were flushed. Never had she been so interested or so happy. Arthur's infatuation was complete. Vivian only waited till the diamond from the sky was seen again of men! Once it appeared again she would have it, rightfully or wrongfully; and to this end she would make use of the desperate and reckless nature of Blair, or of Arthur Stanley, within his rights, or as "John Powell" with his millions. She would play fast and loose with all the world to attain the star of her desire!

But everybody has a past. At the door of her hotel, as she smiled her most dazzling smile in farewell to Arthur, a dapper young Frenchman, attired in the height of fashion, stumbled against her.

"A thousand pardons!" he cried, and lifting his hat he bowed sweepingly to Vivian and then to Arthur, waiting at the curb by his limousine.

As Vivian blanched, for she recognized the dapper little Frenchman, she felt a card pressed into her hand, the passing of the card masked by the stranger's hat. She deftly hid the card in the lace cuff of her sleeve, and the little Frenchman murmured his apologies again, and was gone.

Vivian hardly remembered how she had said good-by to Arthur and reached her room. Strong as was her will and resolution, she felt her hand tremble as she plucked the card from her sleeve. She had hardly need to look. It was a playing card—the king of diamonds! As one in a daze Vivian struck a match and applied it to the corner of the card. The face of the card burned, shriveled, and passed off in smoke. There on the backing in bold masculine handwriting was a message:

"To the Queen of Hearts: You will work with us. We are after the diamond from the sky.

"(Signed): THE KING OF DIAMONDS."

"Frank Durand!" she gasped. "Frank Durand!"

She clenched the scorched card till it crumpled to a shapeless mass. Her past had come back. The past of Monte Carlo and of Egypt. A past that meant the police and flight; a past that meant waste and folly and wealth ill gained and quickly dissipated.

And now Durand, the king of diamonds, called upon her with all the might and right of these criminal bonds of old association. Now if she gained the diamond this star among jewels would not blaze upon her breast; it would be sold as swag and divided up as plunder by Durand, the international swindler and gem thief, the notorious king of diamonds.

The king of diamonds! She remembered now her part in the game. She was the queen of hearts! The decoy! And Vivian Marston beat her tender hands against the wall until they were bruised and swollen and bit her lips till the blood came. She knew now whom she had to fight, their cruelty and their cunning. But she resolved to match cruelty and cunning with her beauty and her woman's wit. This time she would stack the cards. The queen of hearts would play against her old confederates for the diamond from the sky!

At Santa Barbara Esther and Quabba arrive, and there they learn that the beautiful new yacht belonging to John Powell is still in the harbor. Esther resolves to visit Arthur on board unannounced, taking with her the diamond and the Stanley document. She believed Arthur would know what course would be best for them both to take. Esther had no doubt of Arthur's loyalty or his love for her. All she had looked forward to was to meet him face to face. With this in view she had endured and adventured with steadfast courage and high resolve.

Esther does not know that Blair has knowledge of "John Powell" and his yacht. But Blair, having no cause for secrecy when he has arrived in Santa Barbara, has not remained hidden at a hotel as Esther has—the discreet Quabba also keeping from sight—so Blair has learned Arthur has left the yacht and has returned to Los Angeles on business.

Unless Esther has communicated with Arthur, which Blair does not deem likely, Arthur has no reason as yet to suspect him, Blair knows. In his daring way, Blair is indifferent. He telegraphs to Arthur he has arrived in Santa Barbara and is disappointed in missing him. Arthur realizes that he is a usurper, standing in the way of Blair's birthright, the Stanley heritage. For this, if not for the old association of their wild youth in Virginia, Arthur has a generous desire to make amends for the injustice he thinks he does Blair.

It is Vivian's wish, also, to keep Blair from Los Angeles. The time may come when she may need him, though, when she battles against Durand, the king of diamonds, and the rest of the "pack," as they call themselves. But just now she is not in open warfare with the "pack." She suggests to Arthur that Blair stay and look after the yacht in Santa Barbara, and that later they join him there for a cruise all together. How she is to exert her wiles upon Arthur in the proximity of Blair is a matter that Vivian leaves to the time and the place.

One two-reel episode corresponding with the chapter of the story as it appears in The Sunday Tribune is released every Monday.

Blair and the sailing master of the yacht get their telegraphed instructions from Arthur, and when Blair goes aboard he finds the sailing master and a few of the men on one watch aboard, the rest of the crew having been given shore leave in the absence of the owner.

"Make yourself at home, Mr. Stanley," says the sailing master. "You will find things in Mr. Powell's cabin."

"I will need a good deal of fixing up," Blair explains laughingly. "My man and I got lost in the mountains while hunting," and he indicated Luke, who had come aboard with him.

"Let your man go to the forecastle and I will see he is fitted out," said the sailing master. "As for you, sir, I take it from Mr. Powell's telegram you are to help yourself to what you wish of his things till your own are sent for."

The sailing master led Blair to Arthur's cabin, and then said he would take the launch to the wharf and round up the crew in Santa Barbara. "Which," he added, "won't be hard to do, as Santa Barbara is a temperance town. It is only a question of which one of the movie shows the men are at."

As the launch panted to the wharf the sailing master and the man running the launch were aware of a very pretty girl in a snowy yachting costume being rowed in the direction of John Powell's yacht by a hunchback of foreign aspect. The sailing master noticed the girl in the row boat eyed him keenly, but turned as though disappointed and again directed her gaze toward the yacht.

Arriving by the companionway, Esther cautioned Quabba to make no explanation if questioned, as she wished to give Arthur the happy surprise of facing him unannounced. But no sailor on watch barred her way nor were any questions shouted over the rail to Quabba. The yacht swung idly at anchor, and such of the crew as were on the boat were in the forecastle with the gypsy fellow who had come aboard with the friend of the owner. Here the bottle of liquor that Luke had brought was augmented by some of the same quality one of the hospitable sailors had in his bunk, and a jovial drinking bout was in progress.

In Arthur's cabin Blair had refreshed himself with a shower and had donned fresh linen and a yachting suit of Arthur's. The two young men were of the same size, and the uniform, coat, and cap fitted Blair to a nicety.

Esther, crossing the deck, saw no sailor or officer in charge. She heard some one stirring abaft and there, in what was evidently the owner's cabin, she noted a tall and stalwart young man in uniform, his back turned to the open door. Esther tiptoed forward, and, pulling the diamond from the sky out in view upon her neck, her lips had framed the word "Arthur!" when she found herself gazing horrified into a mirror that reflected the handsome but wicked face of Blair!

Esther turned with a cry for help and sped across the deck. There, from the doorway to the forecastle, the bulky form of a leering, sodden brute creature faced her. It was Luke Lovell! Esther turned and darted to one side, missing the clutching grasp of Blair Stanley by a hair's breadth. The sudden revulsion from hope and happiness to fear and despair had driven Esther to a frenzy of sudden fright. As though upon the wings of fear, she fled. Hardly knowing what she did save that she escaped her enemies, Esther plunged over the sheer side of the yacht into the sea!

Down, down, down she sank in the cold, wan water. There was a ringing of death bells in her ears, a pressure upon her heart that seemed about to burst her asunder. The strangling sea water rasped her tender throat. She clutched at her neck instinctively. Her hands closed upon something hard and cold, colder than the cold depths in which she sank—it was the diamond from the sky!

PRINCE CAMARALZAMAN
And His Wives.

From the Arabian Nights
By
Wm. DONAHEY

SYNOPSIS.

A powerful king, angry at his only son's refusal to marry, has him cast into prison, where he is found by a fairy who is impressed with his great beauty. She meets another fairy, and the two quarrel as to which is the more beautiful, Prince Camaralzaman or Princess Badoura. They bring the two together, to judge between them, the young people fall in love, and eventually marry. While on a journey Camaralzaman sees on his wife's dress a jewel which he admires. While he examines it a bird plucks it from his hand, and he discovers, after chasing this bird some hours, that he is lost. He wanders to a strange city, where he becomes a gardener in the employ of a kind old man who knows his story. He finds a store of gold, which he and the old man divide, recovers the lost jewel from the body of the bird, which has been killed, and is about to start for home, his gold and the jewel hidden in great jars, under olives, when his old friend becomes ill, and Camaralzaman, staying to nurse him, misses his ship. Utterly discouraged, he awaits the sailing of another ship, which he fears will not go for a year. In the meantime the Princess Badoura has adventures of her own.

WITH all her servants the Princess Badoura, disguised as the prince, went up to the castle of the king of the Isle of Ebony. A handsome and pleasant young prince she seemed, and the king was delighted to meet such a charming fellow. He piled favor after favor upon his guest, and at last sent for him upon a most important matter.

The king of the Isle of Ebony had but one child, a lovely daughter Ever since her birth he had been wondering where he would find a prince handsome and clever enough to become her husband and rule for her at his own death, and he thought that at last he had found an ideal son-in-law in this royal guest. He told his wishes to the supposed Prince Camaralzaman, who asked a day to think over the great honor, saying, in excuse for not accepting at once that he must consider his father and his own country in the making of such an important decision.

Then she went to her own room, a poor, distracted princess, and cried heartily. She was afraid not to accept—she was afraid to do so! At last she decided to go to the Princess Haiataluegous and tell her the exact truth, which she did.

The Princess Haiataluegous was as kindly as she was beautiful. "We cannot tell my father the truth," said she "for he would be very angry with you. But marry me. I will keep your secret. All must come out right in the end."

So the wedding took place, amidst great rejoicing, and the two princesses, becoming great friends, enjoyed their life and waited for news of the real Prince Camaralzaman.

One day Badoura heard that a ship had come to port having on board a store of olives, of which she was extremely fond. She ordered the entire lot to be sent to the palace and unpacked before the eyes of herself and Princess Haiataluegous, when what was the astonishment of the girls to find that the jars were only half full of olives, the rest of their burden being pure gold! While they were exclaiming over this marvel, from one jar rolled a glistening jewel, which Badoura caught up with a cry of gladness. It was the missing ornament which had disappeared from her dress the same day that her husband had vanished! The princess sent for the captain of the vessel which had brought the olives, and soon had from him the whole story of the jars, so far as he himself knew it.

"Return," ordered the supposed prince, "as soon as possible to the city and bring back with you the young man who sent these jars of olives aboard your ship. I desire his presence immediately. The captain grumbled, but found it necessary to do as he was commanded. He set sail, and the two princesses returned to the palace to await the outcome of his voyage.

Princess Badoura had neglected to give any reason for wanting Camaralzaman brought to her, and the captain, thinking he must be some thief, and being angry at him anyway for causing him so much trouble, no sooner found the unfortunate prince than he threw him into the darkest, deepest part of his vessel, and left him there, with only bread and water, during the entire voyage back to the Isle of Ebony. The poor fellow lay in the dark, wondering when his misfortunes would end, and sorrowing for his home, his wife, his father, and his lost happiness. He did not know where he was being carried, and when at last the boat reached the Isle of Ebony he was too sad and too discouraged to care.

The Princess Badoura, on questioning the captain, was very angry at the way in which her husband had been treated, and ordered him brought before her immediately, though he was not to be told where he was. To his surprise, he was brought before a handsome young king, who ordered him clothed in handsome garments, fed with the most delicious food, and lodged in beautiful rooms. The princess had hoped her husband might recognize her, but what man would expect to find a lost wife in a reigning king of a strange country? It was not until Badoura, unable longer to let him remain in ignorance, showed him the fateful jewel that he began to suspect he was even known by his benefactor.

"Did you ever see this before?" she asked him one day, and opened her hand, in which lay the ornament that had brought all his grief upon him.

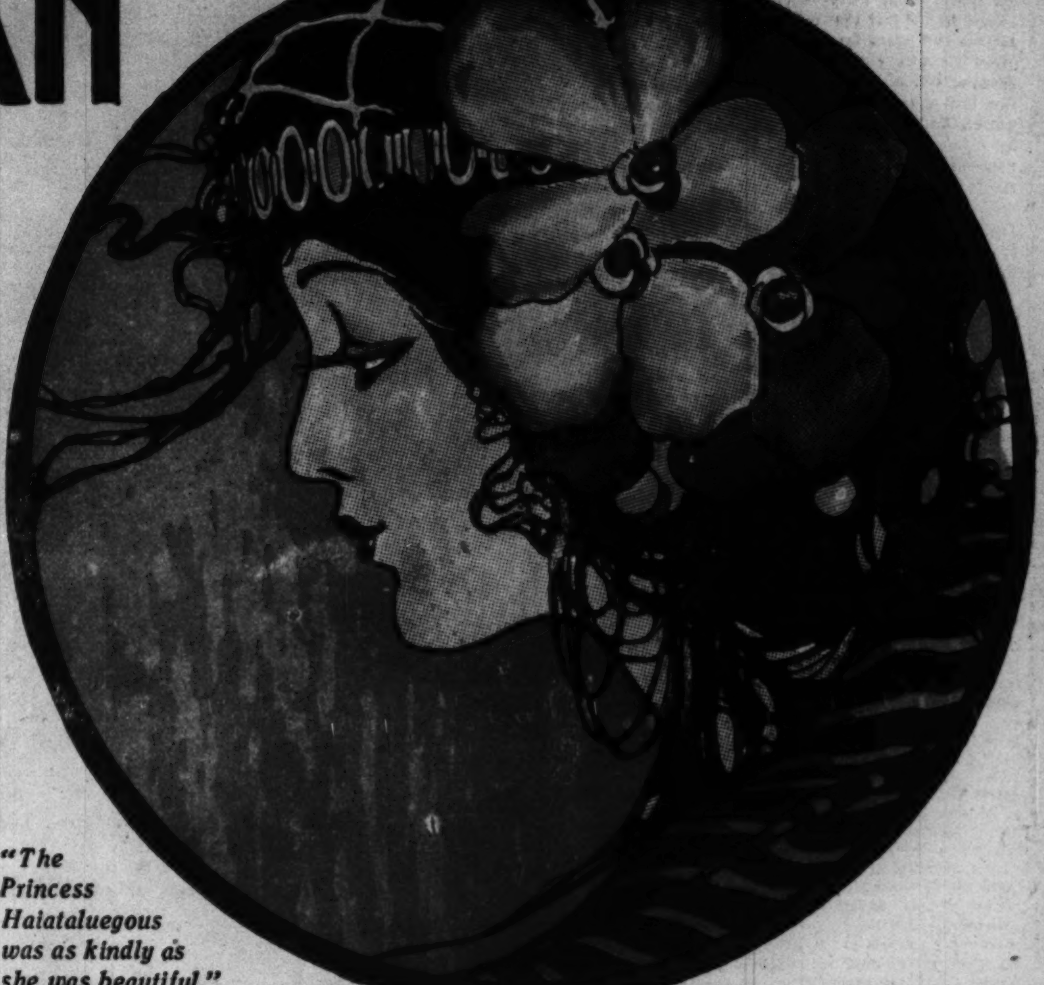
Camaralzaman answered: "Indeed, I have. It has brought nothing but sorrow to me and to its owner, a beautiful princess whom I love more than my life, and from whom I have been parted so long that I fear I shall never see her again."

The Princess Badoura could wait no longer. With a cry of joy she threw herself upon his breast, and the prince, recognizing his lost wife at last, clasped her close.

"But," he exclaimed, in deep astonishment, "how do you come to be here disguised not only as a man but as a king, a king with a queen, whom I have seen beside you?"

"It is a long story," said the princess, "but not as sad a one as yours. Listen and I will tell you all that has happened to me since I woke from my sleep and found you and my jewel both gone."

Camaralzaman listened, and when she came to the latter part of the story exclaimed at the goodness and generosity of the Princess Haiataluegous, who had helped and protected his wife.



"The Princess Haiataluegous was as kindly as she was beautiful."

"But now," asked the prince, "what is to be done to get us all out of this twisted situation? Old King Armanos has given up his throne to you, to be sure, but he is still king, after all, and when he finds you have deceived him he may refuse to let you and me go away again."

"I do not wish to go," said the Princess Badoura, "and I have a plan by which we can all be happy, I am certain. I have told the princess how handsome you are, and how kind and how virtuous, till she is in love with you already. It is the custom of this country for a king to have two wives, if he so choose. I assure you that the princess is so good and so beautiful that you cannot help but love her. Marry her, too, and the three of us can continue to live happily here in this beautiful kingdom, which is not so far from either your home or mine that we may not visit our fathers now and then."

At first the prince was too astounded with the plan of his wife to know what to say. But after he had met the Princess Haiataluegous he consented. All together, the three young people went to the old King Armanos and told him the truth, and, though he was angry at first, he soon forgave the deception that had been practiced upon him.

He questioned Prince Camaralzaman sharply, and as the prince answered him wisely and well, the old king made up his mind at last that the false prince was no finer than the real one, and gave his consent to the marriage of his daughter.

The strange story of the three young people spread so far and interested so many people that the city was thronged for this second wedding, and everywhere the prince and his two brides were hailed with cheers. Prince Camaralzaman was crowned king of the Isle of Ebony and he and his two beautiful wives led a long and happy and prosperous life together in their powerful kingdom.

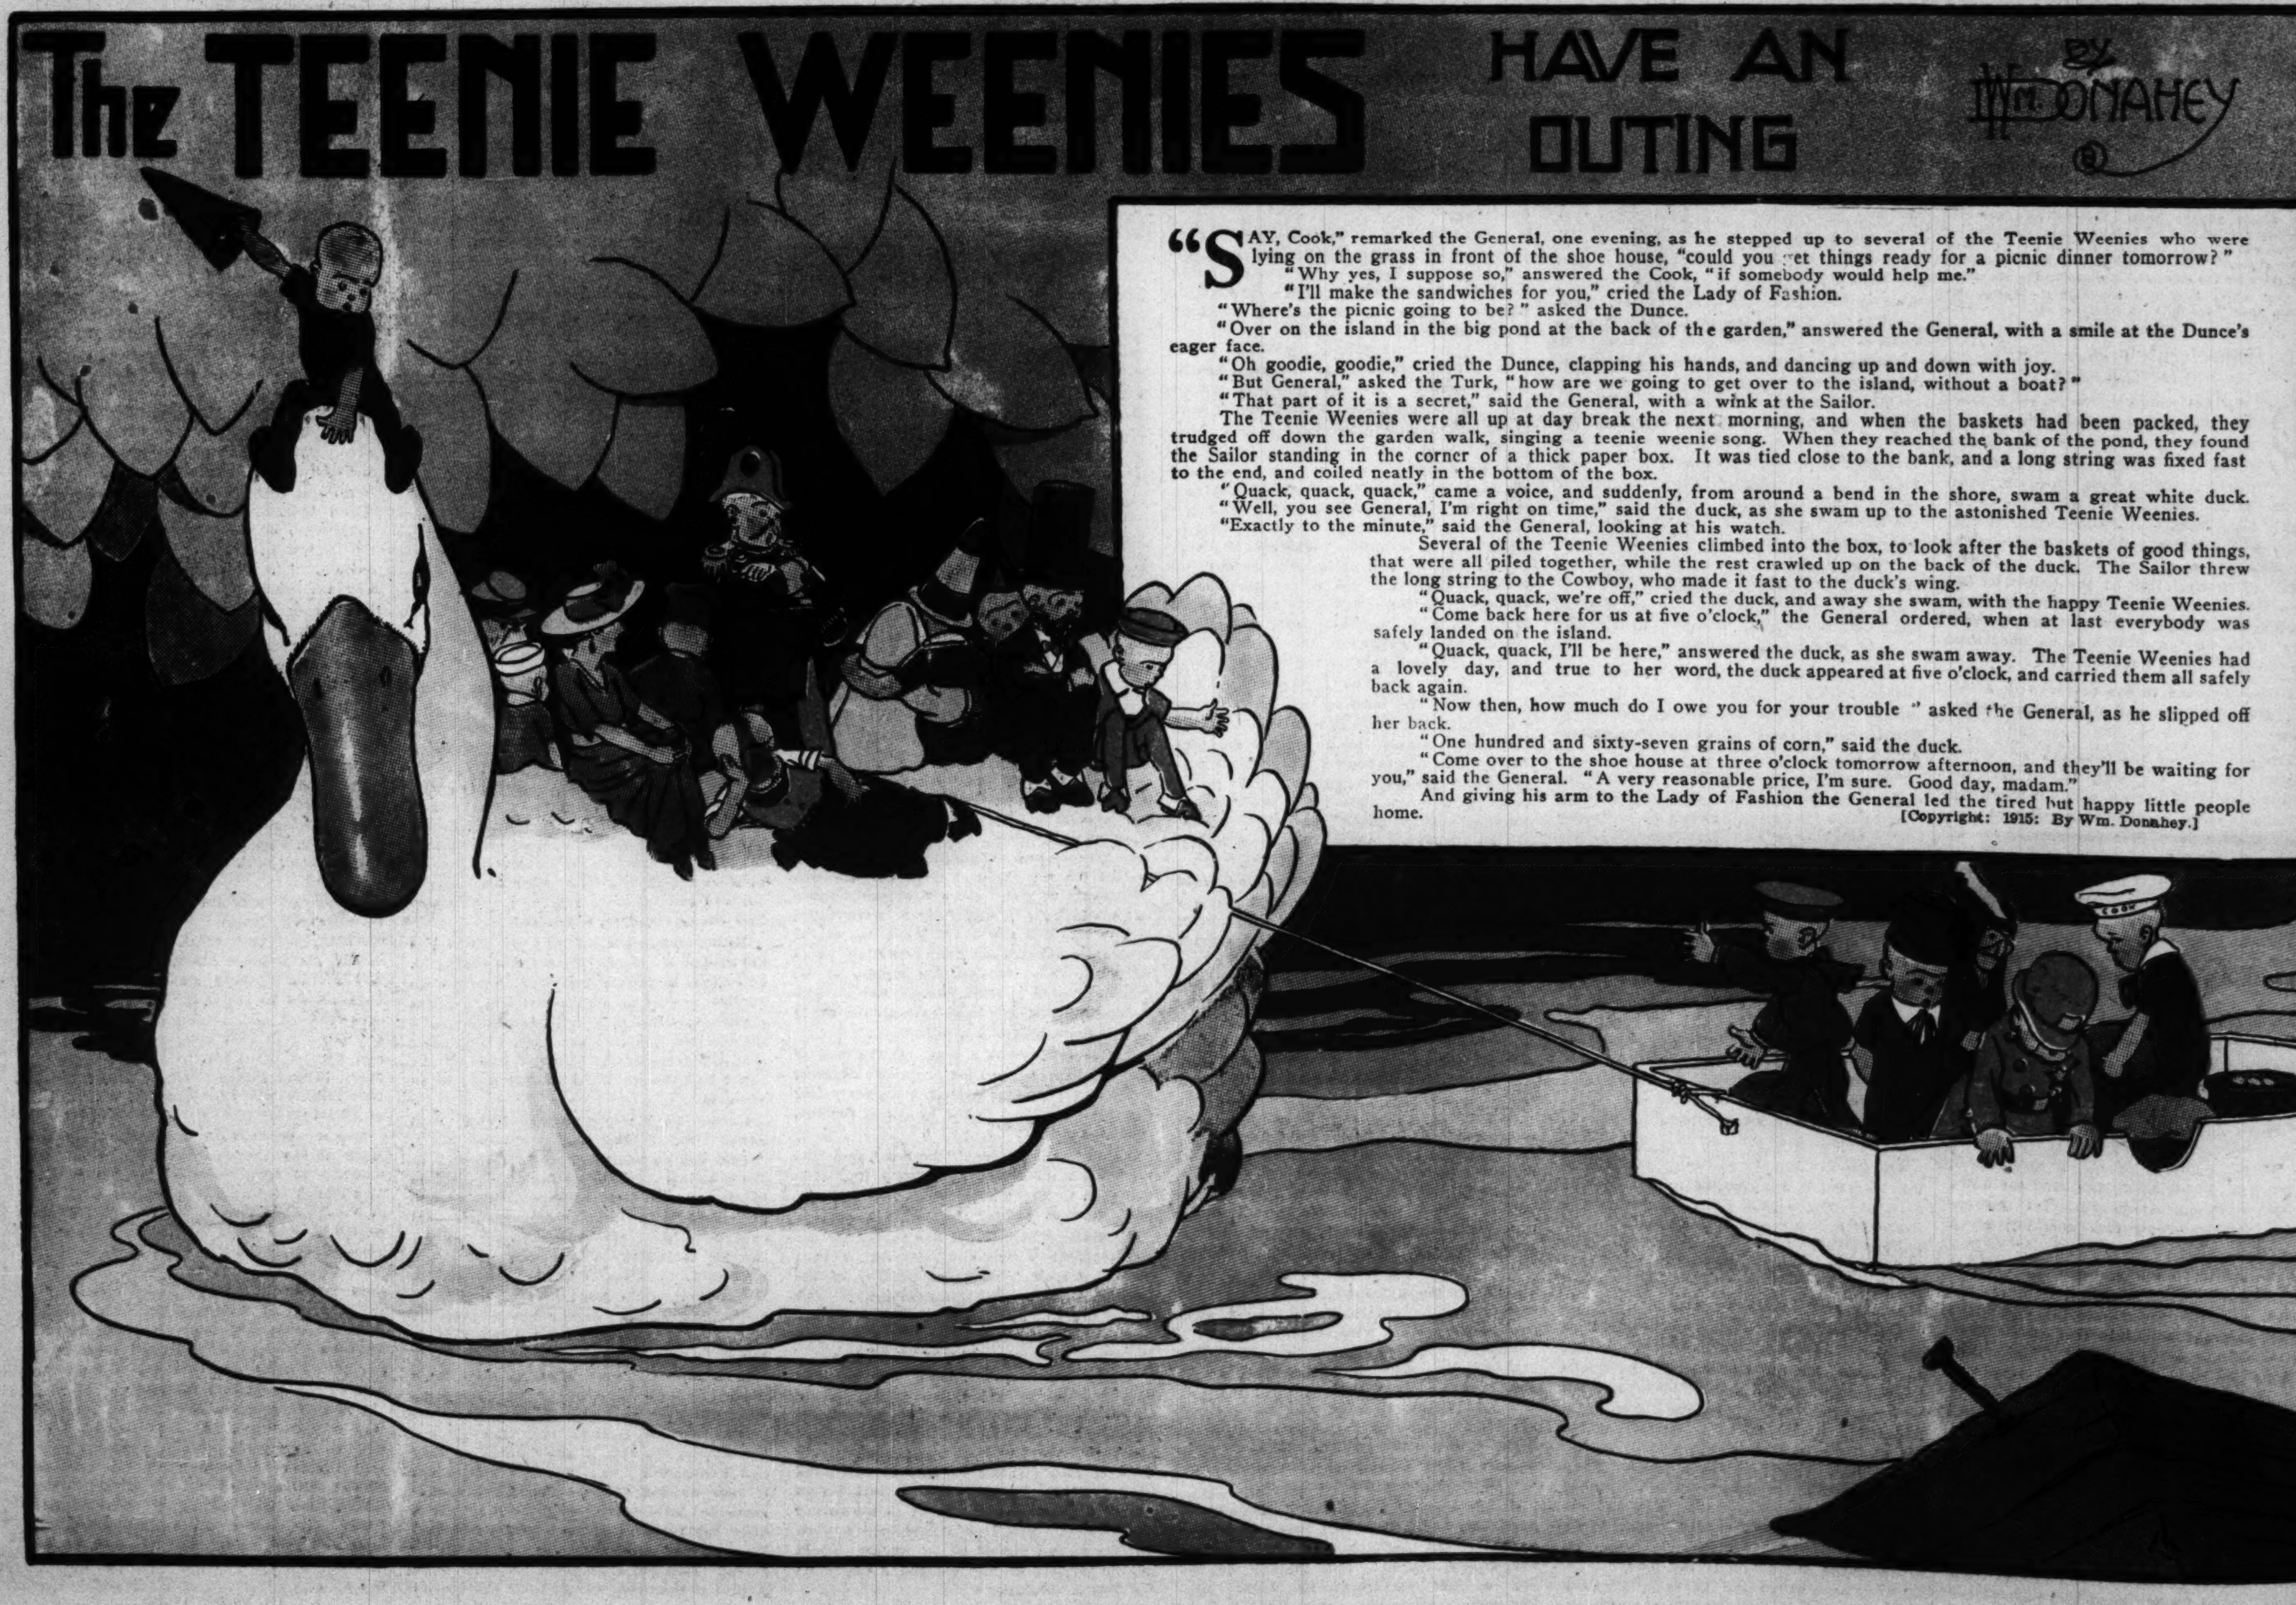
The TEENIE WEENIES HAVE AN OUTING

By
Wm. DONAHEY



"SAY, Cook," remarked the General, one evening, as he stepped up to several of the Teenie Weenies who were lying on the grass in front of the shoe house, "could you get things ready for a picnic dinner tomorrow?"

"Why yes, I suppose so," answered the Cook, "if somebody would help me."

"I'll make the sandwiches for you," cried the Lady of Fashion.

"Where's the picnic going to be?" asked the Dunce.

"Over on the island in the big pond at the back of the garden," answered the General, with a smile at the Dunce's eager face.

"Oh goodie, goodie," cried the Dunce, clapping his hands, and dancing up and down with joy.

"But General," asked the Turk, "how are we going to get over to the island, without a boat?"

"That part of it is a secret," said the General, with a wink at the Sailor.

The Teenie Weenies were all up at day break the next morning, and when the baskets had been packed, they trudged off down the garden walk, singing a teenie weenie song. When they reached the bank of the pond, they found the Sailor standing in the corner of a thick paper box. It was tied close to the bank, and a long string was fixed fast to the end, and coiled neatly in the bottom of the box.

"Quack, quack, quack," came a voice, and suddenly, from around a bend in the shore, swam a great white duck.

"Well, you see General, I'm right on time," said the duck, as she swam up to the astonished Teenie Weenies.

"Exactly to the minute," said the General, looking at his watch.

Several of the Teenie Weenies climbed into the box, to look after the baskets of good things, that were all piled together, while the rest crawled up on the back of the duck. The Sailor threw the long string to the Cowboy, who made it fast to the duck's wing.

"Quack, quack, we're off," cried the duck, and away she swam, with the happy Teenie Weenies.

"Come back here for us at five o'clock," the General ordered, when at last everybody was safely landed on the island.

"Quack, quack, I'll be here," answered the duck, as she swam away. The Teenie Weenies had a lovely day, and true to her word, the duck appeared at five o'clock, and carried them all safely back again.

"Now then, how much do I owe you for your trouble?" asked the General, as he slipped off her back.

"One hundred and sixty-seven grains of corn," said the duck.

"Come over to the shoe house at three o'clock tomorrow afternoon, and they'll be waiting for you," said the General. "A very reasonable price, I'm sure. Good day, madam."

And giving his arm to the Lady of Fashion the General led the tired but happy little people home.

Picturesque Modes Presented in the New Millinery

By

Valérie Bell

CROWNS ARE HIGHER: BRIMS MAY BE NARROW OR FLARING: BUT THE HAT MUST FIT COMFORTABLY ON THE HEAD

WHO was it said something to the effect that: "This season's hat will always carry off last season's gown?" Well, whoever it was, and however true the remark may have been at the time of utterance—and this scribe knows not either the time, or the place, or the perpetrator of said remark—it simply has no application whatsoever right now.

Distinctly different are both the hats and the gowns of the coming season. With the marked change in the silhouette of the fashioned figure, that has established itself since the dog days came around—and you will note that the outline of the fashionable figure and the fashion plates both, and they are not by any means always the one and the same—has changed materially since the early summer, it should be expected simply as a matter of course that the hats and headgear should change likewise.

At present writing there is positively no one shape, or type, that can be said to lead above and beyond all the rest. There are large shapes and very large shapes; and there are small shapes and—but, and let us give due thanks, there are no very small shapes. Those absurd excrescences of pill box persuasion that stick on the top of the head like an English militiaman's cap are conspicuously among the missing in the new season's catalogue.

The vogue of things Chinese is becoming really remarkable. First of all, the new color card takes cognizance of tints and shadings that have been known to the Chinese for centuries, and which today are acknowledged by us occidentals with a Chinese adjective as descriptive. And these are perhaps the most charming and recherche of the new season's offerings.

The Chinese silks and brocades are arriving by every steamer to find that the commission houses are bidding against each other to obtain immediate possession, in hats, gowns, evening wraps, and especially in those fetching little three-piece sets which every smart milliner is making up in large variety—consisting of chapeau, tour de cou, and manchon; otherwise hat, neckpiece, and muff—Chinese weaves and colorings lead the entire procession.

And Chinese shapes, too, are extremely prominent. The pert little mandarin cap—yes, it is a really and truly accurate reproduction in shape, though not in coloring, of the little cap that those fearfully and wonderfully learned Chinese mandarins wear to announce their rank and learning to all and sundry. And it is finished with "a little brown button on top," too, though just as often as not that little brown button is expressed as a thick and straight ostrich pompon; and again just as often as not there is a fetchingly long silk tassel tucked in under the little button. One must beware of this same tassel, though, for it is worn at its most possible best only by the plump faced young school girl. She of the aristocratically slender features must forego this tasseled effect; and the woman who is leaving her twenties behind her—to say nothing of those other anniversaries that come later—would better forget that this showy design ever was invented.

The Chinese sailor, too, is present in several adaptations. One point that will serve to identify this generally becoming shape is that there is quite a deep bandeau tucked in at the back, which gives the somewhat flat top a vastly becoming tilt down over the face. And ribbons are much relied upon both for making and trimming those same Chinese sailors.

Pretty nearly every period of history the world over has been ransacked for ideas and designs to perch upon the heads of fair femininity in the months to come. From Henri Quatre of France—known to the school books as Henry of Navarre—to the Pilgrim Fathers who landed on our stern and rock bound shores some three centuries later, and with several periods and epochs in between; and taking second wind from there on down to the present day, "observation with extensive view surveys mankind from China to Peru," and takes for its own whate'er it thinks it may require.

The high steeple crowned hat of the Pilgrim Fathers (already referred to); the gracious and dashing cavalier shapes that were worn by their opponents; the slashed and embroidered velvet chapeau that the gallants of France were with silken doublet and hose; and the plain high crowned and stiff brimmed hat with the plain stiff buckle in front that the Knickerbocker patroons brought with them from Holland—all these jostle and push each other on the milliners' shelves with and against the Chinese shapes, the Corean helmets, Persian caps, Egyptian veils, Balkan colorings, Italian cockades, French ribbons, and the ingenuity of the American designer.

That fetching little mode, known in former seasons as the Charlotte Corday chapeau, is back again, but in most instances shorn of the extra little touches of frippery that adorned its last appearance. Now it is just a plain little velvet cap with a fluted frill around the face, but is vastly softening and becoming in effect.

Those broad and rather flat shapes with a brim that describes itself best as a cart wheel, and which may be worn either straight or tilted at the most becoming angle, are conspicuous. In satin, velvet, hatters' plush, silk beaver—that with the long and close lying nap, just like a man's high silk hat—and in combination of these, one simply must have at least a single example of this most alluring style for wear with the better gowns.

The best of these have the brim decidedly irregular in shape, longer either from back to front than from side to side, or with one side decidedly broader than the other. Not but that the regular round brim is presented, too; and for those of faultlessly regular features this regular brim is most effective. But since the most of us are not so blessed, then the irregular brim topping the piquantly irregular features will find many adherents.

Since we are talking about features, it is well to note the presentation of the chin strap. If beguiled into purchasing a hat bearing this novel effect, be sure to try it "t'other way around" before discarding it. Not one woman in a hundred can stand to have the angle of jaw and chin so mercilessly defined as does the chin strap achieve; but the wise have already learned, although the season is still young, to tuck it in at the back of the neck. Where it is but a single strap, it were well to add a stiff bow and attach it to the coiffure at the back with a stout pin, so that it then becomes a really smart effect, indeed.

The Watteau and the Fragonard and Marie Antoinette hats are distinctly youthful in style and most deliciously picturesque in both shape and coloring. All the dainty and delicate shades of both satin and velvet are employed for these, and tiny bunches of flowers, fruit, and even grains, such as wheat, rye, and oats, are used lavishly for trimming. Most of these trimmings are in dull and tarnished gold and silver effects, while the flowers and fruits are made of satin or taffetas, usually, and then covered with a gold or silver gauze.

Now as to colors and colorings. Rich and dark shades are considered the best choice. Some deep purples, those shading on both the red and the blue tints but declaring little of either; the raven's wing and midnight blues; the deep wine tones of red, such as Bordeaux, Burgundy, lis de vin, etc.; African brown, seal, bronze, and a warm, rich terra cotta will call the roll of browns that present themselves, while there are but two or three tints in the darker greens that will have much of a run.

Always at this season there are several shapes and shades that are being tried out. They are frankly experiments. If the public accepts them, well and good; and if not, no one is especially disappointed, save, perhaps, the ones who purchase those experiments and find them decidedly passé ere they have ever had a chance to become established.

As for the trimmings on all these new shapes, there is but little new to add. First and foremost, though, there simply must be hand work, and more hand work, and then still more handwork.

Beads, preferably the tiny cut and iridescent ones, are in the highest vogue; and all sorts of designs are worked out with beads applied flat on the shape. In fact, the modish girl this autumn will look, when all dressed up in best bib and tucker, as though she had been taking lessons from the Indians, for beads are to play an important part in the season's trimming schemes.

And after the beads come embroideries. From a blanket stitch to bind the edges of the chapeau, and done in colored worsteds, up to the most elaborately fashioned wreaths and flowers and sprays—likewise accomplished in those crewel wools—hand embroideries rule the roost.

Then the slashings and picotings—these, too, are, of course, done by hand. The French edge, as they term the running in of a fine wire along the outer edge of the brim, whether the shape be large or small, calls for expert hand work. And so it goes: anything and everything that will give employment to a large force and so keep workers busy is favored by fashion.

It was to be expected that with the war almost the sole topic of thought and conversation in Europe headgear should take to itself many of the military outlines and trimmings. But these examples, strange to say, have emanated from our own American designers, rather than from the foreign houses.

The military influence, which, it was confidently expected, would assert itself in well nigh every department of dress, has remained among the things expected, rather than appeared among those that have been seen.

That there are some styles which directly or indirectly owe their inception to the military influence cannot be passed over; but to say that military styles and influences lead in the newer fashions that declare themselves from day to day, that were misleading.

Doris Blake Says

If you were born this week you are Accurate.

Have you a perplexing love affair in which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake, care "The Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply send stamped and addressed envelope.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

TRULY, you are a fortunate being if your birthday falls during the Virgo sign, and especially so if it comes during this week. Good health is your greatest asset, and if you would forswear all medicines but fresh air, wholesome diet, early hours, and regular habits you will never need further medical attention.

Strange to say, you have a perfect mania for medicine taking, and any new cure holds an almost irresistible fascination for you. Your physician's attention is necessary for every little pain, which is more often imaginary. Make up your mind to forget these harmless aches; you and your friends will be all the happier if you do.

You are apt to be neat in personal appearance if born on Aug. 30 or 31. The fates have also been kind enough to bestow upon you a love of music and a discriminating mind which leans toward the sciences. Though you are quick tempered, you are not malicious.

Your love of home and family is noticeable from childhood, and you are especially loving and affectionate towards your parents. Nothing is ever too good for your family. This same trait makes you a good neighbor, and added to it a keen sense of justice, exceeding popularity is the result.

Inasmuch as you are mechanical, you are a natural investigator with a remarkable faculty for getting at the root of matters.

The order and method of your mind you carry into business and personal habits, so that you are a valuable person in organizing everything that needs to be reduced to a method.

Born on Sept. 1 or 2, you are overflowing with good nature, original in speech; indeed, even odd at times. Your well balanced mind makes you accurate and thorough, especially along mechanical lines. Sometimes you undertake more than your hands can hold, and as a result time is wasted in trying to pick it up again.

Generally, but not always, you are reliable, but the slips you make are the kind that are easily forgiven and nine times out of ten your good nature will force a laugh instead of a well deserved scolding. You are domestic and strongly attached to home, though you are not a stay at home if there is excitement outside. People just can't help liking you, you are so frank and generous.

Those born during the preceding four days will be most successful as journalists and musicians. But if your birthday falls between Sept. 3 and 7 the following vocations will be best: Engineer, builder, machinist, watchmaker, or a skilled artisan.

Between these last mentioned dates lies more good luck, if we may use such a term in connection with a birthday.

Your faults are few and your virtues many. Chief among the latter is your blessed ability to happily adapt yourself to changed conditions. You are a true, reliable friend, faithful to an employer, and generally contented with your lot.

The deeper currents of thought are what interest you so that you are not moved by superficial reasoning. You have one definite aim in view and nothing will cause you to waver. And you will come out all right.

The Virgo colors are amber, gold, and black, with turquoise spots; the birthstones jasper and hyacinth.

A Virgo marriage to another of its sign, Aug. 23-Sept. 22, is a wonderfully sympathetic union, if each will give up his domineering tendencies. Virgo and Libra, Sept. 24-Oct. 23, make a brilliant couple. Sagittarius, Nov. 23-Dec. 22, may also prove a congenial helpmate.

No Gift; Just a Note.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 17. A gentleman friend of mine is going to graduate from business college, and he has sent me a graduation ticket. Does this mean that I must give him a graduation present, and if so, what should I give him? AIMEE."

No, it doesn't mean that you must give him a gift—in fact, it is never proper for a girl to make a gift to a man unless she is engaged to be married to him. Write him a nice little note of congratulation and good wishes.

Their Religion Differs.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a boy 22 years old. Last September I met a girl six months my junior, and we have been keeping steady company since. We love each other dearly, though she is a Catholic and I am a German Lutheran. She is willing to marry me, but she will not change her religion, and I feel that I cannot. I am afraid we would not be perfectly happy unless one of us did change. What can we do? It seems impossible to part.

"A LOVER."

I am afraid that you will have to part if you cannot agree upon your religious views. If you are both deeply and seriously interested in your own religions there could not but be discord. Religion does play an important part in life, after all, you know.

Real Love Stories

Her Phantom Lover.

I WAS the only child of fond and indulgent parents and when about sixteen they hired an Italian, 30 years old, to give me lessons in music. He was of dark complexion and spoke in strong foreign accent, and seemed to live only in his profession. I made wonderful progress under his proficient teaching. My parents were much pleased and often invited him to our home.

At last I began to watch and long for his coming, and thus the weeks went by. One beautiful morning when we were together in the garden he fell upon his knees, and in strong and violent terms told me how much he loved me and begged me to love him a little and become his wife.

His pleadings were of short duration (for was not he the idol of my thoughts?) and in a few minutes I was in his arms, his promised wife.

I do not know how long we sat and exchanged words of love, but at least until my father appeared upon the scene, and then how changed everything was, for he bade him be gone and never speak to me again. Told him he had betrayed the confidence he had placed in him. After a stormy interview my dear one left. Then my father told me to go to my room, where I wept and refused to be comforted.

I told my parents that I could never love another and would never be happy again. They did all in their power to make me forget him and tried in every way to make me happy.

Thus four years went by and I had never heard one word from my lover, but was always looking for him and believing he would come for me.

One day I read in a daily paper of his marriage to another. For many days after I was ill. My recovery was slow and I was a changed girl. I lived only for my parents.

About two years later a man some years my senior told me that he loved me and asked me to be his wife. I told him of my love and sorrow of my life; said I could respect him but my love had been for another. With this answer he seemed satisfied and my parents were much pleased. In a few months we were married.

I found in my husband every quality of a good and noble man, and at times really thought I loved him. Then my old love would come back and I would be sorrowful. One evening we were going to a party at the home of a friend, and as we were about to leave the house my husband said there would be a surprise for me, as my old music teacher would be there. I nearly lost my senses; said I could not go; but my husband said, "Come, dear, I want you to meet him again," so I made a brave effort and went.

My eyes scanned the room for the dear familiar face, but he was not there; but later in the evening our host said, "Let me present you to our musician and wife." My heart beat wildly as I turned to gaze upon a dark man and woman of unkempt appearance. He mumbled of former acquaintance. I nearly fainted. Was he the man that I had kept enthroned in my heart all these long years? I sought my husband, told him I was not well, and asked to be taken home, and when in our own home I told him the illusion had vanished forever and that he was the only love in my heart.

This was many years ago and our hair is white, but he is still my own dear and loved husband. My parents have long since passed on, and how grateful I am to them that they rescued me from making the mistake of my life.

My Most Embarrassing Moment.

Slid Swiftly on "Turning."

I was playing in a tennis tournament. I had just finished serving and my opponent slipped the ball right over the net. I was nervous and I rushed down to the ball, ran past it, and slipped right under the net on my stomach. O, such rosy cheeks!

Close to His Bosom.

It was at a party. Among the guests was an elocutionist whom I knew more than well, and to whom I often quoted some of his own poems, in a spirit of fun. Coming down the darkened stairway, I saw him standing at the foot of it, and when I neared the last steps I leaned forward and said in my most affectionate manner:

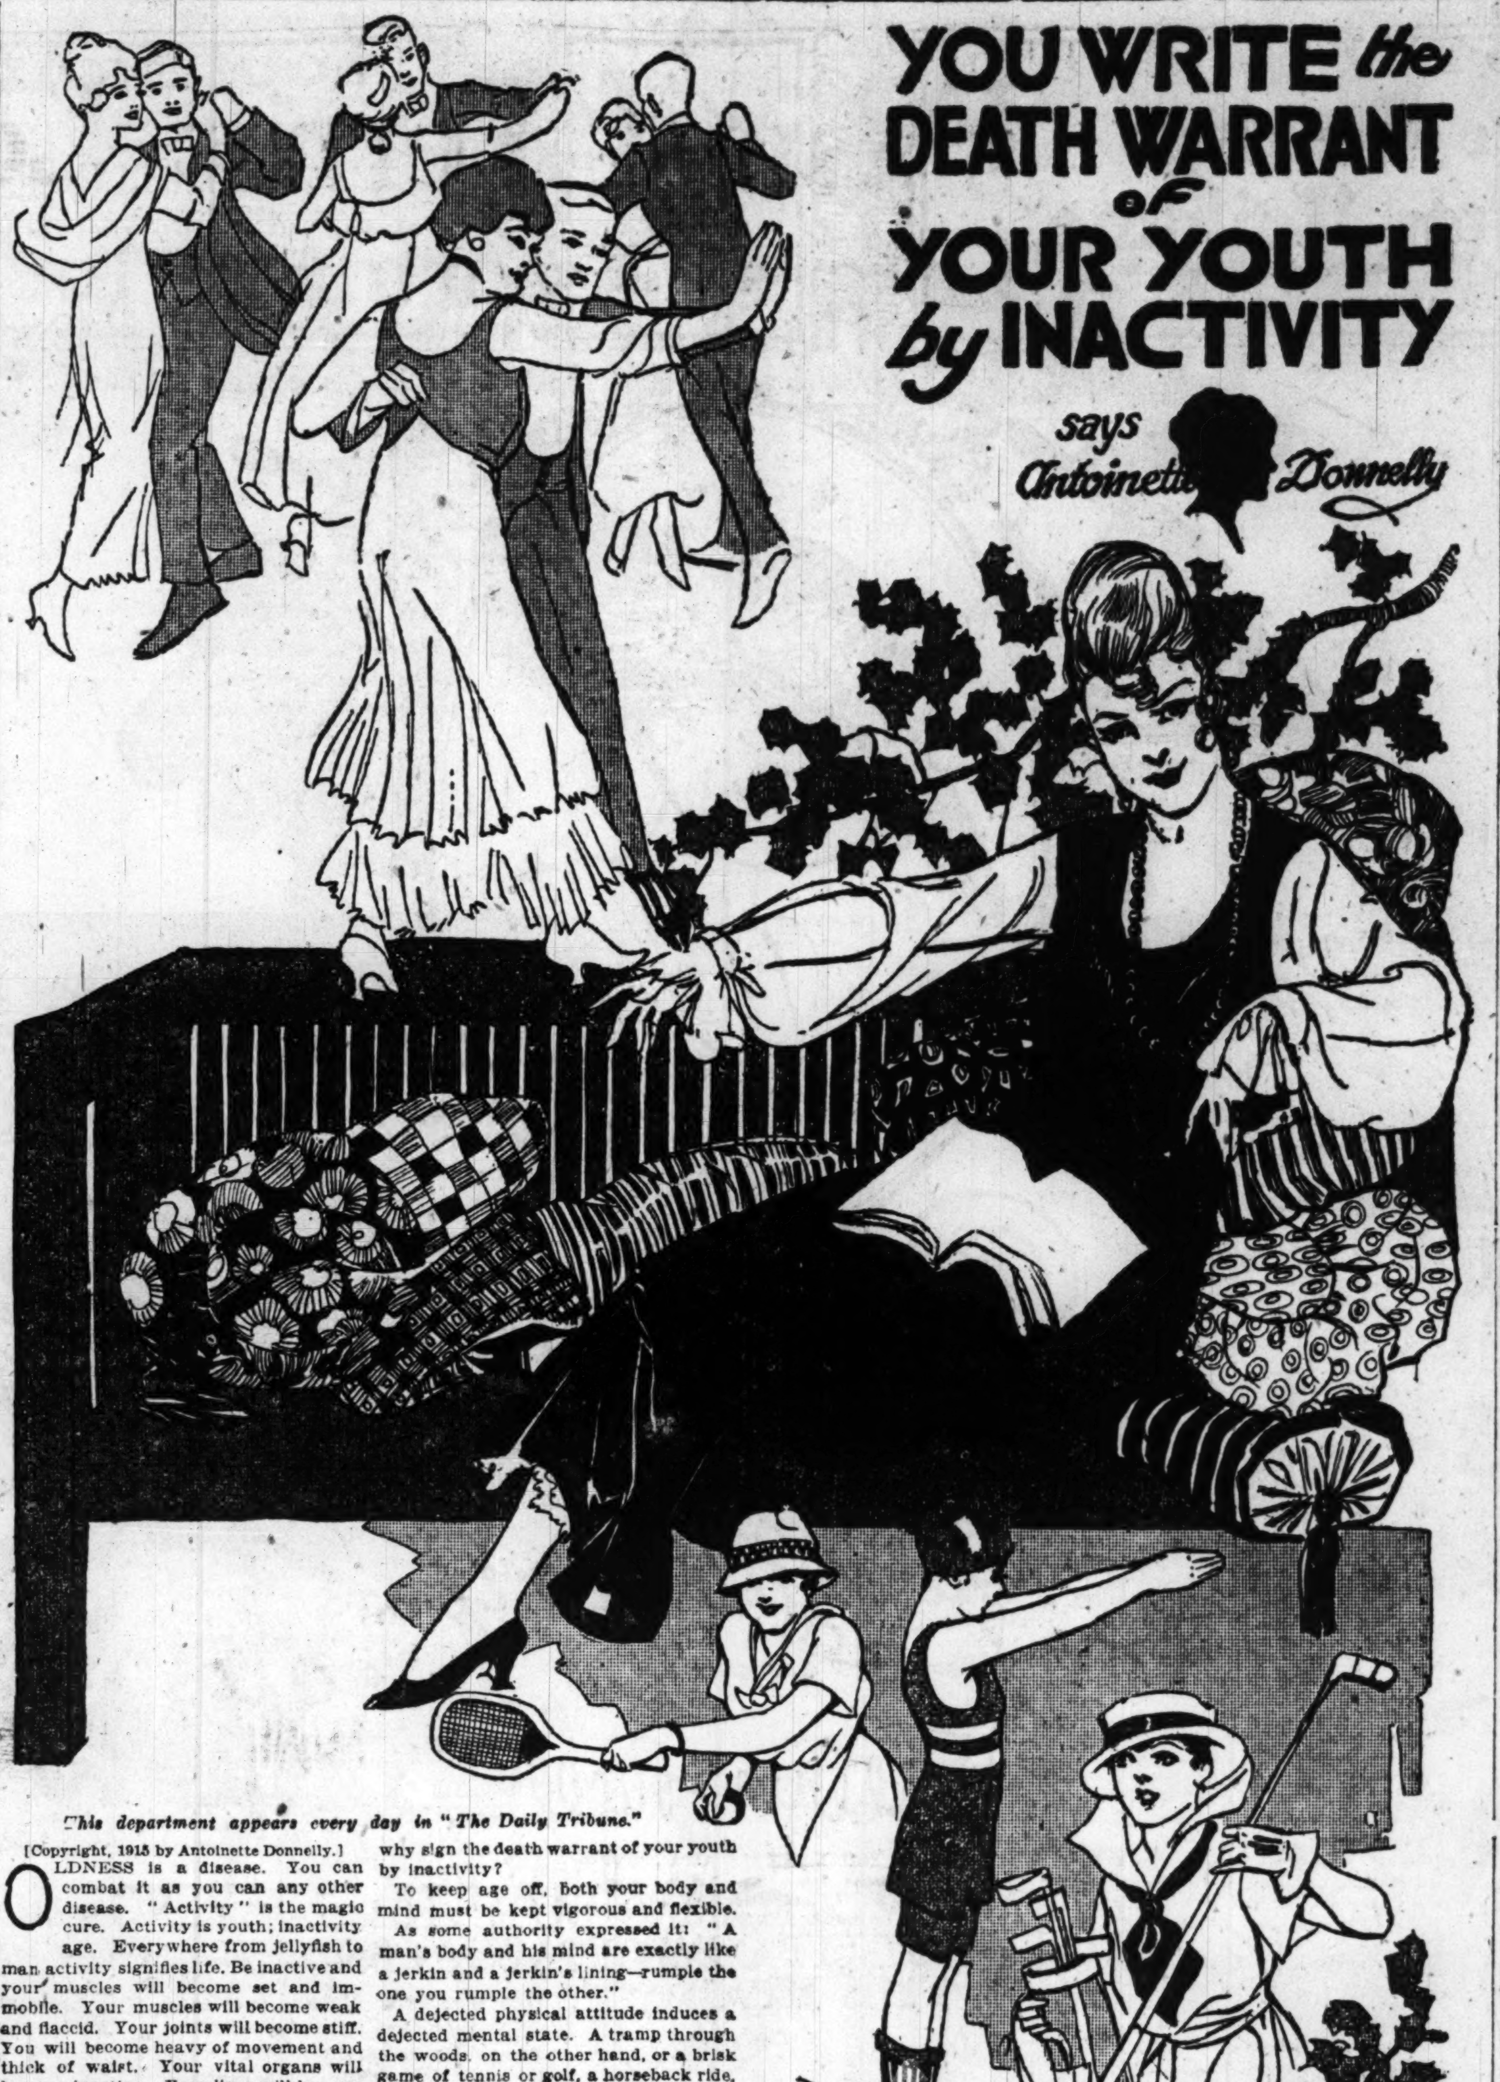
"Come to my arms, my sweet, my sweet;
Close to my bosom I can feel your heart beat."

"Not yet you can't," the man answered, and just then he turned so that his face was in the light and I saw that it wasn't the elocutionists at all but a stranger. At that, though, I'll bet he heard it beat.

ESTELLA.

YOU WRITE the DEATH WARRANT of YOUR YOUTH by INACTIVITY

says Antoinette Donnelly



This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

[Copyright, 1915 by Antoinette Donnelly.]

OLDNESS is a disease. You can combat it as you can any other disease. "Activity" is the magic cure. Activity is youth; inactivity age. Everywhere from jellyfish to man activity signifies life. Be inactive and your muscles will become set and immobile. Your muscles will become weak and flaccid. Your joints will become stiff. You will become heavy of movement and thick of waist. Your vital organs will become inactive. Your liver will become sluggish and melancholic. Your enthusiasm wanes and your interest in life becomes narrow and stale.

When this happens then you are no longer young. Age has you in her ugly clutches. Maybe you are only in your twenties, maybe in your thirties, but if you are inactive you are not young! You are twenty or thirty years old instead of that many years young.

Youngness means muscular freedom and strong, firm muscles. Activity gives you these qualities of youth. Youngness means an erect, pliant attitude, alertness, and buoyancy. These virtues you don't acquire by lazy movements or lolling about on lazy verandas. Youngness means freedom from obesity and heaviness of movement. Activity is the only thing that will keep the flesh from settling on you in old age lumps. Remember this the next time you are within walking distance of your destination and you are tempted to ride.

Remember it when you feel an inclination to remain lazily lolling in the hammock or big chair and you are tempted to refuse an invitation to swim or dance or play a game of tennis. Remember it when the unholy thought goes through your mind that "this morning you'll have breakfast in bed." That means you are going to remain inactive a couple of hours longer.

Remember it when you feel too lazy to brush your hair, your teeth, and tone up your skin with a few minutes' massage.

Remember you are giving the "come on" signal to age when you succumb to any temptation not to bestir yourself. Also remember age never fails to answer that call.

Look around you at the men and women you know. Who are the youthful among them? Aren't they the eternally active members of society? Aren't they women who accomplish a great deal, whether their duties are those of the household or outside of it? Aren't the men the men who do things and get somewhere in their vocations? And aren't they the men who have time outside their day's work to go in for active pleasures such as dancing, swimming, golfing, bowling, and other forms of youth retaining exercise? Of course they are.

Take another look around among your friends and acquaintances. Who are the old ones? Aren't they the folk who have always some lazy excuse for not enjoying life? Aren't the women those who are forever hypnotizing themselves into inactivity with such excuses as the rain or too cold or headache or a tired feeling or a little embroidery? And aren't they women with heavy bodies, dull eyes, and colorless complexions nine times out of ten?

It isn't necessary to dwell at length on the fact inactivity of body means mental stagnation. It means a setness of mind, chronic garrulousness, self-centeredness, and a most unhealthy tendency toward neurasthenia. You know from your own experience that the days upon which you loll about and lie around your mind is in a disgruntled, dissatisfied, and discontended state. You know, too, that when you become interested again in something involving active physical energy your mind takes on a cheerier outlook and the whole course of your life becomes brighter as the blood quickens through your arteries.

Knowing this from your own experience why sign the death warrant of your youth by inactivity?

To keep age off, both your body and mind must be kept vigorous and flexible.

As some authority expressed it: "A man's body and his mind are exactly like a jerkin and a jerkin's lining—rumple the one you rumple the other."

A dejected physical attitude induces a dejected mental state. A tramp through the woods, on the other hand, or a brisk game of tennis or golf, a horseback ride, a swim, or even a plunge into your bathtub followed by a few minutes' physical exercise will dispel like magic mental troubles and give you a feeling of hopefulness and buoyancy, synonyms for youth.

The elixir of life is the furnishing of new stimulus to body and brain. That's why you should learn to play the game of life as children play it. Go in for all the fun you can get. There's no such thing as not having time to do this. If you make time for this part of life you'll have more time than you have now for the serious side of life. You will be able to do twice as much as you are doing now.

Learn to walk with the light, buoyant step of youth. Romp with the children. Take a brisk run in the fresh air and dance.

Antoinette Donnelly's Answers.

MADELINE: Yes, olive oil is good for the complexion. It acts on the liver. Take a teaspoonful about an hour before breakfast and at bedtime. Before dipping your hands in hot water rub the cuticle and all about the nail with cold cream. You can undoubtedly remove the stains from your hands by using lemon juice. If that is not sufficient mix it with powdered pumice.

* *

JENNIE: This formula will remove the little warts from your hands, and it will not spoil their roundness: One dram of salicylic acid and one ounce of flexible collodion. Mix well. Apply with a tiny camel's hair brush for four nights. Then soak in hot water. This will take away part of the horny covering. Continue the treatment until the wart has disappeared.

For and By BUSINESS GIRLS

Mary King

Miss King will be glad to help business girls solve their problems. If you want a personal answer send a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address Miss Mary King, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago.

Mistakes of Stenographers.

THE cause of a great many of the mistakes made by stenographers in writing letters, many of them claim, in the fact that so many men do not know how to dictate a letter. If you question a number of stenographers on the subject they will all have something to say about the failings of the men for whom they have worked.

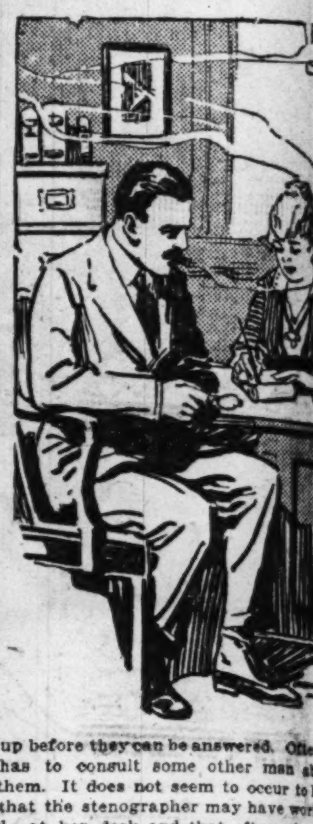
A stenographer dislikes having to ask a man to repeat when he is dictating. The principal reason is that so often it breaks the man's train of thought so that the stenographer has to read the whole letter back to him before he can go on and finish what he has to say, and he is apt to be impatient. Then, too, the stenographer does not want to risk being accused of inattention. When a man tries to dictate a letter while smoking it is almost impossible for the stenographer to catch every word he says. He cannot help mumbling some of his words when puffing on a cigar or cigaret. Some men when asked to repeat are annoyed, and many girls would rather take a chance on getting it right than interrupt. Then if the stenographer guesses incorrectly her employer thinks she is either stupid or careless.

Some men who are naturally composed and at their ease under other conditions almost drive their stenographers wild by their nervous habits while dictating letters. It is trying to the stenographer when the dictator paces up and down the floor while talking, or pounds on the desk with his first to emphasize his remarks, or taps on the floor with his foot as an accompaniment to his sing-song. After years of experience with careless dictators a girl usually gets used to them and can turn out good work in spite of the handicap. But she does feel the strain on her nerves.

It is the young girl just starting out who has a difficult time with the nervous or careless dictator. A beginner is always nervous and timid and to have a man growl out a lot of unintelligible words from which she has to write a sensible business letter makes her more nervous and she makes absurd blunders. When his letters are not written as he expected they would be the man puts the entire blame on the stenographer and thinks she is hopelessly stupid.

The man who wastes his stenographer's time is also unpopular. He sends for his stenographer and never even glances at his mail until she is waiting, pencil in hand, for him to start dictating. Then he looks over his correspondence and finds that some of the letters require looking up before they can be answered. Often he has to consult some other man about them. It does not seem to occur to him that the stenographer may have work to do at her desk and that often when he keeps her waiting at his desk it means that she has to work overtime to get the mail out on time.

Business girls do not expect to have everything made easy for them, but it is too bad that their work should be made harder by thoughtless employers.



ETIQUETTE by ELIZABETH VAN RENSSELAER

Any question on etiquette will be answered if you write to Elizabeth Van Rensselaer, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply inclose a stamped, addressed envelope. Please write on one side of the paper only.

UNFAILING courtesy toward older people, gentleness toward children, and politeness toward all who are serving you are the hallmarks of the truly well bred. Minor points of etiquette are not so important—though it is comforting to be familiar with them—as this underlying intention of kindness. One of the mainstays of the well bred attitude toward the world is a soft, low voice. If the voice is not raised, it is almost impossible to quarrel. The usual accompaniment to an altercation is a high pitched voice. A shrill tone is far more provocative than any words it may carry. Avoid any discussion that borders on the acrimonious. Don't forget the wise man's adage: "It pays to let people be mistaken." With these rules observed, your manners will be perfect.

SARAH H.: It is not customary for a girl or a grown woman to escort a boy or man caller to the hall and to help him on with his coat. If he is a cousin or an old friend it is not improper to stand in the sitting room doorway and chat with him until he departs; but if he is a formal caller, make your adieus in the parlor and let him go.

J. H.: Fold your napkin only enough to keep it from being a clumsy mess and place it beside your plate when you leave the table at a dinner party. If you are told that you are to take a certain woman out to dinner, when the dinner is announced go to her and say, "I am to have the pleasure of escorting you," and offer her your right arm. See that she gets seated before you seat yourself.

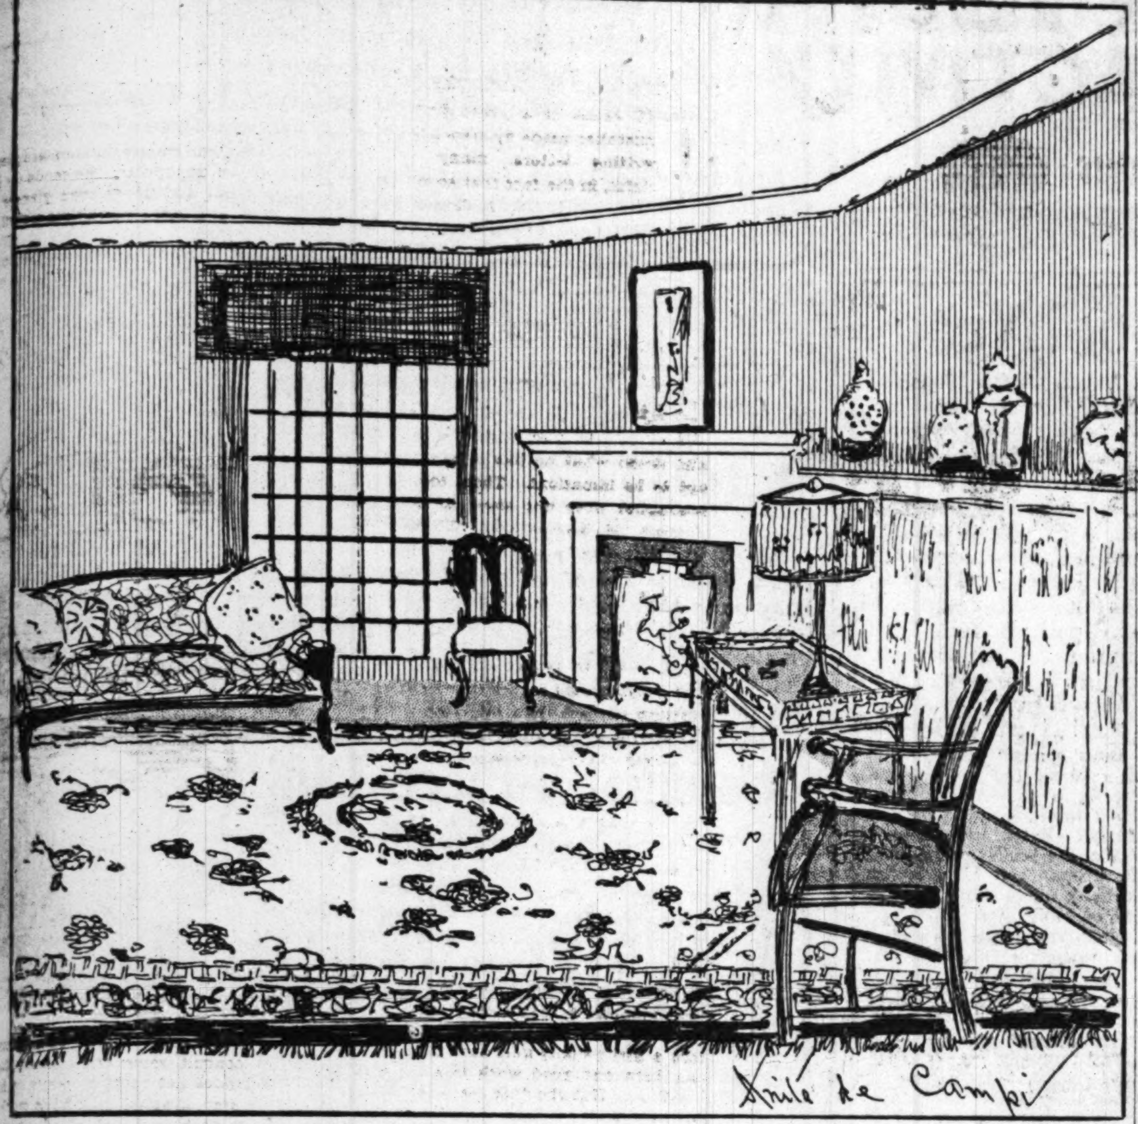
The Home Harmonious

In Decorations Small Designs and Neutral Tints Are Always Safe.

Anita de Campi



THE custom of having the "spring cleaning" done in the fall seems to become more confirmed every year, and the reason is obvious. The city house is naturally dirtier in summer, when the windows are all open, than it is in winter. Redecorating that is done in the spring is often faded and dilapidated by fall. During the winter we are more confined to the house, so it is in the fall really that everything should be freshly renovated and prepared for the term of sheltering comfort and hospitality.

The time has come around again to begin to think of the subject of wall paper, paint, and calcimine. Of course, we are all a little dissatisfied with decorations as they stand. It is a mighty good thing to stop for a minute and analyze that discontent before making a fresh choice at random, and to let your new choice be based on the reason of the recognized dissatisfaction.

Do you want to change this or that room simply for the sake of change? Then find something as distinctly different as possible. Do you realize that the color of the room has been good, but the design of the paper atrocious? Then choose something of the same color, but finer in design. Have you learned that good wall decoration must always be flat? Then banish those bulging, swaying florals and scrolls forever. The real progress that we make in the cultivation of our taste is marked by the things we have learned to no longer like.

Several things come to my mind in thinking about the retrimming of a room or rooms, that fairly demand consideration before a definite decision can be made as to what the best wall covering may be. One point is: "What is the most beautiful thing that is to be used in the room?" If, for example, you have an unusually beautiful Chinese rug, colorful and exquisitely patterned, do not have a brilliantly designed side wall to kill the pattern and color of your rug. Choose rather some neutral tone, and fine, almost invisible design. The same suggestion applies in case of pictures being used. The wall decoration must not be allowed to detract from the pictures, but must quietly subserve them.

Let your own personality, too, enter into the scheme of things. By personality I mean all that pertains to your exterior person. If you are fair, blue eyed, and with delicate coloring, let your color scheme correspond with your own fair tinting; and if you are of the oriental type, choose deep rich hues. Select your hangings as you would select your clothes. Make sure, above all things, that the colors with which you surround yourself are becoming. Nay, go even farther—see that they are flattering. Always to appear at your best shows a willingness to please those about you that is a mark of true refinement and cultivation.

Avoid showy papers. Small, conventional designs and neutral tints are always safe. They may look deadly when seen in the roll, but when in the rooms they accentuate the colors and shapes of the objects for which they form a background. It can scarcely ever be a mistake to use papers that are printed in imitation of fabrics.

If you learn to distinguish between "conventional" designs and "realistic" designs, you will have made great strides in your understanding of interior decoration. Those things are realistic that are commonly described as "natural." "Oh, what lovely flowers! How natural they are!" is an exclamation often heard. It stamps the one who makes it as being entirely untrained in the first principles of decorative art. Carpets, cushions, covers, wall hangings, and draperies must not partake of the quality of paintings. They must not be covered with "natural" birds and flowers. In fact, they must show not the least modeling—they must be flat. No one part of a wallpaper design may be allowed to seem higher or lower relief than the other. This, in a word, is what is meant by "conventional." It is the opposite of natural.

Miss de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to interior decorations. Address your letter to Miss Anita de Campi, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Inclose a stamped, addressed envelope if you wish a personal reply.

Stenciling is more in vogue this season than it has ever been before. Penciling and stenciling are being most effectively combined. It is done on paint, plastering, paper, or calcimine. The mode is to scatter the design throughout the room at irregular intervals. It may be placed on the ceiling in three or four spots, repeated several times on the frieze and side wall, and seen again on a cushion or wooden box top in the room. The most brilliant colors are used in carrying out these stencils, the background being, of course, flat and dull, and the ceiling and side walls all in one color.

Another fad of the moment is to have the side walls tinted, while the ceiling and frieze are papered in some figured paper. An old gold room, for example, has a ceiling and drop covered with a paper in small cubes and squares and triangles, representing every possible shade of peacock blue and gray, and touches of emerald green.

In small apartments a sense of space is best attained by having the paper the same color throughout. Variety is had by differing the sort of paper. An apartment done all in a melting, atmospheric old blue has silk flocks paper in the formal rooms, chambray in the bedroom, and oatmeal paper in the dining room.

Some of the new wallpapers showing Japanese designs in color on a black ground are wonderfully striking. But while they are lovely in themselves, they call for a certain type of furnishing, and would look funny, indeed, with most of our domestic furniture. Japanese papers, showing decorative flowers and birds on a parchment colored ground, are more adaptable.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING-HAND

By MARION HARLAND

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

"I HAVE hesitated to make my wants known to you for fear you might inform me you were not carrying on a correspondence bureau, but reading in the Corner of one kind woman's offer to correspond with a shut-in has encouraged me. I am what you might call a shut-out—a young woman in the prime of life who has to take the rest cure. People are kind to me and I have many friends. Most of the time I can keep myself happy. There are so many pleasant things to think about and so much to read. But there are a few days when I am lonely and despondent, and I think of others—O, so many others!—who are fighting the same dreadful disease. I believe they are doing the same things. I wonder are they thinking the same things? What are they reading? Would it not be a pleasure and a comfort to exchange thoughts and feelings? I am sure the Corner reaches both men and women who belong to the Fresh air club, and I would be glad to hear from either. "M. G."

Are there some of these "shut-outs" who would care to get in touch with the writer of this letter? I am sure there must be those who have points of interest in common with her, and it might do much to cheer and encourage her if they would write to her. I cannot think of anything more depressing to an active person than a "rest cure," and my sympathy and good will go out to M. G.

Thankful for Silk Pieces.

"I wish to take this means of thanking the Cornerites who have so generously remembered me with silk pieces. I had no idea that I would receive so many answers to my request, and the silks are so lovely!

"I have tried to answer each friend personally, but some of the addresses have become faded en route, so I am thanking them through you and hoping that perhaps some time I may be able to return this kindness of the givers in some way. MRS. J. I. T."

I trust that the givers with whom this correspondent was not able to communicate may see this letter and take the evidence of her appreciation to themselves.

Corresponds With Invalid.

"I sent music to Mrs. F. E. B. and received a grateful acknowledgment. I am still corresponding with the lame daughter of Mrs. C. E. S., who says she enjoys letters immensely. I receive much good from the Corner. I. A. Y."

This is part of a letter asking for the addresses of several others to whom the correspondent feels she can be of service. She says that she receives much good from the Corner, and I have a strong impression that she is one of those who give fully as much as they receive. I am glad to know there are many others like her.

Wants Old Music.

"I see in the Corner that Mrs. E. E. S. has music for beginners. I would like to have some for our four boys. If she has any old pieces, not popular, such as 'Meditation,' 'Star of the Sea,' 'Silver Threads Among the Gold,' 'Robin's Return,' I would be glad to get them, and am more than willing to pay parcel post. I belong to the working class and everything counts. A. A."

I am sorry that the music offered by Mrs. E. E. S. had been given away before this letter arrived. Surely, however, there must be others of the constituency who have such music. I shall keep A. A.'s name on file, and hope to have application for it at an early day.

Letters for Crippled Girl.

"Although I am only a girl of 14, I read your Corner with much interest, and I notice that a reader desires information with regard to 'The Song of the Lark.' Jules Breton, a French artist, painted this picture. The girl is a French peasant on her way to work in a field. Breton's best pictures are of the every-day working class. If there is any girl of my age or younger, who is a cripple or a shut-in, I would be glad to exchange letters with her. R. H. R."

I am glad to have young girls among the readers of this department, and I am sure some cripple or shut-in girl would be happy to correspond with H. R. H. I will keep her address on file. I am also much obliged for the information she sends.

The Married Man Problem!

Have you in your experience ever faced the married man problem? How did you face it? Were you brought to your senses, and how? What was the outcome? "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on the subject of the Married Man Problem. No manuscripts returned. Address Doris Blake, "Chicago Tribune."

She Jailed Him.

One woman faced the problem in an unusual and effective way. The husband was a rising business man and an all around good fellow. He had been a good sport before marriage, but after wedding a charming wife he seemed perfectly satisfied to warm his feet at his own fireside. After the fourth child was born the wife became ill and the household was thrown into confusion. The maid left and the man, tired of his own cooking, sent his wife to his mother and foraged for himself in restaurants.

Fate double crossed him by leading him to a place where a pretty waitress served him. He began to say interesting things to her. Day by day his interest grew and he began to make her gifts and take her on auto spins.

His wife was informed of her husband's infatuation. She took a hand in the game and by her decisive action averted a double shipwreck. She had him locked up in a jail cell and brought his rival to witness his humiliation. The rival wept, but the wife scorned such weakness. The husband regards his punishment as a unique experience and does not blame his wife for her harsh action. K. L. T.

Does Woman Ever Propose?

Did you ever know a woman who proposed? "The Sunday Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published. Your name will not be published. Address Doris Blake, "The Tribune," Chicago.

When the Ladder Slipped.

One day when I went around to see my lady friend I found her on a stepladder hanging a picture. Of a sudden the ladder began to slip and I took hold of it just in time, but was obliged to hold her entire weight for a minute. When she got down off the ladder, turning to me, she said: "Well, that showed you can support me." Of course, I agreed, and proved it later. C. E. S.

While Popping Corn.

We had been keeping company for a number of years, but he never had the nerve to propose.

One night he called at the house. I was popping corn. I handed him the popper, saying innocently: "Don't you want to pop?" We both laughed and that made it easier for him. He popped the question then and there. S. M. K.

Before and After Marriage.

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on marriage disillusions. Address Doris Blake, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." Write on only one side of the paper.

Once Strangely Enticing.

During our courtship he called to see me one day when I was trying the rain beauty stunt on my hair. "How strangely enticing are the little wet tendrils framing your pretty face!" he exclaimed. After our marriage the first time he saw me repeat the same beauty practice he yelled, "Say, don't you know enough to come in out of the rain?" M. T.

More to Be Pitied.

Don't the men often find their illusions shattered? We have been married fifteen years. I find my husband as loyal today as I did the day I married him. I am the same to him today as I was on the day of my marriage. Some women have an idea that after they have captured a husband they need not go to any pains to dress and look as sweet as they did before marriage. I think the men are more to be pitied than censured. If women find their ideals shattered it is their own fault. R. E. A.

It's Distinctive of Tribune advertising that in it the primary emphasis is laid on quality.

Tribune advertisers know that Tribune readers, as a class, will not buy goods at any price if they have not real merit.

Hence they talk quality first and then quote such price inducements as they may be able to offer.

This situation has been firmly established by The Tribune's consistent policy of insisting on the maintenance of high standards by advertisers, and of educating its readers to appreciate and respond to good advertising.

The result is mutually beneficial. Advertisers with worthy propositions are assured a hearing by an alert audience of men and women ready to buy if they can be "shown."

Readers have submitted to them daily in pleasing form the best that the business world has to offer—from bran bread to bonds—from pencils to pianos.

by JANE EDDINGTON

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

MADAME HOUSEWIFE, in coming home from your vacation do not use a cereal, a cracker, little cakes, any meal, flour, cornstarch, baking powder, peas, or beans, or dried fruit, bran or spaghetti without first inspecting them. Powdered sugar contains starch, so becomes infested. In the case of the dried fruit you should look in the bottom of the container for the fleeing hoard of little brown bugs that may be there.

Perhaps it would have been wiser for you to have presented these things to some one, if they were uninfested, before you went away. Graham flour and bran in particular are likely to be infested quickly, if not properly cared for, and the bugs in them, which are often "general feeders," once on your shelves are as hard to dislodge as the most offensive bug you know, that of the bedroom.

Madam Housewife, all through the hot weather you should not trust the care and almost daily inspection of all your starchy food materials to any one but yourself. Look at them the moment they came into the house, perhaps sterilize them or dry in moist weather, put them preferably into glass jars, and keep them in a clean, cool, and airy place. If you happen to find just one bug, do not think you have found everything. She and her mate may be responsible for a thousand or two of tiny eggs which have already turned to transparent and almost invisible white worms, which are all through your flour or meal or cereal.

This little beetle, commonly called a weevil, is the adult, but she has in six warm moist weeks passed through three almost colorless stages before arriving at full growth, as an adult attained from one-tenth to perhaps three-sixteenths of an inch in length, and taken on a brown color. She has rendered either the cereal or flour in which you find her entirely unfit for food either for man or beast.

In her second or larva stage she is a worm or caterpillar, and the flours or meals or cereals she has inhabited have been known to be the cause of serious illness. She is small, but her excrement as she goes from point to point, often linking the particles or grains in a silky band or tube, eating constantly, is no small amount.

If you find some grains of bran or some rice grains sticking together or to sides of container you may know that here the beetle ate enough to grow into the brown bug she has or will become, first passing through what is called the pupa stage. The worm of some meals turns into a little moth and flies, but most of the forty and more varieties become beetles.

This worm and beetle are perhaps responsible for more of the diseases of obscure origin common in late summer in carelessly conducted households than any one can guess. The total list of insects affecting stored cereals numbers seventy-six.

It is not easy to study about these bugs. I have been remiss in the matter, for letters have been coming to me about them for several years. It has required hard study and a good deal of time and some expense to find out what I must compress into small space, trying, when I must omit so much, to give the principal facts. It takes time and courage to do hard things, but such letters as one containing the following paragraph, received nearly two years ago, have inspired me to watch, experiment, and study. The writer said:

"There is a small bug that I find every now and then, and I do not know how to get rid of them. They are small as an ant (they are much smaller than most ants), with six legs, rather flat body, and might make one think of a 'ladybug.' I found some in my flour, but it looked as though they might have hopped into the chest.

The chances were that they grew from egg to almost invisible worm, then to a pupa, then to a beetle.

From an experiment I prepared, I should advise housecleaning at once in this season, if this has not already been done. Besides cereals, I had in one place rice, powdered sugar, vegetable gelatin, cornstarch, dried yeast cakes, pastry flour, etc., and almost everything became infested.

Graham and bran would have been most quickly infested of all if they had been there, and so would have cornmeal. Half of these things were in packages which had never been opened. The flour was in a closed glass jar, and undoubtedly contained the eggs, which I might have killed perhaps by heat, and the summer temperature with the moisture that may penetrate anything not sealed caused them to develop.

If I had tested the temperature I might have found it much higher than it ought to be, for if this insect life increases in a material so to be present in large numbers, it causes in some unexplained manner a rise in temperature. In shelled corn they have been known to work to such an extent that the temperature was increased from 76 to 90 degrees. But heat and dampness alone, a condition called "heating," do not engender weevils.

Though some of these beetles have a strong horn with which they can pierce the horny covering of most grains, in order to crawl into a kernel to keep warm or to lay an egg, or to eat the germ, or reduce the starch to ashes, they like soft things best, and in my collection of packages exposed to their ravages, I found that they had not attacked tapioca or manioca. They had not entered an unopened package of cracker crumbs, perhaps because they had food enough without eating paper and pasteboard, and they had not hatched inside, because the heat of baking had destroyed any eggs, if any were there. But bran labeled "sterilized," even in an unopened package, seems to develop beetles as quickly as any other.

A high class grocer tells me he orders his package goods in summer as often as five or six times a week. He keeps them on iron shelves backed by tile, and has cast iron bins for bulk materials and a sheeted iron storage place for flour. The wholesaler tells him he returns less infected goods than any one buying from him.

Not only as a health precaution, but also to save what might be a great deal of time and money and trouble, all packages of starchy things which come into the house in summer should be examined at once. I bought a package of spaghetti of a leading grocer, who ought to have known that he was selling me something stale. I did not mind then, because I wanted it to study. I guessed that it was infested, and was right. Some of the stems were roughed for their whole length but only a lens revealed how. It would be reasonable to take back such a package although no honest grocer could send it to the one he had bought it of, unless of a disreputable firm. If a beetle is found on bakery goods, beware of that bakery.

If that package of spaghetti had been put with other starchy things, it might have infested them all, for these beetles are "general feeders," and those in one package may enter dollars' worth of other goods.

If the housewife had the information that the grocer has thrust upon him, said a leading grocer the other day, there would be no cost of living problem. If everybody was clean who handled foods and used every precaution, millions of dollars' worth of wasted foods would be saved.

What Feet Secrets Have You?

This department appears every other day in "The Daily Tribune."

Do you know a successful method of removing corns? Have you found a good way to treat aching, swollen, tired, or cold feet? Have you a good treatment for flat feet? Have you made your own feet light and airy? The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published on personal experiences in the good care of feet. Address, Antoinette Donnelly, The Tribune, Chicago. No manuscripts will be returned.

Use Toes as Claws.

A corrective exercise for weak or flat feet is to sit down and place your toes on the round of a chair placed in front of you. Now using your toes as claws pull the chair to you, then with the toes push it from you. Do this for about five minutes night and morning. Then walk about the room on your toes. This exercise has proven invaluable to me. M. K. D.

Believed His Endearing Tales.

A dapper young fellow came to our town to sell motor cars. I was pleased and flattered beyond words when he singled me out for attention. How I enjoyed introducing him to the other girls! How I delighted in the sensation he aroused among the boys that I knew! With what pleasure I floated about in his machine! How proud I was of his easy assurance and his assumption of delight in my presence!

I strained every nerve to please him. I cut every friend I had to be with him. I believed implicitly every endearing tale he poured into my ear. I simply basked in the radiance of his affection until his wife and two small children appeared on the scene and my adoring lover became a very meek family man.

I never expect to live down my chagrin. Every time I hear a laugh from a crowd of my friends my heart comes up to my throat for fear I am the butt of the joke. And every time I see a nice girl taking even the slightest interest in a chance acquaintance I want to tell her that she is treading on mighty thin ice. J. B.

Coincidences I Have Known

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for each letter published on "The Most Striking Coincidence of My Life." It may be sad or funny, but it must be real. Write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned. Address Coincidence Editor, "The Sunday Tribune," Chicago.

She "Got Her Party."

I once was very anxious to speak to a Mrs. Jamison on the telephone, but all I knew was that she lived in Chicago. Where she lived, her husband's initials, or whether they had a telephone, I did not know. I decided to call every Jamison in the telephone book on the phone. The first party I tried, after I had explained that the party I wanted formerly lived in Fort Wayne, said she was not the one, but she had a neighbor by that name who was from that city; the party did not have a telephone in her flat, but she would call her to the phone. It turned out to be the woman I wanted.

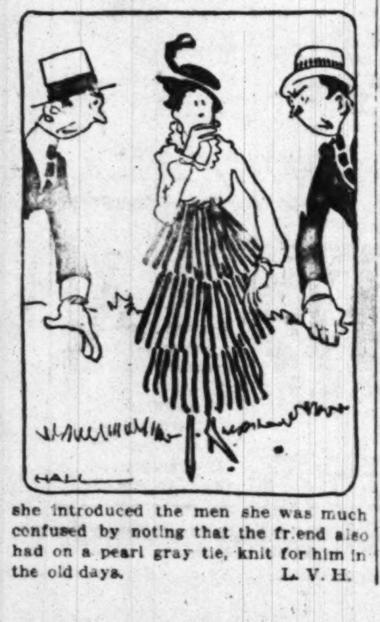
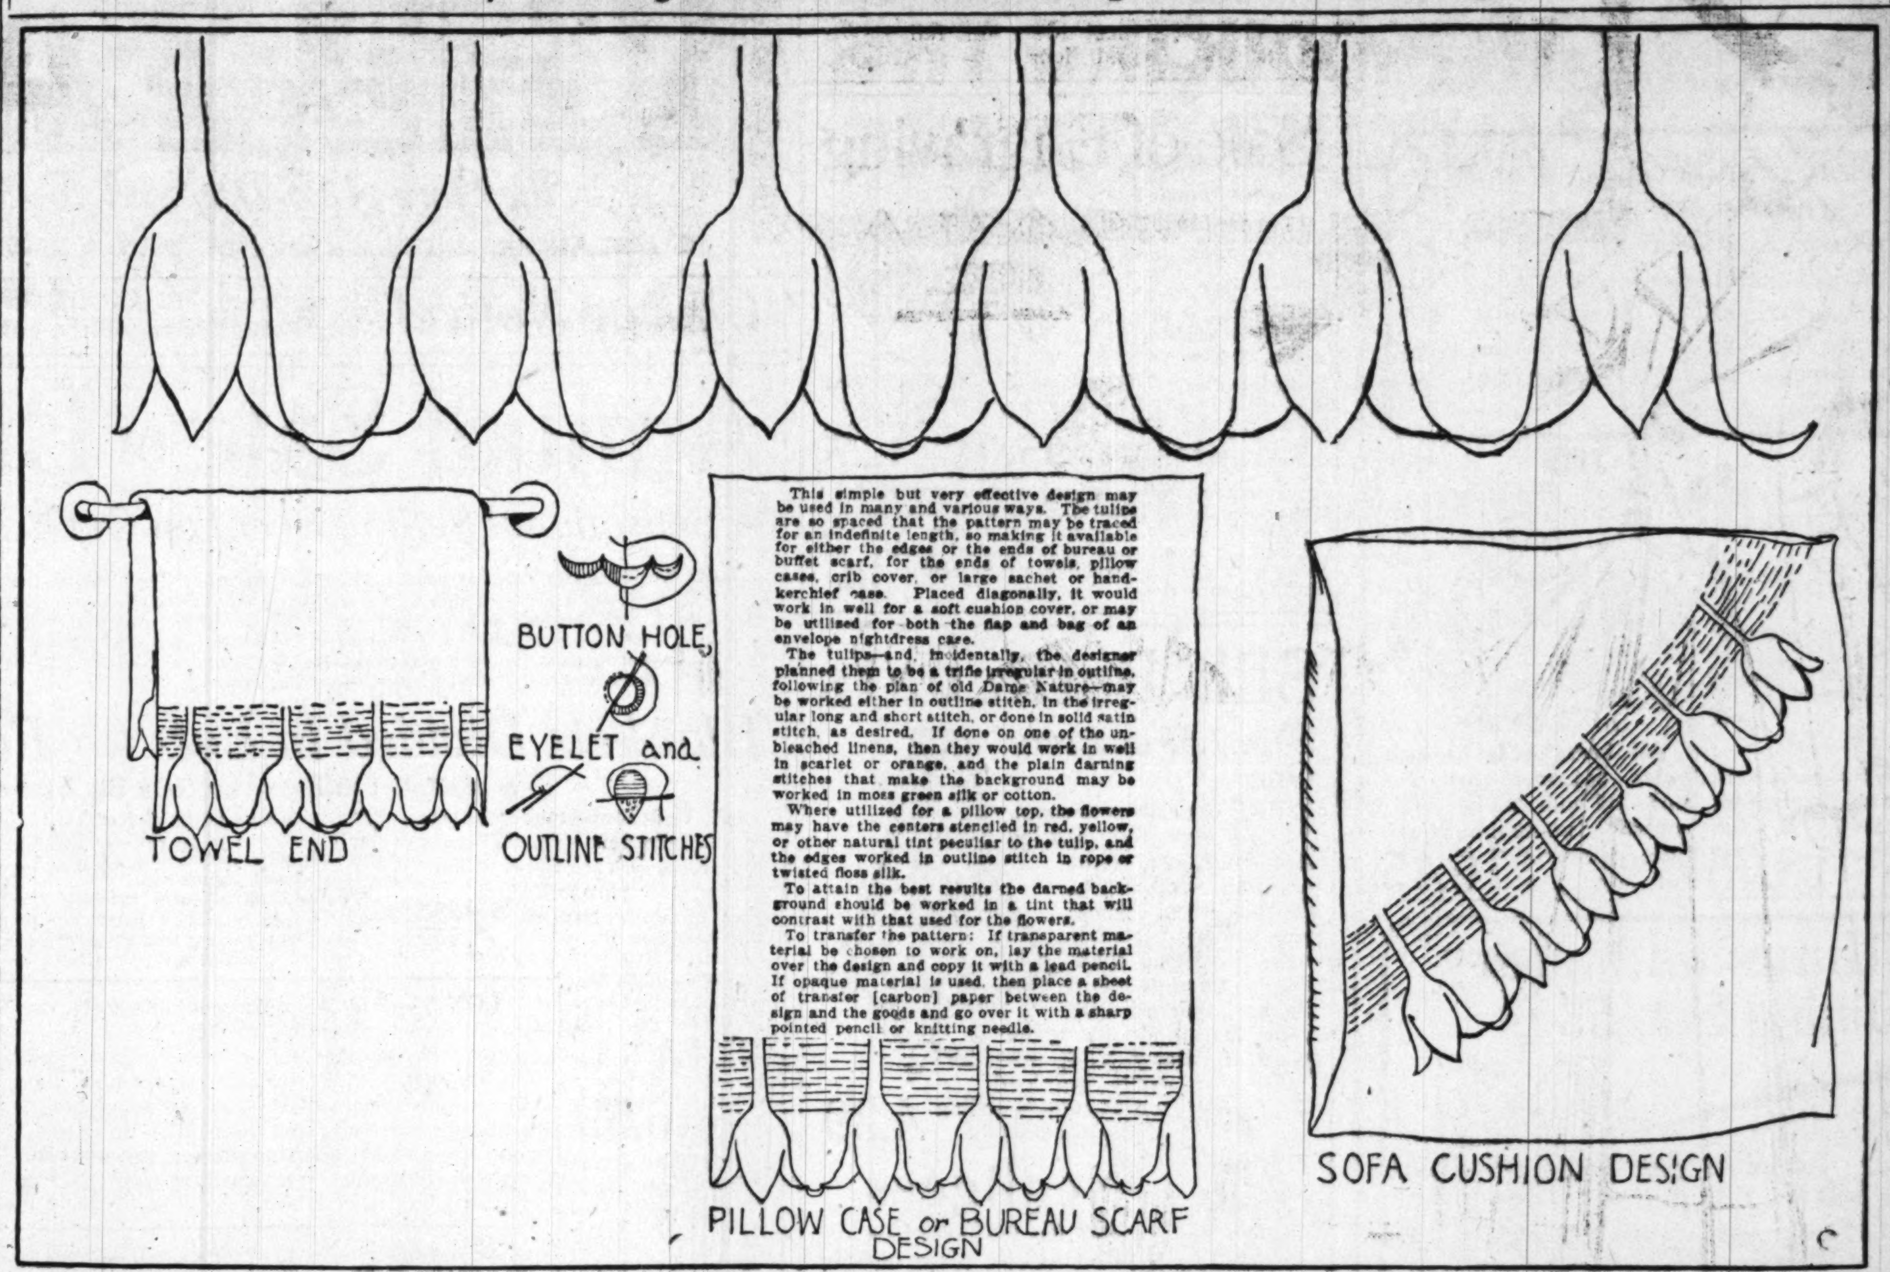
She Almost Fainted.

A young lady had just finished making a pearl gray silk tie of unusual pattern for her fiancé, who wore it when they strolled one day by the lake. She saw approaching a friend, a man to whom she had formerly been engaged and whom her future husband had never met. As she introduced the men she was much confused by noting that the friend also had on a pearl gray tie, knit for him in the old days. L. V. H.



Tulip Design for Embroidery or Stenciling.



This simple but very effective design may be used in many and various ways. The tulips are so spaced that the pattern may be traced for an indefinite length, so making it available for either the edges or the ends of bureau or buffet scarf, for the ends of towels, pillow cases, crib cover, or large sachet or handkerchief case. Placed diagonally, it would work in well for a soft cushion cover, or may be utilized for both the flap and bag of an envelope nightdress case.

The tulips—and, incidentally, the designer planned them to be a trifle irregular in outline, following the plan of old Dame Nature—may be worked either in outline stitch, in the irregular long and short stitch, or done in solid satin stitch, as desired. If done on one of the unbleached linens, then they would work in well in scarlet or orange, and the plain darning stitches that make the background may be worked in moss green silk or cotton.

Where utilized for a pillow top, the flowers may have the centers stenciled in red, yellow, or other natural tint peculiar to the tulip, and the edges worked in outline stitch in rope or twisted floss silk.

To attain the best results the darned background should be worked in a tint that will contrast with that used for the flowers.

To transfer the pattern: If transparent material be chosen to work on, lay the material over the design and copy it with a lead pencil. If opaque material is used, then place a sheet of transfer [carbon] paper between the design and the goods and go over it with a sharp pointed pencil or knitting needle.

Bright Sayings of the Children

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The stories may be sent in either by children or their parents. The only condition is the story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, "Tribune," Chicago.

Little Margaret was forever sneaking out of her mother's sight, which made her mother ask every few moments of the day what she was doing. One day while her mother was busy baking bread and Margaret was quietly amusing herself upstairs, she suddenly called down, "Mamma, what are you doing?" "Baking bread, dear," was the reply. "O," answered little Margaret, "I thought you was in mischief." N. D. WHELAN,

Our neighbor's 3-year-old daughter Ruth, was a frequent visitor, running in and out whenever she felt so disposed. She was greatly interested in the new hats and shoes purchased by our family and would promptly put them on, run to the mirror and admire herself. On one of Ruth's morning visits she found the owner of a new hat sick in bed and asked, "What's the matter, 'Essie?" Being told that Jessie was sick, Ruth looked thoughtful for a moment, then said: "If 'ou dies tan I have ouse hat?" J. M. C.

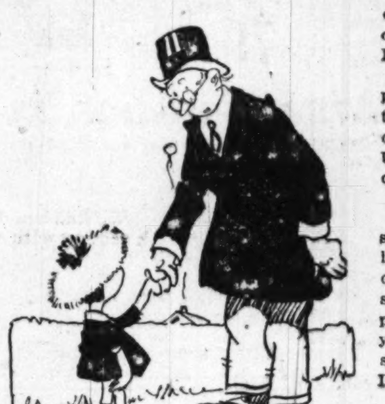
A little neighbor boy came over to play with my little sister one morning. His grandmother had been ill.

My mother knew she was improving and asked, "How is grandma this morning?"

He said, "Her is better."

Mother asked, "Can she sit up yet?"

He quickly replied, "Oh, no, but her can sit down." E. D. A.



Helen was out walking when she saw Mr. Brown, a good friend of her grandfather's. "How do you do?" she said. Mr. Brown did not seem to recognize her, so, going over and taking hold of his hand, she said, "Why, Mr. Brown, don't you know me? I'm my grandfather's little granddaughter." E. V. R.

My little 4 year old Betty's favorite pastime seems to be making mud pies. A few days ago I dressed her spotlessly from her head to her toes and she went out to play looking like a pink rosebud. After a short time she returned simply spread with mud from head to foot.

I was nonplussed for a moment as to what I should say, when the thought occurred to me to act as though I did not recognize her, so I said, "Who are you, little girl, and what is your name?"

"I am Betty," was her answer.

"Oh, no," I replied, "I cannot think you are Betty, for our little Betty was all dressed cleanly in pink and white when she went out to play, but if you would care to wait for a little while she will come home, then you can see our little Betty."

The tactics were new to her. She looked puzzled, and not very happy. She went to the window and spied her Uncle Henry outside and called joyously to him, "Oh, Uncle Haw-wy, come here, come here quick and tell me who I am." T. A. L.

John likes to wade along shore in the sand where the waves just come up and lap over his feet, but he is much afraid of deeper water. While he was objecting strenuously to having his bathing suit put on, mother said: "Why, John, don't you think it's fun to wade in?" And he said: "O, yes, I fink it's fun to wade, but I don't like de bathing suit water." O. S.

A little boy was sent by his mother to the hospital to take some dainties to a friend who was a patient. When he arrived the time was past the usual visiting hours. The attendant in the office said he could not go in to see the lady.

"But," he rejoined, "I have something for her."

"Is she related to you?" asked the attendant.

"Yes, mum," he replied. "When my mother was sick she came and waited on her and ever since then she has been my auntie." R. H. F.

One Saturday Bobbie and some children were playing war in my back yard. One little girl who was told she was too small to play began crying audibly and kept it up in spite of all they could do and even after the warning, "If you don't shut up mother will hear you and make you come in the house." Finally the difficulty was settled by a bright boy, who said, "Oh, let her bawl. She can be the widow and orphans."

One day the second grade teacher, who had beautiful white hair, resigned her position. When I arrived little John said: "Ain't she going to teach no more?"

I said no and John remarked: "She's too old!"

"Why, does she look older than I do?" I asked.

"She looks older in the head," was the quick reply. M. K. G.

Billy had attended several card parties with his mother. At these functions ice cream was invariably served and Billy began to think that ice cream and parties always went together. Finally one day he went to a party and no ice cream appeared among the refreshments. Much disappointed he inquired of his mother in the presence of the hostess: "Mother, aren't they going to have ice cream?"

In order to prevent another such an occurrence before the next party Billy was warned by his mother: "Now Billy if they don't have ice cream don't say anything about it and mother will buy you some tomorrow."

With this in mind they went to the party and when the refreshments were served sure enough there was the ice cream. Billy, much delighted, called gleefully across several tables to his mother: "Mother, you won't have to buy me any ice cream now!" R. L. H.

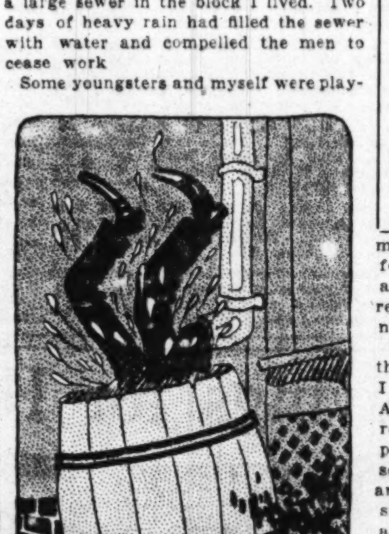
Into the Sewer.

The city in which I lived was building a large sewer in the block I lived. Two days of heavy rain had filled the sewer with water and compelled the men to cease work.

Some youngsters and myself were playing fishing. We had laid boards across the sewer and were sitting in the middle with a stick and a string and pin for fishing tackle.



Suddenly my board broke and down I went head first. Such a sensation. Childhood memories are clearest, and I can well believe it. I choked and then I was swallowed in the waters as they rushed along in the dark roaring tube. I ceased struggling after a while and seemed to be happy. I felt I was just floating gently away, like I was dreaming and did not wish to wake.

Finally, I came to in my own bed and next day was about, little worse for wear.

Under the Log Jam.

This form of sport consisted of leaping from log to log regardless of the size, condition or distance apart and never stopping, the hazard being increased since prestige is held only by the swift.

On the particular occasion I have in mind, I was running nicely when my bare foot encountered a log slippery as only a barkless log can be. The immediate result was instant submersion underneath the log jam.

I had no option of the third rising in that situation and being unable to swim I had practically no chance of escape. At first I was panic stricken which I remember was followed by a not unpleasant feeling. In the meantime which seem ages the current had taken me to an open spot in the jam. I came to the surface in time to get a free hold on a small log which I sought to climb in the manner of a squirrel trying to get somewhere on a revolving wheel. There I was rescued by some of my companions.

DRAWN FROM EXCLUSIVE [illegible] CLOTILDE DESIGNS by MAUDE MARTIN EVERS

INTRODUCING THE AUTUMN COSTUME

1175—Woman's coat, in sizes from 34 to 42 bust measure. Choice of bishop or bell sleeves. Double breasted fastening.

1176—Woman's surplice waist, sizes 34 to 42 bust measure. Choice of full length or half length sleeves.

1177—Woman's skirt, sizes 24 to 34 inches waist measure.

A SLIGHT consideration of the matter will show at once that it is the autumn tailor-made, rather than that which ushers in the springtide, which is the one of greater importance.

The tailor-made of the springtime one wears oftentimes through the summer months as well, through the scorching suns and the summer rains, so that when the autumn arrives what was a smart enough costume at the beginning of its career is likely to look as though it had already seen its best days, rather than holding them still in reserve for wear to come.

The tailor-made that one purchases—or makes—for autumn wear will, if well selected, last all through the fall and early winter months, and will even do through the cold weather for wear with furs, so serving well into the springtime.

It is with this fact in view that I have selected the patterns which make today's illustrations. It will be noted that the coat has the fronts so arranged that the smart revers or lapels are wide enough to be folded across the chest for additional protection when so needed, and the collar turned high around the throat.

The smart ripple skirts are designed of sufficient length to come well down almost to the knees, and it will be noted that the long waist line, which distinguishes this season's models from those of the springtime, is plainly observable both in front and the back.

And, by the way, the making of those same fronts is a matter that is easily accomplished, so that it will be difficult to tell the home made garment from the production of one of the most expensive tailor's workrooms. There never yet was a daughter of Eve who did not desire and appreciate a reputation for clever dressing. There never yet was any mother's daughter who would not prefer to have her clothes look as though they came from the best tailors and the best dressmakers the world over.

In making the coat you must line the upper fronts, the part that affords the fastening, throughout with a shrunken tailor's canvas. While there are some canvases at 10 cents the yard, do not be misled by their cheapness. The linen canvas that comes around the 35 or 40 cent mark is the right kind. Adjust this so that the straight thread of the canvas comes even with the straight thread of the goods. Allow enough of the goods to turn well over the outer edge, and then underface with the same goods throughout. The collar and cuffs, too, should be lined with this canvas, both on the straight thread of both goods and canvas.

Around the armhole lay a single thickness of padding, about two inches broad, on the upper part of the shoulder, and widening to the underarm part. If one is thin or unduly slender under the arm, then the padding can be used to fill in here, for a deftly padded underarm makes the waistline look all the more slender, and the slender waistline is one of the hallmarks of the new season's mode.

In basting the coat together for the first fitting join the ripple peplum to the back, join side fronts to back, and hold the canvas lined fronts with the seam turned under and with a tacking thread on top to the side fronts. Any adjustments over the bust must be made here; and you can move the fronts until you get the fit just right on the figure.

The sleeves can follow either of two novel designs. The full length figure shows the shirt sleeve which is in high vogue among fashionable tailors, while the bell sleeve shown on the small sketch is one of the most recent developments.

The knack of putting in the lining is simple enough—when one knows the knack. The center back is always fashioned with a one inch plait, pressed flat down the center, this to afford some "give" in the lining when the wearer stoops over or turns suddenly, or otherwise strains the garment in wear. A two inch depth of bias canvas is seamed in with the shoulder fronts, this to obviate the "break" that one so often sees in home made garments at this point. The back lining is left longer than the shoulder seam, and then brought down over the front and hemmed. The front linings are hemmed over the back, and the sleeve lining is cut one inch longer at the top, to afford sufficient turnover for the hem that is brought over the body part.

Now that is just about all of the secrets that the best tailors employ to the turning out of really smart coats. If you are particular about the appearance of the garment—and you should be, if you are to get the full benefit of your work—have the tailor do the pressing; for the heavy irons—the tailor's goose—that they use are far more effective in pressing the seams and insuring the right curve than are the smaller and lighter ones that we employ for household uses.

That the skirt shown is a clever design none will doubt, for there are several of the newest ideas incorporated in its smart lines. First of all, it takes cognizance of the new waistline; then it presents the fashionable box plaited panel effects; and, thirdly and lastly, the inevitable and indispensable pockets are provided for in the patch straps that are laid on with a heavy line of machine stitching on both sides of the back and the front. What more could one ask for the first impression of the new autumn styles?

As for the materials in which this extremely smart design will be made up, there is a wide choice indeed.

First and foremost, there are the velours fabrics—and this velours may be said to be both the fabric and the finish too. They come in plain, ribbed, twilled, checked, and plaided surfaces, and are equally attractive in all of them.

Velvets and velveteens—and the latter is just as modish as the former—will make up charmingly after these patterns, while as for serge, gabardine, cheviots, and the like, they will one and all look their most possible best cut after this mode.

The fetching little blouse is cut on surplice lines. Those same surplice effects seem rather to overwhelm the fashion world just now, for one sees them on wellnigh everything from the most extravagantly expensive wedding gown down to the plain little cotton or linen blouse that goes with the house gown. So one cannot make a mistake in adopting them for the little blouse that makes up and finishes the three piece costume.

You will note that the fad for sashes which is at its highest vogue right now is deftly provided for in the simple fashion in which the long ends of the fronts are drawn through slits provided for in the side seams, and caught with a bow in the back. Now, this same sash may be made with a permanent bow, caught with snap fasteners, or the ends may be left still longer than the pattern, and tied at the back or at the left side as one's personal fancy may dictate. This method will also serve to adjust the fullness in the fronts, for they may be drawn as loosely or as closely to the figure as desired.

For separate blouses the pussy willow taffetas are much favored, both in the plain, the plaid, and the figured finishes. Next come the soft satins, such as charmeuse, soiree, peau de cygne, etc. The butterfly voiles of silken weave have replaced chiffon to a large extent; and when finished with picoted edges instead of hems they are as airy and light in effect as they are durable.

PRIMROSES IN THE WINDOW.

CHINESE primroses are grateful plants for the winter window. The true flower lover gets real pleasure from his own seedlings.

Specialists have bred seed from the named sorts making it possible for any one to grow a favorite color, the Covent Garden White, the Orange King, the True Blue, Giant Pink, or some other improved strain. Start the seeds in flats or prepared soil and transplant, or try pots in which drainage and soil are ready for the winter.

In transplanting, pot "high"; that is, set the crown of the plant above the surface, that water does not collect around it. Too much water about the crown of a primrose induces decay. This is certain to kill the plant.

The primula obconica is one of the most desirable of the winter flowering sorts. The grandiflora crispa, an apple blossom pink, is noted for the curled and waved edges of its flower head. The Grandiflora Fire Queen is a glowing salmon carmine red, one of the best dark reds. And the Coerulea is a soft lavender, while it is possible to choose a white, or shades of rose color. The gradiflora compacata rosea's flowers appear like a dense bouquet on short wiry stems just above the soft green foliage.

The primula forbesii or baby primrose is a near relative of the obconica. Every plant has several crows or divisions each of which has one or more flower stalks. The baby primrose will bloom the whole year around. A winter garden of primroses is certain to be satisfactory. They enjoy cool pale lights and if watered in season will produce quantities of flowers.

In the Parks.

Royal purples, crimson, and gold are the color scheme of the late summer bloom. The joyous tints of rose, heavenly blue, and creamy yellows of June roses, July delphiniums, and August snapdragons have intensified to the blood red lobelia cardinalis and flaming zinnias, and the warm carmine pinks of the asters, the violets of the Michaelmas daisies, kingly blues of the gentian and monkshood, and the gold of the sunflower family and golden rod.

Friendly insects are as numerous as flies. The giant meadow spider spins his web among the Shasta daisies and golden rod. Certain autumn flowers being honey producers, attract insects, and the spider is on hand to greet them. When looking for the leaf eaters, the moths and parent flies of many gnawing caterpillars, the gardener does not disturb the spider hunters, the grand-daddy-longlegs, or harvestmen, who are the holdups of the flies, or the wasps which are devourers of many crawling beetles and ants. There is a species of friendly beetle quite distinct from the sort that preys on potato plants or other vegetation. It is nearly as voracious as the toad.

The cocoons of the tussock moth, boldly spun on stems of plants as well as on the bark of trees, are but one of numerous cocoons which should be removed from the garden. The shears kept busy clipping away dead material, the broom to sweep cobwebs from the vines or tall sunflowers or clumps of golden glow or the blossoming althea, are preventives of insect mischief for next season. Park gardeners fight on a large scale. Their spraying machines and methods of meeting aphis and blights are object lessons to the public.

"I am ready to answer questions," said a Washington park gardener. "Talk to me," said one in Humboldt park, and Lincoln park men are known for their friendly helpfulness.

Talks with Amateur Gardeners.

NELLY BLY: Your fuchsia has plant lice. Dust well with tobacco dust or spray with nicotine solution.

MARJORY: The rose inclosed in your letter is the "Illinois rose." When some means can extend its season it will be more worth while to small gardeners.

E. TRIX—Enrich your ground with a good commercial fertilizer. Keep the hoe busy in the spring, cutting out the first spears of wild grass.

NOVICE: It is better to transplant on gray days. Water plants well before lifting. Carry much soil about the roots. Shade with a tent of paper. At night remove to let plants have the dew.

MISS S.: Fuchsias are summer flowering, yet they can be coaxed for the winter garden for March. An east window is the best for them.

J. H.: The Jerusalem cherry grows from seed in pots. The Christmas pepper is ornamental with bright colored fruit. Seed costs a dime a packet, and plants well started will serve for table decoration.

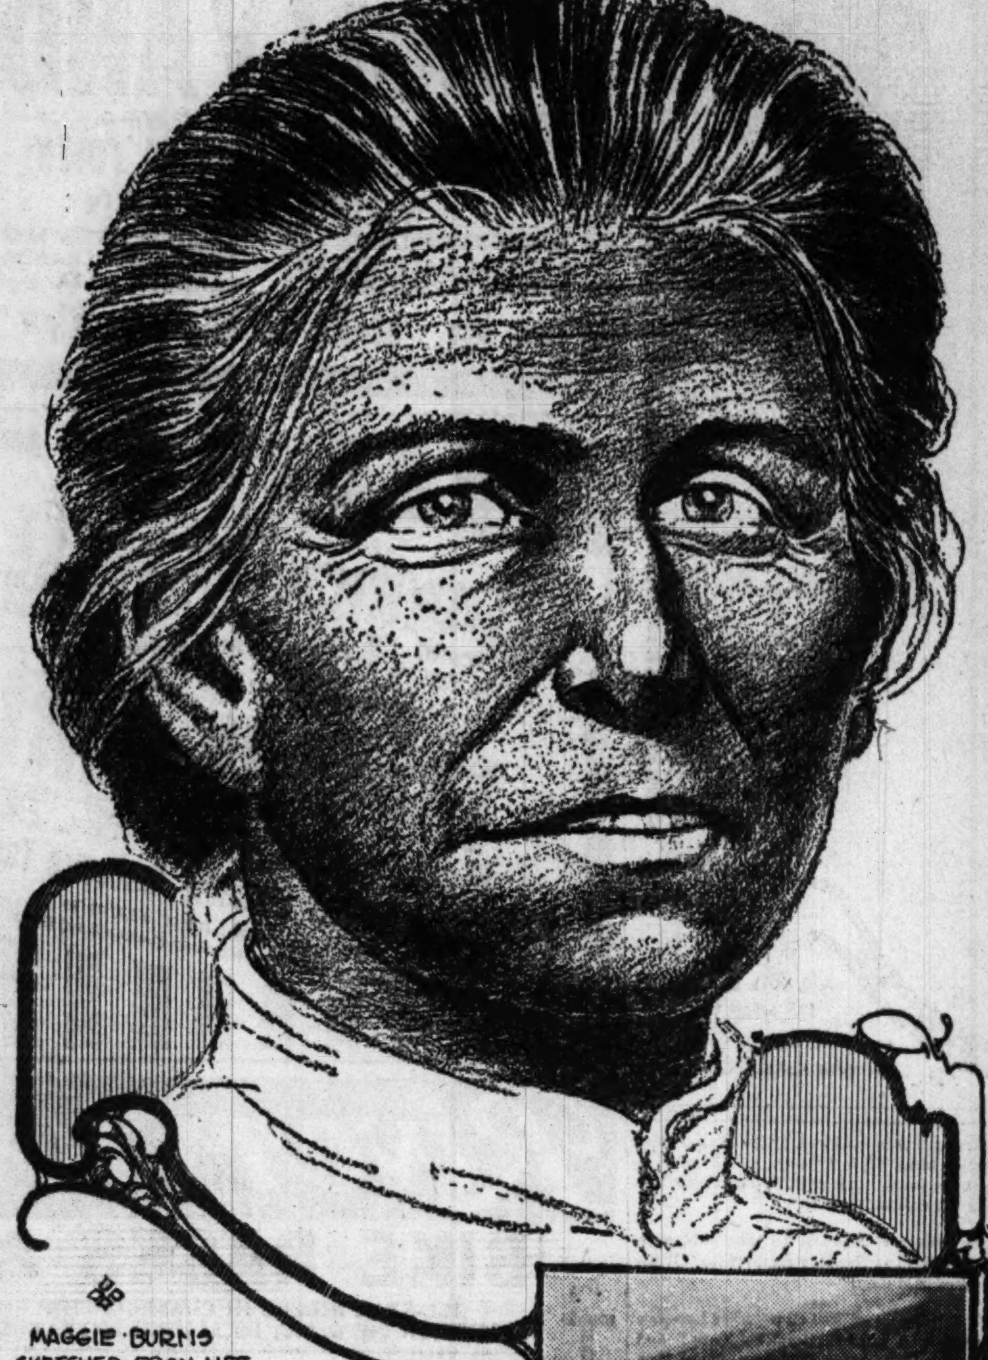
The Fairy Tale That Came True

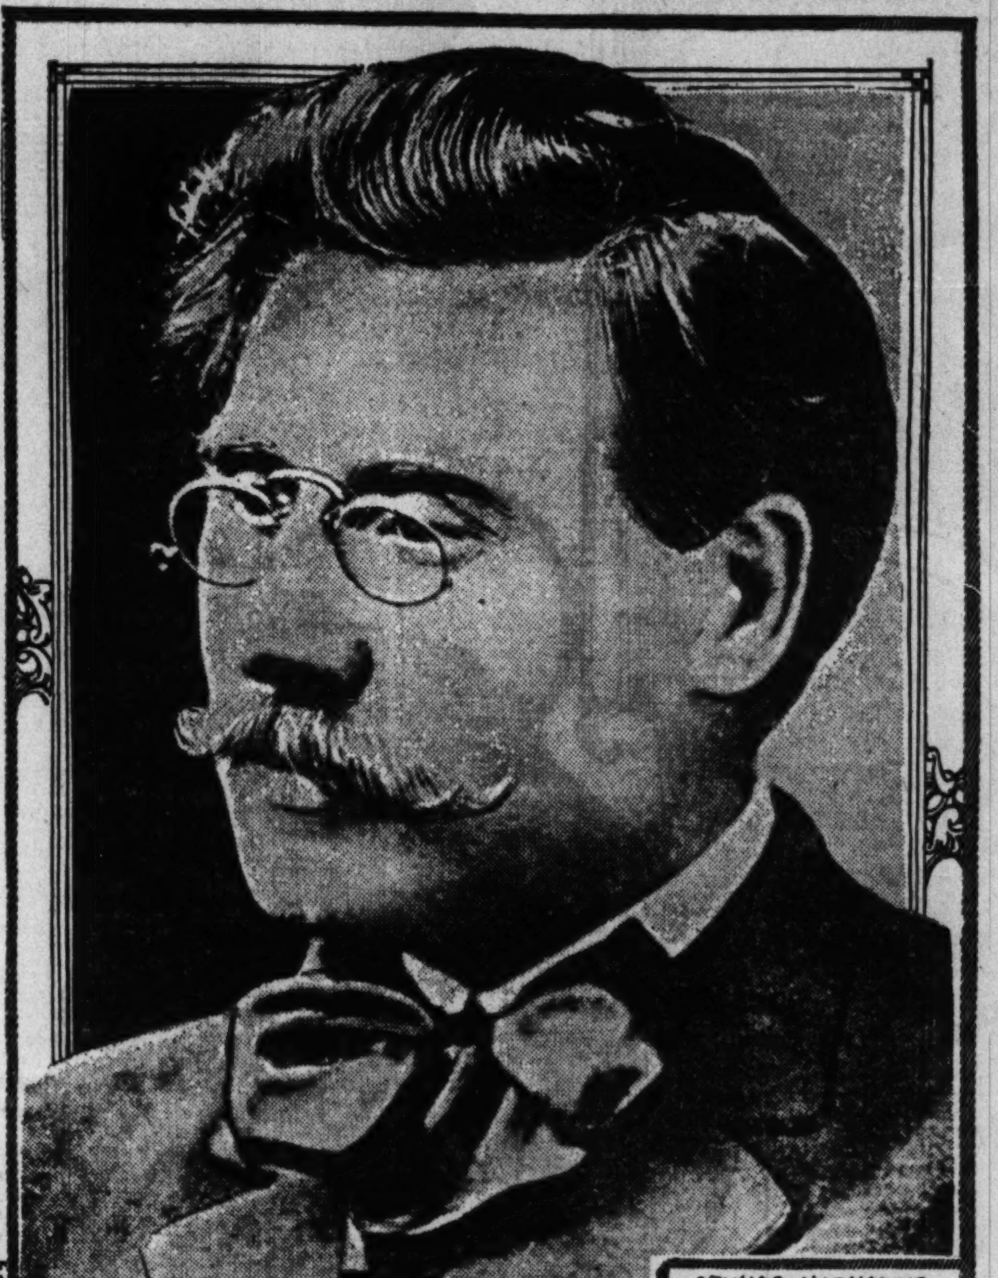
by Seumas MacManus

The story of how Maggie Burns, servant in the MacManus family in Donegal who told Seumas his first fairy tales, immigrated to America, served her mistress well and was left a city house and $30,000.

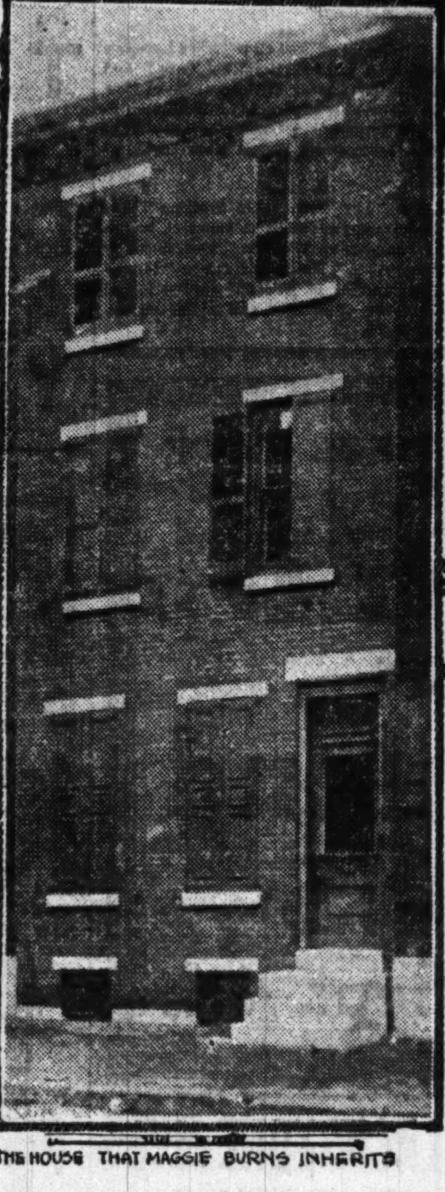
The best story, because it is a true one, by the author of "Donegal Fairy Tales," "In Chimney Corners," "Yourself and the Neighbors," "A Lad of the O'Friels," "The Red Poacher," "Ballads of a Country Boy," etc.



MAGGIE BURNS
SKETCHED FROM LIFE
BY WILLIAM HOFFACKER



SEUMAS MACMANUS



THE HOUSE THAT MAGGIE BURNS INHERITS

THE MACMANUS HOME IN DONEGAL

[Copyright in Ireland, Britain, and its colonies.]

READING the papers the other day till my head ached with war and rumors of war, I suddenly stumbled upon a news item which to my relief was prefaced by neither Petrograd, Paris, London, nor Berlin, but only peace breathing Philadelphia. It bore the caption "A Faithful Servant Rewarded," and it related that Mrs. Van Beil of Philadelphia, deceased, had willed one of her fine houses and the income from $30,000 to "her faithful servant, Maggie Burns." With a cry of delight I jumped up and ran around reading the good news to every one I could corner. And I said to them, "This is one of the real, live fairy tales that occur once in so often in real life."

Maggie Burns, who during her young life at home in Donegal was a gentle lover of the fairies, had the most fascinating collection of fairy lore that my childhood knew; and to Maggie Burns in large measure it is due that I became a story writer and a kind of biographer to the Little People. And the Little People, the Gentle People, have now rewarded her in large and generous measure for providing them with even this limping and lame, incompetent chronicler.

On reading the item there flashed before me my childhood days again—or, more correctly, my childhood nights when the diminutive lad who was I, home from interminable rambles over bog and moor, hill and dale, his limbs weary, and bare feet and legs hacked and hewed by scrug and briar, took from Maggie Burns' serving a supper whose size would shame a plowman—and then took a creep stool in the glow of the turf in his father's bright and warm chimney corner, where, happier far than any prince on his throne, he forgot all aches in his joints and scrapes on his shins while with his brothers and sisters he hearkened the night long to Maggie Burns—the while she knit the socks and patched the clothes and blacked the shoes of the household—telling the lovely folk tales and beautiful fairy tales that her little auditors never, never tired of—tales which, told by such charming story teller, they would in the red light of that turf fire listen on and on for a lifetime, and then hope that their heaven would be a beginning all over, and a never ending, of the same unspeakable delight.

Maggie Burns, the fortunate, though not very much older then than we children, had begun her career of service and was my mother's helper. My mother and Maggie coöperatively did the complete work of the household, each taking up whatsoever came next to her hand to do. After supper was finished and rosary said we all sat around the turf fire, the two women workers knitting, patching, or darning—Maggie sometimes embroidering. My mother sang old ballads or snatches of song and reveled in reminiscence of her youth in the green and fertile land that we could see from my father's door, beyond the bay—reminiscence which beyond anything I have ever experienced was rich in atmosphere, humor, and character. But Maggie, with her store of tales inexhaustible, did well the half of every night's entertaining. And no dazzling aggregation of fabulously paid stars in gilded, glittering halls ever gave to their ennuyé crowds a tithe of the profit—a hundredth of the genuine joy—that did my mother and Maggie Burns their glad audience in the glow of my father's turf fire.

Maggie Burns, whose faith in the Gentle People (as we name the fairies) was as firm and unquestionable as ours, was yet no more faithful believer than was my mother. My mother had more than once seen the fairies; had had relatives who had encountered them. And in that rich, green, far off, almost fabled native land of hers, ten miles over the waters of Donegal bay, she knew of many a fascinating and many a thrilling fairy happening, and from the Fairy Bible that was written in her memory could copiously quote chapter and verse. Nevertheless, though my mother would go joyfully to the stake before she'd admit it, every one else in the world knew that there were at least five fairies on our more mountainous, rugged, barren north side of the bay for the one that was on her native lovely, green, and fertile southern side. We needed more these kindly, gentle folks. Consequently, while the burden of my mother's stories were rich and rare real life experiences, Maggie's were ever the old, old soul stirring ones from the beauteous, limitless realm of fancy.

Scores of them were of the heroes and heroines of the long, long ago who had left their homes among the vales of Erin, crossed the magic rim of hills that reached the skies, and, faring forth into the unknown, traveled away and away far further than I could tell you, twice further than you could tell me, and ten times further than any one else could tell the both of us—away and away where the wind never blew and the cock never crew—where you wouldn't know day from night or night from day—into the mysterious, far off ever green land of castles and of gold, there to find their fairy fortunes.

Nor Maggie, nor, we, then ever dreamt that in a way as wonderful as any of the mythical ones in her own tales she herself would yet at the end of her faring find fabulous fortune. To her mind and ours thirty thousand dallors! six thousand pounds! and a castle worth probably that much more! would have been fabled fortune beyond the fabulous. That is, if our minds had been capable of grasping such dizzy figures. But in attempt to conceive such wondrous fortune, hitherto unheard of even in the realms of fancy, our highly developed imaginations, dazed and staggered, would have given up in despair.

Among our mountains in those days the told stories far more than supplied the place of books, which were rare and hard to find. In my childhood and youth I traveled many and many a toilsome mile of mountain and moor trailing down the tradition of a book that was passing from hand to hand and from hill to hill over the countryside. When after many a hunt and weary wandering I at length cornered the treasure I might find it reduced by excessive use to one-third its original size, but it was still a treasure.

Maggie Burns' beautiful stories, then, a chief part of my earliest literature, educated my young mind and imbued me with exceeding fondness for fairy and folk lore, stimulating me to gather all I could and to read all I could (when I was able to get books to read) and later to begin writing them for myself. For whatever little success I have met with, to Maggie Burns for the inspiration she gave me is a deal of the credit due.

A favorite story of Maggie's then—one that she told us a thousand times, with our joy growing greater at each fresh telling—the story of Jack and the king who was a gentleman, I long after set down in one of my books of fairy tales, "In Chimney Corners." She could never tell too frequently, we could never hear too often, this rare tale of the king who was the greatest gentleman in all the world because he had never once in his life said, "You're a liar!" to any man, and who vauntingly offered his beautiful daughter in marriage, with her weight in gold and half his kingdom, to any man from any end of the earth who in one of three chances could make him for one moment forget his gentlemanliness and say the rude words—and who, after he was tested in vain by 864 of the greatest knights, champions, and scholars of the earth (who lost their heads for their failure), succumbed at length to poor brave Jack, the widow's son from Donegal. Marvelous was the ingenious plan by which poor Jack made the mighty king forget his gentlemanliness—and won the king's daughter with her gold and gear.

In my book, "Donegal Fairy Tales," "The Old Hag's Long Leather Bag" is one of Maggie Burns' stories. And I wove her wonderful tale, "The Will of the Wiseman," into the web of my newest book, "Yourself and the Neighbors." Many more of hers I have embodied in other books. Maggie's most charming, oft repeated tale, "The Black Sheep," the Irish version of Cinderella (but far more beautiful than Cinderella), stirred our young breasts with the spirit of romance and probably gave us our first intoxicating glimpse into the sparkling land of Faerie. And her splendid "Well of the World's End" not only gave us a thrilling story but likewise a lesson in kindness and gentleness that none of us ever could forget.

And here is how the fairies first came to Ireland: When Lucifer and his host rebelled in heaven, and that Michael, like the brave Irishman he is, led the good angels against him, there was a third portion of angels who chose to remain neutral—intending to subscribe to the principles of the winning side. But when Michael had overcome and cast Lucifer and his host into hell he then commanded that the neutral ones must quit heaven. As they didn't actually raise hands against God, he didn't deem them worthy of hell but as they hadn't fought for God, neither were they worthy of heaven. "Heaven," he said, "you must lose, but I'll let you choose for yourselves where you will go to." And tearfully the banned ones replied: "If we must lose heaven, we want to go to the most beautiful place in all the world, and the place that is nearest to heaven. Send us to Ireland." Michael granted them their request, which he evidently had anticipated anyhow.

Some of them fell into the seas around Ireland, becoming the mermaids; but the greater portion of them fell upon dry land, becoming our fairies. And, loving friends to our country, and kindest friends to our people, in Ireland they live on, cheered with hope of final redemption. And we, who dearly love the Gentle People, ever hope and pray that on the last day God's heart may melt toward these exiles, and he'll recall them again to their mansions of bliss.

Outside Fairyland, it was the land of America that loomed largest in Maggie's imagination in those days. Of America, the land whose wonders would exceed those of her own tales, she used to talk for hours together and through her young years for America she longed and prayed. Maggie's eldest sister, returned from that wonderland, and, sitting one day in my mother's kitchen, and talking with a fascinating new accent, which I learnt was the Yankee accent, and fascinating new words and phrases, which I learnt were Yankee words and phrases, was the first Yankee I ever saw. Even I, a child, longed then to experience a land where every one talked so beautifully and dressed so beautifully and looked so beautiful. No wonder that all our boys and girls broke their hearts with pining for this land. Though, when at last their turn came to go, they broke their hearts out and out, sobbing and crying with woe for leaving Ireland.

And when, at length, a good fairy (from America) sent Maggie her passage, and it came her time to go to the Land of Heart's Desire, a more grief-stricken girl never left Ireland. She left my mother sorrowing, too, for the most faithful helper she ever had, a girl, moreover, of most rare innocence and simplicity of heart. Maggie Burns, too, like every member of her family, was singularly honest, upright, and conscientious, even amongst a singularly honest and upright people. The whole Burns family had a character that would enrich and ennoble those born to mere moneyed wealth and manufactured nobility.

That the materializing influence of the American world had not fazed Maggie's rare simplicity of character will be realized when I mention that she has most strenuously objected to my writing this article about her; vowed that if I wrote it she would never speak to me again, and ingenuously protested that she had "never done anything to be ashamed of"!

Maggie entered the service of Mrs. Van Bell shortly after her arrival in America, and from that long-ago day to the day of Mrs. Van Beil's death, never changed, nor dreamt of changing, her mistress. Her rare loyalty to duty, and devotion to her mistress, and her mistress' consequent devotion to her, was a pleasure but not a surprise, for me to discover, when I came to America.

It was long after Maggie went that I, having served as country schoolmaster, for the folk-tale term of seven years, turned my feet to the path of the folk-tale hero, and to seek my fortune, traveled away and away over high hills and low hills, sheep walks and bullock tracks, broad green lands and wide blue waters, following the trackless path to the tempting, far unknown, where I might find fortune, or from which no rumor of me might ever return. The good fairy seed that Maggie had helped to sow in my imagination had flourished and fructified, and I bore samples of the fruit with me—and very little else—to the far, strange land. Many there affected to like the flavor of the new importation, and soon came requests from many cities for the wanderer to tell about the lore of the fairy land from which he came.

Philadelphia wanted to hear what I had to say upon the subject. I spoke to a crowded house in Horticultural hall, and, among the many who came to talk to me after my lecture, I was delighted to meet my earliest mentor, Maggie Burns—who had been for long years enveloped in the unknown! It was keen delight to meet her and to look again into the earnest, sincere eyes of her who had been lost to me since childhood. With eager egotism I asked her, "How did you like my lecture?" and she answered, "Och, sure it's grand it must have been; but my heart was in my mouth every minute for fear you'd tell something about meself."

I visited her in her kitchen next day—and on after occasions, when Philadelphia called me—and found her marvelously unchanged, despite the total change of latitude— the same sincere and beautiful and believing soul that my childhood knew.

You may picture, then, my gladness when I discovered, that other day, that Maggie had found her fortune—that the castle and the bags of gold which rewarded the heroic ones in our fairy tales were at length hers—and that her own fairy tale, which she realized, was a fitting crown and climax to the fairy tales of her fancy—and outdid them. The fairy joy and happiness that she gave to many, myself included, has returned to her in compound measure, and she finds herself in the rare position of inheriting back again her own legacy!

For generations and generations our Irish boys and girls, in their hundreds of thousands, have been following the footsteps of their folk-tale heroes, and seeking their fortune in the far unknown. Many and many of the giants they have had to encounter. Some overcame their giants and found their fortune; many, also, fell and perished, their dying eyes dazzled by the tantalizing glinting and glancing and dancing of the sun upon the windows of the castles, still afar off.

These latter were usually ones whose hearts gave harbor to the doubts and disbeliefs that the new, hard world was casting upon the fairy faith of their childhood—and who came to deny or to slight the blessing which the loving fairies send after every child that ever sets sail from Mother Erin's shore.

The ever faithful Maggie Burns never doubted nor slighted nor denied. And the Good People have rewarded her with life and joy, bags of gold and a castle with a window for every day in the year!

God's blessing as well as the Good People's be with her, in a long, long life of ease after labor, of peace and of joy.

INDICATIONS are that George C. Tyler's resumption of activity as a producer of plays is to be marked by something of that same preference for Chicago which was a feature of his schedule when he was the executive of the Liebler company. So far as is recalled he never indulged in the absurdity of referring to this city as a "producing center," nor yet that of informing playgoers of the community that he preferred their judgment to that of New York or Jackson, Miss., or Jackson, Tenn., or Jackson, Mich. Nor did he find Chicago's judgment impeccable in all cases. Thus, "Alias Jimmy Valentine" was taken hence after a fortnight of popular neglect, to run for months and months in New York. "Pomander Walk," which prospered greatly there, did not interest this community. Likewise, "Joseph and His Brethren" was performed here to ghastly gatherings after New York had raved over its beauties as drama and spectacle. However, many of Mr. Tyler's most successful ventures got under way here—"The Man from Home," "The Deep Purple," and "Disraeli," to list three which come readily to mind. Patently, his new associates in production are of a mind with him that Chicago is a good place to launch their joint offerings, even if, as a firm, the Messrs. Klaw & Erlanger prefer New York for their own experiments. "Pollyanna" is the first of a projected series of Klaw, Erlanger, and Tyler productions for the Blackstone theater. George Arliss is expected to appear there later, and after him Miss Laurette Taylor, whose plays will be so many that it is thought she will remain there from holiday time until hot weather.

Of course it is not to be expected that if "Pollyanna" proves to be good for a run beyond the November date set for Mr. Arliss' engagement, the "glad play" will be taken away for the mere sake of holding to a schedule. However, the Blackstone would seem to be an ideal auditorium for "Pollyanna," for an actor of Mr. Arliss' caliber, and for the purposes of Miss Taylor's indulgence in a répertoire of her devoted husband's making. None of these things is entertainment which thrives upon the hurlyburly of the loop.

Mr. Arliss' play, by the way, is not to be the one Israel Zangwill was some time since commissioned to write. It is an as yet nameless work, by an American author, also unnamed, but described as a "well known actor, who has written other plays and had them produced." The mind leaps at once to George M. Cohan as coming within the description; but he is not the man. The Arliss part will be that of a Roman Catholic priest, but the play has nothing whatever to do with religion, and the protagonist is not, in the drama, involved in his priestly function. It will be what managers call "a small play," that is, it will have nine characters and a single setting. Mr. Arliss sailed yesterday from his English home.

Reverting to Miss Taylor, she will some day be in a position to act Peg for this and other communities of her native land. THE TRIBUNE recently quoted her as writing to a Chicago correspondent: "God bless Peggy O'Neil and Elsa Ryan, and Florence Martin, and all the other young women who have made it unnecessary for me ever to appear again as Peg after my London run is ended!" But it seems that "Peg o' My Heart" will in two years or so revert to its author, Miss Taylor's husband, and that she will then add the play to the répertoire she expects by then to have built up. Doubtless it will then serve her as "Dr. Jekyll and Mr Hyde" served the late Richard Mansfield—as a sort of Saturday night special to flutter the groundlings. Miss Taylor is not now acting Peg in London. She has taken a holiday, and her place at the head of the cast is in possession of Miss Moya Mannering, who has been here in musical comedy.

A measure of that sort of coincidence which seems important to persons of the theater resides in the appearance this week in Chicago of the two young actresses pictured side by side at the top of this page of THE TRIBUNE, Miss Patricia Collinge and Miss Wilda Bennett. The latter is the chief player in "The Only Girl," opening this evening; Miss Collinge heads the cast of "Pollyanna," opening tomorrow evening. When, little more than four years ago, "Everywoman" was first acted, the two young women were in the New York cast—Miss Bennett as Beauty and Miss Collinge as Youth. Their respective parts were minor and incidental in that fustian allegory; but both won a great deal of praise in print as interesting newcomers.

The publishers of "Trilby" seek to prevent further performances of the play on the ground that they have not been paid in full for the use of it in recent years. The owner of the stage rights in this country is William A. Brady, who meanwhile has had the play filmed, with Wilton Lackaye as Svengali, and Mrs. Clara Kimball Young, one of the idols of the film lovers, as Trilby.

Charles Hopkins, known in Chicago as the producer in the Fine Arts theater of "How Much Is a Million?" is to produce a play made from Stevenson's bully yarn, "Treasure Island," by Jules Eckert Goodman. Mrs. Hopkins, who took part in "How Much Is a Million?" is to play the boy, Jim Hawkins. Mr. Hopkins built and operates the Punch and Judy theater, New York.

That "Watch Your Step!" has been substituted for "Chin-Chin" in the September booking of the Illinois theater is due to the fact that the latter entertainmen, revived a fortnight ago for three weeks in New York, is still so popular there that there is reason to think it may run through the greater part of the season, after having been seen by capacity audiences from October to July of last season. The change of plans affects Miss Elsie Janis also. She will experiment with her new vehicle, "The Missing Link," on tour instead of in New York.

One of the associations of managers devoted to so-called "burlesque" has passed a rule that "professional courtesies"—that is, passes issued to actors—will be charged for at one-half the box office price.

Miss Ada Lewis is to be starred in a farce called "She's in Again." She acted in it for some weeks in New York.

Rennold Wolf, in the New York Morning Telegraph, states that the respective brands of cigars named for John Drew and Vernon Castle are on sale at 3 cents per cigar.

Miss Frances Kennedy takes the place of Miss Dorothy Jardon in "Within the Loop," the entertainment which Dave Lewis is preparing for the American Music hall. Miss Jardon goes into the piece which George M. Cohan is writing for Raymond Hitchcock.

Miss Billy Burke will, after all, again be a Frohman star. It was recently announced that her signing to perform for the films automatically ended her contract with the Charles Frohman concern. Her salary as an actress on the stage is said to be $1,500 weekly and 10 per cent of the gross receipts. Not many get that much.

Lorin Raker, one of the two actors of the orphan, Jimmy Bean, in "Pollyanna," was to have been the actor of the name-part in Booth Tarkington's projected dramatization of "Penrod." Young Mr. Raker has already outgrown the part, however. His co-actor of Jimmy in "Pollyanna" is Bobby Tobin, one of the numerous Tobin children of the stage. His sister, Miss Vivian Tobin, acted Alice in last season's "Alice in Wonderland" in the Fine Arts theater.

Lawrence d'Orsay is to take part with Ralph Herz in the play made from "Ruggles of Red Gap."

In "Ruggles of Red Gap" Miss Leonore Harris will play "Klondike Kate" and Miss Louise Closser will impersonate Mrs. Effie. Other engagements for this comedy are Laurance D'Orsay for the Honorable George and Ralph Herz for Ruggles.

After "He Comes Up Smiling" has played its engagement at Powers', beginning Thursday, William Faversham in "The Hawk," Frances Starr in "Marie-Odile," and A. H. Woods' production of "The Song of Songs" will be the attractions there.

Playbills of the Week

Garrick Theater—"The Only Girl," a musical comedy by Henry Blossom and Victor Herbert. Mr. Blossom's libretto is based upon a comedy by Ludwig Fulda, "Our Wives," in which Henry Kolker acted in 1912-13 in the Cort theater. "The Only Girl" went through a very long run last season in New York, where it was highly praised by all the newspapers. The cast which will give the piece in the Garrick is virtually that of last season. Mr. Herbert will conduct the orchestra this evening for the first Chicago performance.

Blackstone Theater—"Pollyanna," a comedy by Catherine Chisholm Cushing, based on Eleanor H. Porter's like-named novel. That bit of fiction has for the last two years been of great vogue with those who believe that life is an easy matter if we cultivate the habit of finding good even in our misfortunes. In brief, cheer-up stuff in uttermost concentration. Mrs. Cushing wrote "Jerry" and "Kitty MacKay," two contributions to the drama known of Chicago playgoers. The Detroit newspapers of last Tuesday seemed unable to find anything not worthy of superlative praise in "Pollyanna." The cast is made up of somebodies of the stage—the Misses Patricia Collinge, Effie Shannon, Jessie Busley, Maude Granger, Maude Hosford, and Helen Wethersby and Philip Merivale [he was the teacher of phonetics last season in "Pygmalion"] and Herbert Kelcey. First time tomorrow evening.

Grand Opera House—"It Pays to Advertise," a farce by Walter Hackett and Roi Cooper Megrue, who together wrote "Under Cover." This play had last season's longest New York run; and playgoing travelers, returning from that market place of the drama, were a unit in insisting that it was a good show." Will Deming, well known in Chicago, has the chief character—that of a brassy young adventurer whose motto in life is the title of the play. Miss Louise Drew, Grant Mitchell, and other familiar performers are in the cast. First time Thursday evening.

Illinois Theater—"Sari," with Miss Mizzi Hajos. Final week of return engagement of this imported operetta which is melodious and worth while.

Olympic Theater—"Kick In," a diverting melodrama of the Paul Armstrong school. It is doing well. Richard Bennett and Miss Maidel Turner are in it. Third week.

Cort Theater—"The Lie," with Miss Margaret Illington. What would, a generation ago, have been called "domestic drama." Miss Illington is effective in a good part. Fourth week.

La Salle Opera House—"Molly and I," with Miss Lina Abarbanell, John Miltern, Miss Georgia Drew Mendum, and James Bradbury. Musical comedy by one of the former laureate librettists of the La Salle, Frank Adams. Louis Hirsch is credited with the music.

Majestic Theater—Miss Bessie Wynn, popular in Chicago since the first run of "Babes in Toyland," billtops the week which starts tomorrow afternoon. Miss Julie Ring will act in a sketch; James and Bonnie Thornton will reappear; and there will be an illusion called "Mysteria."

Great Northern Hippodrome—Fletcher Norton and Miss Maude Earle in a "turn" called "Song Sketches with Trimmings," and Walter Shannon and Miss Marie Annis, in their sketch called "A Shine Flirtation," are at the top of the list for the new week, starting tomorrow.

McVicker's—Robert E. O'Connor and his company in "The Stickup Man," with other vaudeville features.

American (West Side)—"The Style Revue" and much other entertainment of a variety nature.

Ziegfeld's New Midnight Frolic, "Just Girls," Is Just Girls.

By Burns Mantle.

THE deftness of the Ziegfeld touch in producing that species of fleshly entertainment one naturally expects to see in a "Midnight Frolic" is admirably emphasized in the newest of these exhibitions now being shown on the New Amsterdam theater roof.

"Just Girls," they call it, and just girls it is. A first line group of beautiful Broadway somebodies dolled to the last speck of powder and gowned to the last wisp of chiffon. Conscious beauties, proud as strutting peacocks of their selection, full of the bacchanalian spirit and weighted by no more serious concern for the moment than their personal appearance as it compares with that of the favorite blonde on the end.

Big girls, most of them, stout of leg and expansive as to lungs; acrobatically graceful and absolutely tireless. The songs they sing are the cheap patter and sentiment songs of the day, strung occasionally on a thin thread of melody. The voices they sing them in are frequently nasal. The lines they speak are nothing, for they have nothing to say. But the gowns they wear and do not wear, and the poses they assume in displaying them, are everything. A chorus of costume models, if ever there was one, and a credit to the trade.

No one resents their nakedness. Few are inclined to resent anything, in fact, at a midnight frolic save the impertinences of the caterers. The spirit of the whole affair is as unconventional and politely Parisian as it is possible to imagine an entertainment to be in America. The audience, semi-professional in makeup, is usually as fashionably overdressed or underdressed as the girls themselves. Charging $2 a chair for places at table rather confines the attendance to the more expensive type of roistering spirits—men with the evening clothes habit and ladies whose shoulders, like their minds, are used to frank exposure.

"Just Girls" is the second of the Ziegfeld series of frolics. The first, which was more or less an experiment, jumped into an immediate popularity and continued weeks past the time set for it. It outlived the lure of the dance craze completely; it overcame the excessive and highly disproportionate charge made for refreshments. It became a midnight institution for the very good reason that there is a large public in New York, resident and transient, that revels in the midnight spirit.

The current program is a series of choruses and specialties—a topical revue with the inanities of the average book left out. The girls start the program with an assertive bit of ragtime to the effect that "In Grandma's Day They Never Did the Fox Trot." Truer words were never sung. The girls were dressed in hoop skirts, dainty modernizations of the quaint fashion that several times has threatened to return and clutter up this section of the well appreciated universe.

There was a specialty or two to fill in the wait, and then the girls returned as bathers, wearing costumes that never were before on land or in sea, nor ever will be without police protection—bathing suits with and without black lace knickers; bathing suits with and without skirts; bathing suits with and without reason; one piece, two piece, three piece, eight piece suits of everything from knitted silk to silken net, and nit, each representing a foreign or a native watering place.

More specialties and then back trooped the girls, five or six representing the saddened capitals of Europe, one the gay capital of New York, and the others a guard of pink lady soldiers with cute little pink parasols attached to their cuter little knapsacks.

They came again, as they did in the previous frolic, as balloon girls, a fringe of toy balloons around the edges of their skirts, a bunch of toy balloons floating from their caps, and played a game with the front table diners. The girls circled as near the tables as they dared, the men reached for them as boldly as they might, and touched the balloons with the lighted tips of cigars and cigarets. Explosions and squeals were simultaneous; hilarity was unconfined.

They came again, later, but we forget in what they came or what it was they represented. In either case it was not much. Eventually there was a finale and the frolic was over. The tired business man gathered himself together, fox trotted a time or two, eased himself into his motor car, and went to Jack's for breakfast. Believe him, it had been a hard day.

May Irwin is no longer the queen of jollity and song she was in the days of "The City Directory," nor William Collier the flip youth with an ambition exceeded only by his nerve. May has abandoned song and William has capitalized his flipness as a comedian. But each has something of the old time comedy spirit left, and when it was announced this summer that they were to combine in the staging of a new farce comedy called "No. 13 Washington Square" much was hoped for and many things expected. May was to play the principal comedy rôle and William was to stage the play.

Little was realized, however. The farce itself proved too great a handicap. A simple thing it is, stretched over five scenes and four acts. A social leader, discovering her income, cut off on the eve of her annual flight to Europe with two maids and twenty-seven trunks, is forced to abandon the tour. Rather than let her social rivals know of her defeat she decides to remain at home disguised as her own housekeeper, and send a friend, heavily veiled, to occupy her cabin on the boat.

The resulting complications are amusing until they become forced and so highly improbable as to lose all comedy value. May Irwin is the housekeeper who is the only one in her mistress' secret, and upon her devolves the burden of keeping the social leader's presence at home a secret. The most amusing moment in the play takes places in a boarding house sought by the social leader and her housekeeper as a refuge from threatened disclosures at home. Miss Irwin's effort to get into and stay in a folding bed, and later to adjust herself to the space limits of a narrow couch are as diverting as the tasks themselves are physically impossible.

Music Programs in the Summer Parks.

Ravinia Park—This haven for bored suburbanites begins the final eight days of its season on Monday with a performance of "Cavalleria Rusticana" and the bridal scene from "Lohengrin." The park closes on Labor day after a season that has been favorable, considering the weather. It will remain closed until the following Saturday, Sept. 11, on which it will be reopened and in place of the usual pageant that terminates each season, an all day program will be given, called "The Ravinia Park Frolic of 1915," under the auspices of the Ravinia club.

Tuesday promises another performance of "Bohemian Girl," Mr. Pasternack conducting. Wednesday will have a double bill, Massenet's "Thais," and act II. from "Manon," with La Palme, Wheatley, Kreidler, and D'Angelo. Thursday will have Puccini's "La Tosca." Friday will be another Wolf-Ferrari night with the melodious "The Jewels of the Madonna," with La Palme, Kingston, Kreidler, and Latham singing the second act and the entire little opera, "The Secret of Suzanne" presented by La Palme, Kreidler, and Fein. Saturday will bring the final performance of "Bohemian Girl."

Sunday night the opera will be "Madam Butterfly," with the services of Freeman, Mulford, Kingston, Kreidler, Fein, Kaufmann, Schuster, D'Angelo, and Beck, Mr. Pasternack conducting his final performance.

Labor day will bring out employés of the Montgomery Ward & Co.'s plants and offices and the afternoon program will be:

American Fantasie	Herbert
[a] Spring song	Mendelssohn
[b] Andante Cantabile	Tschaikowsky
Ballet music from "La Gioconda"	Ponchielli
Torch dance	Meyerbeer
Overture "Poet and Peasant"	Suppe
Waltz—"Wine, Women, and Song"	Strauss
Shepherd's Hey	Grainger
American Patrol	Meacham

The final opera performance will be a double bill of "Pagliacci" and two acts from Flotow's "Martha."

Bismarck Garden—Dancing again, by professional ballet called the Vienna Royal Opera ballet, and also by patrons. The names of the Vienna people are Jerry Lance (prima ballerina), Betty Bruce, Anna Jacobs, Violanta Francell, Nathaly Withoska. There are also others. Mahl's Philharmonic band provides digestible music at intervals. The Bismarck is proud of its Dutch windmill, "where May wine is served by pretty Dutch maidens," and which is always "crowded with debutantes and those who want to get an idea what Holland is."

Midway Gardens—The outdoor entertainment at this architecturally distinguished garden succumbed yesterday to the weather. The winter garden will occupy the entire attention of the management and public dancing will be the staple as it was last winter. H. A. Erlinger is in charge of the music and Carlos Sebastian will stage as heretofore a series of "gambols." Barbara La Marr and Robert Carville are the novelties the first week. They dance. Three persons sing.

by MAE TINEE

WHILE filming "The Woman Hater," an Essanay comedy drama, Henry B. Walthall hung onto the bowsprit of a yacht for an hour. The sea was rough and it required much effort to keep from sliding into the water.

After devoting a year's service as a nurse in the hospitals in Belgium, France, and England, Edna Goodrich, the American actress, has returned to America and has joined the Lasky forces.

After two years of strenuous work Fay Tincher has gone to New York on a vacation.

The Selig Polyscope company recently received a letter from London, England, addressed to the Selig Periscope company.

The Essanay burned down an entire photoplay village for a scene in the six act feature, "The Man Trail," adapted from the novel by Henry Oyen. It was a lumber camp town a few miles from Waukegan, Ill. The village, consisting of a score of houses and several large bunk houses for lumberjacks, was built especially for scenes in the play. Several carloads of lumber were shipped from Chicago for the purpose. The final scene is the firing of the village.

Marguerite Snow, who was to have been featured with Francis X. Bushman, has been in the hospital undergoing an operation. However, she is well on the road to recovery. Miss Helen Walcott, formerly of the Morosco company, took her place.

Herbert Case Hoagland, manager of the Chicago branch of the Selig company, is the proud possessor of a silver loving cup, presented to him the other night at a dinner given at Kuntz-Remmler's by the "Selig Specials"—said specials consisting of the people who went on the Selig excursion to California last month. During the trip Mr. Hoagland's consideration and patience were unfailing. He stood the willing buffer between the tourists and the thousand and one little annoyances that always beset travelers on protracted trips of the kind. Consequently it was with hearts overflowing with appreciation and good will that the "specials" presented the cup at the end of a pleasant evening, during which a delightful dinner was enjoyed and old acquaintanceship renewed.

THE Beautiful Arcade—extending from State Street through to Wabash Ave.—is a thoroughfare.

CHAS. A. STEVENS & BROS.
17 to 25 North State Street, Through to Wabash Avenue

ALL Chicago is invited to make use of the beautiful Arcade in the Stevens Building.

In Assembling the Collection of Girls' and Misses'
Dresses for School and College which we place on sale tomorrow, we have conscientiously tried to arrange an assortment that contains many styles appealing to the young lady, coupled with the simplicity and value considered by the parent. Third Floor.

"Sorority" Dress, $15 | "Betty Wales" No. 1, $15 | "Betty Wales" No. 2, $15 | "Senior" Dress, $25 | Freshman Dress, $15 | Serge Dress, $27.50 | "Betty Wales" No. 3, $15

Of course, we only illustrate a few—there are many more dresses of this type; for misses from $9.50 to $35.00; for juniors, $8.50 to $18.50, and for smaller girls, $3.95 to $15.00.

We have made the same big preparation on the other garments required for school wear. Smart youthful suits from $20.00 up. Coats for every wear from $15.00 up, and frocks for dance or evening wear at school, from $16.50 up.

New Fall Tailor Made Suits
Including Reproductions of Imported Models
The coming season gives promise of even greater vogue of the Tailor Made Suit. Our showing is now complete in variety, and as the quantities of some of the finer and more exclusive fabrics are somewhat limited this year, we advise an early selection. The styles are beautiful, and, as we have developed them, becoming to nearly every woman.

If You Intend Paying $25.00 or More, Our Fourth Floor Section Will Give You Complete Suit Satisfaction.

The New Coats—we have just the correct styles for early fall wear in corduroys, duvetynes and fine imported mixtures, $18.50 to $45.00. Fourth Floor.

For Matronly Figures
—the short, stout figure with prominent bust and the ungraceful full high hip line and small curved waist—this new Gardenia laced front corset
Is the Only Correct Model
Women of this type, a figure hard to fit becomingly with comfort, and who can not wear straight corsets because of their riding-up on the figure, will find this model the most satisfactory ever designed for their requirements.

$5.00

The immediate improvement it will give to the figure is really unbelievable.

It hugs and lengthens the waist line, holding it firmly, giving a long, sloping line to the hip, yet it is full enough below to be absolutely comfortable and not bind when seated. The bust is full and high enough not to cut under, but allows the bust to rest easily inside, making a graceful line from the shoulder.

Made of well boned, firm coutil, and although this model will accomplish as much as the highest priced corset made, the price is only.. $5

We have special Gardenia models for every type of figure and at all prices from $3.50 to $25.00. Second Floor.

New Autumn Furs
For those who can make an immediate selection, the price of furs is very favorable.
Fur Sets—An immense selection, from beautiful Red Fox Sets at $26.50 to the finest Sables.

Hudson Seal Coats
Will be a special feature this week. The styles, this season's newest creations, are varied from the very plain to the more elaborate with trimmings of handsome fur. The prices are $65, $75, $95, $100, $115, $130, $145 and up to $300.

The coat illustrated is made from selected pelts; the full skirt from waist line and the modish half belt may be worn either in back or front. Very specially priced for this week at $110.50

Purchases stored until November 1 free of charge.

Special prices on repairing and remodeling.

Fourth Floor.

Specials for the End of August

Lingerie & Net Dresses Now $10 & $15
In two special collections we will close out all our Lingerie and Net Dresses, styles ideal for dancing and evening wear, former prices up to $37.50, at $10.00 and $15.00. These dresses are all late summer models and very desirable. 4th Floor.

Comment by Mme. X.

By Mme. X.

Of course the world's supreme achievement last week was not the Lake Forest Horse Show association's country fair, but most of the people connected with the fair thought it was. It occupied the minds and governed the actions of many prominent north shorites for weeks before it came off.

The same amount of ability and energy turned on any business enterprise would probably make more money than that netted by the fair. But there was an intangible profit, not to be reckoned in dollars and cents, the profit that comes from companionship, good will, a working together for some altruistic object, which would have been lost had the money been raised in some other way. It is just as much fun to work with your friends as to play with them, and reveals character as completely as any game does. The person who steers away from all such opportunities of good fellowship as inevitably arise in any entertainment or enterprise for charity misses a lot of real life.

It was the biggest enterprise of the kind ever undertaken by the horse show association, and required a Napoleon to marshal all the various departments and features that went to make up the whole. Livestock entries alone totaled over half a million dollars' worth of cattle, horses, pigs, and sheep.

The Napoleon of the event, Allen Haines, displayed great executive ability and tact in bringing all the various units into harmony and to time. There were nineteen separate and different committees, each with its allotted task, besides a lot of subcommittees, as for instance the dozen working under the Midway zone chairman, Uri Grannis. Between four and five hundred people were enlisted to make the fair a success.

A most effective feature was the morning parade on the polo field of the naval station boys in their smart white duck uniforms. They came down with their band from the great lakes naval station and went through their drill under the post commandant, Capt. Moffatt's, eagle eye. They marched off singing, a feature introduced at the station by the present chief.

Another (unofficial) feature was the eighty nurses of the Visiting Nurse association, who were the guests of the association's president, Mrs. Arthur Aldis, it being her custom to entertain them in some way once a year.

Gardens are having their last fling before retiring from public attention, and from England, whence emanates so much garden lore and inspiration, comes a queer little horticultural quirk of which you may not have heard. In a recent romance of Oliver Onions he speaks of a gardener as having for the nonce no strenuous occupation, so he filled in the interval of leisure by "gumming pelargoniums." This had been a cryptic bit had we not shortly before heard about a fellow countrywoman who, during a stay in England, sent a bouquet of pelargoniums to a British dame as a token of gratitude for some kindness shown. The American was much mystified to see the florist let fall a dew drop of liquid gum arabic by a medicine dropper into the heart of each of these fragrant, handsome, sophisticated blossoms. The florist said that made them keep better and longer. Don't forget henceforth to request that your pelargoniums shall be "gummed."

Another garden touch is the growing fancy for weather vanes as a feature in of fine places, although the Ryersons place, "Havenwood," in Lake Forest is one of the most beautiful in that region of fine places, although the Ryerson's have barely had two summers there. Its formal gardens, with their fountains, pools, statues, and balustraded terraces all stand out against a background of dense woods with great effect. The south facade of the house looks out, however, on a broad, green, close clipped lawn, rimmed with forest primeval and here set high in a tree, though flying clear of it and in plain sight from the house, Mrs. Ryerson plans to have a striking and original weather vane, a rose pink flamingo, apparently in flight.

The designing and making of weather vanes is a new art departure and has been found an occupation both profitable and interesting.

One of the most effective of these wind indicators is the Dutch galleon under full sail that is perched on a pole in the Howard Shaws' lovely Lake Forest garden, Ragdale. Another quaint one is the two little old women, one with her umbrella blown inside out and the other quite hidden under her big Sairy Gamp, that whirl or stand still at the will of the wind on the gabled roof of the Laird Bells' house at Winnetka. This house lies well to the west of Winnetka, on the edge of the Skokie, which rolls up to it from three sides, a green, fertile expanse.

Mrs. Frederick Greeley, whose garden, also at Winnetka, is one of the loveliest on the north shore, is about to install at the end of a long flowery vista which stretches west of her porch a weather vane in the shape of a stately peacock with spreading tail.

A weathercock on a country residence never seems quite as useful as one that you can study from the house itself, as by the time you have run out to look at your vane you have got an idea of which way the wind blows without any vane assistance.

Gazing globes are fascinating adjuncts to gardens which are not yet much appreciated in this part of the country. The Cobb Colemans have one on their place at Pittsfield, Mass. It is situated in the center of a circular flower garden and transfigures with magic intensity not only the surrounding mass of gay blossoms but also the background of beautiful Berkshire hills and the brilliant sunset skies. Mrs. Walter Cobb was originally responsible for this garden, and she had a delightfully unique feature in it. A trellised summer house in the middle of a formal garden had on either side of the path it spanned a glazed aviary in which fluttered many curious and gorgeously hued little tropical birds.

Sun dials are also a charming addition to a country place. They are suitable either to old fashioned colonial or English gardens or to the more formal French or Italian gardens. Mrs. Hermon Butler has in a green nook in her sequestered gardens a copy of the historic sun dial familiar to all who know the Ponte Vecchio at Florence.

Does the Italy many of us have known and loved seem to you now like an enchanting mirage viewed across a chasm of smoke and fire? The Ponte Vecchio, the Lung Arno, the Cascine, the Piazza San Marco, the Lido, the Borghese gardens, the Pincio, the Capitoline, and all those other places of delight—are they still there, minus tourists, guides, and little boys asking for soldi?

There is little to smile at when the youth of our utterly nonmilitary land are beginning to concern themselves with military training in camps and at army posts, yet one cannot help smiling at the tale of two of our Chicago men who went to the Plattsburg training camp. Both are rich, used to every kind of luxury and personal service.

One obeyed to the letter the directions to cut down the outfit to the barest necessities. A comb, a toothbrush, and sponge were the only toilet accessories he allowed himself. What were his feelings on arriving to see his fellow citizen, his companion in arms and long time friend, appear on the scene escorted by bearers carrying a multiplicity of luggage—a wonderful folding bed, a pneumatic mattress, a portable tub, a lounging chair, a hot water heater, and innumerable other contrivances for convenience and comfort!

Rumor omits to say whether a phonograph and a movie outfit were included in the kit. It was a test for even a white hot patriotism.

This cold and rainy summer has caused an unusually large deficit in the Ravinia park accounts. The crowds that swarm there on any evening that is passably warm and dry show that, but for the season's untoward weather, the backers of this distinguished feature of north shore life might reasonably expect to have "broken even," though no one connected with the enterprise thinks of it as a source of profit. Its supporters are animated purely by altruism and public spirit in providing this high class amusement park for the residents of this large and important district.

There is nothing in the whole U. S. A. quite like Ravinia park. Where else can you find a place where you get music from what many claim to be the finest symphony orchestra in the country, in a charming park, with a good restaurant service, the latter installed in a delightfully chic open air dance pavilion and under a strictly nonalcoholic régime? The last named feature keeps out any rowdy element that might disturb the orderliness of the company. The operas given there nightly (the afternoons are devoted to concerts) are remarkably well done.

One of the most striking features of Ravinia park to one who has seen Chicago emerge from an early Puritanism as strong as any that ever gripped New England is the Sunday evenings there which are exactly like those of any other week day evenings, with dancing and opera and the movies all in full swing. Shades of the pious, that we should live to see such a decent, self-respecting, goodly lot of youths and maidens—and elders, too—dancing vigorously and then adjourning to listen attentively to "Thaïs," "Manon," and "Madam Butterfly" on the Sabbath! How we have developed, broadened, and grown wiser!

Let us hope that the elements will not hit too hard any institution that furnishes such wholesome and elevating diversion as does Ravinia park. By the way, the incense sticks, pennyroyal, and citronella, together with attacks on all nearby mosquito breeding places, have made the park as mosquitoless a spot as can be found on the north shore. As in the region near the Panama canal, one never escapes the unmistakable odor of kerosene oil, so here you are always conscious of citronella or incense, or both gently mingled, which imparts a not unpleasing fragrance to the nowadays atmosphere.

Mrs. W. A. Alexander of Highland Park, who has been temporarily president of the Ravinia club in the absence of Mrs. Frank McMullin this summer, will be general chairman of the Ravinia park frolic which takes place on Sept. 11. Miss Marie Ogden is among the young women who will assist at the fête of nations that is to open at Arcadia hall for the benefit of the Daughters of Veterans. Various pageants will be given under the direction of Mrs. J. J. Allis and some 200 maidens will be in costume in the various booths.

WEDDINGS.

Invitations have been issued to the wedding of Miss Elizabeth S. Fabian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson Fabian, 1100 Oak avenue, Evanston, and Ronald F. Webster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Towner K. Webster, 1403 Maple avenue, also of Evanston, Tuesday, Sept. 7, at 4:30 o'clock. At home cards have been issued for 6341 Kenwood avenue after Oct. 15. Miss Margaret Fabian will serve her sister as maid of honor and Maurice H. Webster will be best man for his brother. The ceremony will be celebrated out of doors and will be followed by a reception. Miss Fabian, who was graduated from Bryn Mawr in 1913, returned yesterday from Castine, Me., where she has been visiting for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. William Francis Drummer announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Katherine Drummer, to Walter Taylor Fisher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lowrie Fisher of Winnetka. The marriage took place Aug. 21 last at noon, in the Unitarian church at Portland, Ore. The Rev. W. G. Eliot of Portland performed the ceremony.

Invitations have been issued for the wedding of Miss Kathryn Florence Dillon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Dillon of 4753 Langley avenue, and William Diesing of 5732 Winthrop avenue, which will take place on Sept. 8 at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, the Rev. John McCarthy officiating. Only the immediate relatives of the bride and bridegroom will witness the ceremony. A reception at 1308 East Forty-seventh street will follow.

The wedding of Miss Janet Wertheimer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leopold Wertheimer of 5436 Calumet avenue, and Jack Van Gelder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mozes Van Gelder of 5747 Sheridan road, will take place Monday, Sept. 6, at 6 p. m., in the east room suite of the Hotel La Salle. The ceremony will be followed by a reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Mulry of 1213 East Forty-fourth place announce the coming marriage of their daughter, Laura Severena, to Owen Paul Doyle of Emmetsburg, Ia., to take place Sept. 14.

Mrs. Charles E. Kohl of 2826 Michigan avenue announces the marriage of her daughter, Dorothy, to Raymond N. Hamilton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Hamilton of Milwaukee, Wis.

Mr. and Mrs. William Howard Aldrich announce the coming marriage of their niece, Miss Mae Osborn of 4922 Blackstone avenue, to Samuel Carothers of Pittsburgh, Pa., which will take place at 8:30 o'clock on Wednesday at 4519 Greenwod avenue.

ENGAGEMENTS.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Dorothy Alys Deutsch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Deutsch, 4936 Ellis avenue, to Harold Goodkind of St. Paul. Mr. Goodkind is now the guest of Mrs. Deutsch at the family's summer home on Mackinac island.

An engagement of interest socially to Chicago and Lake Forest is that of Miss Matilda Bigelow, the daughter of Mrs. E. M. Padelford of New York, to Herbert Pell Jr. of New York and Tuxedo Park, announced recently in Bar Harbor, Me where the Padelfords and Miss Bigelow are spending the summer at Stratford house. Miss Bigelow is the daughter of Nelson P. Bigelow, formerly of Lake Forest.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Furlong of Milwaukee have announced the engagement of their daughter, Margaret, to Powell Pardee of 1234 North State street, son of Mrs. Myron Frederick Pardee.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Kathryn Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Williams of Augusta, Wis., to Vincent M. Huntington of 4148 Washington boulevard.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Hochbaum of 2836 North Albany avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Ella, to Walter J. Newman, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Newman of Cincinnati O.

E. J. Henry of 4866 Sheridan road announces the engagement of his daughter, Eugenie Grace, to Chester N. Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nels Johnston of 526 Surf street.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Soloway of 1551 South Homan avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy, to Saul J. Groban of Dayton, O.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Marks of 4935 Forrestville avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Anna Sylvia, to Louis J. Simon, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Simon of 555 East Fiftieth street.

The engagement is announced of Miss Ruth Ray Stout, daughter of Mrs. Emma Strobel Stout of 60 East Elm street, to Arnold Stedman Ernest of East St. Louis. The wedding will take place in October and the couple will go to St. Louis to live.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Cudahy of 22 Banks street announce the engagement of their daughter, Helen, to Austin H. Niblack, son of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Niblack of Lake Forest. Mrs. Cudahy is the guest for the week end of Mr. Niblack's sister, Mrs. James Ward Thorne, at Lake Forest. Mr. and Mrs. Cudahy are spending the summer at their home on Mackinac island.

FUTURE EVENTS.

All the north shore is interested in the annual Ravinia park festival, which celebrates the closing of the Ravinia symphony season, and which this year is to be termed the Ravinia park frolic of 1915. It is held under the auspices of the Ravinia club, which includes most of the prominent women of the north shore suburbs, and the program will be unusually interesting. Sept. 11 has been chosen as the day for the event.

Mrs. W. A. Alexander is general chairman of the "Frolic," and is assisted by several committees. The advisory committee has Mrs. Andrew McLeish at the head, with Mrs. Kenneth R. Jones, Mrs. John Bullen, Mrs. Thomas H. McInerney, Mrs. V. K. Spicer, Mrs. Louis Bunch, Mrs. Sidney Barnet, and Mrs. Julius Rosenwald assisting. Mrs. Charles Guy Bolte is chairman of the committee on arrangements, assisted by Miss Sara Burdick, Mrs. George M. Groves, Mrs. Everett L. Willard, Mrs. William M. Wright, Mrs. Richard H. Welles, Mrs. O. B. Tennis, Mrs. Warren Rease, Mrs. Lucius B. Sherman, Mrs. A. F. Wanner, Mrs. Charles S. Mauran, Mrs. Joseph Sosman, Mrs. Clarence E. Smith, Mrs. William Crosby, Mrs. Charles A. Wanner, and Miss H. Josephine Landon.

The patronesses are: Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, Mrs. George Marcy, Mrs. L. V. Kelley, Mrs. H. C. Chatfield-Taylor, Mrs. E. F. Carry, Mrs. Wallace De Wolf, Mrs. Charles G. Dawes, Mrs. Ward W. Willetts, Mrs. E. J. Buffington, Mrs. S. M. Hastings, Mrs. H. H. Hitchcock, Mrs. Louis Eckstein, Mrs. Robert B. Gregory, Mrs. George M. Reynolds, Mrs. Barney Eckhart, Mrs. John Grenville Mott, Mrs. James F. Houghteling, Mrs. William M. Hoyt, Mrs. C. N. Kimball, Mrs. C. F. Banks, and Mrs. A. O. Mason.

Mrs. J. McGregor Adams will have charge of the sale of tickets, which will commence this week at several places to be announced later. The boxes for the afternoon will be taken care of by Mrs. L. T. Osborne, while Miss Josephine Landon will perform a like service for the evening.

An executive committee is composed of Mrs. George M. Groves, Mrs. Sidney Burnet, Mrs. W. L. Kroeschell, Mrs. J. G. Houston, Mrs. A. C. Torbert, Mrs. Charles W. Allison, and Ernst von Ammon and C. G. Alexander.

The decorations will be in charge of Mrs. Charles T. Boynton, assisted by Mrs. Herman Paepcke, Mrs. Edwin F. Lobdell, and Mrs. Edgar M. Snow.

The candy and concessions will have an al fresco shop in charge of Mrs. John M. Tuttle, Mrs. George Lytton, Mrs. John F. L. Curtis, Mrs. Robert Buckley, Miss Caroline Shields, Mrs. C. G. Alexander, Mrs. George Moore, Mrs. W. C. Carr, Mrs. E. E. Tyner, Mrs. H. H. Doty, Mrs. Earle W. Spencer, and Miss Edith Boynton.

The children's program is under the direction of Miss Leonora Hoyne, assisted by Miss Marion Mason, Miss Charlotte Yoe, Mrs. William Kirk, and Mrs. William Sutherland. The programs have Mrs. Edward B. Hall, Miss Mariam Steever, and Mrs. Lucille Showers looking after their welfare.

The "society vaudeville" has promises from Miss Helen Rosenfield, Miss Evelyn Isom, Miss Emily Newton, Miss Virgene Maltby, and George Hanauer to exhibit their dances, ranging from the Pavlowa imitations to the newest fox trot.

Dresses, Suits, Coats and Blouses

Being located on the 10th floor our rental and fixed charges are very low and we can sell high grade merchandise at prices much below what the big stores attempt to do. To illustrate—

The Beautiful Dress Shown in Sketch, only $18.75

It is a beautiful dress—it would be a big value at $25.00.

It is a new fall model, made of Georgette crepe, trimmed with bands of satin. An insert of heavy ribbon in contrasting light shade forms vest effect and lends charm to the dress, while the ruffle and vestee of lace give a becoming, soft finish. It has an entire under slip of satin. This is but one of a great many styles.

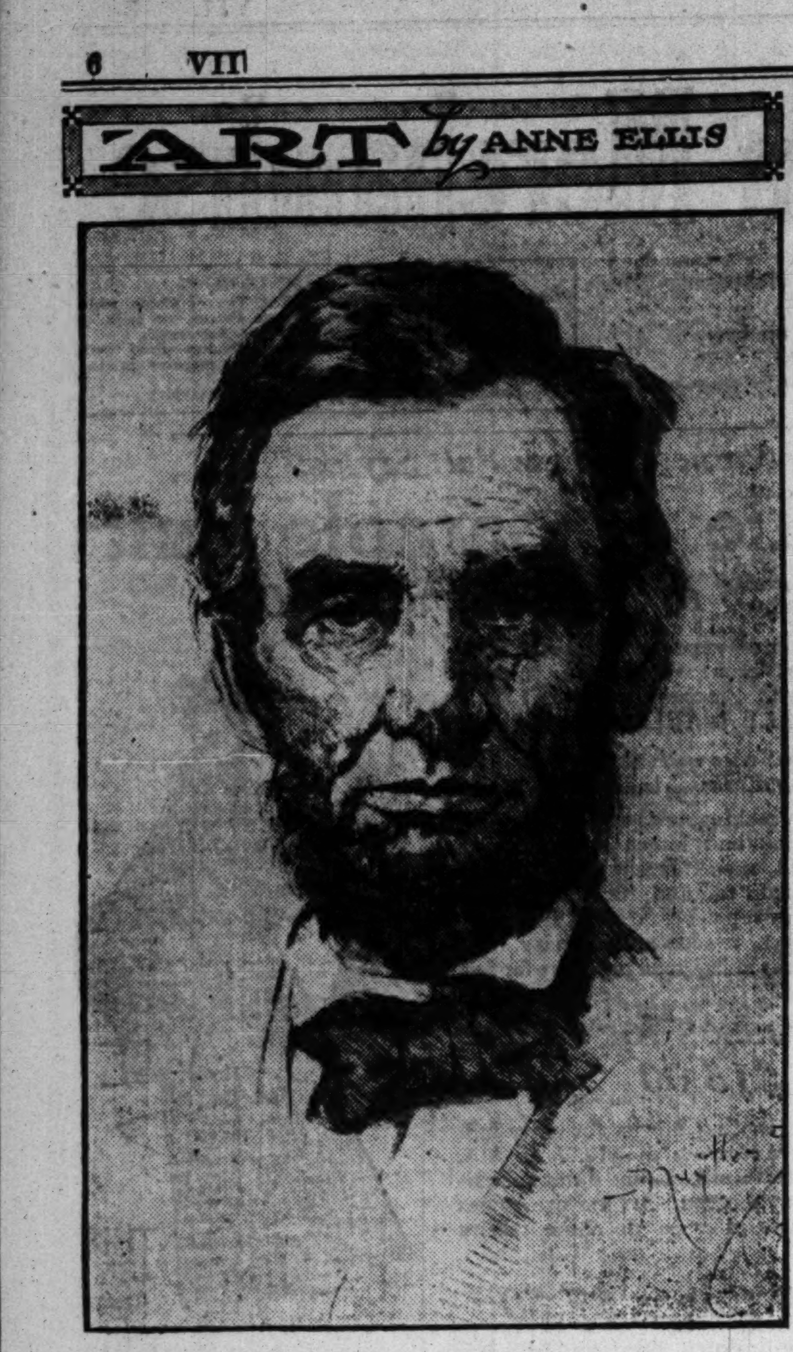
ART by ANNE ELLIS



A dry point portrait of Lincoln of which the above is a reproduction is one of the best efforts of Josef Pierre Nuyttens, a Chicago artist.

THE late John Alexander, whose word about the status of art in America was tradition in reference to the past and prophecy in reference to the future, said that art in the west had progressed with greater rapidity than in the east. In short, he was of the opinion that Chicago as an art center is already ahead of New York, and that in several of the smaller western cities activity was rapidly becoming accomplishment.

It is not surprising that Alexander and men of his type are hopeful of the west when they see the fortitude and generosity with which a few hungry and courageous spirits make the cause of art not only their belief but their propaganda.

Men who have sacrificed honors that they might have gained in more cosmopolitan cities, wealth that they might have gained in commercial pursuits, to be gentlemanly officials in some town where the "art gallery" consisted of one room in the town hall where hung perhaps two fairly good pictures and a number of "oil paintings" donated by the first families which made the soul of the underpaid director writhe. Men who have made a house to house canvass, who have spared no energy and resented no rebuffs in their effort to make the kings of industry and commerce see that their new millions were not the only thing needed to make the world livable, using the leverage of pride and the promise of civic honors in the rare cases where the instinct for beauty could not be roused.

Such a man is George W. Stevens, who is directly responsible for the Art museum at Toledo. He performed the remarkable feat of raising $50,000 in less than a fortnight by contributions, none of which was large, from 30,000 people in all walks of life.

This miracle he performed, as it were by seven years of fasting. For seven years he lived on credit or nothing, as director of the Toledo Museum of Art, working silently and untiringly to arouse the amount of enthusiasm for art that he knew would be needed to make the new gallery possible. He was patient in the face of discouragement and he knew the moment of success and made use of it. It took seven years, but his dream of an art gallery became a reality in 1912.

He is somewhat of an artist himself, and also has published a book of verse, but his genius is for organization. He has gained the love and confidence of his fellow citizens; he has given them their art museum and given them the credit of obtaining it for themselves, and all this in spite of an incurable malady. No wonder John Alexander saw art triumphant in the west.

The Road to Hut Happiness.

THE way is walled high with helianthus, wild peas, and wild asters. Wherever the sun has had fair play upon the wall it is tall and massive, seems impenetrable with hazel and viburnum, small oaks and elders, golden rod and sumac. Much rain has added to its luxuriance. It shows no signs of autumn sear, only the brilliance of ripened colors.

In unfrequented places the fringed gentian prepares to bloom. The rum sherry has ripened and birds, their molting and their moodiness past, are appetent and active. Warblers are coming from the north. Any day the woods and seed bearing weeds along the road will be a-flitter and a-twitter with a new flock of migrants which whisk in, set every leaf and twig in motion, and whisk out again.

Downy woodpeckers, red-headed woodpeckers and flickers work on the trunks and limbs of white and red oak, and are benevolent instruments of tree protection. Wild grapes ripen and folk who know wild grape jelly go graping. And folk who know the worth of the wild crab wait the time when its apple will be full grown among the thorns.

The harvest moon approaches. The harvest nears the granary. This is the fulfillment of productiveness. The dweller in hut happiness knows that the rich climax of the year is at hand when all things appear benignant and sustaining, designed for purpose and that purpose his comfort.

The early twilight and the abundant and malignant mosquitoes, themselves with a purpose not found or misunderstood, find him traveling the helianthus and aster walled road towards the fire of logs which shall take away an early chill.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

Ever Paddle on a Floating Mattress? They Are Doing It at Newport This Season.

by Mme. Y

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Newport for at least a month to come will hold the center of interest and activity for our American aristocracy. At present they are at the height of such exercises as paddling themselves on mattresses in Bailey's beach and of giving costume parties.

Edwind Berwind, whose colossal stone cottage on Bellevue rivals the White House in Washington for space and magnificence, last week gave his first entertainment of the summer. It was a dance for young people and took place in the white and gold ballroom opening on the terrace to the west side of the house. He has been making additions and renovations in this quarter of his estate, and it presented a striking effect as the new marble terrace, sunken garden, and white marble teahouses were seen in the brilliant illumination for the first time.

There were more dinners than usual this week and they were more interesting than the usual run of smart summer dinners. For one reason, Maurice Roche was a host. Whenever a young man does anything he enlivens a summer colony. Whenever Mr. Roche does anything he enlivens all the surrounding territory, be it summer resort or the metropolis. He is so handsome, so gracious, and so desirable matrimonially that his slightest movement attracts wide attention in feminine circles. He has kept this interest alive for ever so long by indicating no preferences. Last week he stirred it into even keener life by giving a dinner.

As is known, he is one of a pair of the best looking twins ever born into this imperfect world. His brother is Francis Roche. His mother, Mrs. Burke Roche, is a beauty, and his father, who is divorced from his mother and now a resident of England, is a princely looking man, tall and impressive. These boys seem to have inherited all of the looks and charm of both parents. Needless to append, they are attractive hosts.

Mrs. Roche has gone west to the exposition, and in her absence the young host's aunt, Mrs. Peter Cooper Hewitt, helped her nephew to receive his guests. They were stationed for this ceremony under a large red marquee which had been constructed on the lawn of Hilltop inn, where the dinner took place.

Most of the dinner tables were placed on the veranda. The grounds were gayly lighted with festoons of gay colored lanterns hung from trees and by surface lights which were placed along the borders of the garden paths. There was no sleep till morn on that occasion, when youth and pleasure met.

As for the frolics at Bailey's beach—the water is at 70 degrees, and I was going to say that high and low, rich and poor, were in the water. There are no such antitheses at Newport, however. Everybody is high and rich. What I meant is that old and young are in the water. Twenty floating matresses are in use, principally by the younger set, although their elders frequently get on them, using as justification the time worn philosophy brought into play by the parent who takes a youth to the circus. You know, the mattresses float, and you propel yourself on them by paddling your arms and legs.

Among those owning them are Miss Fifi Widener, the young daughter of Mrs. George Widener; Miss Muriel Astor, young daughter of Mrs. John Astor; Henry Clews III., John Parsons Jr., and Miss Cathleen Vanderbilt, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt. Among those in addition to this group who indulge in the dignified sport are Mrs. I. Townsend Burden Jr., Mrs. Whitney Warren, Miss Gabrielle Warren, Robert W. Goelet, and Craig Biddle.

Mr. and Mrs. Ormond Smith have returned by automobile to their country residence near Oyster Bay, after a visit to Miss Marguerite Shonts and her sister, the Duchess de Chaulnes, who, with her son, the little duke, is spending the summer at Newport in a cottage which they have rented for the season. They will remain until late in September.

That neighboring resort, rivaling Newport in richness and smartness—Southampton—has started a "frugality fad," which takes the form of a "potato and milk dinner party once a week." Some one in the fashionable bridge club decided that Southampton women eat too much. Last week Mrs. Albert Boardman issued formal invitations to members to attend the first attempt at abstinence. Fourteen guests arrived and were seated at a table fairly sagging under the richness and profusion of its decorations. To each was served a potato, beautifully baked, and a glass of cold and refreshing milk. The experiment made such a hit that every member has issued her own

Mrs. Herbert Parsons went to Newport to be present at the birthday anniversary of her father, Henry Clews, which was attended by five grandsons, of whom she provided four: John E. Parsons, Herbert Parsons Jr., Miss Elsie Parsons, and McElvaine Parsons. The other heir of the house was Henry Clews III. The celebration, indeed, was for a double anniversary, the birthday of Mr. Clews and his young grandson, John E. Parsons.

Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, who has been busier than the busiest breadwinner since the declaration of war, has received an acknowledgment of her services to the French. As mentioned previously, she worked so hard for the wounded soldiers and made such a sacrifice of her personal comfort in giving up her dwelling place for a hospital that she was threatened with serious illness for a time. Now the foreign office, at the recommendation of the ministry of war, has awarded her a gold medal. In awarding the medal the foreign office expresses deep appreciation of her services and speaks of her as one "whose active sympathies have so often come to the aid of the wounded.

She is the president of the American committee for clothing the wounded, an organization founded in August one year ago under the patronage of the president of France. The branch of this committee in America this week acknowledged receipt to Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt Jr. for $250, to Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Mills for $100, and to Mrs. August Belmont for $150. The committee is composed of people distinguished in financial and social circles.

Mrs. E. Henry Harriman will return from the west on Sept. 9 and will go to her estate in Arden, N. Y. Her son, Averell Harriman, has taken a house in Syracuse, N. Y., for the week of the state fair, beginning on Sept. 13. He will have as his guests Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Gerry, Miss Carol Harriman, Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Lawrence, and John Townsend. He has a party of friends with him today at Arden to remain over the week end. His sister, Mrs. C. C. Rumsey, will go to Westbury after her automobile trip through Canada.

News of Chicago Society

Late September will find society staging the newest wrinkle—its latest fad—the automobile owners' meet. Tired of horse shows, rendered less pertinent by the decline of that animal as a general means of locomotion and sport, Chicago society has gladly turned to the automobile show as the most eloquent expositor of its tastes. Accordingly, the first American Owners' Motor show will be held, in the form of a nine days' pageant, at Midway gardens, Sept. 25 to Oct. 3, inclusive.

Society enthusiasts who drive their own cars and those who ride behind trained chauffeurs will vie with one another in unique contests for rich and handsome prizes. Floral carnivals, women's driving, slow driving, debutantes' pageants, and other events will make up the program of the nine nights' display. The proceeds of "society night," which has been tentatively selected for Wednesday, Sept. 29, will be devoted to the promotion of the Infant Welfare society.

Among those interested in the success of the show, particularly of society night, are Howard F. Gillette, Morris Leidy Johnston, and Clive Runnells. The first entry in the women's coterie was made yesterday when Mrs. Edward A. Leicht entered her car, now being repaired and "beautified" for the contest. The junior motoring set will be under the chairmanship of Harry C. Malbohm, assisted by Thurber W. Cushing. Harry N. Fowler is chairman of events and contests.

PERSONALS.

Among the changes of residences for the winter will be that of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, who have taken the Lytton house at 70 Bellevue place. Last year it was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. John B. Casserly.

Miss Margaret Billings, who has been in Camden, Me., with Mrs. James C. Hutchins Jr., as the guest of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Keep, will return home this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Thornhill Broome, 127 East Chestnut street, are going to Pittsfield the middle of September to visit Mrs. Broome's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Spoor.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Cary of 1308 Astor street are still in town, but intend to go to Lake Forest for several weeks of the fall season. Mrs. Cary's mother, Mrs. Malcolm Caruthers of 44 Banks street is also planning to go to Lake Forest later.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy McWilliams, who gave up their proposed trip to France, have since been motoring through Vermont, and now are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter at the latter's summer home in Charlotte, Vt.

Mr. and Mrs. Richmond Dean, who are spending the summer at their home on Sheridan road, Highland Park, left Monday for a trip to New York.

Eames MacVeagh left last week for Dublin, N. H., to spend a month or more with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin MacVeagh, at their summer place.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander H. Revell and their son have returned from Glenwood Springs, Colo., where they have been spending the summer.

A chautauqua, given under the auspices of the North End club, opens tomorrow at Sheridan road and Bryn Mawr avenue, to continue until next Saturday night. This is the first held in Chicago, and the club members are working enthusiastically for its success. Among these is Mrs. Charles E. Milroy. Those who have been selling tickets are Mesdames Herbert F. Perkins, George J. Jones, George E. Baxter, Fred E. Hubbard, Richard Connell, Clarence Holtsman, Arthur F. Shaw, Frank Voightman, Charles Aldridge, Frank A. Westrich, Oliver T. Paisley, Sanford A. Hanstrom, F. A. Frederickson, John Prendergast, and Herbert E. Smith.

Miss Courtney Letts has Miss Katherine Ordway of St. Paul as her guest at her Lake Forest home.

Luncheon hostesses at the Blackstone Tuesday were Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Spalding, Mrs. Morton Butler of Evanston, Mrs. Frank Matthieson, Mrs. H. G. Lapham, and Mrs. Charles Nagel.

Judge and Mrs. Clarence N. Goodwin and baby have left for Buffalo, N. Y., and from there will motor through New York and the New England states, returning in September.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Bentley, Miss Margaret and Richard Bentley, will arrive home from the Huron Mountain club about the middle of September.

Mrs. Darius Miller is at Beverly, Cal. She will remain in the west until the latter part of September.

Mrs. Harry D. Hammond of Indianapolis, one of the best known women golfers in the country, is the guest of Miss Myra Helmer at Midlothian. Later Mrs. Hammond will visit her aunt, Mrs. Henry H. Walker of 1721 Prairie avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Lipp of Lake Forest were hosts at a dinner-dance at Ravinia Monday evening in honor of their guest, Mrs. Kathryn Ordway of St. Paul. There were twenty-four in their party.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Spry of 1633 Asbury avenue, Evanston, have returned from California and opened their new home.

Mrs. Robert Thorne and Mrs. Byron S. Havey of Lake Forest have returned from a camping trip to Minocqua, Wis.

Mrs. Louis Wolff of Wheaton entertained the Summer Players of Wheaton at a supper and dance at her home on Thursday evening. Mrs. Wolff's son, Louis Jr., is a member of the company and took part in the initial performance of the season given recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip D. Armour III. are entertaining Mr. Armour's mother, Mrs. P. A. Valentine of Oconomowoc, as their guest for a few days.

Mrs. George Ingalls of Lake Forest has arrived home after a visit with her mother, Mrs. A. Howard Hinkle, in Bar Harbor, Me.

Mrs. Francis Jewett Johnson of Lake Forest will accompany her father, Howard Baker of Minneapolis, on a trip to California early in September. They will join Mrs. Van Wagenen Alling of Lake Forest, who was Miss Bertha Baker, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Alling.

Mrs. Chatfield-Taylor of Lake Forest will leave on Sept. 12 to visit her daughter, Mrs. Hendricks Hallett Whitman, at Bullrush farm, North Beverly, Mass.

Mrs. V. K. Spicer of Kenilworth gave a small luncheon at the Indian Hill club on Monday in honor of Miss Mary Louise Hoefer of Kansas City, who is visiting Miss Louisa Sanborn, and also for Miss Laura Hofer of Riverside, who is the guest of Miss Elizabeth Wood.

The Misses Elizabeth and Florence Folds have returned from Lake Minnetonka, where they spent the earlier part of the summer and are in Lake Forest until the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Field III., who are on their way to Chicago and who have taken the Folds home for a part of the season.

Miss Edith Hoyt presided at the golf luncheon held Tuesday at the Onwentsia club, and at the golf match which preceded it Miss Elizabeth Adsit won first prize, with the other prizes falling to Mrs. George McLaughlin and Miss Isabel Gilmore of Winnetka.

Mrs. Harold Purington Brown (Dorothy Bour) of 6947 Euclid avenue is in Portland, Ore., the guest of Mrs. Owen Summers. Mr. Brown will join her in a couple of weeks, when they will visit the Panama-Pacific exposition, later going to Yellowstone park, into the Teton game preserve, and spending a week at Sheffield's ranch in the Jackson Hole country.

Announcement comes from East Hampton, Long Island, of the birth of twin sons to Mr. and Mrs. A. Volney Foster of Lake Forest, who was Miss Margaret Baxter. Mrs. Foster has been passing the summer at East Hampton with her parents, Gen. and Mrs. Baxter.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR MUST BE ATTACKED UNDER THE SKIN

It has been proven by the world's greatest authorities that hair is bound to grow out coarser and stiffer after each removal unless it is devitalized. It is impossible to devitalize hair with pastes and rub-on preparations, because they only remove hair from the surface of the skin.

DeMiracle, the original liquid depilatory, devitalizes hair by attacking it under the skin as well as on the skin. Imitations of DeMiracle are as worthless as pastes and rub-on preparations, because they lack certain ingredients that DeMiracle alone contains, which give it the power to rob hair of its vitality—its life sustaining force.

Buy a bottle of the genuine DeMiracle today and you will get the original liquid hair remover. Others are worthless imitations—refuse them. Remember, you are not asked to buy DeMiracle on a mere promise of your money being refunded. DeMiracle is the only depilatory that has a binding guarantee in each package which entitles you to the refund of your money if it fails.

DeMiracle is sold at all good stores, including the Public Drug Co., and Buck & Rayner's five stores. The truth about the treatment of superfluous hair mailed in plain sealed envelope on request. DeMiracle Chemical Co., Dept. A, Park Ave. and 129th St., New York.—Advertisement.

Corset Waists for School
—Third Floor—Center—
We urge you to take advantage of the knowledge of our corsetiere in choosing the correct corset waist your girl should wear, for there is nothing that is more important to her health or the proper molding of her figure. Particularly we ask attention to the H. & W. corset waists for the age of developing womanhood that does not require the stiffness of the corset.
When the figure is slight, waists that are buttoned in front are very comfortable and answer every purpose, the shoulder straps keeping the garment in place so that it can be worn as loosely as desired. This style H. & W. Waist is more shapely than it has been in past seasons, back & hips are longer. For girls 8 to 12 yrs. in 2 styles, 49c
For girls who are more fully developed, an H. & W. garment, in which features of the corset and the waist are combined. Pliable clasp front. Sizes 14, 15 and 16 years, choice at $1.50, $1.00 and............. 75c

O, Look Here! Polite Conductors.

By Gordon Seagrove.

HAVE you ever had a car conductor ram his fists into your midriff and shout "Step lively!" or experienced the terrible suffering that sets in almost immediately after he has slammed the gates closed on your shins while he caroled "Shurdan road next"? Perhaps you have even seen the animosity in his face when you asked him where Gazump's store was or have watched him as he brazenly stole your evening paper after you laid it down for a moment.

If you have, cheer up. Not many months from now he may look the same, but he will not be the same. For his employers, the Chicago Surface Lines company with the assistance of the dear public has undertaken his schooling in the delightful subject of manners.

This highly commendable enterprise will have a vast field in which to operate. It's up to you to help out. The company has asked the public personally, or through written criticism or commendation, to bring about a high standard of courtesy.

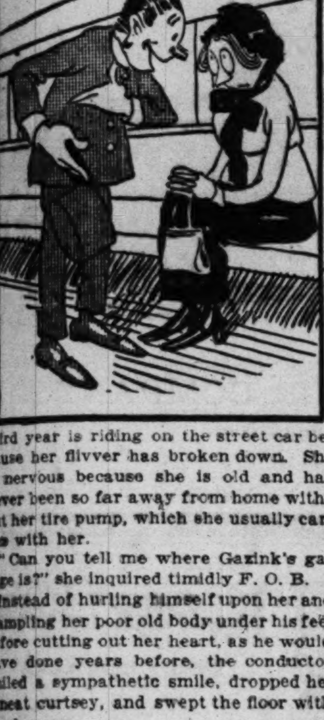
Hence we draw this rosy picture:

It is 1916 and it is still raining. A dear old lady in her one hundred and twenty-third year is riding on the street car because her flivver has broken down. She is nervous because she is old and has never been so far away from home without her tire pump, which she usually carries with her.



"Can you tell me where Gazink's garage is?" she inquired timidly F. O. B.

Instead of hurling himself upon her and trampling her poor old body under his feet before cutting out her heart, as he would have done years before, the conductor smiled a sympathetic smile, dropped her a neat curtsey, and swept the floor with his chapeau.

"There are three Gazink's garages," he explained tenderly, "one in Hammond, another one on Wilson avenue, and the other on Thirty-third street. The owners are perfect gentlemen. Which hostelry did you wish, please?"

The dear old lady had burst into tears—the one she wanted was in Hammond—and she was going north. So the golden tears kept streaming down her back.

Now in 1913, or earlier, such a demonstration would have called for severe punishment; despite her gray hairs she would have been pushed from the platform onto the tracks, there to be shredded into Osler meat by the next car.

But remember—this conductor had learned his manners. Taking a faintly scented handkerchief from his weskett he dried her eyes, then pulled from his pocket a copy of "Minnie Herndon; or, the Curse of Rum," which he gave her to read.

The old lady was so delighted she almost forgot about the flivver. And that night, when his run was over, the gentlemanly conductor took her out to Hammond in his sixty horse power Knockdown, and tucked her tenderly into bed.

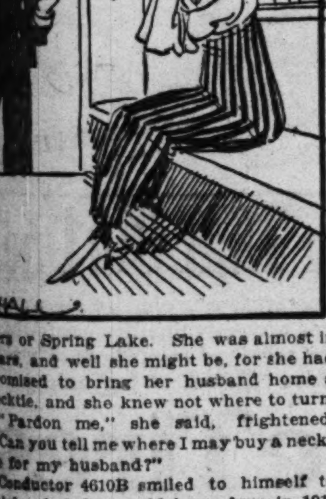
But that is only one case. Another is that of Conductor No. 4610B, who held the shin breaking record for three years before he was saved.

A fawn eyed young thing got on his car, bound townward. It was easy to see that it was her first visit away from Four Corners or Spring Lake. She was almost in tears, and well she might be, for she had promised to bring her husband home a necktie, and she knew not where to turn.



"Pardon me," she said, frightened. "Can you tell me where I may buy a necktie for my husband?"

Conductor 4610B smiled to himself to think what he would have done in 1915 before the Manners Rescue band had interfered; he would have passed the fare register cord deftly around her neck, Georgiamobilized her, and taken a dollar from the company's receipts—which would would have been only fare.

But now all was different.

"Neckties, madam," he cooed. "Certainly. Indeed, yes. But tell me, is your husband a blonde? O, he is? Then I suggest something in a blue or a dark green—conservative but classy. If you will allow me——"

Conductor 4610B drew from his pocket a card of color samples and passed them over. "I suggest style X," he volunteered. The fawnlike young thing clapped her hands delightedly.

"Just the thing," she exclaimed. "O, sir, you are so good."

"It was nothing, I assure you," answered Conductor 4610B. "Get off at the next corner, walk two blocks to your left to Bingham's store, take the center elevator, get off at the fourth floor, and ask for Mr. Jones. He will be delighted to serve you."

And just think, there will be thousands just like No. 4610B soon. If you don't understand English they will call your street in French if you ask them. They will do everything, anything, if you show them how, or the company. There will be no more violence or rough words but a courteaus "Regardez votre pieds, madam, s'il lvous plait," accompanied by an apologetic bow.

But seriously; it's up to you to make the train conductors what you want them to be, and their employers have asked you to do it.

Step lively!

The Annual September Sale of Furniture and Home Furnishings

Not all the clever writing in the world can make a bargain—nor can the cleverest merchandising plans ever evolved equal the oldest, the surest, the safest merchandising plan in bringing you actual bargains. That plan is "buying and selling for cash only"—and ours is, as you no doubt know, the only great establishment in America that buys and sells for cash only. With the coming of the Annual September Sale the economies stand out so vividly that we cannot help asking you to compare them with the greatest care. It will be a lesson to you of the utmost value—for it will prove conclusively our leadership in value giving. The huge stocks we have gathered comprise only the worthiest merchandise in such great variety that every one can readily find just what they admire. The following items were gathered promiscuously from amongst many hundreds that are equally important—to do re-furnishing of any sort without trading here means that you are spending more than is really necessary.

The Furniture Sections are on the Ninth and Tenth Floors.

THE opening of Yellowstone park to automobiles, allowing the motorists to invade the park in their automobiles, under the rules and regulations prescribed by the United States, has promoted a considerable touring rush for the west. The work of procuring the government's permission to allow automobiles to enter this national park was started several years ago by automobile enthusiasts of the west. who wanted the eastern motorist to have the advantage of viewing the scenic wonders of the park from a motor car.

This mammoth national park reserve, which is a part of the Rocky mountains, has a large field of scenic features that will amaze those not familiar with the mountains, forests, and lakes of the west. The park is situated in the northwest corner of Wyoming near the adjacent states of Idaho and Montana. It is of a rectangular shape, fifty-five by sixty miles in size, the greater dimension running north and south; it embraces practically 3,500 square miles. Snow clad mountains within and adjacent to the park range in elevation from 10,000 to 14,000 feet above sea level; the park stage route ascends from 6,700 feet, at Yellowstone station, to an altitude of 8,300 feet in crossing the continental divide.

Nowhere in the world are there geysers to compare, either in magnitude or number, with those in Yellowstone park. The Grand canon of the Yellowstone is unsurpassed in beauty and coloring, and Great falls, at its head, is 308 feet high.

The road system, under the direct supervision of the government engineers, is one of the best in the country. The cost is defrayed by annual congressional appropriations, and no pains have been spared to make the grades easy and the roads of ample width to allow vehicles to pass at most any point. Steel and concrete bridges span the numerous streams, eliminating the fords and making accessible to the tourist many sights heretofore inaccessible. The roads are also sprinkled and constantly repaired.

In 1872, by act of congress, this portion of the Rocky mountains was set aside as a national park for the benefit of the public. During this period the only vehicles that were allowed in the park were stages that were controlled by the government. The recent act permits all automobiles to enter the park. The motorists have to travel under a schedule and comply with other rules.

In going to Yellowstone National park from Chicago via the Cody entrance the route goes west through Geneva, De Kalb, Dixon, Sterling, Clinton (Ia.), Cedar Rapids, Marshalltown, Denison, Council Bluffs, Omaha, Fremont, Columbus, Grand Island, Kearney, Lexington, North Platte, Julesburg, Sidney, Kimball, Pine Bluff, and Cheyenne (Wyo.). From Chicago to Cheyenne the route is practically over the Lincoln highway all the way. Leaving Cheyenne the route goes north through Chugwater, Bordeaux, Wheatland, Hartville, Douglas, Casper, Lost Cabin, Thermopolis, Worland, and Basin to Cody. From there on the route goes directly west to Yellowstone National park through the Cody entrance.

Gossip of the Auto Trade

By Reed L. Parker.

THE Enger Motor Car company has placed a twelve cylinder car on the market to sell for $1,095. Shipment of demonstrators already has been started and the company officials declare they are now prepared to make deliveries to purchasers in a short time. In design, lines, and mechanical makeup the new car is a high class production. It betrays none of the characteristics of the cheaply built car, but reveals a striking abundance of detail and quality. A glance at the specifications and list of equipment reveals features most unusual in a car of any size or style selling at that price.

The Ralph Temple Automobile company is receiving the 1916 model machines from the three different factories that it represents—the Jackson, the Empire, and the Hollier.

Combinations and changes in ownership of various plants have brought about many strange situations in the automobile industry, but none stranger, in all probability, than that of the Maxwell Motor company, which finds itself, as the result of several long term contracts, under obligations to furnish radiators, fenders, and many other pressed metal parts to a number of rival manufacturers. The strange condition prevails through the fact that some time ago the Maxwell organization absorbed into its manufacturing system the old Briscoe Manufacturing company plant in Woodward avenue, Detroit.

Frank H. Smith, formerly of the Studebaker corporation and later northwest district manager for the Hudson Motor Car company, has joined the sales force of the Chalmers Motor company in the capacity of special representative. In his new work Mr. Smith will be the link between factory and distributor. A great deal of his time will be spent on the road in coöperation with the retailer.

Power increase, car refinement, and price reduction are the outstanding features of the Empire Automobile company's announcement of a new four cylinder model which is to be placed on the market this week.

According to information given out by Percy Owen, vice president in charge of sales, the Saxon Motor company's business for July was almost double that of the same period a year ago. The month showed 80 per cent greater sales in point of number of cars and considerably more than that in point of their value. The fact that many of the orders received specified the six cylinder model, whereas a year ago the Saxon company was building only four cylinder roadsters, partly accounts for the large proportionate increase in volume of business.

With 8,200 employés at work, making up the largest payroll in its history, and orders for its product coming in greater volume than ever before, the Packard Motor Car company has found it necessary to provide large extensions to its Detroit plant. At the present time additions comprising nearly 400,000 square feet of floor space are nearing completion. The buildings now under way will cost $750,000 and will bring the total floor area of the Packard plant to forty-eight acres.

The Walker Vehicle company, manufacturer of the Chicago Electric, will announce its 1916 models this week. Four types of cars will be produced. They will be a four passenger and a five passenger rear drive inclosed car, a five passenger front drive inclosed car, and a four passenger cabriolet roadster.

A new eight cylinder car whose keynote will be an almost unprecedented luuxury of finish and appointments will shortly be given to the public by George E. Daniels, recently vice president and general manager of the Oakland company, Pontiac, Mich. The new car will be known as the Daniels car, and will be built at Reading, Pa., in a large plant, whose equipment is now being completed. Already the first two cars are finished. Production on a regular schedule will be started shortly, and it is expected to make deliveries not later than Oct. 1.

George Robertson, winner of the Vanderbilt cup race in 1908, who was injured while practicing for the same event two years later, has decided after a five year retirement from racing to reënter the speed game. He has received an offer to drive a foreign car which Walter Allen, a New York automobile man, is importing for the Vincent Astor cup race at the new Sheepshead Bay speedway on Oct. 2, and Robertson plans to accept, provided the car comes up to expectations.

Tudor Cameron and Bonnie Gaylord: "Tell me, do you drink anything?"

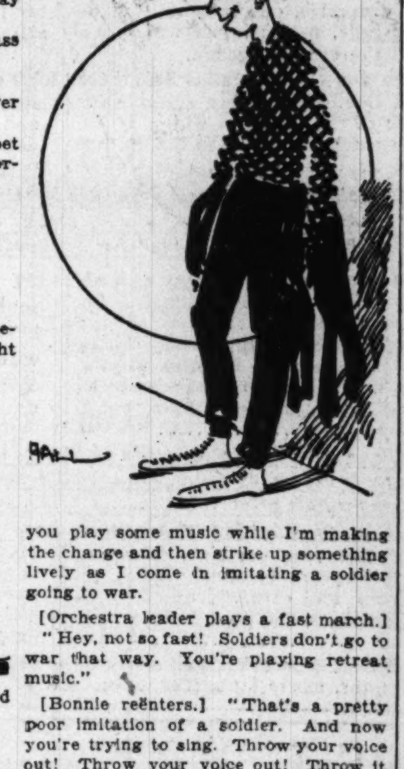
"Yes; anything."

"Are you going to imitate a soldier?"

"Yes."

"Then I'll retire." [Bonnie exits.]

Cameron—Very well, orchestra leader, you play some music while I'm making the change and then strike up something lively as I come in imitating a soldier going to war.



[Orchestra leader plays a fast march.]

"Hey, not so fast! Soldiers don't go to war that way. You're playing retreat music."

[Bonnie reënters.] "That's a pretty poor imitation of a soldier. And now you're trying to sing. Throw your voice out! Throw your voice out! Throw it out, I tell you!"

"No, I won't. It's young, and I want to give it a chance."

"Say, what's the matter? You look awful. Sick?"

"No; just married."

News of the Religious World

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

A CONGRESS of church efficiency and expansion, which, it is expected, will be attended by more than 1,000 ministers and other Christian workers in the Disciples of Christ churches, will be held in Hammond, Ind., beginning tomorrow evening and closing next Friday night.

The president of the congress is the Rev. Cecil J. Sharp, pastor of the Hammond Christian church.

The deans of the various departments in which the congress is divided are P. H. Welshimer, Canton, O., dean of the school of evangelism and expansion; E. J. Meacham, Cincinnati, O., dean of the school of Christian education; J. E. Sturgis, Mansfield, O., dean of the school of song leaders and special workers, and W. S. Buchanan, Union City, Ind., dean of the school of church efficiency.

The delegates will meet in these various schools during the days of the convention. The Lafayette school building will be used for classes and also a large tent located opposite the Christian church.

On Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings there will be mass-meetings held in both the Christian and Baptist churches. Preceding each of the evening addresses moving pictures will be shown.

All of the churches, the chamber of commerce, and the business men of Hammond united in the invitation to hold the congress in their city. The citizens will give the visitors a forty mile automobile sightseeing trip on Thursday afternoon. Whiting, Indiana Harbor, Tolleston, and Gary will be visited, including an inspection of the Gary steel mills. Five hundred automobiles have been offered for the occasion.

THE REV CECIL J. SHARP

The Rev. Cecil J. Sharp, pastor of the Hammond, Ind., Christian church, is president of the congress of church efficiency and expansion of the Disciples of Christ, which opens tomorrow at Hammond.

The Rev. Lloyd H. Miller, pastor of the Metropolitan Church of Christ, West Van Buren and South Leavitt streets, Chicago, will give a series of addresses. His subjects will be: "Why Downtown Churches Fail," "Personal Work Through the Whole Year," and "The Bible School's Contribution to the Evangelistic Meetings."

The Rev. J. H. O. Smith, former pastor of the Metropolitan Christian church, now of Little Rock, Ark., will speak on the subjects, "Preachers and Preaching" and "The Preparation of the Sermon."

The Rev. C. G. Kindred, pastor of the First Christian church, Englewood, will preach in the First Baptist church Tuesday evening.

The Rev. Austin Hunter, pastor of the Jackson Boulevard Christian church, Jackson boulevard, near Western avenue, Chicago, will speak on the subjects, "Establishing Our Cause in the Cities" and "Dangers to Be Avoided in Evangelism."

Representatives of the International Sunday School association, Chicago, will speak on various phases of Sunday school work. J. Shreve Durham, international superintendent of home visitation, will speak on the subjects, "Reaching the People," "Enlisting the People," "Directing the People," and "Holding All of the People." Miss Wilhelmine Stooker, international superintendent of elementary work, will speak on "Efficiency in Elementary Work."

"Not having the goods and the failure to advertise are in general the causes of the failure of churches, especially downtown churches," says Dr. Miller in discussing "Why Downtown Churches Fail." "To have the goods and not advertise will bring meager results; to advertise and not have the goods will prolong for a little while the disaster.

"Lack of practical, spiritualized preaching; lack of genuine hospitality and sociability; failure to minister to the human needs of the people; inferior or inactive organization, and failure to attract public attention are the underlying causes of the failure of many of our churches which should be most successful.

"Preachers must be practical men as well as spirit filled men. More time in factory, street, store, and office is their need. The problem must be known before it can be solved. Their messages must deal with men's problems now as well as their eternal welfare. Our streets are filled with throngs of men and women hungry for hospitality and sociability, and they go where they can find it. The church is unwise if it does not in the completest way lay hold on this natural inclination of humanity. Jesus made visiting the sick, feeding the hungry, clothing the naked, etc., the test of entrance into the eternal kingdom. It was a sad day in the history of the church when it handed this part of its work over in such large measure into the hands of fraternal organizations. We shall have difficulty making a man believe we are interested much in his immortal soul if we are not interested more in his mortal body.

"Lack of funds is the complaint, but wise expenditure of funds is the remedy. Churches must be organized thoroughly to do every work within their fields. Many are not so organized, and many organizations are inactive."

ASTRONOMY

A REQUEST has come in for a word of description regarding the constellations of the zodiac and precession of the equinoxes. The constellations of the zodiac, a purely imaginary grouping of stars which lie in along the path of the ecliptic, which is the apparent path of the sun, are shown, so far as they are visible in the early night now, in the sky map accompanying this article. What are visible in the evenings now are, from east to west, Aries, Pisces, Aquarius, Capricornus, Sagittarius, and Scorpio.

There are twelve constellations in the path of the sun. It seems to progress from one into another and the changes of the year seem to be indicated as the sun seems to touch these various celestial marks in its apparent progress. The fact that it is the movement of the earth which is making the change is wholly unconsidered in our human egotism, which rightfully and necessarily regards the sun as an instrument of the earth and disregards the fact that the earth is a small attendant upon the sun.

The constellations of the zodiac, which are so called because of the zoological significance of the signs—all with the exception of Libra being represented in terms of animalism—are without any significance. Very early in the history of human cognizance of the heavens the groups of stars forming constellations along the path by which the sun seems to travel, were arranged into the so-called signs of the zodiac.

The spring signs are Aries, Taurus, and Gemini; the summer signs are Cancer, Leo, and Virgo; the autumn signs are Libra, Scorpio, and Sagittarius; and the winter signs are Capricornus, Aquarius, and Pisces. The sign of the zodiac, which is supposed to indicate the season, is the sign the sun is in. By Sept. 7 the sun is in Gemini, the Twins. The signs visible, to the imagination or marked for the eyes by great stars like Antares in Scorpio, and tonight in the southwestern heavens, are the signs the sun is approaching.

The precession of the equinoxes results—to explain it most simply—from the rotating movement of the earth upon its axis. The earth is inclined to the plane of its movement through space at an angle of a fraction over 23 degrees. As it rotates it has something of the movement of a dying top. It wabbles. The equinoxes are the periods of equal night and equal day. They occur twice in the year when the earth so stands with regard to the sun that the light from our life giving and light distributing agency hits fairly upon the equator and is divided therefore into equal parts.

There are just two days in the year when this happens, one in spring and one in autumn. By the wabbling of the earth on its axis, like a dying top, the axis points now at this and now at that point in the heavens above. It requires nearly 26,000 years for the projected axis of the earth to make one revolution. Now Polaris is the pole star. Later, in about 11,500 years, Vega will be the pole star.

A result of this motion is that the sun from period to period enters the signs of the zodiac later and later. There is a retrogression in its apparent movements. It is a westward movement of the equinoxes which is known as the precession.

There is an interesting geological theory in connection with the inclination of the earth's axis which shall be taken up later. It is a theory that the axis has not been inclined always and that when it was not, at whatever period when it was not, there was perpetual spring at the poles and perpetual summer in the zones which now have the seasons of spring, summer, autumn, and winter.

Superiority is Always Limited

Extremely few are the cars on the street that attract your attention for a second look. They are few because superior things are always few. In automobile making, the big profits are in big outputs. So most manufacturers are trying to make the largest number of cars they ever made—and the result is an enormous number of commonplace, look-alike cars.

Standing out in conspicuous dignity from this mass are just a few makes that command admiration wherever they go. Notable among these is the Winton Six, the car of the successful man and the successful woman. Every Winton Six is practically a "tailored" creation, made to the buyer's order, finished faithfully to his personal taste. The result is that each Winton Six is a different car in appearance, never mistaken for any of the cheaper makes.

Aside from its beauty of design and finish, the mechanical excellence of the Winton Six is so thoroly established that the buyer's satisfaction in service is a foregone conclusion. It is free from mechanical worries.

The 33 H. P. Winton Six is the wonder car of the year. In every section of America it has won the commendation of the highest type of buyers—and that after all is the real test of a car's worthiness. Telephone us. Calumet 1626.

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW

by FANNY BUTCHER

JOSEPH CONRAD AND HIS FAMILY IN ENGLAND

CONRAD AT HOME.

A HAPPY family group, isn't it? Joseph Conrad, his wife, and their younger son in England playing cards around the dining table—just like the most everyday of English folk. One who knows says "He is so absolutely un-English that a person under the spell of 'Lord Jim,' 'Youth,' 'Nostromo,' and the other matchless ones meets the author for the first time with a kind of shock. A statesman Slav he might be, or a French minister of foreign affairs, but as a master of swinging beautiful English he seemed a trifle improbable." You would never guess to look at him thus cloistered in his country home that he had led a life of the wildest adventures. Some one who once sailed with him said that he was exceedingly reckless. "I'm not reckless," avers that master of adventure. "I never sought adventure. One doesn't. Adventure comes." And it does—to him. Witness his trip to Poland a year ago. After forty years he left his flower grown Kentish home and went back to Poland for a peaceful visit with his friends. The war came upon them. He was caught in Cracow. The two or three months before he could get away were episodical enough to fill a sequel to "Chance." Joseph Conrad's next book is to be called "The Rescue." It takes its title from his experiences in Vienna on his hampered return to England and is to be dedicated, they say, to Mr. Penfield, the American ambassador to Vienna.

Those who were interested in knowing that Annie S. Peck, the mountain climber and author of "The South American Tour" (Doran), has been living on 25 cents a day just to show that she can, will be surprised to find that it wasn't entirely a matter of pioneering, but a little matter of have to. When she came back last year to New York after the European war had spoiled her lecturing plans, her backers suddenly proved to be no backers at all, and she was left stranded at the Martha Washington hotel, after she had spent most of her small capital to help in the venture. She had nothing but her royalties to live on, but she had "heaps of grit," besides a spirit that is willing to adventure into any field, and so she started out to conquer the high cost of living—and is succeeding. With those facts, her adventure becomes a plucky as well as an interesting one.

Nine years ago, when Marcus Horton was beginning "Bred of the Desert" (Harpers), he sold an article on the southwest to Francis Perry Elliott, author of "Pals First" (Harpers also), who was then the editor of the Great Southwest Magazine. "Mr. Elliott, whose 'Pals First' you are publishing now," naively wrote Mr. Horton some time ago to his publishers, "was the first real editor I had met up to that time. And the $10 he gave me for that article—well, I went out and leaned up against a telegraph pole and debated with myself for an hour as to whether I should buy a new hat, which I needed badly, or whether a big square meal with green trimmings—my debts would eat up the rest—which also I needed badly. That our names appear together now in your advertising pleases me greatly."

This naive paragraph was taken from an "open letter" in a spring issue of the Boersenblatt für den Deutschen Buchhandel. It is only fair, however, to say that the letter appeared in a part of the paper for which the editorial office disclaims responsibility: "Apart from Fourth avenue in New York, where the American book trade has made its home, the great American metropolis is quite free from book shops. One can wander miles through the endless rows of houses without finding any opportunity to buy books. The responsibility for this condition rests in the fact that some states, as for instance California, publish their own school books and furnish them free to the pupils in the schools. Thus, through the first book put into the child's hand the book itself becomes a thing of no value, for which in later life he feels little inclined to spend money."

MUSIC AND THE MUSICIANS

By Ronald Webster.

RICHARD DAVIS, a young Chicago baritone, with few concert appearances to his credit, will be given important roles in Max Rabinoff's new Boston Opera company, which opens in conjunction with the Pavlowa ballet at the Auditorium on Oct. 4. Davis is a pupil of Herman Devries. According to information indirectly received, Davis will have opportunity to sing Sharpless in "Madam Butterfly" and Escamillo in "Carmen." He is also to be given opportunity in the first of the opera concerts. He will sing "Vision Fugitive" from Herodiade."

Two weeks ago in these columns appeared a note upon the "New York Metropolitan company," from data received through Ridgely Hudson, the tenor. This company in its prospectuses printed a picture of Julia Claussen, the Wagnerian singer, in the costume of Brunhilde. Mme. Claussen could not be reached at that time, and it could not be asserted, though it was inferred, that her picture had been used without consent. Such appears to be the case. The following are excerpts from a letter written by her to THE TRIBUNE:

"I have observed an article in THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE of Aug. 15, wherein you refer to a letter from Ridgely Hudson regarding the New York Metropolitan company and which says that a picture of me is being published in their advertising matter.

"I haven't the least knowledge of the same nor of the Metropolitan company, and I fear that it seems to indicate that I am a party to a very cheap sort of advertising.

"I love the Chicago people, and I should feel obliged if you, on my request, would make a protest in your esteemed paper. I think I owe it to concert and opera goers, and I wish that you would state that Julia Claussen never had and never will have anything to do with the said company, or any other of similar quality."

The maestro of the Chicago Opera association has sent to the Auditorium staff another of his piquant campaninigrams. This has been duly codified by the bureau of information of the institution. So far, Mr. Campanini has not failed to be interesting and surprising in his announcements of singers engaged, of operas taken over, of scenery purchased, of plans perfected, of hopes realized, of promises fulfilled. Thus, nothing could have been of greater general interest to Chicago opera goers than his July anonuncement that he had been successful in again signing Muratore, for it was the general belief in musical circles throughout the United States that the tenor could not be induced to return until the end of the war. Then, a fortnight ago, came another surprise in Mr. Campanini's cabling that he had obtained Mme. Maria Kausnezoff after his roster of women had already assumed startling proportions, with Farrar, Melba, Alda, Claussen, Schumann-Heink, Florence Eastman, Supervia Conchita, Frances Ingram et al.

What the city editor would term the "big news" of the latest cablegram sent out of Zurich by Mr. Campanini is that Leoncavallo's new opera, "Zaza," will be sung for the first time in America in January by the Auditorium forces, and that Leoncavallo himself will be here to conduct the performance. Of course, Leoncavallo's conducting the American premiere of one of his operas will not precisely be a novelty inasmuch as in 1913-'14 he did the same thing when the Chicago Opera company sang his "Gypsies." But Leoncavallo's conducting at all in Chicago is important. The composer of "I' Pagliacci" holds a place in the fondness of the American public that is secure.

"Zaza" ought to make over into a good grand opera libretto of the school of "La Boheme" and "Louise." It was capital melodrama of the turgid, gutter smell type when Berton and Simon wrote it nearly two decades ago for the uses of Gabrielle Rejane. Mr. Belasco, turning it into Americanese, made a sickly sentimental mess of the best parts of it in order that his star, Mrs. Carter, might have a Magdalene finish about 10:55 p. m. But Zaza, and Dufrene, and the child, and the song and dance man, and the wretched old aunt ought to operatize well.

A new dancer has been engaged by Mr. Campanini. She is Miss Rosina Piovella, and is described by him in a letter as a "perfect mistress of the purest traditions of Italian ballet." He adds: "She is the best dancer, by long odds, ever used in incidental ballets in the American history of grand opera." Her photographs, one of which is reproduced in this edition of THE TRIBUNE, indicate that she is young and, in the Italian style, pretty.

It may be added that to indicate anything of the kind is a triumph for foreign photography! I have always felt that European singers seeking American engagements should first come here incog., and have their pictures made by American photographers. Then, returning abroad, they could send along the pictures with their applications. When, some months ago, the bureau of information of the opera asked Miss Marcia Van Dresser to send photographs, she replied:

"Gladly, if you wait till I have some taken in this country. All I possess were made abroad, and I'm certain I deserve better by the camera than that!"

Best Sellers in Music.

Columbia records which have had the best sale during the week are:

"Du, Du liegst mir in Herzen," sung by Karl Jörn and Ada de Marion, with orchestra accompaniment.

"These Charlie Chaplin Feet" [A. Gottler] and "If You Can't Get a Girl in the Summertime" [Tierney].

"Played by a Military Band" [Mohr] and "Ypsilanti" [Van Alstyne].

Among the Edison records the three most popular records of the week are:

"Charmant oiseau," from "La Perle du Brezil," sung by Anna Case, with explanatory talk.

"Mr. Love Will Get You Yet," from "The Lady in Red" [Jean Gilbert], sung by Helen Clark and Joseph Phillips, and "Where's the Girl for Me?" [Robert Winterberg], sung by Frederick Wheeler.

"Pussy Cat Rag" and "Moonlight Bay," Premier quartet.

The Pathé Freres report the following in the category of "best sellers":

"Di Provenza il mar," from "Traviata" [Verdi], and "Morte di Valentino," from "Faust" [Gounod], sung by Titta Ruffo.

Swedish dances, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 [Max Bruch], violin solo by Jan Rudenyi, with orchestra.

"Song of the Mill" and "Unter'n Linden" played by Berlin Pathephone orchestra.

The following are the three best sellers in Victor talking machine records:

"A Little Bit of Heaven," George MacFarlane.

"Love's Own Sweet Song," Frances Alda.

"Medley Waltzes," Victor band.

More Tributes to the Late George Fitch.

"Dead! With the laugh still on his lips!
Dead? With a jest on his last breath!
Ah, but the joy that brimmed his quips
Laughed in the empty face of death!

"Dead? Is the sunshine hidden quite
Through the dull curtain blinds and bars?
No! He is laughing in the night,
Lending new gladness to the stars.
"WILBUR D. NESBIT, Chicago."

"Lovers of clean, quiet humor will regret the untimely passing of George Fitch, while those whose good fortune it was to know him will feel the loss of a delightful companion and a genuine friend, whose wit and brilliance have rarely been surpassed.
"KIN HUBBARD, Indianapolis News."

"George Fitch occupied a peculiar position in the Forty-eighth general assembly. He was easily the most conspicuous literary figure of the legislature. Personally I was fond of Fitch. He was always human, always lovable. He combined literary genius with the political purity of the idealist. The commonwealth of Illinois in his death loses one of her greatest and sweetest sons.
BARRATT O'HARA,
"Lieutenant Governor of Illinois."

"George Fitch follows Bob Burdette in the recessional of humorists whose writings brought wholesome fame to Peoria and whose quips were framed in lives of uprightness and moral courage.
"Editor Peoria Transcript."
FRED A. STOWE,

"Possessed of modesty that was not assumed for the purpose of making it appear that he was eccentric, George Fitch was an exemplification of the fact that it is possible to be a genius and a gentleman. S. E. KISER, Chicago."

"I need not say that the passing of George Fitch leaves a void in my heart which will long stay unfilled. He could puncture a sham and leave the shammer alive and purged of his sin to the extent he would go and sin no more. And such is the mission of a real humorist. Such was George.
"WILLIAM HAWLEY SMITH,
"Peoria, Ill."

"There's nothing to say about George Fitch except that he was just as sane and sweet and lovable as everything he wrote. EDNA FERBER, Chicago."

"To my thinking George Fitch was one of the most courteous, simple hearted, and gallant of writing me. He was a fine American humorist, but, depend upon it, he was even a finer American man. HENRY J FORMAN,
"Collier's Weekly."

"Doubtless there is in the world a sweeter, saner, more generous and lovable human being than was George Fitch, who died last Monday, but we don't know him and never expect to meet him. George would have hated a longer obit.
"FRANKLIN P. ADAMS,
"The New York Tribune."

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC.

To Stage-Aspirants.

The position of understudy to Miss Patricia Collinge in the title-part of "Pollyanna" is open to a resident Chicagoan who can qualify as to type and natural ability. The age-requirement is from 16 to 20 years. No consideration will be given to "professional" applicants. Selection will be made by the producing stage-director for the management, the Messrs. Klaw & Erlanger and George C. Tyler.

The essential note in the character of Pollyanna on the stage is such that few actresses of experience possess it; and it is for this reason that the management seeks an alternate for Miss Collinge from the ranks of amateur actresses of American type. Pollyanna is, in Acts I., II., and III., a girl 12 years old; in Act IV. she is 17 years old. The management regards Miss Collinge as ideal in the character.

Applications to be made by mail only. Address C A 51, Tribune.

EXECUTIVE.

Business men, we know it is not easy to get the man we want, but we believe he is in Chicago. He must be a man who can direct the work of others after he has learned to do the work himself. The work is, essentially, selling goods by correspondence to country trade, but a "mere sales correspondent" is not the man we are looking for. We want a man who has a knowledge of office routine and can dig down to the bottom of things and work out details; one who can learn to handle temperamental salesmen in town and out of town and who knows something about bookkeeping, order work, billing, collections, claims; in other words, he must know office routine as practiced in a fair sized office. A man of fair education who can dictate good, sensible sales letters, has had road experience as a salesman, and knows office details would be the class of man acceptable for the position.

We manufacture and sell a high grade specialty for country trade and it has proven a big winner and the business is growing by leaps and bounds.

If you feel you can measure up to the qualifications mentioned, and want to connect with a rapidly growing institution, state fully your experience, references, age, married or single, nationality, and salary to start. We can only consider applications which give us the information asked for. Address F P 499, Tribune.

Health is your best capital. You may be broke, but with health and brains you will get there. There was never a dollar made that did not call for more than mere scheming. Scheme, dream, idealize, but keep in mind that you must put your hand to the plow or the seed will not grow. Get into the dirt, expand your nostrils like a war horse, build your muscles and get the bee of automobiling to make honey for you and win. We teach you—you learn—you DO.

We instruct in all the branches of a gasoline motor, storage batteries, magnetos, carburetors, welding, acetylene and smith, vulcanizing, overhauling of cars, repairing, and driving—everything pertaining to the automobile industry. We make all difficult subjects easily understood. Remember, genuine instructors are comparatively few.

VACANT—SOUTH SIDE.

Live Business Vacant.

E. 75th-st., between Jeffrey-av. and Yates-av., is the coming business center of the new South Shore district and is ripe for building now.

75th-st. is the only heavily traveled through street south of 63d-st. Has street car line and all improvements in.

Surrounding sections are rapidly filling up with new buildings, and nowhere in the city can you buy business vacant at present prices that will bring the rent that can be gotten here.

We have the only real snaps left—a few corners and inside pieces that can be bought from depending upon location, which is much less than is asked for future business corners in prairie subdivisions where you have to wait 15 years to find out just what you have bought.

$45 to $65 Per Foot,

Some of these pieces can be bought on payments of $500 to $3,000 Cash.

Balance on time.

There are only a very few pieces left at these prices, and it is certainly worth your while to look them over now, as no development in recent years offers as certain profit for the builder and investor as the above.

Call or write for particulars NOW.

FOR SALE — IF YOU WANT AN IDEAL place to build a home, buy a lot in JACKSON PARK HIGHLANDS, south of and adjacent to Jackson Park.
I. C. express service to city—22 minutes.
Nearly 60 acres of this subdivision are restricted to single, detached dwellings, in which block houses and flats are prohibited. We know of no place in Chicago where such a large area in one subdivision is restricted to houses.
The location is ideal.
The street improvements are in.
There are many beautiful homes here.
The surroundings are exceptionally fine.
The prices of lots are reasonable, and the terms of payment can be satisfactorily arranged.
The subdivision affords both city and country life.
The beauties and comforts of Jackson Park are here.
Lake Michigan only a short distance east.
We also have in this subdivision portions which are not restricted to houses which we offer to those who wish to build high class apartments.
There is nothing on the South Side or in any other section of the city that surpasses this tract and, considering all of its advantages, we think nothing equals it. It is worthy of your investigation.
Take I. C. R. R. to Bryn Mawr station—office one block west of station platform—or take surface cars to 67th-st. and Euclid-av.—office four blocks south; by automobile—parks and boulevards.

PROFIT SHARING
CO-OPERATIVE PROPOSITION.
During the month of SEPTEMBER we will allow a CREDIT to EACH BUYER in each series of ten lots sold.

THIS IS A TEN LOT CLUB.
FOR SEPTEMBER ONLY.

The PRICES are the same until October 1st; all unsold lots will be advanced at that time.
We are giving the actual buyers of lots money we are saving on advertising, selling expense, plus a liberal profit; we expect to sell every lot during the month; we have set aside a certain sum to sell these lots, the less we must spend the more we can divide with the buyers.

IMPROVEMENTS INSTALLED AND PAID FOR BY US.
Good sensible RESTRICTIONS cover the property for a period of 25 years. Prices are $15 per foot less than the cheapest property east of Western, north of Pratt-blvd. Terms as low as $50 down and $10 per month.

DON'T DELAY. COME TODAY.
To investigate this property is to buy. Let us explain the Co-Operative proposition good for September only. Come out and bring your friends.
Take any street car coming to Rogers Park and get off at our office.

Are You Looking FOR A HOME? Have You Seen River Forest?

If not, a drive through its shady streets bordered with beautiful homes, surrounded by spacious lawns and rendered charming by flowers, shrubs, and trees, will appeal to you, with its restful charm, as a choice location for a suburban home.

If you are interested and will call up our office, located on the property, corner Harlem-av. and Lake-st., phone River Forest 250, our agent will be pleased to call for you and show you the lovely surroundings and new residences just nearing completion on the grounds of the River Forest Land Association.

These homes have each an individuality, with 6, 7, and 8 rooms, sun parlors, sleeping porches, and every city convenience; they are sure to impress you favorably, and are for sale on very easy terms.

Transportation is the best—frequent trains on the Oak Park Elevated—the luxurious passenger service of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway, and the surface lines make River Forest easily accessible.

Further information will be gladly furnished on application.

REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Michigan.

Possession of Land.

[Private car excursions Tuesdays, Aug. 31st and Sept. 7th.]

INVESTMENT IN LAND, history shows, dates back to old Assyrian and Babylonian times, 2,000 years B. C. Many other forms of investment have since sprung up, but nearly all are based on matters pertaining to land. Whenever populations have been disturbed other forms of investment have given way to the one great staple investment—land. At present we see capital reaching out as never before for possession of land, choice farm mortgages, etc.

I HAVE BEEN CONDUCTING for years a campaign of education in land investment through the newspapers and with literature. I am frequently told that this work has sold much land for others. I am glad of this, as it is all in the right direction, and I also have the satisfaction of knowing at the same time that I have attracted to my district from nearby and remote places the capital, muscle, and brains that insure ever increasing investment in my district on the soundest basis. Every year shows a decided gain.

I INVITE PEOPLE TO COME—and they come in large numbers—and see for themselves what I have accomplished in settling and developing the Swigart Tract in Mason, Manistee, Lake, and Wexford counties, Michigan, in my 20 years of work. It has been no small job to convert this district, as left by the lumbermen, to a farming community with good roads, telephones, schools, churches, and towns. These lands now produce fine yields of clover, rye, vetch, barley, oats, wheat, timothy, beans, peas, potatoes, and all vegetables raised in this latitude; also they are adapted to raising poultry, hogs, sheep, and cattle. I have been developing a large orchard which shows, with other orchards in that district, that there is no better place than Michigan's Fruit Belt to grow apples, peaches, pears, plums, cherries, and bush fruits.

THE SWIGART TRACT means much to the individual who is looking for the right place to secure good land at prices always based on the progress made, rather than on the future, and they are probably the lowest of any lands on the market today. My terms of $25 and up for the first payment and $5 and up for the monthly installments on 40 acres can be met by any man who has average wage earning capacity and is earnest about getting a farm home. After the land is partly paid for he is insured for the balance.

I CAN'T TELL YOU here a hundredth part of what you ought to know before buying land in Michigan, and I have therefore prepared a 72 page book with illustrations and descriptive matter about our townships. I want you to read this so that when you take the trip you will be posted on the conditions and can verify all that I claim. I will take you to the farmers and will aid you in every way to make an intelligent decision about purchasing land. Send for the book today. A large map will also be inclosed, showing the location a short distance from the big markets of Chicago, Milwaukee, Grand Rapids, and Detroit, and excellent local markets, good railroad transportation, and convenient for lake shipping. Post yourself well and then come on the short trip.

MY NEXT TWO EXCURSIONS will be Tuesdays, Aug. 31st and Sept. 7th. Now is the best time to see the crops while they are maturing, as well as those that have been harvested. The excursion party leaves my Chicago offices at 11:30 a. m. Round trip fare from Chicago to Wellston [my Michigan headquarters], including railroad fare, meals, and lodging, $12.50. Good accommodations for both men and women. Automobiles are furnished free. Offices remain open Monday evening and Saturday afternoon.

BUSINESS—BEST IN CHICAGO.

My business is well established, exceptionally safe, and highly profitable. I lead in this special field. More contracts in hand now than my available capital can handle to advantage. More are offered to me for immediate acceptance. My specialty covers a long felt want, strikes a popular chord, and has for it a certain and growing demand at handsome profits. We are secured for every operation. War or other adverse financial times do not affect the demand, but it does naturally limit our borrowing facilities. Hence I have determined to associate with me additional capital to the extent of $15,000, preferably from one who can give his active services to the business and share my official duties. Write me for personal interview. Bank, commercial, and agency references. Address E W 243, Tribune.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY FOR ONE OR more parties in position to invest $15,000, with active service, in established business mfg. special industrial machines at a big margin of profits; no competition; will stand a thorough investigation; particulars at personal interview only. If in earnest call 184 W. Washington-st., Suite 302.

COAL MINING PROPERTY—FOR SALE—

The executors of the last will of Henry Horn, decd., will sell at public sale at Du Quoin, Illinois, on Saturday, Sept. 11, 1915, at 1 o'clock p. m., the coal mining property known as the Brilliant Mine near Du Quoin, in Perry county, Illinois.

The property consists of thirty acres, top and bottom, and five hundred acres of coal rights in fee, partly worked, with shafts, tipple hoisting, and mining equipment, ready to operate and open to inspection.

The terms of sale are 25 per cent cash, remainder in twelve months at 6 per cent interest, purchaser to have option of payment before maturity, secured by approved personal security and mortgage on the premises sold.

The sale is made for the payment of the debts of said estate, it being insolvent and is made pursuant to a decree of the County Court of Perry County, and subject to the approval of the court.

The executors have no power to operate the property, and it is necessary that it be sold.

A REBUILT CADILLAC

It's a Safe Used Car to Buy

SPECIAL VALUES NOW.

A rebuilt Cadillac is superior to any new car at the same price. They are the truest values on the street. By rebuilt we mean that the cars have been taken entirely apart, each part examined, and if necessary replaced by a new part made at the Cadillac factory, the entire car repainted and refinished like new; all equipment put in first class condition—the whole car, in fact, carefully reconstructed until it is good as new in every detail.

We offer Cadillacs exclusively, as we do not accept other makes in trade. Consequently we are as interested in the performance of these rebuilt cars as we are in new Cadillacs. In actual service values these cars are worth a great deal more than we ask for them, and we usually have a variety of body styles to select from. See them before you buy.

PRINCE LEOPOLD OF BAVARIA

Prince Leopold of Bavaria was the first of the generals of the Teutonic allies to enter Warsaw with his army after the capitulation of that Russian stronghold.

Prince Leopold is a younger brother, by one year, of King Ludwig III. of Bavaria. When King Otto, Ludwig's father, was declared mentally incapable of ruling, Prince Leopold was named regent, which office he retained until Otto's death. Two years ago he was the leader of a fight waged by the lesser German states against what was then termed the "pretensions of Prussia." Prince Leopold has led his army corps into both the eastern and western theaters of war, but his entry into Warsaw is what has made him a German and Austrian national hero.

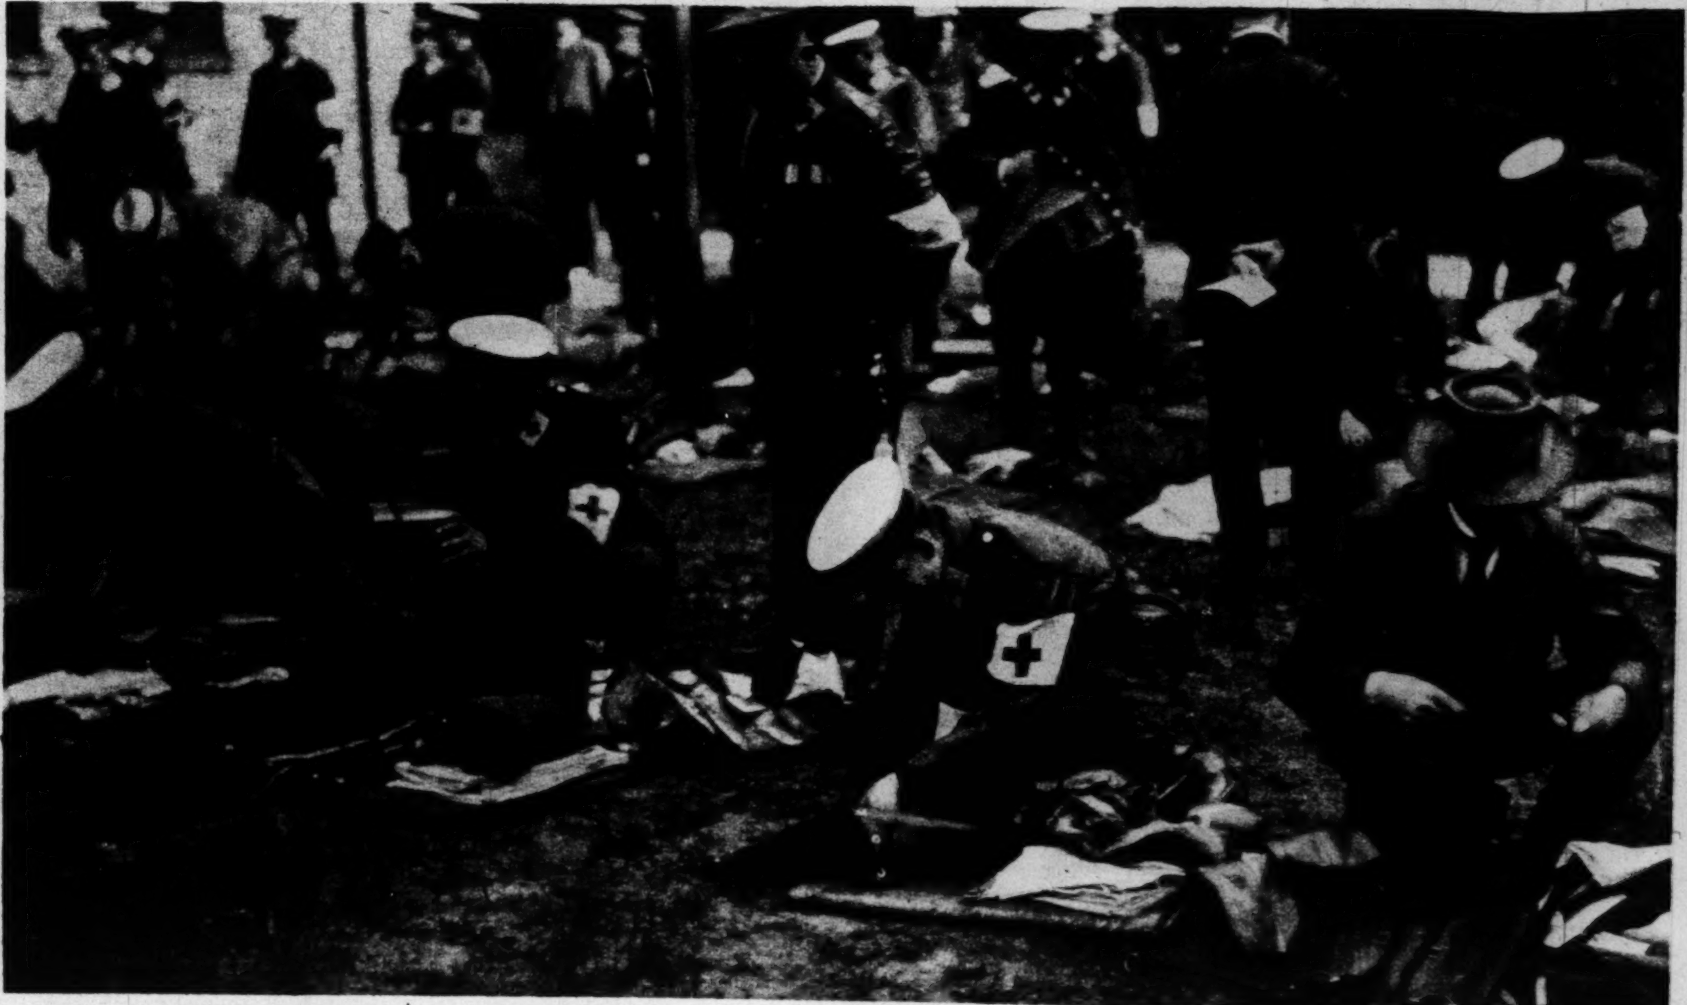
Practicing attack drill. This shows reports that Germans attack in close order are untrue.



German Red Cross getting their full field equipment from a depot in Berlin. The packs which the men are arranging contain, besides blankets and small tents, all the "first aid" remedies and bandages and various surgical instruments.

Thousands of Armenian women and children like these recently were massacred by the Turks in a religious frenzy. This group was taken in the American missionary compound at Van, where they had taken refuge when the Turks besieged the city.

Russian boy scouts. Every Russian regiment has three or four boy scouts who have been adopted by the regiment. This is a tradition inherited from the days when the Kazaks of the Setsch were a celibate organization and depended upon adoption for their membership. The boy in the center is 16 years old and big enough to carry a gun. The older boys carry nothing on the march, but are sent out to do scout work at night, for which boys are almost always better than men, being smaller and having a better instinct for hiding.

Russian transporting ponies. The Russian transport has distinct properties of its own. It is composed exclusively of Siberian ponies which can cover twice as much ground in a day as horses from western Europe. They are so wild they cannot be driven by any one but their owners, and thus when captured are of no value. When labor exhausted, they can be cut from the harness and follow along with the column, each pony knowing its owner.

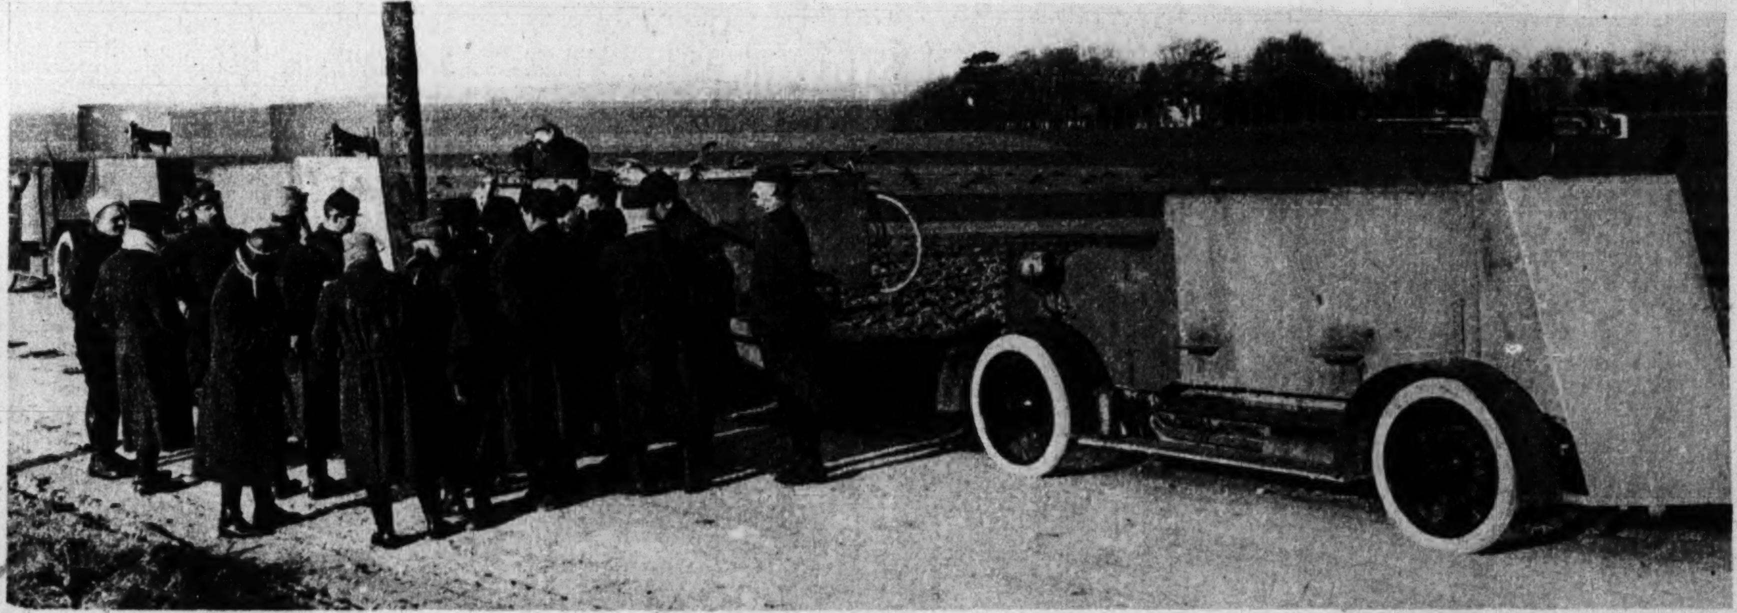
A beggar woman typical of Russia. These beggar folks are practically recognized as members of a proper profession in Russia. They are an accepted and supported institution.



Where the theater of war has a Gordon Craig setting. A clean sweep of plain where the gathered grain is stacked, soon to be swept over by the destructive clash of arms. A squadron of armoured motor cars and French scouts are shown in the foreground. These army motorists advance ahead of the army, feel out the enemy, sketch the terrain, and report back to the commanding officers.

M. Millerand, French minister of war, going through a French ammunition factory. Although the work of supplying munitions to the army has been given over almost exclusively to M. Thomas, under-secretary of war, M. Millerand from time to time makes a tour of the factory to see that all is in working order. This scene is the interior of the factory in which shells for the famous 75 millimeter gun are made.

When the war correspondents' phrase, "a constant stream of fire poured from the trenches," has a literal meaning. This is the first picture received from Europe showing the much discussed liquid fire used by the Germans in repulsing attacks of their enemies. The flame is produced by the ignition of a gas upon which terrific pressure has been put. The liquid fire is said to have a bad effect on the morale of those of the enemy who only see and are not consumed by it.

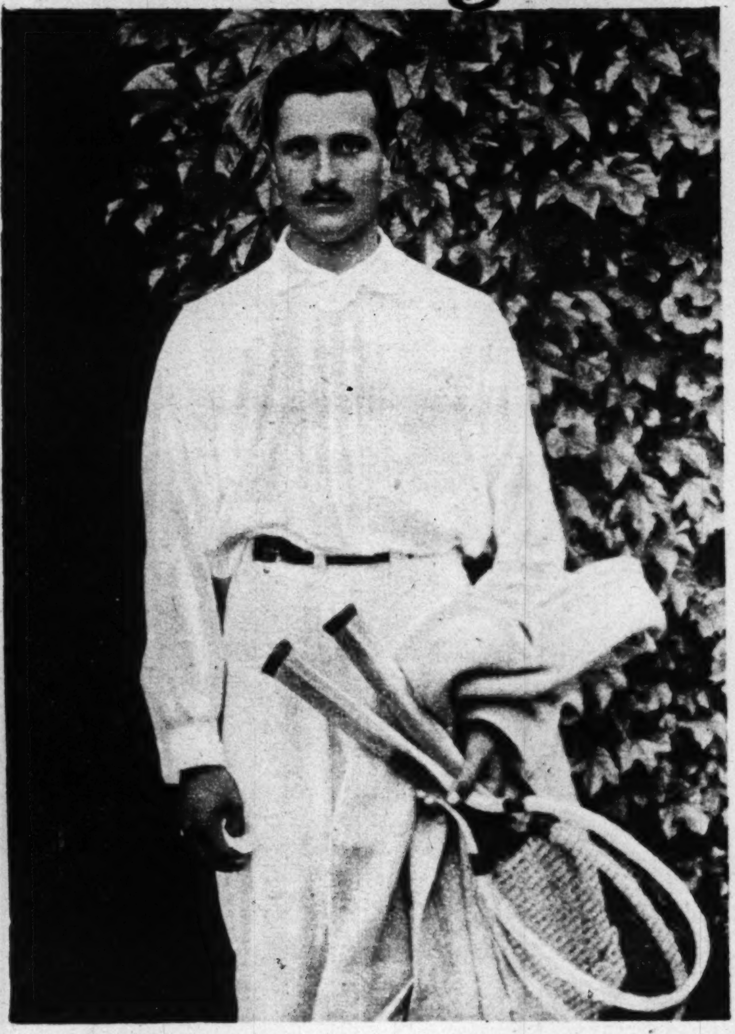
Don Fabrizio Colonna, son of the mayor of Rome, who is at the front. This type of face is almost general among the Italian officers—clear cut, firm, intelligent. (Photograph from Carolyn Wilson, war correspondent of The Tribune.)



The English flappers are not neutral in regard to him. Otto Froitzheim, one of the best of the German international lawn tennis players, is now a prisoner of war in England. Donnington hall, where German prisoners of war are housed, is daily visited by a stream of English women and girls who admire Froitzheim and send him flowers and delicacies. Batter up! They have filched our national game and play it under difficulties at the hospital camps in England. The catcher here is not a Schang nor the batter a Ty Cobb, the one having an arm in a plaster cast and the other having a bum foot, which makes sliding the bases difficult; but they enjoy it better than plugging Germans in the trenches.
